Market Gardeners

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

Louis F. Miller, Toledo, O., President;
H. A. Dooley, Cleveland, O., Vice-President;
C. H. Nissley, New Brunswick, N. J., Secretary;
H. J. Cheney, Grand Rapids, Mich., Treasurer.

ALBANY, N. Y.—The Albany County Market Gardeners Association met here, February 23, with an attendance of 200. Co-operation and the problems of distribution and marketing were discussed. Addresses by Congressman Peter Ten Eyck, of the twenty-eighth New York district; Harold D. Phillips, director of the bureau of markets and storage of the state farms' and markets' commission, and others were features.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, February 28.—Cucumbers, per crate, $7 to $8; head lettuce, per crate, $4.50 to $6; carrots, $4.50 to $5.50 per barrel; cabbage, $2 to $2.75 per 100-pound sack.

New York, February 24.—Cucumbers, $2.25 to $2.75 per dozen; mushrooms, per three-pound basket, 80 cents to $1.50; radishes, 100 bunches, $3 to $8; tomatoes, per pound, 40 cents; lettuce, one dozen bunches, $1 to $1.75; beet tops, per basket, $2.

Dried Fruits in Good Demand.

Almost all kinds of domestic dried fruits sold steadily last week, and, though prunes were offered more liberally than of late, prices were fully maintained. Peaches and apricots were taken quite freely and sales of raisins reached a fairly satisfactory aggregate, but there was only a routine movement of currants and pears, dates and figs were quiet. A noticeable feature was the active demand for dried apples, the latter ruling firm at 16 cents for prime goods.

Damping Off.

As the time draws near for planting tomato and other seed which are usually planted in beds or boxes, it is well to remind the prospective gardener of some precautions which may prevent losses from damping off, the worst of our seed bed troubles. Damping off is caused by any one of several species of fungi which inhabit the soil. Some one of them is present in nearly all fertile soil, but it is only under exceptional circumstances that they do serious harm. They grow most vigorously in the surface layers of a damp cool soil, and in such a soil attack young plants near the surface of the soil and rot the stem at this point, hence the term damping off.

There are two general methods by which this trouble may be held in check. They are soil disinfection and proper cultivation. For the person growing plants on a large scale during cool weather a combination of the two may be necessary; but for the person growing only a few plants, disinfecting the soil is too tedious and expensive to be recommended. For such persons the following cultural precautions are recommended: First—Plant the seed in rows; second—Do not water oftener than is necessary; third—After watering, stir the soil between the rows, so as to allow the surface soil to dry quickly. This may be hastened by sprinkling air slaked lime over the surface of the soil.

ROBERT PYLE ADDRESSES FLORISTS' CLUB.

Members of the Florists' Club were well pleased with the lecture delivered in Chancellor's hall, State Education building, February 24, by Robert Pyle, president of The American Rose Society and head of the Dingee & Conard Co., West Grove, Pa. Two years ago during Farmers' Week at Cornell university, Ithaca, Fred. A. Danker, a former president of the club, met Mr. Pyle, who gave an address at the meeting of The New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs, and asked him to speak in this city. At that time Mr. Pyle said he was booked ahead for a year or more, but would be glad to come when opportunity offered.

Mr. Pyle's subject was: "Famous Roses and Rose Gardens at Home and Abroad," and consisted largely of beautiful colored slides taken by Mr. Pyle and his friends in the United States, England and France. In the course of his remarks the speaker made reference to Portland, Ore., "The Rose City," and told of a recent appropriation by the municipality of $50,000 to extend the culture of roses in various parts of the city. The remarks were illustrated with numerous slides that brought expressions of awe and admiration from the audience. Illustrations were shown of estates on Long Island with rose gardens laid out in the latest development of landscape engineering; views in the Arnold Arboretum at Cambridge, Mass., and glimpses of rose gardens in numerous parks in the cities of the country.

Mention was made of the seven test gardens maintained by the American Rose Society in several sections of the country. One of these test plots comprises one acre in a public park at Hartford, Conn., and was visited one Sunday early last summer by 23,000 people and on the next Sunday by 46,000. Similar results are possible in other cities by the expenditure of effort on the part of those in charge of public parks. Pictures of old and new kinds of roses were shown on the screen and descriptions given of their qualities and methods of cultivation. Several views and some descriptions were given to the ramblers and characteristics of several varieties were shown and described. One of the most beautiful views shown by Mr. Pyle was of a small country house in Massachusetts, over which the owner had trained in a bewildering and beautiful array many plants of Dorothy Perkins.

Illustrations and descriptions of the work of English and Irish producers of roses were given by Mr. Pyle, after which he took his audience into France. The views of some of the rose gardens in France were like fairyland, so unreal did they seem to the average spectator. Pictures of French introducers and rose specialists were shown as were also scenes taken near Paris of judges passing upon varieties in bloom in the open.

Interspersed in the course of the lecture were remarks on cultivation, and on the objects of the American Rose Society. In regard to cultivation the speaker said it is important to have varieties adapted to the soil and climate of the country. Much of the work of the society in its test gardens is devoted to discovering varieties best adapted to the various localities in this broad country. Mr. Pyle said it is possible for growers in this part of the United States to secure results as good as could be desired. Some of the finest rose gardens the speaker had seen, he declared, are owned by amateurs in New York state. R. D.

MARYSVILLE, CALIF.—The Fortina Flower Shop formally opened for business, February 12, adjoining the Atkin's theatre.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Seeds for March Sowing.

The middle of March is the proper time for the sowing of the main crop of summer annuals. The seedsmen have seen that the growers have the catalogues, and the lists of the wants for the year should be made out at once, if not already done, and the seeds procured and sown. How often have we seen good growers spending valuable time during the busy days of May and June hunting for some small stock that could have been easily grown, but was neglected at the proper time. It is a good time now to look back at the sales of the last year or two and note what lines of stock were in short supply or were carelessly omitted. Such matters as this are the little things that count in a successful business, for the time taken in hunting up and procuring the cheaper kinds of stock during the busy season more than eats up all the profit received in handling it. The seeds that should be sown now are almost endless in variety, and they include asters, Phlox Drummondii, zinnias, marigolds, balsams, antirrhinums begonias calendulas, celosias, cobaeas, cosmos, gauras, mignonette, nicotianas, nasturtiums, petunias, salpiglossis, ricinus, salvias, scabiosa, stocks, thunbergias, and others that may be demanded. With the exception of Cobaea scandens, mignonette and ricinus, which should be sown in pots, these can all be sown in flats and as soon as large enough transplanted to pots or spaced in flats, and good stock be had for summer bedding.

Rambler Roses.

The plants of rambler roses that are intended for Easter blooming should now be showing color, and if they are not they will require quite a little forcing to have them in the best of conditions for that date. If the plants are at all pot bound, watering with liquid manure will be of great assistance to them and stimulate the flowers and make them much larger, and an addition of soot to this will intensify the color. The plants will often, when setting the buds, make long growths from the base of the plants; these should be cut out, for they are taking much strength that should go into the flowers. The canes should be made into cuttings and propagated and will make small plants for next year's growing or can be planted outside and grown on for stock for the future. There is always a good demand for well grown pot rambles for Memorial day and early June, and plants started now will be in the best of condition at that time. They can be started in a cool house and frequently syringed until the eyes break, when they can be moved into warmer quarters and full sunlight. For June decoration, there is nothing better in blooming plants than Crimson Rambler and the other rambler roses and hydrangeas; they make a beautiful combination and are also very decorative for porches.

Lilacs for Easter.

A large variety of blooming plants can be grown for Easter, and dwarf, shapely lilacs are appreciated by all flower lovers, and the cut sprays have now become a standard winter flower. For the pot plants the budded stock is preferable, but for cut blooms any lilac may be lifted, and they force quickly and easily in a warm house. The varieties most grown for pot plants are Marie Lagraye, white, and Charles X, purple. Four weeks in a temperature of 65 degrees will bring them into flower. The plants when placed in the greenhouse should be syringed several times a day in order to assist the buds to swell and kept in a dark place. As soon as the buds begin to open the plants can be placed in full sunlight. The common lilac can be forced in the same manner. A bush which is well set with flower buds, and these are easily distinguished from the leaf buds, can be lifted and planted in a bench and will furnish fine sprays of flowers. If the plant is kept shaded from the sun by spreading a heavy cloth over it the flowers of the purple varieties will be white when forced. The plants will require plenty of water, for they make but little root growth and bloom upon the vitality which has been stored.

Marguerites.

As the warm days of spring approach, the marguerite plants will bloom profusely and those in pots will have, to a great extent, exhausted the plant food in the soil, so to keep up the size of the flower and length of stem watering with liquid manure will be necessary. Liquid cow manure can be safely used in frequent waterings with no danger of any injury if the plants are in a healthy condition. The flowers should be cut daily and placed in water; they will keep much longer than if allowed to remain on the plants, where they quickly fade if not picked when the warm spring days come on. This should be prevented, for it not only gives the plant an untidy appearance but takes the strength of the plants and the following flowers are often much shorter in stem. A few well bloomed plants are very decorative at Easter, especially in churches, where they make a splendid showing. Propagation for next year's stock should now be carried on; the cuttings root easily and there are plenty to be obtained at this time. As soon as rooted they should be grown on in good soil, and to secure the best results another year, given the best culture.

Iceland Poppies.

A beautiful cut flower for summer use not often grown is the Iceland poppy. While it is a perennial, yet it can be treated as an annual if the seed is sown early and the plants transplanted. Seeds sown in March will bloom the coming summer, and the varieties of color range through the yellow and orange to white. The petals have a peculiar satiny texture, are beautifully crumpled, and if the flowers are picked in the early morning they will stand in water for a long time, and are very decorative. There are few annuals that will attract more attention than a vase of these lovely poppies arranged with appropriate green, and besides they have a delicious fragrance. They are easily grown, and if the flowers are kept picked will continue to bloom all summer. Another poppy that can be grown for cut flowers is the Shirley poppy, but the flowers do not last as well as the Iceland poppies.

GENEVA, ILL.—Chas. S. McCauley will erect a range of greenhouses in the near future, costing about $40,000, on 10 acres of land recently purchased near this city.

SHELBYVILLE, IND.—Edwin H. Morner, of this city, was recently made chairman of Indiana state exhibits at the Fifth National Flower Show, to be staged in Indianapolis, March 25-April 1.

SAGINAW, MICH.—E. A. Grohman and R. E. Grohman recently purchased a two-story building at Jefferson avenue and Tuscola street, the first floor of which will be remodeled and an up-to-date flower shop installed by them before May 15.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

Retailers in the past two weeks have had a great opportunity to offer their customers the pleasure of enjoying flowers at very low cost. The bright, sunny days, unusual at this season, brought two or three times the normal supply to the market, high grade stock in all lines, that was offered in quantity at very low prices in the effort to keep it moving. Wide-awake, progressive retailers, who are always in close touch with their customers, are quick to take advantage of these comparatively frequent over-productions to solidify and enlarge their business by featuring certain stocks in quantity at quick moving prices that please their patrons and bring new people into the store.

Here is where the previously addressed envelopes, post cards or folders are most valuable, a few lines describing the choice flowers, the reason why they are so plentiful and the low prices at which they may be enjoyed, would be run off quickly by the printer on the post cards or folders, or a letter for the envelopes, which are then at once ready for the mail and the next morning thousands of persons, all flower buyers, know of the opportunity the shop offers. Such selling campaigns are surely a great stimulant to the business and if adopted by all retailers would solve in a great measure the handling of the surplus and turn it to good account in encouraging a love for flowers.

MONTHLY BULLETINS GOOD SALESMEN.

Some florists send out a monthly bulletin, a two-leaf sheet that folds nicely for an envelope. This contains up-to-date items about seasonable plants and flowers, their care in the house, artistic effects in table decorations and suggests many other uses to which they may be put. Such information is greatly appreciated by all flower lovers and without question helps to keep the store in mind when anything in this line is required.

The telephone can be brought into play to good advantage at times when a sale of any kind is on, by calling up liberal customers who are friendly to the store and likely to be interested in the opportunity offered. If the proper persons are approached during business hours they are generally pleased to get the information and a number of sales are the result.

Many storemen say there is no money in handling plants; that they create dirt and litter and are more bother than they are worth. Well of course with such a feeling, plants will never get the proper featuring or presentation or become a factor in such stores. As a matter of fact plants, when well handled, are a distinct and valuable asset to any cut flower business. The stock must be of the best, however, and always in good salable condition and every plant featured, or they can be grouped to get the collective color value. An attractive covering on the pot, giving it a gift look, frequently brings to mind a friend who would enjoy such a pretty plant and the sale is made.

In the successful business, everything that is in any respect beneficial is played up to the limit. The well decorated window, the inviting interior with its well displayed stocks of both plants and flowers, its superior service, courteous attention to customers, well placed and efficient advertising, all combined and working together, are certain to keep things moving satisfactorily.

Feature the F. T. D. service and make a strong bid for out-of-town trade by means of this country-wide service. A few boxes tied up and addressed to persons in various cities from Maine to California and several with their lids off and nicely filled with flowers, will make an attractive window. A large display card should read: "Within the Hour; Flowers Delivered to All Parts of the United States and Canada." All such orders received are new business, that would not likely have been taken but for the efforts made to secure them. It is the outgoing orders that are most profitable, as there is a sure 20 per cent return without time or money investment.

PRICE WINDOW STOCK.

Do not be afraid to price your window stock, for the beauty of the flowers create the desire and the price is the salesman on duty all the time. Without knowing the cost many observers would pass them by as being too much for their purse but gladly step in and make a purchase when they find they are within their means. Attractive window cards suggesting uses for any of the stock presented or featured with prices do not cost much, but are most effective in helping to catch the eye and keep the stock moving.

Carnations are very plentiful at this time. Vases of the principal kinds with their names attached will make a good window feature. They can be arranged 25 or 50 to a vase basket with some boxes in front, holding two dozen nicely placed, or in dozens in wax paper cornucopias ready to take away. The important and not to be forgotten feature is a conspicuous card quoting the price per dozen. This, while it must show a good margin should give the customers the benefit of the overstocked market and make them better buyers later on.

Slogan Protection.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

"Enclosed herewith you will find copy of a letter we received from the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World with whom we took up the matter of the misuse of our slogan 'Say it With Flowers' by furniture dealers, etc.

"Won't you kindly give this letter space in THE AMERICAN FLORIST so that the members of the craft may realize what is being done for our slogan and do their share towards co-operating in this regard and extending the use of our important slogan in the proper way?"

HENRY PENN, Chairman,
National Publicity Campaign.

"February 24, 1922.

"Henry Penn, Chairman,
"National Publicity Campaign,
"124 Tremont street,
"Boston, Mass.

"Dear Sir:-

"Re: 'Say It With Flowers.'

"We are writing to you in further reference to your letter of December 16, 1921, in which you called our attention to the misuse of your slogan by certain furniture manufacturers.

"Today we have a letter from R. W. Lyon, of the American Home Bureau, in reply to a letter which we addressed to Robert L. Jordan, of the Furniture Publicity Bureau, Chicago, stating that he regretted very much the use of this slogan, and that his office would gladly co-operate in attempting to wipe out its use, because he feels that it is absolutely unfair and not at all in harmony with their ideas of conducting a publicity campaign.

"We will continue to work for the abolition of this misuse of your slogan and hope, with you, that it will soon die of its own weight."

Winter Forcing Sweet Peas.

Experience is a great teacher, providing a safe knowledge and foundation on which to build. In no line of business is this more necessary than that of the grower of flower and vegetable seeds, whose trial grounds are like the balance sheet of the bookkeeper which proves the account and gives absolute knowledge of the business.

At the Fordhook farms, of the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Doylestown, Pa., thousands of seed tests are made all the year round, the work of finding out the vitality of seeds being carried on continually during the winter in the greenhouses, while the outside flowering trials enables them to prove the worth of new varieties and keep their standard stocks true to name. Of particular interest at this time are their greenhouse trials of early flowering sweet peas for greenhouse forcing. For many years they have made this popular garden flower a specialty, devoting great attention during recent years to the commercial forcing varieties suitable for winter cut flowers, to which their expert hybridizer, George W. Kerr, is annually adding new kinds that are becoming standard in all markets.

The greatest care is taken to keep the various varieties true to name, mixtures being not only annoying but at times a serious loss to the mid-winter grower. The worth of the new seedlings are first tried out at Fordhook, and when proven, the stock is sent to their Floradale farms at Lompoc, Calif., for growing on in quantity.

WEALTH OF COLOR FOR SELECTION.

The sweet pea house contains some 75 varieties, all well flowered and affording the commercial grower a splendid opportunity to make a selection of the various colors. The standard sorts introduced since the strong growing Yarrowa, that wonderful Australian variety, was available as a parent, have been exceptional both in size of flower and vigor of plant, but Mr. Kerr says we are gaining all the time, securing by careful hybridization an advantage here and there, in color, form, size and earliness of bloom. The advantage secured is best seen in the exhibitions in which year after year new varieties replace old favorites which have to give place to the young blood.

Varieties offered for the first time this year are Mrs. Warren G. Harding, a deep shade of silvery blue, in fact, a true Harding blue. The flowers are of immense size and partially double. It is a vigorous grower and very free, a large share of the long stems carrying four flowers. Clearly the best of the blue shades up-to-date. Mrs. Kerr is a wonderful salmon much the best of its color, with larger and exquisitely shaped flowers of a most pleasing shade of rich salmon suffused with orange. It is most vigorous and very floriferous.

White Star is an accession to the white kinds, being black seeded, which on this account will be welcomed by growers. The flowers are of the purest white, very large, beautifully waved and of good substance. This is a strong grower requiring plenty of room in the row to spread out.

The seedlings that will be sent out next year have some gems, amongst them Burpee's Orange, in its wonderfully bright color and exquisitely formed flowers, borne on long stems, will stand out in any collection as a striking novelty. This, Mr. Kerr thinks, will be one of the best of the Burpee introductions.

Milkmaid is a black seeded white of which much is expected. Robin Hood, a rich, crimson, is quite an advance over anything in its color. The flowers are large and well formed, while the plant is most vigorous. Rising Sun is a beautiful pink and, like the summer flowering Margaret Atlee, it is rather dwarf in habit and very free. There were a number of other seedlings without name in various shades of pinks and lavenders that appeared very promising. One bed contained 25 or more standard Burpee sorts with a double row of each across the bed, which were being flowered for the New York and Indianapolis flower shows.

BEST FORCING KINDS.

When asked for what he considered the best forcing varieties in their colors, Mr. Kerr gave the following list: White—Improved Snowstorm, Early Sankey, White Star; light pink—Peach Blossom; cream pink—Daybreak; deep pink—Enchantress; rose—Rosebud; salmon—Mrs. Kerr; orange—Flamingo; orange scarlet—Glitters; cerise—Gorgeous, Fire King; lavender—Lavender King, early; Princess, late; light blue—Bluebird, Mrs. Warren G. Harding, Harding blue; mauve—Mauve Beauty; purple—glorious; art shades—Fairy Queen; bicolor—Fordhook Pink and Fordhook White; striped and flaked—Early Aurora.

Several benches contained seedling stock, three or four inches in height for planting in the trial grounds outside, which would be hardened off in frames outside before setting out early in April. A section of these contained Mr. Kerr's crosses of last year and another a lot of the latest offerings of the English growers. Seeds that lagged behind were taken from the soil and given a little chip with a sharp knife and then soon appeared above the surface. A large outside cold frame containing several thousand pots of seed that was sown earlier had made a fine stocky growth.

Dahlias are also a specialty here, a house being given to the tubers for cutting. A number of new kinds were seen, some of which had cost $25 per clump. Mr. Kerr said that dahlias were fast becoming a garden favorite, the local community exhibitions all over the country having much to do in increasing the love for this and other garden flowers. The accompanying illustrations show partial views of the trial beds of last year.

Nursery Freight Rates.

HEARING TO REDUCE THEM.

While the nursery business is trying to economize in every conceivable way, an increase of approximately $100 per car in freight on nursery stock is one item which they have not yet been able to cut, Charles Sizemore, of Louisiana, Mo., secretary of the American Association of Nurserymen, told the interstate commerce commission, February 28, at Washington, D. C., when he appeared before that body to urge freight relief for the nursery industry. "Aside from the direct effect of a reduction in freight rates," he declared, the psychological effect would be far reaching, and would be an assurance to the country that the commission was doing its part in the great campaign of deflation back to normal."

Accompanied by Dr. Gould, of the pomological division of the Department of Agriculture, and fortified by figures showing the size of the nursery industry and its connection with the fruit industry of the country, Mr. Sizemore made a telling appeal for relief for his industry which would also be a relief for the orchardists of the country who during the war and since have been forced to forego their usual increases and who are now anxious to bring the size of their orchards to a point nearer that which they would have reached under normal conditions.

There has been a decline of many millions in the number of fruit trees in the country in the past 10 years, Dr. Gould told the commission, due in part to the dying off of home orchards for want of attention and in part to the fact that many orchardists who went into business during the war were not able properly to plant or care for their trees. As a result of this decrease, he stated, it is important that the nursery industry be fostered, for upon its continuance depends the continuance of the fruit growing industry. The value of the country's fruit crop is approximately a half-billion dollars a year, he told the commission, and this crop is of considerable importance to the railroads, for about 500,000 freight cars are required to move it. Frosts and freezes in France and in the mountain districts of North Carolina for a period of several years have materially reduced the stocks of apple and peach seeds and have increased their prices correspondingly.

The cost of transportation from the nursery to the orchard, which is usually borne by the planter, he pointed out, together with the high prices which now prevail for nursery stock, are deterring many orchardists from planting additional trees. Anything the commission did, therefore, to benefit the nurseryman would be reflected in the condition of the fruit grower and would have a decided influence upon the future of the fruit growing industry in the United States.

Following is a summary of Mr. Sizemore's statement before the commission: "The American Association of Nurserymen is a voluntary organization of persons, firms and corporations engaged in the nursery business. According to the latest census reports there are in the United States approximately 4,500 nurseries, covering 172,000 acres. These nurseries represent an aggregate investment of $52,500,000. They employ 45,600 men and 2,300 women, and use a total of 14,200 animals. There are growing in these nurseries no less than 3,400,000,000 woody plants and trees, to say nothing of the thousands and millions of flower plants. A large number of these nurseries are also engaged in the business of raising and distributing seeds of all kinds. The association has a membership of 330 of the largest and most important nurseries in the country, which are distributed all over the country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean and from the Canadian border to the Gulf of Mexico. They are engaged not only in the propagation and distribution of native trees, plants and shrubs, but they also import millions of foreign trees, plants and shrubs every year for growing and distribution in this country. Many of our members also export hundreds of carloads of North American trees, plants and shrubs every year to all parts of the world.

"The transportation of nursery stock may be divided into two general classes: (1) That between nurseries, and (2) that from the nurseries to final destination. Practically all of the movement between nurseries, especially of trees and shrubs, is by freight. In the course of a year this movement reaches large proportions, the carload movement alone approximating about 40,000 cars annually. On the other hand, a considerable part of the movement from the nursery to final destination is in less than carload lots, and divides approximately 80 per cent by freight and 20 per cent by express.

"The war experience and post-war experience of the nurserymen closely parallels that of agricultural interests in general. The general prosperity of the country during the war created a sharp demand for nursery products and seeds, with the result that the nurserymen were enabled to secured increased prices for their products. The general increase in prices was somewhere between 75 and 100 per cent of the general level which obtained before the war, but only a small part of this increase went to the nurserymen themselves. By far the greatest item of expense is labor, the cost of which increased greatly during the war. As a rule nurseries are located close to large centers and, during the war, the nurserymen, in order to hold their labor, were compelled to meet the competition of the higher wages paid labor in the cities. The years 1919 and 1920 were good years for the nurserymen. But during the year 1921, as a general rule they had the same experience as the farmers; the bottom began to fall out of the nursery stock market, and a large number of nurseries were compelled to dispose of high priced products on a declining market.

"The spring of the year is the big season for establishments in the northern part of the country, and these nurseries were particularly hard hit by the sudden change in conditions which began to manifest themselves late in the winter of 1920-1921. Taking the country as a whole, the present price level of nursery products ranges from the prices received at that period to 25 per cent above the normal level which existed before the war. The nurserymen have been gradually reducing their labor costs and other expenses and, while they are not yet down to the level which existed before the war, they are considerably below the peak level of 1920.

"Among other items of expense which have increased considerably during the past few years, but which remain at their peak level, are the freight rates on nursery products moving between nurseries. Nursery stock moves on class rates almost exclusively. In the official classification, it is classified fourth class, carloads, having been increased from fifth class in 1915, and Rule 25, less carloads. In the western classification it is classified Class B, carloads, and third class, less carloads, these ratings having been in effect for over 30 years. In the Southern classification it is classified fourth class, carloads, and third class, less carloads, these ratings having been increased in 1913 from sixth class, carloads, and fourth class, less carloads, when released to a value of $3.00 per 100 pounds. The average carload haul between nurseries ranges between 500 and 1,000 miles. Some of the largest nurseries in the country are located in Atlantic seaboard and New England territories.

"During the war the fourth class rate from New York to Mississippi river points, a haul of 1,000 miles, was increased from 43.1 cents to 86 cents per 100 pounds, or approximately 100 per cent. There are also some very large nurseries in Iowa and Missouri at points which take the Mississippi river basis of rates to the west. During the war the Class B rate from Mississippi river points to Colorado common points, a haul of 1,000 miles, was increased from 56 cents to 94½ cents per 100 pounds, an increase of approximately 70 per cent. As the commission knows, no reduction has been made in these rates or in the rates which apply on less than carload movements of nursery products.

"The American Association of Nurserymen appears in this proceeding for the purpose of appealing to the commission for recognition of the necessity of some reduction in the rates which apply on nursery products. There is no question in the minds of nurserymen about the fact that the present high level of freight rates is one of factors which is impeding the movement of nursery stock between nurseries, and from nurseries to large planters. It is not the most important factor, but it is, nevertheless, a factor. Nurseries, wholesale nursery dealers and large planters are cutting corners a little closer in these days of deflation to the same extent and for the same reasons as people engaged in other lines of business, and an increase of approximately $100 per car in freight on nursery stock is one corner which they have not yet been able to cut, but which they think should be cut as soon as possible. Aside from the direct effect of a reduction in freight rates, the psychological effect would be far reaching and would be an assurance to the country that the commission was doing its part in the great campaign of deflation back to normal.

"We recognize and thoroughly appreciate the great responsibility which rests upon this commission in the consideration and determination of the vital issue involved in this proceeding. As a country-wide organization, the association is of the opinion that, as the rates were increased to meet war expenses and on a percentage basis, they should now be decreased in line with the gradual reduction in transportation costs and in the same manner as they were increased, namely, on a horizontal percentage basis. In other words, as all interests were called upon to pay their share of the war burdens in the form of increased freight rates, all interests should share in the reduction of freight rates, if, in its wisdom, the commission finds that a reduction is justified.

"On the other hand, if the commission comes to the conclusion that a horizontal percentage reduction in all freight rates is not justified at this time, then the American Association of Nurserymen respectfully requests the commission to consider the fact that the business of propagating and growing trees and shrubs is essentially an agricultural industry, and that, as the railroads have voluntarily granted a reduction of 10 per cent in the freight rates applicable on carload movements of agricultural products, a similar reduction should be made in the rates applicable on carload movements of nursery products. The reduction of 10 per cent made in the rates of agricultural products applies whether the rates are class or commodity rates, and consequently it is our opinion that the fact that nursery products in carload quantities large move on class rates is no valid reason for denying to the nurserymen of the country the same treatment which has been accorded the farmers and other agriculturists.

"The reduction of 10 per cent made in the rates on agricultural products applies on all kinds of seeds. In a very true sense, a one or two-year old apple tree is a seedling; it bears the same relation to the mature apple tree and its crop of apples as seed corn bears to the corn stalk with its crop of corn. Moreover the seedling apple tree, once grown to maturity, will bear fruit for many years, and consequently be a source of revenue to the carriers for many years. Everything considered, the nurserymen of the country are engaged in an industry which should be fostered and encouraged in every possible way, not only in the interest of the carriers, but in the interest of the public at large."

Fifth National Flower Show.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., MARCH 25-APRIL 1.

A rousing meeting of all the Indianapolis local committees was held Wednesday, March 1, Chairman Irwin Bertermann presiding. George Asmus, chairman of the National Flower Show committee was present, with Secretary Young there being a 100 per cent attendance of members. The reports presented showed all detail work to be remarkably well advanced. Executive work is being handled splendidly by Claude Wallin, and the work of the publicity department, in charge of Fred Millis, is all that could be desired, in fact, there is nothing wanting in the way of publicity. Chairman Bertermann is working night and day in the interests of the show, devoting practically all his time to the undertaking. The same might be said of Homer Wiegand, who is chairman of the committee of interior decorations; in addition to show work, he is giving some oversight to the preparation of an exhibit to be made by his house in the large garden class.

Some exhibitors are manifesting unusual interest in the show. A prominent Chicago lumber dealer is writing to all his customers as follows: "Do you intend to visit the National Flower Show in Indianapolis, March 25-April 1? If so, the writer wants to meet you and talk to you. Everytime I have written you a letter, I wished I could make a personal visit, but if we are going to continue giving the best values I cannot go to this expense. The National Flower Show gives me just the opportunity I have been looking for." This might offer a good suggestion to other exhibitors.

Trade space in the show is now being taken up rapidly. Exhibitors realize that the location of Indianapolis is ideal for purposes of an exhibition such as the National Flower Show, travel facilities being unusually favorable. It is confidently believed that the number of exhibitors will be fully as large as at the last show. Prospective exhibitors should lose no time in getting in touch with the secretary, 602 Chamber of Commerce building, Indianapolis. Floor plans have been sent out to all in the trade, and if anyone has been missed, copies can be had on application to the secretary at the address mentioned. An exhibit at Indianapolis means a personal contact with the trade from Chicago, Louisville, Ky., Cincinnati, O., St. Louis, Mo., and many other central and adjacent cities.

The competitive exhibits will be numerous and of a high order of excellence. The National Flower Show committee consider that the removal from Cleveland has affected the scope of the show little, if at all. The strong support of all local bodies both inside and outside the trade has tended to remove all difficulties and there is little anxiety existing now as to the ultimate result.

The automobile show is now being held in the Manufacturers' building, and the committee has had an opportunity to see the lighting effects possible in the building, and the verdict is that they are wonderful. Without question, the show is to be housed in the finest building so far available for a National Flower Show. Street car service out to the Manufacturers' building is excellent, the building being reached in a short time, with very frequent cars.

The reduction in rates made by the railroad associations is very favorable to a large attendance. The reduced rates apply not only to members of the Society of American Florists, but to all members of affiliated organizations, in fact, to members of any club or association represented on the society's executive board.

The final schedule has been distributed, being circulated far and wide. Anyone not receiving a copy should drop a postal to the secretary with a request for one.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Horticultural Jubilee.

The National Flower Show is the big horticultural jubilee of the flower lovers and producers of America. The Society of American Florists and its auxiliary organizations can well be proud of this event, that shows our industry in its best dress, bringing down the work of centuries of the world's greatest hybridizers to its present-day state and we all agree that the advancement in our profession has kept stride with that of any other industry that we know of. When comparison is made between the varieties of flowers and plants that we are now growing and those of former years, we may, indeed, be well proud of our accomplishments. Therefore it is fitting that every few years we celebrate when we say to the public "this is what we have done, this is our work, and we give all to you to enjoy—to plant, and to make life more beautiful. It is our share in the work of making the world more beautiful and better to live in."

Thus it is that the busiest men in our profession unite in this effort, growing especially for this exhibition the best they can, the choicest and rarest of varieties of plants and flowers. That also is one of the big reasons that the attendance by the trade is many many times greater than at any convention or other event in horticultural circles. Then there is the artist, the retailer, who is planning to do his bit. As Shakespeare has said, "This is an act that doth mend nature, change it rather, for the art itself is nature." The finished product will be there in its very best.

The Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association is preparing an exhibit that will surpass anything they have done in the past, something that will portray to the people the workings of that wonderful organization.

Just as necessary as are producer and retailer, are the men who have the creating of ideas and novelties for the retailer to use in finishing the product. Also may be mentioned the hundreds of exhibitors in the trade section who will have something to offer, and the builders of greenhouses and conservatories, who also are a very big factor in the quality of flowers as they are produced today. If the greenhouse builders had not kept pace with the times, no such flowers could have been produced. The same can be said of all exhibits.

The busy florist must depend on trade exhibitions to keep abreast of the times. So I believe you will agree with me that we can well call this wonderful exhibition a jubilee of our profession. The committee having this work in charge will be bitterly disappointed if we do not have 100,000 people or more to see our exhibits. No matter what the expense may be, it will be money well spent to visit this great and triumphant exposition of your business.

GEORGE ASMUS, Chairman,
National Flower Show Committee.

New York Spring Show.

GRAND CENTRAL PALACE, MARCH 13-19.

On the eve of the opening of the New York spring show, preparations are fully complete, and the 1922 exhibition bids fair to eclipse in quality and number of exhibits all its predecessors. The committee is to be congratulated on a number of phases of the show this year, all tending to make the general ensemble different and more attractive to the public. The committee all along has fought against any approach to sameness, and it is believed that when the show opens on the afternoon of Monday, March 13, it will be found that the plan of the show will create a forgetfulness of its predecessors. The big gardens will remain the "piece de resistance" and there are five of them this year.

TRADE EXHIBITS.

The space set off for trade exhibits has been, practically, all sold. One or two late-comers might, however, still be accommodated, through limitations which the management has power to make. Personal inquiry as to this is now necessary.

The office of the International Exposition Co. has been moved from the Canadian Pacific building to the Grand Central palace, and all orders for trade tickets should be sent to the company at the new address. The rate is 50 cents per ticket in quantities from 50 to 100, and for 100 or more, 40 cents each, with a full rebate for tickets not presented. These tickets all bear the general admission price of $1.

The tea garden this year, operated for the benefit of the Girl Scouts, Inc., and the Virginia Day Nursery, offers unusual attractions, and will be an important feature of the show.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Federal Horticultural Board.

QUARANTINE BUGABOO LAID TO REST.

Several delegates to the recent national agricultural conference, in Washington, D. C., handed me, and others mailed me, mimeographed copies of a document entitled, "Are Our Fruit and Grain Exports in Danger?" signed by John Kingdon Smith. We have been unable to secure any information as to the address or status of the author.

This document seems to be a phase of the now waning propaganda against Quarantine No. 37 started two years ago by a group of plant importers who wished to continue old-time unlimited importation of plants with all the old risks of entry of new plant pests. Quarantine No. 37 restricts the entry of foreign plants and seeds with the object of protecting the United States, so far as may be, from such entry of foreign plant pests and plant diseases.

Mr. Smith's chief fear seems to be that Europe will retaliate and cut off our grain and meat exports unless we open the door again to the practically unlimited entry of European plants. As supporting this contention he makes various statement which, on examination, prove to be for the most part, either diametrically wrong or at least distinct misrepresentations; for example, with respect to the restrictions on the entry of our plants into Europe, he alleges that Europe now gives an open door to our plants. The facts are that leading countries of Continental Europe began the prohibition of American plants in connection with phylloxera some half a century ago and some 25 years ago made such prohibitions practically complete, following the general invasion of this country by the San Jose scale.

During this later period, many of the leading European countries—Holland, France, Germany, Austria and Switzerland have been closed to the entry of living plants from America, and others Belgium, Italy, Spain, Turkey and Russia have been closed in lesser degree. Even Great Britain, Norway and Sweden have restrictions against certain plants. Our fruits and fruit products, furthermore, get into some of these countries only under burdensome restrictions. These conditions still obtain, but no one has questioned the right and desirability of Europe to thus protect her own cultures.

By contrast, Quarantine No. 37 provides for the entry into the United States of vast quantities of plants from Europe and other parts of the world, and, in fact, makes provision for the entry of any plant whatsoever, for which a real need in the interests of horticulture or floriculture can be shown.

As a mere side-light on the amount of plant importations which are permitted from Europe under this quarantine, which is alleged to cut off such importations, it may be stated that no less than 6,000 open continuing permits have been issued during the last two years for the introduction of certain important classes of plants and seeds, and the entry of these classes is not restricted in any way as to quantity. These permits cover nearly 90 per cent of the bulbs hitherto imported, fruit and rose stocks, and all seeds of fruits, forest and ornamental trees.

Certain other classes of plants and plant products are permitted free and unrestricted importation, i. e., no permit is required and no control is exercised under this quarantine. These include field, vegetable and flower seeds, and all fruits, vegetables, and cereals and other plant and plant products imported for medicinal, food or manufacturing purposes.

Under Quarantine No. 37 all other classes of plants are permitted entry in any necessary quantity for any real horticultural or introduction need. These are the so-called "prohibited plants," but for the entry of such plants during the period of the quarantine since June 1, 1919, there have been issued 1,428 permits authorizing the entry of 29,347,609 plants! As an indication of the liberality of entry under these permits, there have been issued a total of 148 permits for the entry of new roses. These permits have authorized the entry of 54,742 rose plants and under these permits upwards of 41,000 rose plants have already been entered. These entries include to date 459 roses, nearly all new varieties, out of a total authorized entry of 1,148 different varieties of roses, again nearly all new. To a reasonable person it would seem that upwards of 400 new varieties of roses is a pretty sizeable number to be introduced and assimilated in a period of a little over two years, especially in comparison with the lists recently published by the American Rose Society, indicating that only 146 new varieties of roses were originated in all the world in something over a 12 months' period, 1920-1921, and that 592 varieties represent the total number of new roses which have been originated in the United States from the very beginning of rose culture! It should be remembered that the rose is only one of many classes of plants which have thus been authorized entry under Quarantine No. 37.

To recapitulate, Quarantine No. 37 places no restrictions whatsoever on the importation from Europe of all fruits, vegetables, cereals, and other plant products for food, manufacturing, or medicinal purposes, or of field, vegetable and flower seeds; provides for unlimited entry under open continuing permits of five important classes of plants and seeds, and makes provision for the entry under special permits of all other plants, for the purpose of keeping the country supplied with new varieties or any necessary propagating stock. These provisions cover all plants and seeds whatsoever for propagation or other uses and indicate the purpose of the department under this quarantine to provide for the entry of any necessary or useful plant in quantities sufficient to meet all reasonable needs. In the meantime the gates of many European countries remain closed, as they long have been, to the entry of American plants.

The bugaboo of retaliation which Mr. Smith raises would seem to have very little basis and it is rather amusing that he should seize as an excuse for such retaliation the "take-all" disease of wheat, which has very limited foothold in the United States and is under strict quarantine, but which is known to occur in Italy, France, Germany, Belgium, Great Britain and Ireland.

As to returning to the old practically free entry of foreign plants, a test over a seven-year period was given to the possibility of safeguarding such plant importation by inspection and disinfection and this test indicated the absolute inadequacy and failure of this method of excluding new pests and forced the conclusion on this department and on the plant experts of all of our states that the only safeguard for the future was the exclusion of all plant stock not absolutely essential to the agricultural, horticultural, and forestry needs of the United States. Quarantine No. 37 carries out this policy but makes, as already indicated, very liberal provision for the entry of any necessary plant stock.

This propaganda of John Kingdom Smith is somewhat of the same order as that dealt with in a statement issued by this board February 25, 1921.

C. L. MARLATT, Chairman,
Federal Horticultural Board.

Success with Carnations.

While some growers who make a specialty of carnations have had their usual success this season, the experience of most of the men in the trade has been disappointing, much of the stock being under sized, short stemmed and considerably below its usual productiveness.

That it is possible under adverse conditions to grow carnations well and obtain satisfactory results is shown by the skillful manner with which Joseph Goetter, Lansdowne, Pa., overcame soil and other difficulties, and is producing first class stock in old fashioned houses of ridge and furrow type without side ventilation.

His first handicap is old soil, all his stock being in ground beds a foot high on the floor of the houses. He was unable to make over these beds with fresh compost, as there was none on the place which he has only recently rented. After a good coating of manure and a liberal dusting of lime, which was all well dug in, he began planting the last of May, the stock he was going to grow inside. Some of this was from 2½-inch pots and a lot lifted from beds where they had been planted from the cutting bed, set four inches apart each way. Both of these were strong, vigorous young plants which Mr. Goetter says are absolutely necessary to start with. To be on the safe side, half his stock is grown inside all summer and half in the field, the latter being set out about April from the strongest plants he can produce in 2½-inch pots. Throughout the summer these are constantly cultivated at least twice a week, which conserves and holds the moisture.

The stock in the houses had to have very careful attention, during the hot months of July and August syringing four times a day and particularly after 6 p. m. to revive them for the night. They were never allowed to suffer for water, it being very injurious to dry out only once, and if this occurred several times it would seriously check their growth. The field stock was planted inside from the first to the second week in August. He tried to take advantage of conditions when the soil was such that some would cling to the roots, which he considered very essential to their safe moving and quick recovery in the house. Transferring plants from the field to the house should never be a hurry up job, as this was the most critical time in the life of the stock, plants that were scarred or scratched on the crown of stems were very liable to get stem rot, and if the roots were damaged they were a long time taking hold of the soil. He started to feed the beds early in October, giving a coating of shredded cow manure and tankage every third week on bright days, when he could follow with a sprinkling of water to wash it in.

It was a mistake, Mr. Goetter thought, to leave plants in the field too long in order to get them large. The smaller thrifty plant lifted earlier would move better and come along much faster and give better results than the larger stock moved later. He never liked to lift plants when they were saturated with water, preferring them a little dry, when they would take up the water inside with much better results.

IMPORTANCE OF WATERING.

When plants are growing vigorously and the weather is bright they will take a lot of water, more than many growers think is necessary. They are also the better for a syringing at least every 10 days during the winter if the day is bright and before 12 noon, not after. This keeps down the red spider, the carnation's worst enemy, and which must not be allowed to get a start.

Cuttings are taken from early in December on until the last of February. His cutting bed is on the north side of a carnation house with a shading cloth suspended along in front. Thirty thousand cuttings appeared in fine condition in this bed January 15, and he expects to root 60,000. He has good success with all varieties but Laddie, which is very hard to root.

Success with carnations means a careful supervision from the time the cuttings are taken through all the various stages until the flowers are packed ready for market. Neglect here and there along the route, while not noticed at the time, is certain to show in the final returns. Mr. Goetter's stock contains 26,000 plants, varieties being Ward, Enchantress Supreme, Matchless and Laddie. All the beds are in splendid, thrifty growing condition, green to the bottom and full of buds all borne on vigorous long stems, on which the flowers are nearly all of the highest grade.

Mr. Goetter believes in the most intensive use of his greenhouse space and has a border of freesias along the sunny side of nearly all the carnation beds. On both sides of the beds are bunches of sweet peas, eight feet apart which trained up give a lot of flowers without injury to the carnations. Two houses are also given to chrysanthemums, which space is later filled with sweet peas, pots of freesias and young carnations, in one house, and the other hydrangeas and Easter lilies in pots for Easter, and planted out on benches for cutting. He also finds room along the edges for geraniums, which will later fill up the space of the Easter stock. K.

BUSINESS IS DULL.

Business has not been very brisk. A heavy supply of practically every item on the list has brought reduced prices. Saturday we were visited by the worst snow storm of the season, which kept the week end totals down considerably. Stock has been of excellent quality but it has taken forced sales to keep it moving. It is expected that the rose cut will be smaller from now on, as most growers will be cropping for Easter. American Beauties are still scarce with very little call for them. Premier, Columbia, Butterfly, Ophelia, American Legion, Sunburst, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Pilgrim, Hilda and Double White Killarney lead. Carnations have been at their best, but the supply has been too large and prices have slumped. The supply of Easter and calla lilies has been sufficient for all needs, and values on both are somewhat easier. Sweet peas have been in heavy supply with prices much lower. Paper White narcissus and freesia are about done for this season and no one seems to be sorry. Tulips and jonquills have tightened up, but there is still enough to supply all legitimate demands. Violets are a drug on the market, and it seems as though it takes a special day to cause any demand for this once popular flower. The same may be said also about lily of the valley. Snapdragon is improving both in quantity and quality. This about winds up the list, although some iris and acacia are to be seen, but they move briskly.

RETAIL FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION MEETING.

The Retail Florists' Association met Thursday evening, March 2 at the Hotel Chatham, with the largest attendance for some time. Wm. T. Usinger, of the McCallum Co. gave an interesting talk on "The Stores of France and Germany" as they impressed him on his recent European trip. At the close of Mr. Usinger's talk President Wessenauer took up the subject and related some of his experiences while he was learning the business in some of the very places as described by Mr. Usinger. DeForest Ludwig gave an interesting talk on the F. T. D. from the day it started up to the present, giving a record of what had been done and what could be expected in the future. Each member present pledged himself to bring a non-attending member to the next meeting, so that the April meeting should be a hummer.

NOTES.

The Florists' and Gardeners' Club held its regular monthly meeting, March 7. Prof. H. D. Fish, professor of zoology at the University of Pittsburgh lectured on "Mendel's Laws of Heredity." There was also an exhibit of hybrid freesias, by Richard Boggs, of Hartford, N. J.

Fred Zilke of the E. C. Ludwig Co., surprised his friends by getting married the other day. The fortunate bride was Miss Annie Killmeyer. It is reported that the happy couple are spending their honeymoon at one of the Florida resorts.

It is with regret that we report the recent death of Chas. Hoffmeyer. Mr. Hoffmeyer had been in the growing business for a long time and was well known among the trade.

The McCallum Co. is receiving some fine acacia and purple iris.

HEAVY PRE-LENT TRADE.

The week started off with a rush of business. Monday night was the last cotillion of the season and of course the debutantes had to have their usual corsage and a number of dinner parties were given in their honor. During the past few days the majority of stores have been rushed with funeral work. There is a good supply of all seasonable flowers. In spring stock freesias, hyacinths, sweet peas, tulips, yellow, orange, and pink, hold first place. Jonquills are scarce at the present time. Roses are in fair supply. Carnations and calla lilies are plentiful. Formosum lilies are rather scarce and the flowers very poor. There are enough cattleyas to meet the demand. Prices are about the same as last week. Saint Patrick's Day is the next occasion of importance, and although it cannot be classed with Saint Valentine's Day, yet the florists are given an opportunity of increasing their daily sales of pot shamrocks and combinations of flowers which appeal to the eye of the people who wish to honor their patron saint.

NOTES.

R. Vincent Jr. & Sons Co. have a fine selection of palms, ferns and some fine staked ivy in 4-inch pots. Richard Vincent, Sr. is planning to attend the Indianapolis National Flower Show, March 25.

March 13 is the date of the next Florists' Club meeting. There is some important business on the programme and every member should be present.

Dame Rumor tells us that a new concern is to open its doors in a short time. A new commission house. (?)

Wm. G. Lehr is cutting some fine gardenias. His roses are excellent.

GUDE BROS. CO. CHANGE LOCATION.

Gude Bros. Co., has just made known its intention to remove from its present location to the building next adjoining it in advance of the expiration of its existing lease. Before the move can be accomplished a great deal of interior work must be done to the new store. "Initial steps have been taken looking to the removal of the business of the company from 1214 to 1212 F. street, Northwest," Mr. Gude informed the writer. "Bids are being requested for construction work and refrigeration engineers have been consulted by W. F. Gude, head of the firm, preparatory to making the new quarters one of the handsomest flower shops in the national capital. The premises are now divided into two stores and it will be necessary to remove the dividing wall. In accomplishing this large iron beams will have to be installed. This will take a considerable length of time, and the entire interior will have to be redecorated. According to the plans which are in a preparatory stage, two large ice boxes will be put in on the first floor, one for storage and the other for display purposes. The refrigerating plant now at 1214 F. street will be transferred to the new quarters. The office will be located at the rear of the store and will be equipped with all modern office fixtures. New fixtures will also be installed in the sales department and will include marble topped tables, pier glasses, and modern devices for increasing the efficiency of the Gude service. While it is planned to begin this work within the next few weeks, it will probably be July 1 before the firm can move in. The property was recently bought by Gude Brothers Company in anticipation of this move. At the time of purchase the front was remodeled and new display windows installed that will prove very adaptable to the new business. Until recently the two stores were occupied by firms dealing in women's wear of high grade."

The local board of trade, at its March meeting endorsed the Ackerman bill providing for daylight saving in the District of Columbia. If enacted into law the time will be changed on the last Sunday in April. The report was presented to the board by W. C. Johnson, chairman of the industrial interests committee, and he is expected to vigorously push the measure in the house of representatives and senate. The greenhouse men in and around Washington have been opposed to the proposition. They claim that it would work a hardship on the production of flowers.

Boston, Mass.

BUSINESS CONTINUES DULL.

The market has been rather slow but prices did not recede to any marked degree despite the apparent dullness. Sweet peas continue to be the chief glut, owing to the large volume of inferior short stem stock coming in, although fancy stock sells readily enough at fair prices. Violets are at a standstill; the supply is not great but they have probably seen their best days here and will never again be popular as a corsage flower, it is believed. Easter lilies are in good demand but the supply is limited which causes quite a fluctuation in price. One day they can be bought for $20 per 100 and the next will bring $30 to $35. Roses and carnations are steady in price at present, the call about equalling the supply. Orchids and lily of the valley sold well and bulbous stock is confined to jonquils and tulips and occasionally a few cut hyacinths are seen, but as this class does not glut the market in spring the supply is readily taken care of daily.

Chas. Evans, of Waltham, has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his wife who died suddenly February 26.

The Florists' Alliance is not meeting the favor that was anticipated. Too much knocking has caused a slump and unless radical measures are immediately used it will likely peter out as similar organizations have in the past, it is said.

E. F. S.

Indianapolis, Ind.

EXCELLENT TRADE REPORTED.

Market conditions have been quite brisk the past 10 days. Stock is more plentiful and the call has absorbed all items except carnations. Roses bring six to 20 cents, each; carnations, three to seven cents, except Laddie which sells at 10 cents. The supply of jonquils is increasing and the first of the Easter lilies are arriving, very good flowers. Plant stock moves off fairly well, cinerarias, cyclamens, primroses and hyacinths being among the leaders.

NOTES.

It seems that the florists in our local market have awakened to the fact that a neat appearing stand is a credit to any owner. For the last three years only three owners of stands in the flower department have placed lights above them and kept their stands painted regularly. During the past week three more florists have improved their space at the market and it is hoped that more will do so.

Judging from the manner in which the local craft is supporting the National Flower Show, to be held here, March 25-April 1, it is very evident that the exhibition will be a great success. The trade here is doing its share in publicity work.

The meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana, originally scheduled for La Fayette, was held here, March 8. The National Flower Show committee met the same day at the Chamber of Commerce.

ROSE PRICES DECLINE.

Trade the past week has been good and stock is very plentiful, cleaning up about every day. Roses took several drops the past few days, and are down to the lowest point in several months. Daffodils are plentiful and some excellent bi-color is fast making its appearance. Carnations are better than they have been and sell well. Sweet peas, violets, orchids, lily of the valley, Marguerite and calendulas bring good values as cut flowers. Lilies both giganteum and calla are meeting a good sale in floral work which has been heavy lately. From all points the supply for the Easter trade will be good. There seems to be plenty of daffodils, hyacinths, tulips, lilies, genistas and other Easter flowering plants.

Charles Smith of the Eastern Wreath Co., has a take down easel, that can be stocked, occupying very little room. It comes in three straight pieces with a contrivance that holds them together, also acting as a hook for the design. It is very clever, and should meet with a ready market.

It is reported that Smith the florist is to occupy the new store in the Biltmore hotel, opening June next. He will run it in conjunction with his Washington Market Store.

OBITUARY.

Dr. Wm. Warner Tracy.

The horticultural industry of the United States lost one of its foremost workers March 1, in the death of Dr. William Warner Tracy, for many years connected with the scientific staff of the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. He was taken seriously ill early last month and failed to recover. He was 77 years of age, a native of Ohio, although removing to Vermont with his parents while still a small boy. At the close of the Civil war he entered the Michigan Agricultural college, where he soon distinguished himself in botanical and horticultural lines, and in after years in view of his accomplishments, he was given the honorary degree of doctor of science by that institution.

Soon after graduation from the college he became connected with the firm of D. M. Ferry & Co., of Detroit, Mich., and was assigned to the task of developing a trial ground and plant breeding department for that concern. The services he rendered the company won for him a world wide reputation as an expert in vegetable varieties and as a practical plant breeder. In 1903 he entered the service of the Department of Agriculture, devoting most of his time and attention to the study of horticultural varieties and vegetables. He retired from active service in the department April 22, 1921, after 18 years of continuous service. He was the author of many books and bulletins on the subjects in which he specialized and was regarded as a leading authority thereon.

At the outbreak of the Civil war Dr. Tracy enlisted in Company D, 45th Massachusetts infantry, refusing a commission as captain, preferring to remain a private, believing that in that capacity he could render the best service to the country. He served with his company until September 2, 1863, when he was invalided home, and it was after a long period of convalescence, that he entered the Michigan Agricultural college.

He is survived by four sons, John E. Woodridge Tracy, of Washington; Will W. Tracy, Fort Collins, Colo.; Harry W. Tracy and Stephen W. Tracy, San Francisco, Calif. He passed away at the home of his son, John E. W. Tracy, 2927 Macomb street, where funeral services were held March 3. Final interment will be made at Detroit, Mich., during Easter week.

[An exhaustive account of Dr. Tracy's life and work, by his friend and co-worker, R. A. Oakley, of the Office of Seed Distribution, Department of Agriculture, appeared in our issue of May 14, 1921, page 801, on the occasion of his retirement from the department. —ED.]

QUINCY, MASS.—Stephen G. Burke recently filed a petition in bankruptcy; liabilities, $4,796.51 and assets, $2,104.17.

BRATTLEBORO, VT.—C. E. Allen, for 50 years in business here, has sold his establishment on Canal street, to Carroll N. Bond.

NORWALK, O.—Fire seriously damaged the greenhouses and plant of the Rose Garden Co., recently, which started in the factory of the Auto Parts Co., adjacent. The damage was considerable.

STAMFORD, CONN.—The Stamford Horticultural Society, at its recent meeting, added five members to its rolls and staged exhibits of Carnation Belle Washburn and a basket of pansies by Alex. Geddes and a salmon seedling carnation by A. H. Brown.

In Australia, agapanthus and imantophyllum are grown outdoors for cut flowers.

THE National Botanic Garden, Washington, D. C., is to be extended on its present site, if proposed legislation becomes law.

EXPERIMENTS made by W. J. V. Osterhout, professor of botany at Harvard, show it is possible to measure with scientific precision processes of life and death in plants. It is possible to study the behavior of living organisms with same mathematical exactness with which chemists and physicists study that of inanimate matter. By measuring electrical resistance under various circumstances the Harvard biologists are able to plot curves which show precisely the effects of various kinds of injuries, the extent of recovery and the manner in which the plant dies.

John H. Troy, the well known landscape gardener of New Rochelle, N. Y., stopped off at Chicago a few days this week, returning from Australia and New Zealand, having been abroad since November last.

Dahlia Growers' Association.

ATTENTION DAHLIA GROWERS.

In August, 1920, the Wholesale Dahlia Growers' Association was organized. At the last meeting, held in New York in September, 1921, J. K. Alexander, East Bridgewater, Mass., was elected president. I. U. Underhill, of the Babylon Dahlia Gardens, Babylon, N. Y., vice-president and N. H. Hallauer, Ontario, N. Y., secretary-treasurer.

This organization has for its purpose, the advancement and protection of the dahlia growing industry of this country. By co-operating through its secretary, information valuable to both growers and buyers will be kept on file. If you are a buyer of dahlias in wholesale quantities, it will pay you to keep in touch with the secretary. If you are a grower, not already affiliated with the association, write him at once and join the association. Your co-operation is necessary; moreover, you cannot afford to grow dahlias and not belong to the organization.

Full information may be obtained from the secretary, N. A. Hallauer, Ontario, N. Y.

Plant Quarantine Conference.

WASHINGTON, D. C., APRIL 19.

Recent correspondence indicates that the call for a conference April 19, 1922, to discuss the classes of plants to be admitted under the limitations established in Regulation 3 of Quarantine No. 37, is not clearly understood. Since the establishment of Quarantine No. 37, the classes of plants included under Regulation 3 have been criticised as either including too much or not enough; in other words, the criticisms have been of such contradictory character as not to warrant making any changes in the operation of the quarantine.

The federal horticultural board has, however, repeatedly announced that it was ready at any time to confer with propagators and also importers to consider any additions to the classes of plants included under Regulation 3 which could be shown to be justified and reasonably safe. The board has given hearings also to two foreign delegations; one from Belgium last May and the other from Holland last June, and promised them that a conference on the general subject of Regulation 3 would be held some time during the present year. The call for the conference recently issued is, therefore, in response to individual requests and carries out the promise to these foreign delegates.

As representing another phase of the subject, during the past season the infestation of fruit and rose stocks has been unusually heavy with larval nests of the brown-tail moth and also with similar but much smaller larval nests of an insect new to the United States which might very possibly prove to be a serious enemy to the horticulture of this country. In spite of repeated warnings to European shippers, the condition in this respect of imported stocks does not appear to be improving and it becomes necessary to consider what further steps should be taken to protect the country from the entry of these and other pests in connection with the importation of such stocks.

The board does not feel that at the present time it has sufficient information to warrant making any changes in the classes of plants included in Regulation 3, but hopes to secure from this conference information that will clearly justify action on one or more of the following propositions: First, the continuation of the classes now in Regulation 3; second, the need, if any, for restricting the classes of plants now included in this regulation, and third, the need, if any, of adding to the classes of bulbs or plants under this regulation.

Except as outlined above, the board has no programme, drastic or otherwise, of changes in Regulation 3 in mind, and has merely opened the subject in response to requests for free and full discussion. There is no thought of weakening in any material way the protection which the quarantine now gives, but it is possible that some minor amendments can be made without risk.

C. L. MARLATT, Chairman,

Federal Horticulture Board.

Fifth National Flower Show.

INFORMATION COMMITTEE.

It is the aim of the information committee to give the best possible service to the visiting florists at the Fifth National Flower Show, to be held in Indianapolis, Ind., March 25-April 1. The registration desk, where all members of the trade are asked to register, will be in the Trade Exhibit building.

In addition to this there will be an information desk in the Flower Show building which will be prepared to handle mail, lost and found articles, make announcements as to special features, take care of show card writing, etc. Those in charge will have time tables of all railroads and traction lines out of Indianapolis and will be provided with a list of the local florists, whether retailers or growers and how to reach their places. Besides the men at the desks, there will be several members of the committee scattered about the hall at all times prepared to give any information as to the displays and exhibitors.

A booklet is being prepared by private interests which will be made use of by the committee. It will contain a map of the city, street car service and traction time tables, and directions for reaching the state fair-grounds where the show is to be held. Attractions at the various theatres during the week of the show will be listed, also places of interest in the city. These booklets will be distributed at hotels, ticket offices, etc.

The committee is conferring with the leading taxicab companies and expects to make arrangements whereby the visiting florists who make use of the taxi service will obtain the lowest possible rates from the down-town hotels to the fairgrounds. Ask the man with the "Information" badge.

EARLY BRANCHING OR ROYAL ASTERS.

One of the best Asters of recent introduction, and might briefly be described as an early flowering form of our Superb Late-Branching variety, having all the good qualities of the latter but coming into bloom in July or early August and lasting in perfect condition a long time. We offer six beautiful and distinct colors viz.:

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
Lavender. Soft lavender violet	$0.40	$2.00
Purple. Rich deep violet purple	.40	2.00
Rich Rose. Very bright and attractive	.40	2.00
Rose Pink. Rosy pink, shaded white	.40	2.00
Shell Pink. Very delicate tint	.40	2.00
White. Pure white	.40	2.00
Finest Mixed. All colors	.30	1.50

DREER'S "PEERLESS PINK" ASTER.

This grand Aster may be briefly described as a glorified late branching shell-pink or Mary Semple. It has the same strong sturdy habit of growth; comes into bloom a little earlier bears freely almost globular flowers, rarely under 4 inches across and frequently over 5 inches. The color is rich shell-pink, similar in shade but more decided than the late branching. The center petals are prettily incurved, while the wide outer petals reflex, making a most artistic and finely finished flower, and stands cut longer than any other.

50 cts. per trade pkt., $2.50 per oz.

QUEEN OF THE MARKET ASTERS.

The leading early Asters, of good strong growth and bearing large flowers on long strong stems; begins blooming in July.

For many years we have made a specialty of high-grade Flower Seeds for Florists' use and offer extra choice strains of Antirrhinum, Calendula, Cineraria, Cyclamen, Pansy, Petunia, Primula, Salvia, Sweet Peas, Verbena, Zinnia, etc. See our Wholesale Price List.

LATE BRANCHING
ASTERS

DREER'S SUPERB LATE BRANCHING ASTERS.

The finest Asters for late August and September blooming.

The plants form strong, branching bushes, 2 to 2½ feet high, bearing on long strong stems their handsome Chrysanthemum-like flowers, which, under ordinary cultivation, average 5 inches across. The form of the flowers together with the length of the stems places them at the head of Asters for cutting. They come into bloom from two to three weeks after the average type, usually being at their best during September, and filling in the gap between the general run of Asters and Chrysanthemums. We offer eight beautiful and distinct colors, viz.:

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
Azure Blue. A rich, deep lavender	$0.30	$1.50
Pure White. Extra fine stock	.30	1.50
Shell Pink. An exquisite shade	.30	1.50
Rose Pink. A very desirable color	.30	1.50
Deep Rose. Rich and brilliant	.30	1.50
Deep Purple. Royal deep purple	.30	1.50
Lavender. A pale grayish-lavender	.30	1.50
Crimson. Very rich rosy crimson	.30	1.50
Finest Mixed. All colors	.25	1.00

KING ASTERS.

The "King" Asters form a distinct class or type, and have many sterling qualities to recommend them to lovers of fine Asters. They are of strong, sturdy habit, growing fully 18 inches high, and bear from August to October very large double blossoms, the petals of which are more or less quilled, forming very attractive flowers, which have splendid keeping qualities when cut.

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
Dreer's Crimson King. A brilliant new color in this type, which originated with us. It is the richest and deepest crimson variety known to us	$0.40	$2.00
Lavender King. Pale lavender	.40	2.00
Pink King. An attractive shade of delicate shell-pink	.40	2.00
Rose King. A beautiful brilliant rose variety and a great favorite for cutting	.30	1.50
Violet King. This is the original of this type, and is a pleasing soft shade of violet	.30	1.50
White King. Pure glistening white; extra fine large flowers	.40	2.00
King Mixed. All colors	.30	1.50

BUSINESS IS IMPROVING.

Business was better last week than it has been for sometime and the total sales for March 4 were so heavy that the market was almost completely cleaned up in all lines. Carnations are in good supply but are moving nicely at satisfactory prices. Roses are holding their own and while at times certain varieties are scarce there are almost always enough to go around. Lilies are good property and so are callas. Tulips are quite a factor in the market and freesias are arriving in good sized quantities. Sweet peas are selling well and there is a good call for violets. Irises, calendulas, snapdragons, daisies, jonquils, gardenias, stocks, mignonette, orchids and other miscellaneous seasonable cut flowers are included in the shipments. The shipping trade is good and the wholesalers are now able to make shipments again in the storm-swept country of north-eastern Wisconsin which was shut off for several days and included such points as Manitowoc, Fon du Lac, Oshkosh, Appleton, Neenah, Menasha, Green Bay, etc. The retailers report a great improvement in trade notwithstanding the Lenten season has opened and the outlook is more encouraging for the future. The retail establishments are making such a grand showing of cut flowers and plants that the public is commencing to buy.

NOTES.

Joe Steiskal has resigned his position with Kennicott Bros. Co. and will go into the retail business at 1518 West 102nd place where the Henry Seiger establishment is located. He has the best wishes of his many friends in the trade for every success in his new undertaking.

The Florists' Credit Association is distributing to its subscribers the March supplement to the Florists' Credit Guide. It contains much valuable information and should be in the hands of every wholesaler.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. were pleased with business the past week when the total sales showed a substantial increase. Bulbous stock of every description is in heavy supply at this house.

The Soukal Floral & Nursery Co., 5330 South Mason avenue, has been incorporated; capital $50,000. Frank Soukal, Ladislav Drahos, Frank Chuman are the incorporators.

Ernest F. Hoehl, representing S. S. Skidelsky & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., has recovered sufficiently from his recent attack of blood poisoning to be about again.

Vaughan's Seed Store is enjoying a heavy run of business in spring bulbs, and all the seed departments are working to capacity.

Superintendent Thomas Wallis, of Rosehill cemetery, is going to Hot Springs, Ark., to recuperate for three weeks.

George Gobel, formerly with A. T. Pyfer & Co., has joined the force of the Chicago Flower Grower's Association.

One retail florist is expecting business in March flowers and plants from a Christmas plant sign still in his window.

The Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., is building six new houses for Frank P. Oechslein, at his Harlem place.

Joe Einweck, of the E. C. Amling Co., is strutting around like a peacock. It's a brand new boy.

Ed. Eisner, formerly with William Feniger, at Toledo, O., is with the Central Floral Co.

The E. C. Amling Co.'s office force has a new mascot in the shape of a pet crocodile.

William Feniger, of Toledo, O., was here on business last week.

The seventeenth annual convention of the Illinois State Florists' Association, will be held at Urbana, March 14-15, with a very attractive programme, as outlined elsewhere in this issue. A convenient train leaves the Illinois Central station, Twelfth street and Michigan avenue, at 8:45 a. m., due in Urbana at noon. The one-way fare is $4.56.

C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, is expected home from California this week. Ernie Anderson and his able assistants have kept stock moving all during Mr. Washburn's absence and will have a splendid report to submit. Miss Ruth Wattman managed the office.

Arthur M. Paulus is opening a new store at North Clark street and Wilson avenue under the name of Art's Flower Shop. The store is being equipped with a complete set of modern fixtures and will present a most inviting appearance when the doors are thrown open to the public.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is in good crop with roses and orchids not to mention lily of the valley. The Easter plants are progressing favorably at the Morton Grove greenhouses and many large sized orders have already been booked.

Fred Lautenschlager of Kroeschell Bros. Co., is a pretty busy man these days and is writing some good sized contracts. He has just booked Nic Blatz & Sons' order for a new 150 h.p. Kroeschell high pressure steam boiler for their rose range at Morton Grove.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is moving its office from the North Wabash avenue side to the Lake street entrance. The new arrangement will give them more floor space where it is most needed and is a move in the right direction.

The Women's National Farm and Garden Association, Mrs. Russell Tyson, president, announces its second annual exhibition of garden plans, backyard gardens, sun-dials and garden sculpture, at the Art Institute, March 12.

The Alpha Floral Co.'s large show windows are completely filled with all seasonable cut flowers including gladioli, which made their appearance this week.

Mrs. Wietor, mother of N. J. Wietor and Henry Wietor, celebrated her ninetyeth birthday, March 3. She carries her age well and is able to be about.

Louis Wittbold, of the George Wittbold Co. is reported to have killed a rattle snake three feet long with six rattles, at Edgebrook, March 6.

Fred Henoch, of the Ove Gnatt Co., Inc., La Porte, Ind., greeted old customers at his firm's local establishment where T. E. Waters presides.

The J. A. Budlong Co. has placed an order with Kroeschell Bros. Co. for a 2½-ton ice-machine to be installed at its North Wabash avenue store.

Fred Longren, well-known knight of the grip, is greeting his old friends here this week. He has a display of baskets at the Palmer House.

Bruno Juerjens of Peoria greeted old friends this week. He makes his headquarters with Erne & Co. when he is in the city.

The Joseph Foerster Co. is having a strong call for iris which occupy a prominent place in the loop window showings.

Frank Jarel of the Zech & Mann force is on the road to recovery and is expected back on the job almost any day.

Mrs. Peter Reinberg and Mrs. Henry Zender who returned from California recently, left March 7 for West Baden.

Archie MacDonald, manager of Gimbel Bros.' cut flower department, greeted his old friends in the market March 7.

Mangel's artistic window arrangements continue to attract attention. The decorator has an eye for color.

Mrs. N. Stuart of the Bohannon Floral Co. has been sick at home the past week with influenza.

John Walsh has resigned his position with Poehlmann Bros. Co. and is now with A. T. Pyfer & Co.

The American Bulb Co., is getting its seed department into good shape for the spring rush.

A feature of the evening session, to be held in Morrow hall, Agricultural building, commencing at 8 o'clock will be entertainment furnished by the Floricultural Club of the University of Illinois, a student organization.

The Wednesday morning session, convening at 9:30 o'clock, will be opened by an address by Dr. P. A. Lehenbauer, plant physiologist of the department of horticulture, on "What Florists Should Know." The concluding feature of the meeting will be an open forum in the university greenhouses, conducted by Dr. Lehenbauer and Prof. Dörner. Topics of interest to all growers will be discussed.

The headquarters of the association during the convention, will be at the Inman hotel. Excellent accommodations can be secured at this hostelry and the Beardsley hotel at rates ranging from $1.50 to $6 per day. A convenient train for florists from Chicago and vicinity to Urbana is one leaving the Illinois Central station, Twelfth street and Michigan boulevard, at 8:45 a. m., the fare one way being $4.56.

EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD TRADE REPORTED.

Business has been exceptionally good the past week and some very fine stock arrived. This city and vicinity had its most severe blizzard of the year, February 28, bringing the temperature down to 10 degrees above zero. Roses continue to be the most important item. Premier leading, first grade stock bringing $10 to $30 per 100. Crusader, Butterfly, White Killarney and Columbia are supplying a good demand and the same can be said of Mrs. Chas. Russell, the best of it wholesaling at $6 to $30 per 100. Ophelia and Sunburst are on the short side. Ward is moving slowly at $4 to $8 per 100, with light supplies. The carnation call continues good, Laddie alone being scarce. Other offerings in red, pinks and whites clean up daily at $4 to $6 per 100. Lily of the valley is a good seller but the call for orchids is somewhat limited. Cattleyas sold the best at $1 to $1.25 per bloom. Few cypripediums were seen. Gardenias are selling well at 50 cents per flower. Narcissi and jonquils are popular at $4 to $12 per 100. Some excellent cut Darwin tulips meet a good demand, 24-inch stem stock going at $12 per 100. Other kinds of this flower are obtainable at lower values. Cut hyacinths are not as popular as the pot plants of this variety. Both double and single violets clean up rapidly at $5 per 1,000. Excellent sweet peas find a ready market. Rainbow freesias are on the short side but other offerings move well at $2 to $6 per 100. Snapdragons and mignonette find no difficulty in cleaning up every day. Callas sell well at $2 to $4 per dozen. Cut Easter lilies are in good supply, very few pot plants, however, yet being seen. Some excellent calendulas are arriving, the stock being in limited supply at $4 to $12 per 100 for the doubles and less for singles. Pussy willow sprays are popular. In pot plants, the supply of cyclamens, cinerarias and begonias are gradually decreasing. Asparagus plumosus and A. Sprengeri sell at 50 to 75 cents per bunch, while greens bring $3.50 per 1,000. Adiantum moves well. Galax, both bronze and green sell at $1.50 per 1,000. Leucothoe and huckleberry are good property. Coontie leaves sell at $1.50 to $2 per 100.

NOTES.

The Ayres Floral Co., 917 Locust avenue, featured an attractive window with dwarf white syringias, pot narcissi, jonquils, hyacinths and tulips. The company's Saturday special this week was one dozen White Killarney roses or 12 Columbias, made up to carry away in boxes.

Grimm & Gorly had a pretty window with spring flowers last week. The firm is having considerable success in its special Saturday sales, consisting of 18 Columbia roses, done up in attractive boxes. Sweet peas and violets, in small bunches move well.

Some of the best sweet peas ever seen on the market were grown by Phil Goebel, of Des Peres, and consigned to the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. The firm is handling excellent Butterfly roses.

Some fine cut Darwin tulips have been seen at Mullanphy, Florists, Inc., in combination with jonquils, narcissi, hyacinths and tulips.

Wm. Shray & Sons, Pennsylvania avenue, have been supplying the market with fine gardenias. J. K. M.

Evansville, Ind.

EXCELLENT TRADE REPORTED.

Local florists report that trade during the past week or 10 days has been exceedingly good, especially for cut flowers and bulbous stock, and has shown some improvement over the corresponding period of last year. Funeral work has held up well, but it is now beginning to fall off. Party work and receptions brought the local dealers considerable business recently but there will be a let up in it now that the Lenten season is on. Florists are making an effort to get plenty of stocks to be able to supply the Easter trade which is expected to be unusually good. There probably will be some extra demand for flowers on St. Patrick's Day, but nothing like Easter. Roses and carnations are both fairly plentiful. There also is a liberal supply of sweet peas, and the quality is excellent, the prices being quite satisfactory. Violets are in good demand. Pot plants are selling well, with prospects for an improved call.

Emil Niednagel and Curt Niednagel, of the Niednagel Floral Co., will take an active part in the spring convocation of the Scottish Rite Masons, Valley of Evansville, that will be held here April 4-6. They also will be prominent in the spring ceremonial of Hathi temple, Ancient and Arabic order, of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, that will follow the convocation.

Florists at Vincennes, Ind., Owensboro, Ky., and Hopkinsville, Ky. report that trade during the past two weeks has been very good with abundant supplies. W. B. C.

Milwaukee, Wis.

HEAVY SUPPLY HARD TO MOVE.

As express service to all points north of the city is established, after the recent ice storm, it is now possible to fill shipping orders in that direction. While this has helped some still the supply of all kinds of cut flowers is in excess of the demand and the inferior grades were moved last week at buyers' prices. Carnations are in crop and indications point to light offerings for Easter, but this will not be a great misfortune as there will be plenty of other flowers and pot plants to supply all needs.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING.

More than one-half of the members of the Florists' Club attended the March 2 meeting, at the new store of R. Preuss & Sons, Lisbon avenue and Twenty-sixth street. The greater part of the evening was taken up in discussing the details of the coming flower display in the lobby of the Public Library building, March 15-16. A committee consisting of Nic Zweifel, Aug. Kellner, Arthur Leidiger and C. C. Pollworth was appointed by the president to take complete charge, with full co-operation of all the members of the club, both retailers and growers. This show should be a credit to the trade and help stimulate business, especially now that we are in the Lenten season. Before adjournment the club showed its appreciation for the splendid hospitality of the Preuss family by a rising vote of thanks.

NOTES.

The new building which houses the shop of R. Preuss & Sons was built especially for that purpose, with living quarters on the second floor. The establishment is up-to-date in every particular and is finished in white. A spacious basement is used to store supplies and contains a heating apparatus. Rud Preuss is one of the pioneers in the business here, and aided by his wife and later the children has built up a splendid trade.

Mrs. Fred Holton, who has been a patient at a local hospital for the past two weeks underwent an operation of a rather serious nature, recently, but from last reports she is progressing favorably.

Gust Rusch, of the firm bearing his name, has been confined to his home for two weeks with a severe cold, which it was feared might develop into pneumonia.

Rich Litz has been under the weather, but is now much better.

SLIGHT INCREASE IN SALES REPORTED.

With the approach of the spring and more favorable weather, there is a slight increase in the call for flowers, Lent apparently not curtailing the demand. Funeral work is still active. There is also a good deal of table decoration for banquets which are being held in conjunction with conventions and annual meetings. Party work is fairly active. Sweet peas, roses, carnations, jonquils and violets are the principal kinds which are in good supply. There is little change in prices, roses going fairly well at $3 to $8 per dozen. Principal varieties are Columbia, Butterfly, Ward, Sunburst and Premier. Bulbous stock is meeting with a fair demand and many florists are specializing in it. In pot plants primroses, hyacinths and hydrangeas are popular. While orders as a rule are smaller in money value they are much more numerous, showing that there is an awakened interest.

NOTES.

Walter Stephens, of the S. F. Stephens & Sons Co., and president of the Ohio District of the National Flower Growers' Association is scheduled to visit Toledo and Cleveland soon. While in Toledo he will confer with local growers and attend a meeting of the local association. A meeting of the board of directors of the state association will be held in Cleveland at an early date. The firm reports a good demand for bulbous flowers. A large number of Holland salesmen have visited his establishment recently, who appear to be more numerous than ever before.

I. D. Siebert, manager of the Fifth Avenue Floral Co., is very much encouraged over the improvement in business. The company at its greenhouses is growing a large quantity of carnations and roses in addition to the usual run of Easter flowers. The retail shop on East Broad street, under the management of John Clark is having a good trade in every way.

Mrs. Williams, manager of the local branch of the Zettitz Floral Products Co., reports the weather excellent for growing roses, which are the specialty of the concern. While it is now between seasons production is as good as could be expected and demand excellent. Premier, Columbia, Butterfly, Milady and a few Angelus are grown.

T. J. Ludwig, 82 North High street, reports a better demand for all kinds of flowers and plants with bright prospects for a continual improvement. He says orders are more numerous although the cash value of each is still small.

The High Street shop of McKellar the Florist, has been closed out and the entire business is now concentrated in the store at 35 West Broad street. Mr. McKellar reports a good demand for pot plants and cut flowers.

The annual Ball of the Muses, held at the Deshler hotel the latter part of February was well attended and there were many floral decorations.

PERCEPTIBLE IMPROVEMENT IN BUSINESS.

For the first few days of the past week the market was greatly overstocked, one of the large houses receiving over 200 boxes as its Monday quota. Roses, however, began to shorten up which helped matters. A slight increase in demand was perceptible on Thursday which increased later until on Saturday, extra shipments of roses were necessary to meet the call. Carnations and sweet peas were the great overstocks and have brought very disappointing prices, but they too are scarcer, the demand of Saturday taking all the fresh stock. Good double and single stocks are now being freely offered and add to the variety. Excellent snapdragon of a quality that has not been surpassed in this market, was offered the past week. Orange King calendulas are now at their best, a number of growers sending in fine, double flowered stock. Callas are plentiful, but not much overstocked. It is astonishing what a quantity of these are now used. Easter lilies are about equal to the demand and violets move slowly in spite of the effort made to quicken their disposal. There is a fair supply of fine lilac, both white and lavender. Lily of the valley moves off fairly well also cattleyas which find an exclusive demand that is not affected by the presence of other flowers.

March 6.—The tone of the market is much better, a stronger demand with not half the flowers offered there were a week ago, has stiffened prices and started a lot of trading between the commission houses, most of whom were short of roses or other standard stocks. The weather is clear and unusually warm for the season.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING, MARCH 7.

The "Welcome to America" dinner in honor of P. M. Koster, held previous to the March 7 meeting of the Florists' Club was most successful. Eulogistic addresses were made by Robert Pyle, of West Grove, Pa.; John Watson, former president of the American Association of Nurserymen and A. Vandenberg, chancellor to the Netherlands, all being of the most glowing character. Mr. Koster's address before the club on "Horticulture—It's Duty and Its Future," was wonderful in its broad treatment of the subject. The lecture, in detail, will appear in next week's issue. Henry A. Dreer, Inc., made an exhibit of well flowered Kureme azaleas.

NOTES.

The Century Shop have been making a run on violets the past week featuring them in their advertising and also in a very effective window display with bunches priced at 50 cents. There is a background of splendidly flowered heather, the pots being decorated with white and purple paper. Purple velvets cover various sized pedestals and the floor of the window on which are placed in vases, baskets and other receptacles, the bunches of violets. The frame of the show window is bordered with curled edge purple crepe paper, which adds much to the effectiveness of the display.

The Leo Niessen Co. is handling the stock of the new sweet pea, Mrs. E. P. Hostetter which stands out distinctly above even the finest of the newer kinds. Some of the separate florets measure two and one-half inches across and many appear on extra long stems. Its color is a beautiful shade of pink. High grade Mrs. Chas. Russell roses and extra fine snapdragons are features at this time.

At Wm. K. Harris' the usual fine lot of Shamrock is seen in wholesale quantities and every 2½-inch pot of his 90,000 is a perfect little gem. The great bulk of it goes to one department store which gives it away to their customers the week of March 17. It is no small feat to have this stock, which grown so close together is subject to mould or fungus, perfect, as is done here year after year.

The Jos. G. Neidinger Co. says their spring business is opening up well. L. J. Seiger found the Pennsylvania coal regions prosperous and booked a

LENT A FACTOR IN RETARDING SALES.

Although some people claim that Lent is not so strictly observed as in former years, its opening at least has an effect on the sales of flowers. This, in connection with the great influx of stock and the absence from their city homes of many good customers of retailers, has put the market in a bad condition. Even those who are regular buyers do not buy any more when stock is cheap than when it is dear. If there is anything in publicity it is to let the people know that you have the goods at reasonable prices. In this matter we believe that some of the retailers are at fault. They are so conservative that they are in danger of getting into the "has been" class. It is an emergency to have a great stock of good flowers on hand with few buyers. Under such conditions we need men who, to quote Artemus Ward, "will rise up to the emergency and cave in the emergency's head." If there is any change, the market is in a worse condition than when our notes of March 4 were written. One wholesaler states that it is next to impossible to sell orchids; another says the same about tulips and so on through the list of plants and flowers. About the only exception noted are American Beauty roses that are not being extensively grown and are holding up in price fairly well. There is an abundance of stock of all kinds; the great desire is for more customers.

March 6.—The market continues dull. Violets are a glut and many are being lost.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING, MARCH 13.

The Florists' Club will hold its next meeting, March 13, at the Engineering Societies building. As that will be the opening day of the spring flower show a number of prominent out-of-town visitors may be expected to be present.

NOTES.

The entertainment and ball of the Greek-American Florists' Association was held in the Hotel Commodore, on the night of March 1, and was a highly successful affair. President Geo. Hanges of the association, said there was a 25 per cent improvement over previous affairs. Over 2,200 persons attended, many having come from Baltimore, Md., Albany, N. Y., Boston, Mass., and Newport, R. I. Admission was $3.30 per person and $7 a seat in the boxes, all of which shows that there are yet quite a number of people that have money.

Frank Nielsen, who for several years has conducted a retail store at 17 East 28th street has removed to No. 15, next door to his former location, where he has three times the floor space formerly occupied and a fine plate glass front. His many friends are pleased to note his prosperity as he is a fine young man. His store is right in the shadow of the Hotel Seville and the Hotel Prince George is just across the street.

Mrs. Leikens, Madison avenue and 55th street, has recently added to her staff Chas. Kaiser, formerly with the late Herman Kuhn, and Frank Purcell, formerly with Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C. With Robert Clifford as manager this store now has a clever and able staff. They report large orders for funeral work during the past week.

A Hearty Welcome Awaits You

Do you remember—
The good old days when New Year's calling was the thing?

Do you remember—
The open houses and the warm Welcome as you crossed the threshold?

Those days are gone but the genuine spirit remains, and A. L. Miller invokes it at Jamaica, L. I., during the week of the New York Flower Show, March 13-19th.

E. J. Hession, of Madison avenue and 76th street, has been confined to his home for some time by a severe attack of grip. We hope to see him about soon as he is one of the best men in the retail business of this city, as far as that matter, any other city.

W. C. Duckham, of Madison, N. J., son of the well known Wm. H. Duckham, of the Duckham-Pierson Co., was a recent caller at Secretary Young's office. He has taken large space in the spring show.

The ever cheerful Leonard Vaughan, of Chicago, who we are inclined to claim as a florist as well as a seedsman, came in early last week and has been putting a hurry up into the Barclay street store.

Some of the old fashioned flowers continue popular. At Geo. C. Siebrecht's, in addition to much other stock, we have recently noticed excellent lupines.

Miss Ida Vreeland, for the past six years with N. J. Lales, 2524 Eighth avenue, will be married March 19 to Mathew Peterson, of Plainfield, N. J.

Jos. A. Millang, of the New York Cut Flower Co., is receiving exceptionally fine American Beauty roses from the Briarcliff range of Paul M. Pierson.

We regret to learn that G. J. Carjanes, 2594 Eighth avenue, is confined to his home by serious illness. Mrs. Carjanes is conducting the business.

In one of our recent pilgrimages we met Edw. C. Vick, well known in trade circles, who is now in the advertising business with the Hauff-Metzger, Inc.

One of the consistent buyers in the wholesale district is Martin De Vries, who now manages the florist department in the Hotel McAlpin.

Chatmas, 2726 Eighth avenue, reports good business. The Chatmas brothers are enterprising young men and have an exceptionally fine store.

Alexander C. Scommodan, 485-487 Eighth avenue, reports a good business this season, wedding decorations being noteworthy.

Arthur E. Beyer, well known in the retail trade of this city, is now with Bunyard, Madison avenue at 48th street.

In addition to a great stock of carnations Herman Weiss is handling the finest snapdragons that reach this market.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Chicago, reports its February mail order business 30 per cent ahead of that of last year.

C. C. MASSIE, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn., and wife were in Los Angeles, Calif., visitors last week.

THE ROGERS BROS. SEED CO., Chicago, incorporated at Chaumont, N. Y., has increased its capital stock from $375,000 to $500,000.

NEW YORK.—Carter's Tested Seeds report that although their catalogue was issued late, their business is starting up very well.

HENRY FIELD, of Shenandoah, Ia., reports his Monday mail, February 27, as including over 10,000 letters, 6,153 of which contained orders, amounting to $18,534.27.

It is to be greatly regretted the government failed to give permanent form to the vast amount of valuable information the late Dr. Tracy had acquired concerning types of garden vegetables.

VISITED CHICAGO: T. Herschel Brown, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich.; T. S. Pendergrass, representing Waldo Rohnert, Gilroy, Calif., west bound; Walter L. Hamilton, of the Madson Seed Co., Manitowoc, Wis.; T. Sakata, of T. Sakata & Co., Yokohama, Japan.

DAVID BURPEE, of the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa., writes February 22: "We are pleased to say that business continues on the increase and to compare more and more favorably with last year and with the year before last. Yesterday our cash receipts were $4,000 greater than the same day of last year, and about $3,000 greater than year before last. There is every indication that this will be an exceptionally good season."

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The house agricultural committee has reduced from $5,000,000 to $2,000,000 the sum of money which congress is being asked to appropriate for the relief of farmers in the middle and northwest, whose crops have been damaged. The money is intended for the purchase of seed. In the bill as it passed the senate the appropriation is fixed at $5,000,000, but apparently the house committee felt that this was too much and accordingly made the cut.

C. C. MORSE & Co., San Francisco, Calif., say that although they experienced an unusually cold January, the local and coast business was as good as last year. This firm's seed crop prospects are good so far. There was some damage to early planted radish and lettuce from frost, but nothing serious, and all lost acreage has been replanted.

Seed Freight Rates.

HEARING TO REDUCE THEM.

An immediate reduction of freight rates "on all basic commodities that are subject at present to high rates which are interfering with the movement of freight" was asked of the commission by J. George Mann, traffic manager for Northrup King & Co. of Minneapolis, Minn., at a hearing before the interstate commerce commission, at Washington, D. C., February 28, who spoke in behalf of the seed dealers of the country. The industry, he said, is not in favor of a horizontal decrease in rates at this time, but believes relief should first be given to seeds, farm commodities and implements, coal, iron, steel and other basic commodities and that, if such decreases do not materially impair the position of the railroads, the question of a horizontal reduction can then be taken up.

The Late Dr. W. W. Tracy.
See Obituary, Page 377.

"It is too obvious to require further detail that seeds, though perhaps of small value, have by reason of what they produce a very great effect on the welfare of the country," he told the commission, and the American farmer, particularly in his present distressing condition, should not be burdened with the present high level of freight rates, because he is obliged to assume the freight both on the seed he produces and on the seed he buys and plants.

"In spite of the fact that in volume the seed business occupies a modest position among the industries of the country, it has a commercial importance out of all proportion to the mere volume of its transactions. In seeds we are dealing in fundamentally the most important of all commodities of commerce. There are many important commercial commodities—steel, oil, cotton, copper and others—each of them the basis of great industries, but the one essential commodity, without which life itself is impossible, is food and the food of civilized man, with few exceptions, is the product, direct or indirect, of seeds.

"During the last war seeds were held of such prime importance that the various government departments classified them with munitions and foods in all priority classifications. Congress passed a special war act to determine the supply and increase the supply of these seeds, especially as seed importations were practically suspended during the war."

Free Seeds.

The government agricultural appropriation bill was reported March 6, without the free seeds item of $360,000 but members of congress who think they ought to get the seeds promise a fight. Expenditures by the Department of Agriculture for the fiscal year 1922-1923 would be restricted to $34,978,033. The amount is $3,710,026 less than appropriated for the department last year and $1,554,835 less than approved for the present year by the director of the budget.

SEJAN.

Perhaps all readers of The American Florist are familiar with the superior merits of these wonderful new strains, but many have found it impossible to stock up with them principally because of there being yet insufficient stocks for us to supply them at trade prices. This year for the first time it has become possible for me to publish a wholesale list composed of ruffled, plain petalled and Primulinus varieties. So great has become their popularity that no progressive grower can afford to be without them, and at my wholesale prices, you can now afford to lay in good stocks of many kinds at reasonable prices. Kunderd gladioli are now so well known that you cannot afford to do without a fine collection of these beautiful new varieties. No other strains are so popular as these and you will find them a ready sale if you will plant them plentifully on your grounds.

I would especially call your attention to my new Primulinus Hybrids. These are the results of crossing of Species "Primulinus" with my new large flowering types and are no doubt far superior to any other kinds of this popular new race. For their dainty gracefulness, Primulinus are growing in great favor as cut flowers, for none are equal to them for their graceful beauty. My new 56 page catalog describes over 300 varieties and illustrates 19 of them in their natural colors. It contains the most complete information on planting, culture, care, etc., of the Gladiolus ever written. Any grower will be pleased to own a copy which is free for your address. If you are a grower, florist, or dealer, ask for our wholesale list also. Address Having purchased from Mr. A. E. Kunderd quite a large variety of Gladioli, including many of the newest kinds, I am glad to state that every variety has come absolutely true to name. Mr. Kunderd has raised more fine varieties of Gladioli than any other half dozen hybridists in America combined, and those who want the best obtainable can make no mistake in ordering from him.

M. R. Cashman, Owatonna, Minn., President; Paul C. Lindley, Pomona, N. C., Vice-President; Charles Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo., Secretary; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Iowa, Treasurer.

The forty-seventh annual convention will be held at Detroit, Mich., June 28-30, 1922.

RIO OSO, CALIF.—John H. Snyder has established a 3-acre nursery, specializing in peach and prune trees.

NURSERY FREIGHT RATES.—Some important information on this subject will be found elsewhere in this issue, page 372.

DAVIS, CALIF.—The United States Department of Agriculture nurseries, formerly located at Chico, Calif., have been transferred to the University of California farm here.

HOOPESTON, ILL.—E. A. Raasch & Sons, florists, will establish a nursery consisting of eight acres, on West Orange street at an early date and will grow trees, shrubs, hardy plants, rose bushes, etc.

SEATTLE, WASH.—Malmo & Co., has moved its office and store into larger quarters at Sixth avenue and Stewart street. The firm contemplates extensive propagation of nursery stocks, especially evergreens, at an early date.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—The Wellesley Pican Orchards, Inc., has been incorporated with a capital of $200,000 to conduct a general nursery business. W. I. N. Lofland, Frank Jackson and Mark W. Cole, all of Dover, Del., are the incorporators.

PAINESVILLE, O.—J. H. Dayton, of the Storrs & Harrison Co., said recently, the nursery business is one of the most important industries in Lake county, over 35,000 acres of land being devoted to it. The outlook for spring trade is very promising.

TUCSON, ARIZ.—The Mountain View Farm & Orchard Co., five miles from this city, was recently incorporated with a capital of $50,000. Bentley Winstanley, C. B. Perkins, C. E. Goyette, P. R. Lucas, J. S. Mann, W. T. Robie and W. B. Sparkman are directors.

San Jose Scale.

The San Jose scale is just now exceedingly abundant and destructive in many orchards in the Bentonville, Ark., section, and growers state they are unable to adequately control the pest with the usual dormant tree treatments with lime-sulphur spray. While the bureau of entomology, of the United States Department of Agriculture, believes that thorough spraying with dormant tree strength of lime sulphur will control the San Jose scale, yet to meet the desire of orchardists for other than lime-sulphur treatments, a number of experiments with sprays were undertaken. The purpose of the present article is to call attention to results secured in the treatment of the scale by the use of a spray containing two per cent of lubricating or engine oil emulsified with potash fish oil soap.

The abundance and destructiveness of the scale in the Bentonville section of Arkansas and the desire of growers for other than lime sulphur sprays, has offered excellent opportunity for testing various dilutions of engine oil sprays against this pest. The experiments were carried out by A. J. Ackerman, of the office of deciduous fruit insect investigations, and have included tests of lubricating oils of a strength of from one-half per cent to four per cent or five per cent, thoroughly emulsified with potash fish oil soap. The results showed practically complete killing of the scale by one thorough application of the spray of a strength as low as two per cent of oil. A point yet to be established in connection with the present experiments is the possible injury of the oil spray which may result to the trees, twigs, or fruit buds, and several seasons' experience will be necessary before a final decision on this question can be reached.

In order that entomologists who desire to do so may make tests of the treatment the present spring, and also to render the treatment available to orchardists who may wish to test it on a small scale, the following directions for making the stock emulsion are given: Red engine oil, or oil of similar grade, one gallon; water, one-half gallon and potash fish oil soap, one pound.

The oil, water, and soap are placed in a kettle or other receptacle and heated until the contents come to a boil. A brown scum appears on the surface of the mixture as it first begins to boil. After boiling for a few minutes the brown scum begins to disappear and at this stage the kettle is removed from the fire and the entire mixture is pumped twice under pressure of about 60 pounds while still very hot. A proper emulsion can not be made by stirring nor should the mixture be allowed to cool before it is pumped. Too much pumping will often break up the emulsion. During pumping, ordinary pump packing is burnt up rather quickly by the hot oil mixture. For making the stock emulsion on a large scale an all-metal pump would be necessary.

Muscadine Grape Cuttings.

There has been a great demand during the past year not only for information on Muscadine grapes, but for plants with which to start the business of grape production. Nurserymen have purchased large quantities of cuttings from the co-operative vineyard maintained at Willard, N. C., by the United States Department of Agriculture and the North Carolina Experiment station.

Muscadine grapes suffered less in that section than any other local fruits from the killing frost last April. In spite of the fact that the first growth of the season was entirely killed, a new growth from dormant and adventitious buds resulted in an average crop, while many other fruits suffered from 30 per cent to total loss.

Several years ago the home demonstration organization started encouraging canning club girls to grow Muscadine grapes and make such products from them as jelly, grape juice, preserves, jams, and catsups. In Alabama the club girls have reached the point of filling commercial orders, while in Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Florida the planting of Muscadine grapes in home arbors is being carried on by club girls who expect to sell their products. The railroads have carried Muscadine grape products on their diners for over a year, and are continuing to do so.

Companies using Muscadine grapes for preparing fruit flavoring sirup and dealcoholized beverages continue to increase their planting and output, and during the year have materially increased their capital.

RECENT reports from the Laredo section of Texas indicate frost damage to the early Bermuda onion crop.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, March 7.—Cucumbers, per 2-dozen box, $3.50 to $4.25; head lettuce, per crate, $4.75 to $6.25; carrots, $4.50 to $5, per barrel; cabbage, $2 to $2.25 per hundred pound sack.

New York, March 3.—Cucumbers, $2.25 to $2.50 per dozen; mushrooms, per three-pound basket, 90 cents to $1.75; radishes, 100 bunches, $3 to $10;
tomatoes, per pound, 35 to 40 cents;
lettuce, one dozen bunches, $1 to $1.75;
beet tops, per basket, $2; rhubarb, 75 cents to $2 per dozen bunches.

Vegetable Movement.

WEEK OF MARCH 6-11.

Potato movement increased 900 cars
due to new stock arriving from Florida,
No. 1 Cobblers from that state being sold to New York jobbers at $12 per barrel. Northern sacked round whites brought $1.75 to $1.80 per 100 pounds at Chicago. Maine Green Mountains advanced 10 cents, closing at $1.36 to $1.46 in eastern markets.

Sweet potato prices held firm in all markets. New Jersey yellow kinds selling at $2 to $2.25 per bushel at New York. In middlewestern centers Tennessee Nancy Halls were firm at $1.25 to $1.50. Movement for the week amounted to 235 cars, a decline of 30 per cent.

Onion supplies have fallen off 17 per cent, 180 cars being rolled. Values have been well maintained, an advance of $1 per 100 pounds being reported on Yellow Globes at New York, closing at $8 to $8.50. Australian Browns have been sold to jobbers in middlewestern cities at $7.50 to $8.

Apples show no change in price, the movement for the week amounting to 398 cars of barreled and 58 cars of boxed stock. The February movement of all supplies fell 2,000 cars short compared with the corresponding month in 1921. Baldwins, 2½-inch, brought $7.50 per barrel at western New York shipping points. Northwestern extra fancy boxed Winesaps were sold at $3 to $4 at Chicago.

Cabbage values for New York Danish type advanced $5 to $10 per ton in eastern markets, closing at $45 to $50.
Gains of 25 to 50 cents per 100 pounds were noted at Kansas City and Chicago, bringing $2 to $2.25 per 100 pounds for Texas flat stock. Florida stock is arriving in consuming centers.

Celery prices are declining slightly at producing sections. Nearly 500 cars were sent to market, 467 coming from Florida.

Florida string beans were in good demand at Chicago and New York at $6 to $7 per bushel.

Lettuce, from California, brought $5 to $5.75 per crate in leading markets.

Texas spinach advanced 50 cents per bushel, closing at $2.

Nicotine Poisoning.

Recently a case of nicotine poisoning occurred in our family that set us to thinking in regard to spraying lettuce with nicotine. We had a surplus of lettuce plants and used some for a Sunday dinner recently. When served everyone immediately objected to it, claiming it to be bitter. The writer was the only one who ate heavily of the lettuce and was a very sick man for a day.

Tracing the matter we found that two weeks before the lettuce was cut it had a good spraying with black leaf 40.
In the meantime the plants were watered thoroughly and when prepared for the table washed repeatedly but all this did not remove the nicotine. We mentioned this to one of our large lettuce growers, a man who has an extensive grocery trade, and he admitted that he had seriously injured his business by selling lettuce that had been recently sprayed with nicotine. He said his trade refused his products as being bitter and he could not account for it for some time, until he came to the conclusion to eat some of his own lettuce for a trial. We also remember having given a city lady, a visitor at the time, some of our sprayed lettuce plants, with the result that she nearly died from the effect of the nicotine.

These experiences will be ample to show that while nicotine spraying is a powerful help in lettuce growing as advocated by us great care must be used not to put the product on the market too soon. We are great believers in spraying the young seedlings and plants but after lettuce is one-half grown in the permanent beds it would be safer to omit such treatment.

The same objection also exists against the use of such sprays as pyrox on celery as it is being finished off for the market. Pyrox contains poison and is therefore not as safe as plain Bordeaux mixture for celery. We should be careful to safeguard our business, especially in the consumer's mind, as prejudice is hard to counteract once it is created.

FLOWER SHOW, NOVEMBER 11-18.

Every member was asked at the March 4 meeting of the local Florists' Club to co-operate with the special committee to make the public flower show to be held November 11-18 a success. Frederick A. Danker, the chairman of the committee, announced that sub-committees of decorations, advertising, arrangement of exhibits and entertainments would be appointed at a meeting of the special committee to be held shortly. It is expected the show will be held in the State armory, Washington avenue and Lark street, where the club held two large shows in 1909 and 1910. The club will have a show for the members at the monthly meeting, April 6.

Circular letters have been sent to members of the trade throughout the state by William C. Gloeckner, retail florist of this city and an enthusiastic member of the Florists Telegraph Delivery association calling attention to the possibilities of developing business through the convening and adjournment of the legislature. The circular relates the fact that the members of the legislature get a salary of $1,500 a year, and one of the ways in which constituents can show their appreciation of services is with flowers. Florists are asked to call the attention of political and other organizations in their localities to their senators and assemblymen who can be pleasantly reminded of the interest and good will of their constituents by gifts of flowers at least twice during the legislative season, at the time of opening and adjournment. Mr. Gloeckner points out that this custom once started will mean an average order of $10 at least twice a year. The custom of sending flowers to senators and assemblymen is already well established in Albany, Rensselaer, and Schenectady counties. Other counties should be able to do as well, Mr. Gloeckner believes.

NEW YORK SPRING SHOW.

Under the Auspices of the Horticultural Society
of New York and the New York Florists' Club.

Grand Central Palace, March 13-19.

Exhibition Exceeds Former Events.

The New York Spring Show, which opened in the Grand Central Palace, New York city, Monday, March 13, was without doubt in the great number of exhibits and in the high excellence of the various displays quite a step in advance of any previous exhibition staged in that city. The four gardens occupying 1,000 square feet each were wonderful and in their conception and finish were easily the dominant features of the show.

In the gallery in large spaces down the center of each section were displayed the pot flowering plants that bloom so profusely at this season. Primauia malacoides was never done better, and there were handsome specimens of
P. obconica. Pot cyclamen were also shown in several classes very well flowered. The bulbous stock was a very attractive feature and filled the center of the north gallery, the Darwin tulips, were exceptional in size and coloring, the giant daffodils and wonderful hyacinths with their huge spikes all made a striking display. Pot freesias were also a feature. There were several groups of very well flowered Easter lilies some with 25 blooms in 8-inch pots; they were certainly well done, standing four to five feet high. The east gallery contained large specimen pot plants of schizanthus, marguerites, buddleias, lilacs, standard heliotropes, rhododendrons, bougainvilleas, fuchsias, cinerarias, hydrangeas and handsome specimen ferns and well flowered pink and white spirea. In the south gallery bulbous cut flowers made a good showing, the entries being greater than the space allotted. The giant Darwin tulips made others look very small. Cut flowers of snapdragon, stocks, lilacs, mignonette, Easter lilies, wall flowers, callas, calendulas and amaryllis, filled quite a large section, but on account of the majority of the long stems should have been shown almost on the floor.

An interesting feature was the window box competition. There were 22 boxes entered all staged in the coping of the balustrade of the gallery. There was a great variety, almost all the plants either foliage or flowering applicable for the purpose being in some of the boxes. The winners in the foliage section contained short red dracaenas, Pandanus Veitchii, crested ferns and a wealth of hardy ivy in front. Others were very similar. The prize winning spring flower box was filled with pink hyacinths and tulips with heather at the ends and ivy falling over the front.
The Garden Club of America occupied half of the east gallery on the street side. Its exhibits were very interesting.
The Japanese arrangements of cut flowers, flowering branches in bowls and other receptacles had a very oriental look. Two spikes of Strelitzia regina in a curiously shaped shell like dish won first in some 25 entries, many miniature gardens, mostly of artificial stock being at all times surrounded by admiring crowds. There were 16 entries for the dinner table decorations each by a garden club of various cities. The winner was the Phillipston Garden Club, Garrison-on-Hudson, N. Y., with a bowl of acacia, yellow iris and yellow anemones.

The exhibit of the Julius Roehrs Co.,
Rutherford, N. J., covering 1,000 square feet, was most elaborate. With a background of tall cedars, 15 to 20 feet in height at the rear and on one end, there was laid out a wonderfully arranged rock garden, which was traversed by a wide, winding path, paved with mettowee stone, very flat and irregular in shape. Intersections were filled with moss. The large bank at the rear was formed by plants of rhododendrons, laurel, dogwood, flowering apple, lilacs and magnolias, all in full flower. The point of the garden was beautifully laid out with irregular pieces of rock, which in its undulations and planting presented the finest indoor example of this kind ever seen in this city. A feature was a collection of native Cypripediums acaule and spectabilis which were beautifully in flower. Juniper Pfitzeriana and Taxus brevifolia gave a bold appearance to the rock work. Iris, primula and albas, with great patches of hardy candy-tuft and many other flowering rock plants presented a harmonious coloring and finish to this very remarkable garden. The company won the Garden Club of America's gold medal for the best exhibit in the entire show.

F. R. Pierson, of Tarrytown, N. Y., created a wonderful garden and landscape effect in his 1,000 square feet of space. Along the front and on the side was a white paled fence. This was bordered with beds of daffodils against a background of boxwood. In the center was a fountain surrounded with four sectional beds of hyacinths, white and purple. At the back directly in front of a formal stone coping were beds of Darwin tulips. High up over this stone enclosure were tall lilacs in blossom and above them splendidly flowered dogwood trees, 18 to 20 feet in height. A velvety rising lawn occupied the center of the space, which tapering in the middle led up to a border of flowering azaleas, lining a path to summer, just visible through the shrubbery; an effect of distance as seen in a picture. The background was a tall border of bushy pine trees, 20 feet in height, in front of which on one side, was a tall silver poplar in full leaf and opposite, a splendid dogwood. Bordering the pines was a tall Spiraea Reevesi, in full flower, also flowering apples. The front border of the lawn next to the hedge contained a wide bed of Darwin tulips, with Ghent azaleas and Spiraea Reevesi. A fine collection of aquatic plants were seen in a pond at the rear of the area. The tall, white dogwood, the red Japanese azaleas, white spiraes and brilliantly colored borders of tulips, together with the velvety lawn gave a beautiful and harmonious coloring that was most satisfying, presenting a lifelike section of a country estate. The garden was awarded a gold medal.

One of the gardens that attracted the eye of the visitor was an arrangement of a beautiful landscape garden effect, by Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., in 1,000 square feet. Tall cedars, from 20 to 25 feet in height formed a background along the side and one end in front of which was a bank of tall well flowered shrubbery consisting of magnolias, almonds, flowering apples, rhododendrons, laurel and hardy azaleas. A rose covered round pagoda, 10 feet in height, inside of which played an electric fountain was a feature at one end and on either side was flanked with life size figures of wood nymphs. The lower foreground contained several large beds set in a grassy lawn. These were filled with Japanese azaleas in full flower and one with dwarf flowering apples. The space was enclosed with a low ornamental paling fence, painted white and entwined with trained ivy. The walks were covered with white pebbles, the whole effect being most pleasing and artistic.

The firm also exhibited a well flowered collection of standard Azalea indica, some 75 plants in 52 varieties. These were borne on stems 24 to 36 inches in height, carrying heads of bloom 24 to 36 inches in diameter. They appeared as well flowered as freshly imported plants and were a distinct reminder of pre-quarantine days. No other firm can put up such an exhibit as Bobbink & Atkins are capable of doing as this stock arrived just before the embargo was put into effect. They were awarded first prize for the group.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., displayed one of their most beautiful rose gardens, occupying 1,000 square feet. Tall cedars formed a background, in front of which was a border of rhododendrons, azaleas, daphne and other flowering shrubs. In the rear at the center was a white columned Greek pagoda, Paul's Scarlet Climber being placed at the base and loaded with flowers. Along the front was a massive fence in ivory white, heavily covered with Tausendschoen roses, very full of bloom and all things considered an ideal rose garden.

Reduced Rates National Flower Show Indianapolis March 25 to April 1.

Granted to the Society of American Florists and affiliated organizations on the basis of a fare and one-half for the round trip, certificate plan, provided that a minimum of 350 certificates are presented to the endorsing officer, Secretary John Young, at the show, to secure the reduced rate returning.

Be sure to get certificate in buying ticket. This will help you, and others who may have to travel farther than you, in securing the reduced fare.

A very attractive exhibit of acacias and imantophyllums was staged by F. A. Constable Yonkers, N. Y., (James Stewart, gardener), in 300 square feet. The acacias were tall graceful plants, very well flowered, standing six to eight feet in height. Varieties were A. pubescens, A. Macrantha, A. Longifolia Magnifica, A. Heterophylla, A. Riciana, A. leprosa, A. Drummondii and A. hispida. The imantophyllums were strong plants in tubs, carrying from four to eight large heads of their brilliant orange flowers, which artistically arranged among the acacias were wonderfully attractive.

The very large group of flowering plants exhibited by Mrs. Payne Whitney, Manhasset, N. Y., covering 500 square feet, was gorgeous in its coloring and profusion of bloom. Tall plants of Buddleia Asiatica, six to eight feet in height, were a strong feature, being used as a background for the rear of the group which was square. In front of this were banked Lilium candidum, lilacs, genistas, Ghent azaleas and quantities of forced forsythias, which tapering down met inside the border of spring flowering bulbs, Darwin tulips, hyacinths, Primula malacoides, lupines, lily of the valley and crocus. Near the center a sun dial arose from a bed of yellow primroses, making it all a very beautiful display.

In the group of foliage plants, occupying 200 square feet, shown by Albert Millard, Yonkers, N. Y., a strong bid was made for first prize, who had a large collection of variegated foliage plants, principal among which were pandanuses, dracaenas, antirrhinums, crotons, etc. A central pedestal carried a handsome specimen pandanus. Suspended from this support were a number of pots of cattleyas and vandas, all with spikes of bloom. There were tall columns of yellow tradescantias at the four corners of the area, each surmounted with Pandanus Veitchii. The exhibit was enclosed with a low, white, birch fence, a border 12 inches wide of yellow tradescantia being inside the paling. Altogether it was a most artistic and well planned group. Mr. Millard was awarded second prize.

A. L. Miller, Jamaica, L. I., staged a group of florists' flowering pot plants, florists' flowering pot plants, very artistically arranged, each well flowered specimen standing out from a bed of ivy that showed them to advantage. At the center and toward the rear of the space was a high, white latticed vine covered arch to which well flowered yellow jasmines were clinging. Buddleia Asiatica formed a background, with splendidly flowered pots of heather in variety, new French hybrid abutilons and genistas. A striking feature was the standard plants of the old favorite rose, Marechal Niel, in flower. The area was enclosed with a low railing of birch bark blocks and attracted a great deal of attention.

The orchid collection of the Julius Roehrs Co. was a magnificent display in 350 square feet, over 350 plants being seen, in nine classes and grouped according to species. Laelio-cattleyas, brasso-cattleyas, cattleya hybrids and small flowering laelio cattleya hybrids were seen. In the center were spray orchids while the foreground was filled with cypripediums. It was a superb collection, artistically arranged against a background of purple velvet, asparagus sprays and Phoenix Roebelenii. Awarded first prize.

Col. W. E. Thompson, of Yonkers, N. Y., (Andrew Strachan, gardener), created a wonderful garden in his 500 square feet of space. The background, 15 feet in height, consisted of Buddleia Asiatica, in front of which in the center a bank of Excelsa rambler roses was placed, acacias and genistas flanking either side. Easter lilies, chorizemas, wall flowers, cinerarias, hyacinths and other bulbous plants were in the rear and surrounded a fountain, upon which was thrown colored lights. Immediately at its base was a pretty circle of yellow pansies. Splendidly flowered plants of Dorothy Perkins and Tausendschoen roses, with sweet peas and tall Clarkias brought the sides of the garden to the front columns. Primula malacoides and P. obconica covered the floor and here and there lupines, larkspur and two groups of alonsoas, a rare orange colored flower, stood up to break the monotony. Sweet alysum bordered the grass covered walk. Over 2,000 plants were used in this group which was most elaborate and effective. Col. Thompson won first prize for this group.

The arrangement of foliage plants with orchids, covering 200 square feet by Col. Thompson, contained a great variety of handsomely variegated specimens of pineapples, caladiums, crotons, in variety, pandanuses, dracaenas, etc. The foreground was a bed of adiantum, which made a setting for brilliantly colored caladiums and other choice plants. A trained basket of variegated bougainvilleas was a feature. Oncidium splendens and phalaenopsis were the orchids that gave a finished touch to this well arranged display, which was awarded a first premium.

The cut flower orchid display of Jos. A. Manda Co., South Orange, N. J., was most elaborate. Cymbidiums and other spray orchids in the center were the dominating feature.

James Duke of Sommerville, N. J., staged a collection of oncidiums, cattleyas, phalaenopsis and other choice orchids.

A. N. Coolidge, Pittsfield, Mass., was first in a collection of 12 plants of rare cattleyas and other orchids, and was also first in the class for six specimen plants.

The Widener Estate, Philadelphia, Pa., (Wm. Kleinheinz, gardener), made a wonderful display of cut orchids in 50 square feet.

Wadley & Smythe, New York, staged a wonderful formal, terrace garden, the walks of which were bordered with 2,000 ivies. In the center was a Kentia Forsteriana, 25 feet in height, the top covered with cibotiums. Bay trees, oranges, in fruit, oleanders, in 36-inch tubs, in all 25 specimens were said collectively to be worth $10,000. There were banks of rhododendrons and beds of bronze leucothoe with grass covered walks between. The whole was a splendidly conceived formal effect in terrace gardening.

Bobbink & Atkin's rock garden was a large, rustic, summer house covered with ivy. A portion of the garden was given over to well flowered, standard roses in tubs, the whole effect being very pretty.

The collection of cyclamens by Mrs. F. A. Constable were wonderful in their size, quantity and quality of bloom, easily winning first prize. Second prize in this class was awarded to Daniel Guggenheim, of Fort Washington, N. Y.

F. R. Pierson won first premium in 25 pots of Easter lilies, carrying from eight to 15 flowers, plants four to five feet in height. His collection of ferns, splendid specimens well arranged also won a first prize.

Trade Exhibits.

Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago and New York had a large space, finely decorated, containing specimen flowering plants, bulbous stock in variety and collections of summer flowering bulbs.

The W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa., arranged assortment of early flowering winter sweet peas. The exhibit placed in specially constructed vases, against a black, velvet background was very attractive. G. W. Kerr was in charge.

A collection of bulbous stock, in flowers was the feature of Wm. M. Hunt & Co.'s display, including lily of the valley and a new tulip, La Repearguable.

Marinelli Carnations, Park Ridge, N. J., made a fine showing of their carnation specialties. A pyramid in the center resembled snowballs, in size and formation.

F. R. Pierson made a good display with palms, ferns, dracaenas and pot roses in flower. Also cut roses in vases.

Muller, Sealey, Inc., New York, had a prettily decorated space consisting of spring bulbs in pots and pans, cymbidium sprays being features.

Roman J. Irwin, display of sample plants of florists' young stock, also specimen hydrangeas, genistas and cut Boston ferns. Insecticides were also a feature.

Rosedale Nurseries, Tarrytown, N. Y., S. G. Harris proprietor exhibited choice evergreens in large sizes some as high as 20 feet. Pines, hemlocks and spruces were leading features.

A. M. Henshaw Floral Co., New York, supply dept., exhibited a line of florists baskets and cut flower vases and flower bowls in English ware, showing the newest introductions in these lines.

In conjunction the Springfield Floral Co., Springfield, N. J., staged sample perennial plants in small pots also florists stock in young carnation plants. Also garden fertilizers and insecticides.

Charles H. Totty Co., Madison, N. J., made a gorgeous display of carnations. Happiness, his new variety, being the feature. There were also large vases of roses, the most striking variety being a vase either side the entrance of Souvenir Claudius Pernet. This was one of the most showy of the trade exhibits.

A fine collection of flowering bulb stock in variety, primulas and freesias were prominent features of the Stump & Walter Co., New York.

Andrew Wilson, Inc. (OK Products), Springfield, N. J., in a decorated space displayed his various insecticides and spraying apparatus.

Wm. C. Duckham, Madison, N. J., met his customers in a handsomely arranged booth of thick cibotiums and cases of long stemmed roses against a velvet back ground were most effective.

The Kervan Co., New York, occupied a large space in the gallery showing ribbons, corsage, pins, cutlery and florists' cut flower jars.

The Hammond Paint & Slug Shop Works, Beacon, N. Y., exhibited samples of their preparations which were handled in first class style by Walter Mott.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, exhibited against a background of kentias, a group of well flowered Kurume azaleas in various sizes, which were of interest to all visitors.

ILLINOIS FLORISTS.

Seventeenth Annual Convention.

The seventeenth annual convention of the Illinois State Florists' Association was held in the Floriculture building, University of Illinois, March 14-15. President Jos. Kohout in the chair. Prof. J. C. Blair, of the department of horticulture at the opening session Tuesday afternoon, heartily welcomed the visitors and commented upon the rapid advancement of horticulture in Illinois, remarking that the state led in glass area. Prof. Blair then introduced Dean Davenport, of the division of agriculture, who presented a short address. President Kohout, in responding, emphasized the need of the florists in co-operation.

"More Co-operation Among Producers," was the subject of an able address by J. Fred Ammann, Edwardsville, and "Perennials for Cut Flowers," by Prof. H. B. Dormer, of the university, held the close attention of the members. E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., at the conclusion of the afternoon session gave a short address. The evening session, held in Morrow hall, Agricultural building, was featured by entertainment furnished by the Floricultural Club of the University of Illinois, a student organization.

The present officers were re-elected for the ensuing year as follows: Jos. Kohout, Libertyville, president; Geo. W. Jacobs, Canton, vice-president; Albert T. Hey, Maywood, secretary; F. L. Washburn, Bloomington, treasurer. The next meeting will be held at Urbana, the second Tuesday in March, 1923. Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago and New York, had a fine exhibit of amaryllis and caladium bulbs and gladioli corms. Three excellent vases of roses and many florists' supplies were staged by Smith & Young, Indianapolis, Ind.

The advisory committee (Joseph Kohout, Albert T. Hey, Wm. J. Heimbreiker and Frank L. Washburn) among other suggestions, recommended the building of two more greenhouses for the use of students and the completion of the palm house. E. G. Hill was presented with an illuminated address as an appreciation for his work in roses.

Secretary Hey's Report.

Secretary Hey in presenting his report showed the finances to be in a very good condition, with a balance in the treasury, March 1, of $842.88. There are 64 annual members and 89 life members, a total of 153.

President Kohout's Address

Members of the Illinois State Florists' Association:

In looking back over the pages of history we find that all phases of society tend toward co-operation as civilization advances. Primeval man was not able to advance because of the lack of co-operation. States, when in the period of feudalism, were at the best weak, and insufficient authorities. We do not find any national advance being made until the states were strongly organized.

Not only in state and national offices do we find co-operation the dominating factor of advancement, but also in business. The merchants and traders of medieval Europe knew the power of co-operation, when they formed the guilds, which soon dominated the life of the towns.

At the present time we all know of great powers that the trade unions of our day are exerting over industry. What could the working men have done against the mighty business combinations that exist today if they had not organized into the strong economic bodies that the unions are today? Nothing. The individual man could object and strike all he wanted to but he could never have benefited himself. But with organization he is able to object to the evils of his condition and in fact, he is nearly able to dictate the remedies.

So, too, with us florists. If we go on, each one by himself, trying to better our conditions, raise the standard of our business, find new and better ways of producing and selling our product, and increasing the demand for it we will accomplish comparatively nothing. Organization, gentlemen, is the only way we can do these things. A man may argue that he has been successful and that he has found no need for organizations. That may be, but no doubt, he would have been much more successful if he had been a member of an organization. On the other hand he cannot say that organization has not benefited him. Truly, he may not have belonged to an organization, but some organization in his business or profession has benefited him because of the good it has done to his business or profession in general.

But the man may raise the argument that he does not oppose organization but at the same time he does not care to belong to any. In other words, he believes in placing the burdens on another man's shoulders. He might be termed a slacker. But what word is so repulsive to the energetic, progressive man as the word, slacker?

Organization also furthers experimentation. Columbus' wonderful experiment would not have been possible if Spain had not, shortly before, organized herself as a state, and our experiment station here would not have been a reality if we had not been organized. Organized feeling created it, and organized interest is necessary to keep it an important institution.

On the other hand we have those who believe that we are having too many organizations because of their weakness. Can this be so when organizations because of their very nature are embodiments of strength. If anything, these many organizations show a desire for strength. Men are coming to realize that in union there is strength.

Even if there are too many organizations we can profit by them in this way. The individuals now in these organizations are brought together in a common cause. These organizations can be a means of intercourse with the individual.

But suppose we grant that there are too many organizations; then there is a need for a strong central organization. Very well. That brings me to a matter which I wish to emphasize. All florist organizations of Illinois should unite themselves into a strong central body, just as there is need for centralization of organizations now existing. If we can have all of the organizations now working as a unit, we can have more efficiency. Matters of importance to the florists' trade can be handled more easily and with greater benefit to the members. Every question that arises, whether it be a question of growing, distributing or retailing of flowers and plants, is of vital importance to all of the members of the florists' trade. Every problem will ultimately affect the trade, and therefore every member of the trade should have a voice in the solution of the problem. We must work as a unit and in no way can this be done than through a strong central state body.

As I said before, the state experiment station was created through the organization of the florists. Apparently the florists do not realize the importance of this institution, because there has not been enough interest shown in its work. We are indeed fortunate to have an institution of this kind. It takes years to make successful experiments in floriculture and this experiment station is the best place to carry on these experiments. Here we have men who are devoting their whole time to them. This manner of experimenting is necessarily more efficient than individual experimenting would be. It is not necessary for us to wait and work for years for the results of any experiments because we have the results here at the station.

I would strongly recommend that you men bring your sons with you to see the results that the experiment station has accomplished. It takes years to accomplish anything in an undertaking like this and the younger generation should profit by the present experiments.

This will profit them in two ways: It will give them a modern basis on which to start their business. They will not need to go back and start with the conditions that we did. They can start at our highest point of progress and keep advancing. Secondly, they can get a fairly good conception of the general important matters of our profession, and they can mold their future study or work to correspond with the things they learn here. This will also benefit you, because your sons, in gradually learning the fundamental advances made in floriculture, can build up a knowledge that will stand you in good stead in case of an emergency. It will also tend to make them more conservative in their floriculture work. They will not rush into an undertaking that they know has been proven unsuccessful at the experiment station.

Above all, I would like to impress upon you the importance of sending your sons here to study the fundamentals of our profession. They will have to compete against many college-trained men, and they will be distinctly at a disadvantage if they have not had that training. Not only in actually learning the bare facts of his profession does he profit, but also in the associations with the people he meets there. There are two opportunities of college life that we must not overlook; the large variety of people to be known, and a large variety of means to make one's self worth being known.

As all agree that a man to be successful must have attended the schools of hard knocks and practical experience, an educated man has a better chance to succeed because his college training makes it easier for him to assimilate practical knowledge. Experience is perhaps the best asset a man can obtain. There are two kinds of experiences—that which we acquire ourselves, and that which we acquire through the success or failures of others. It is true that education cannot give one the actual experience, but it prepares one for that experience. We can all learn through the experiences of others, and in no better place can we learn this than in college. So you see the advantages that a college education offers.

We are in an age of keen competition, and it will take trained men to meet it squarely. I do not mean to say that competition is entirely within the florists' industry. We must compete against other industries that are attempting to have their products replace flowers.

Robert Craig Co., Porto Rico.

Tropical plants require a tropical atmosphere and when Robert Craig, of the Robert Craig Co., Norwood Station, Pa., decided to spend the winter seasons in the balmy climate of Porto Rico, he at once saw the possibilities of a tropical nursery where out-of-doors could be grown dracaenas, palms, aspidistras and other like plants which in the United States required the shelter and warmth of expensive greenhouses. Purchasing three acres of ground he erected slat structures which in that land of intensive sunshine are necessary to bring the plants to the greatest perfection.

The accompanying illustration, taken February 20, shows one of these slat houses of good dimensions filled with palms and dracaenas which are making a very vigorous growth. A strong rooted dracaena cutting makes a plant of from three to four feet from spring until fall. Mr. Craig is standing in the center of the picture with Harry I. Faust, of Merion, Pa., who is paying him a short visit, on his right. Splendid batches of dracaena canes have already been sent to their greenhouses at Norwood Station and regular spring and autumn shipments of the products of the place will be made, provided Quarantine No. 37 is not extended to include this American possession.

Mr. Craig writes that he finds the climate very agreeable and that he feels like starting in all over again. K.

Minneapolis Fall Show.

The Minneapolis fall flower show to be held under the auspices of the Minnesota State Florists' Association at the Kenwood armory, Minneapolis, Minn., November 11-16, promises to be a very successful event, judging from the number and variety of classes open to competition, in the preliminary premium list recently issued by that organization.

There are 12 classes open to competition which are: Decorative plants, chrysanthemum plants, other decorative plants; chrysanthemums, cut flowers; roses, miscellaneous flowers, carnations, bouquets, table decorations, etc.; miniature home grounds; exhibits by private gardeners and amateurs, consisting of chrysanthemums, cut flowers and plants; groups of chrysanthemum plants, pompons, anemones and singles, in 50 square feet, by parks and public institutions, and photographs of home grounds, flower gardens, etc.

The flower show committee, Theodore Wirth, chairman, has announced that cash premiums totaling $5,030 will be awarded, the amounts for the private gardeners and amateurs; parks and public institutions, and photograph classes to be announced later. The final premium list for the show will be issued about October 1, when some classes will be added and changes in premiums made, but there will be no change lowering the value of any premium.

The preliminary premium list and other information may be obtained by addressing Le Roy Cady, secretary, Minnesota State Florists' Association, University farm, St. Paul, Minn.

THE S. A. F.

Splendid Setting for Show.

The magnificent building in Indianapolis which is destined to hold the great eight day Fifth National Flower Show of the Society of American Florists, March 25—April 1, was open recently for a great automobile exhibition, and the florists from near and far had a fine opportunity to judge what a splendid showing they would be able to make under the well lighted, roomy, airy surroundings which this exhibition palace furnishes.

Secretary John Young, who has been in Indianapolis for some time, and one of the directing hands, also one of the active workers for the coming flower show, writes very enthusiastically about how the building looks when lit up, as it was for the auto show, and states that every one is very much encouraged in regard to the present outlook.

It is very gratifying to the rest of us here in the east, and does much to encourage us in making our very best efforts to do our individual parts to the best of our ability. Not only Mr. Young, but many others who are on or near the spot, and know the situation from first hand, also report with enthusiasm as to the prospects.

Everything all along the line seems to be going very smoothly and satisfactorily, and there is every indication that we will have one of the finest shows ever held by the society. Let everybody join in with an exhibit, large or small, and help along the great work.

S. S. PENNOCK, Pres.

Huge Success Anticipated.

Every indication points to the fact that the great Fifth National Flower Show to be held at Indianapolis is destined to be a big success. Exhibitors are being booked by Secretary Young in a manner that was altogether unexpected, and it seems that many of the tradesmen do realize that putting on a display at Indianapolis is virtually displaying to Chicago, Cleveland, O., Cincinnati, O., Louisville, Ky., and St. Louis, Mo. Earl Mann, of Richmond, Ind., chairman of the exhibits committee, writes that the number of entrants is so large that the show will be a revelation in this respect.

Oliver E. Steinkamp has been named chairman of a committee at the instance of F. H. Lemon, who heads the special premium committee, to obtain a special fund for premiums not contained in the final schedule. He is meeting with much success, so that this schedule will enable many of the small growers of this vicinity to exhibit successfully. A special fund of $1,000 is to be obtained for this purpose.

Chicago is taking more and more interest, both in the trade and exhibit sections. The A. L. Randall Co. is building a special $2,500 fountain which throws water 15 or 20 feet in the air, for the center attraction. This company is also making extensive displays in other lines.

The state conservation department, headed by Richard Lieber, has thrown its doors wide open and wonderful displays of fish, butterflies and aquarium products are promised for that section. Mr. Dietz, of the entomology department, is also to have a special display of great interest to florists. The Indianapolis public library or Riley public library, has acquired space for featuring all sorts of literature pertaining to flowers.

The various gardens which were intended for Cleveland, such as bulb and rose gardens, have been secured, with at least two entries for the bulb classes and three or more for the rose gardens. The park system of the city of Indianapolis is co-operating in a wonderful manner, with a miniature of Garfield park and extensive plant exhibits, besides featuring the boulevards of the show section of the city, with evergreens for that special purpose. The downtown streets are to be lined with evergreens by the exterior decorations committee, which are to be mounted with large arrows pointing in the direction of the flower show.

The advertising campaign in the central states has so far netted results in actual lines which are far beyond those received for any previous national flower show.

The Joseph H. Hill Co., E. G. Hill Co., and the Fred H. Lemon Co., rose specialists, of Richmond, Ind., have promised to put on rose exhibits never before witnessed in the United States.

LATH HOUSE OF THE ROBT. CRAIG CO., PORTO RICO.

Most of the large growers from Illinois and Ohio will be on hand with enormous exhibits. The eastern growers, around Boston and New York and Philadelphia, are promising splendid displays. Combining these with exhibits from the north, south, east and west, and covering all sections of the country, no doubt is left as to the rose display feature.

The transportation committee, headed by Jos. McGowan, who is actively on the job, and one of the biggest traction men of the country, is fully alive to its duties and will see that all exhibitors will receive the fullest consideration. Any information as to these details will be promptly taken care of.

The Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association will stage an exhibit of unusual beauty, "Temple of Flora," the same being featured on the cover-page of the F. T. D. News and will be placed in position in Indianapolis by special representatives from Detroit.

A banquet is planned for Thursday evening, March 23 for the florists of the country. The State Florists' Association of Indiana, is to take full charge of this, and has appointed committees for details.

The above are but a few of the salient factors for the staging of what is predicted to be the most beautiful flower show on record. Send your exhibits, secure your reservations and meet the throngs of florists from all over the country who will be in attendance.

IRWIN BERTERMANN, Chairman,
Indianapolis Executive Committee.

College Florists' Section.

The college florists' section of the Society of American Florists is to meet in Indianapolis during the Fifth National Flower Show, March 25—April 1. The meetings will include reports by committees on various subjects of importance to the growth and development of the educational and experimental side of floriculture. The subjects and the committees are as follows:

Teaching Work in Floriculture—Prof. E. A. White, Cornell university, chairman; Prof. E. I. Wilde, Pennsylvania State college and Prof. A. C. Hottes, Ohio State university.

Research and Experimental Work in Floriculture—Dr. P. A. Lehenbauer, of Illinois university, chairman; Dr. A. C. Beal, Cornell university and Prof. R. H. Patch, of Connecticut Agricultural college.

Relationship with the Trade—Prof. A. H. Nehrling, Cornell university, chairman; S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa., and J. Fred Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.

Floriculture; It's Relation to Agriculture in Colleges—Prof. A. S. Thurston, Maryland university, chairman; Prof. E. C. Volz, Iowa State college, and Prof. Victor Ries, Purdue university.

Future Policies—Prof. C. L. Thayer, Massachusetts Agricultural college, chairman, H. A. Pratt, Cornell university and S. W. Hall, University of Illinois.

If any members of the trade have constructive suggestions or ideas about any of these subjects they should feel free to communicate them to the chairman or some other member of that committee. It is only through the co-operation of the trade that the educational and experimental work can develop to be of greatest value to the trade.

A. S. THURSTON, Sec'y,
College Florists' Section.

ADDRESS TO E. G. HILL, RICHMOND, IND.
Presented by the Illinois State Florists' Association at Urbana, March 14.

Fifth National Flower Show.

As the opening day approaches, confidence in the ultimate success of the Fifth National Flower Show increases. The various local committees are working nobly, all in harmonious accord, and preparations for the show are right up to the minute. Every one of those whose names figure on the committee list is to be commended for the splendid team work which has allowed of the switching of a great exposition such as the National Flower Show from one big city to another, and completing all details, within a period of a few weeks. The record of this work will be good matter for future reference, although it is to be hoped that such a contingency will never again arise.

There is now little prospect of disappointment in regard to plans for any section of the show. The big exhibits, background material, small exhibits and everything making for the final ensemble of the show are all assured, and the plan of the layout of the show is, indeed, a most creditable one.

There will be no dearth of trade exhibits. Change of location affected exhibitors but little. The situation and drawing power of Indianapolis is little, if any, different from that of Cleveland, and the former city has a real advantage in its wonderful interurban travel system, which has made the city the most notable "show city" in America. Within a radius of 100 miles or more a good show has a marvelous drawing power, and there is no fear existing as to gate receipts.

There is still plenty of opportunity for prospective trade exhibitors to obtain choice locations in the sections set apart for trade exhibits. Those who deal with the public as well as the trade can be accommodated on the main exhibition floor. Others, who would be glad to have the exclusion of the public will find quarters in the nearby Convention hall very desirable. The prospects for a grand attendance of the trade from remote territory grow daily, and a banner gathering is practically assured.

All the passenger associations have agreed to a railroad fare concession of one and one-half fare from every point in their various territories, and this means the whole of the United States and Canada. But everyone starting on the trip should bear in mind the necessity of obtaining a certificate when purchasing tickets. Members of any of the clubs and societies affiliated through the executive board of the Society of American Florists can get the reduced fare, but unless the certificate is obtained, full return fare must be paid. The certificates must be validated by the secretary of the society at Indianapolis, and by the railroad representatives in attendance, hence the importance of this notice.

Any information in regard to local matters and conditions may be obtained from Local Chairman Irwin Bertermann, who has practically abandoned for the time being his own business in the interests of the show. All matters concerning the business of the show should be referred to the undersigned.

Executive Board Meeting.

President Pennock has instructed the calling of the annual meeting of the executive board for Monday, March 27, in Convention hall, Indianapolis, a date during the period of the Fifth National Flower Show. In addition to the general business of the meeting, there are several matters referred from the Washington convention to come up, among them the following:

Action on the report of the committee on nomenclature; suggestions made in an address on "Greenhouse Heating" by Mr. F. T. Giblin, Utica, N. Y.; Armistice Day—Should florists assist in the project to establish this day? Consideration of the advisability of promoting field work for membership; the society's relations to and with the United States Chamber of Commerce; report of the committee of education, Fred A. Wilson, Nahant, Mass., chairman; Report of the committee on annual report, Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J., chairman; report of committee on revision of the by-laws, Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass., chairman; report of committee on standardization of grading of cut flowers, Henry Penn, Boston, chairman; report of committee on Dutch bulbs, Peter Pearson, Chicago, chairman; report of auditing committee, Percy B. Rigby, chairman, New York.

The board will convene at 10 A. M. on the day named.

Reduced Railroad Fare to Indianapolis.

A rate of a fare and one-half for the round trip for members of the Society of American Florists and affiliated organizations, attending the adjourned meeting of the society in Indianapolis, in connection with which the Fifth National Flower Show is held, has been granted by the Central Passenger Association, and the Trunk Line Association, and the arrangement will be concurred in by the other passenger associations. The rebate is conditional upon 350 making the trip, including members and dependent members of their families.

The rebate is made upon the certificate plan, and the following directions are submitted:

First—Tickets at the regular one-way tariff fare for the going journey may be obtained on any of the following dates (but not on any other date) March 22-28, for Central and Trunk Line territory. Be sure that, when purchasing your going ticket, you request a certificate. Do not make the mistake of asking for a receipt.

Second—Present yourself at the railroad station for ticket and certificate at least 30 minutes before departure of train on which you will begin your journey.

Third—Certificates are not kept at all stations. If you inquire at your home station, you can ascertain whether certificates and through tickets can be obtained to place of meeting. If not obtainable at your home station, the agent will inform you at what station they can be obtained. You can in such case purchase a local ticket to the station which has certificates in stock, where you can purchase a through ticket and at the same time ask for and obtain a certificate to the place of meeting.

Fourth—Immediately on your arrival at Indianapolis, present your certificate to the endorsing officer, Secretary John Young, (who will sign certificates for all organizations), as the reduced fare for the return journey will not apply unless you are properly identified as provided by the certificate.

Fifth—Arrangements have been made for validation of certificates by a special agent of the carriers, March 25-April 5, if the required minimum of 350 certificates is presented.

Sixth—No refund of fare will be made on account of failure to either obtain a proper certificate nor on account of failure to have the certificate validated.

Seventh—So as to prevent disappointment, it must be understood that the reduction on the return journey is not guaranteed, but is contingent on an attendance of not less than 350 members of the organization at the meeting and dependent members of their families, holding regularly issued certificates obtained from ticket agents at starting points, showing payment of regular one-way tariff fare of not less than 67 cents on going journey.

Eighth—If the necessary minimum of 350 certificates is presented to the special agent as above explained, and your certificate is duly validated, you will be entitled up to and including April 5, to a return ticket via the same route over which you made the going journey, at one-half the regular one-way tariff fare from the place of the meeting to the point at which your certificate was issued.

Ninth—The return ticket issued at the reduced fare will not be good on any limited train on which such reduced fare transportation is not honored.

For information in regard to routing and stopovers make inquiry of your home station agent.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Plant Imports Under Quarantine.

In view of the belief, which seems to have gained considerable acceptance, that Quarantine No. 37 amounts to an embargo against foreign plants, the record of permits issued for the importation of the so-called prohibited plants and the importations made thereunder should be of interest.

The risk of entry of new plant pests goes with every importation of plants, even those now permitted, and to reduce this risk as much as possible and yet provide for the horticultural development and progress of the country, the importation under Regulation 14, of this quarantine of the so-called prohibited plants is limited to new varieties and such other plants as are believed to be unavailable in the United States for necessary propagating purposes.

The table given below is a record of such importations from the effective date of the quarantine, June 1, 1919, to February 15, 1922; in other words, a period of a little over two years and eight months.

SPECIAL PERMIT IMPORTATIONS FOR 1920-1921-1922.
(Up to and including February 15, 1922.)

Classes of Plants	No. of Permits	Quantity Authorized	Quantity Imported	No. of Varieties
				Requested	Approved	Per Cent Appr.
Gladiolus	320	17,042,476	6,460,341	626	494	79
Dahlia	117	10,061	4,840	1,078	1,007	93
Iris	245	7,363,564	4,690,367	1,114	1,074	96
Peony	168	295,525	86,584	1,222	925	76
Other bulbs, roots, etc.	167	2,789,881	1,164,475	609	587	96
Ornamentals	179	995,545	285,190	1,770	1,494	84
Roses	148	54,742	41,211	1,373	1,162	85
Orchids	103	35,825	13,492	1,168	1,098	94
Herbaceous plants	140	756,839	198,453	1,289	1,180	92
Small fruits	22	3,151	253	23	23	100
TOTALS	...	29,347,609	12,945,206	10,272	9,044	88

The total of 29,347,609 plants which has been authorized entry, and the 12,945,206 plants which have been actually entered to date, would seem to indicate that the so-called prohibited plants are receiving at least some recognition from the Federal Horticultural Board. The discrepancy between the number of plants authorized and the numbers imported is due largely to the fact that the permittees have not been able to secure abroad the quantities of plants which they were authorized to import, and this was especially true in the first two years of the quarantine. In many instances, such permits were reissued the year following. In the case of permits issued for the current year, the importations are for the most part not yet made.

IMPORTATIONS OF NEW ROSES.

As indicating more clearly the possibilities of new or unavailable plants under this quarantine, the story or rose importations is fairly informing. During the period of the Quarantine, a total of 148 permits has been issued for the importation of new roses or roses not available in the United States. These permits have authorized the entry of 54,742 rose plants, representing 1,148 different varieties, and under these permits 41,211 rose plants have already been entered, representing 459 different varieties of roses, for the most part new varieties.

In connection with these rose importations, it is interesting to compare certain records given in the 1921 American Rose Annual, published under the authority of The American Rose Society. In this very creditable volume under the title "The New Roses of all the World," there are listed a total of only 146 rose varieties for the twelve months' period covered by this annual. This Annual also gives an "Official List of American Roses," which includes all varieties of roses which have been originated in the United States from the very beginning of rose culture, and the number is 592. Contrast with these fairly modest numbers, it would seem that 459 varieties of roses, mostly new, already entered under Quarantine No. 37, is a fairly sizeable number to be assimilated in a period of a little over two years, to say nothing of the authorizations outstanding which may very shortly double this number.

Similar analyses could be given for the other classes of plants listed in the table, but I think the record of rose importations is adequate to indicate that new varieties of ornamentals and other plants can be and are being brought into this country in fairly adequate numbers under the quarantine.

MANY PRODUCTS NOT LIMITED AS TO ENTRY.

In a discussion of the entry of these so-called prohibited plants it should not be forgotten that under Regulation 3 of Quarantine No. 37, certain important classes of plants are open to unlimited importations under continuing permits, upwards of 6,000 of which have already been issued. These permits cover nearly 90 per cent of the bulbs hitherto imported, fruit and rose stocks, and all seeds of fruit, forest and ornamental trees. Under Regulation 2 also certain other classes of seeds are free from all restrictions, even the taking out of a permit namely, field, vegetable and flower seeds, and also all fruits, vegetables, and cereals, and other plant products imported for medicinal, food, or manufacturing purposes.

These provisions, together with those already discussed for the entry of the so-called prohibited plants, cover all plants and seeds whatsoever for propagation or other uses and indicate the purpose of the Department under this quarantine to provide for the entry of any necessary or useful plant in quantities sufficient to meet all reasonable needs.

EUROPEAN EMBARGOES AND RESTRICTIONS.

In contrast with this liberality of entry from Europe and other foreign countries are the restrictions against entry of American plants, particularly, enforced by the countries of Europe. These began 50 years ago in connection with the grape phylloxera, an American pest, and some 25 years ago were extended by important European countries to a practical embargo on account of the San Jose scale. For example, Holland, France, Germany, Austria, and Switzerland prohibit the entry of all living plants from America, and other countries—Belgium, Italy, Spain, Turkey, and Russia—are closed in lesser degree. Even such countries as Great Britain, Norway and Sweden have restrictions against certain classes of plants, and our fruits and fruit products get into some of these countries only under burdensome restrictions. These conditions still obtain and no one questions the right of European and other countries to thus protect their own cultures.

SPECIAL PERMITS.

Aside from the purely commercial interests who would like to import cheap foreign plants for a quick turnover and profit, the principal objection which is now raised to Quarantine 37 is that sufficient liberality of importation is not extended to plant lovers and enthusiasts, making it possible for such persons to bring in, for their personal use and the adornment of their gardens or estates, any new or old varieties which they may wish to secure. The federal horticultural board and the Department of Agriculture would be only too glad to meet the wishes of such persons, and their name is legion, if it were not realized that this action would practically nullify the quarantine. Persons of this general type interested in plants are found in numbers in every town and hamlet in the United States, and to permit any or all of them to import plants for personal use in such condition that they could grow them, would mean not only that the plants would have to come, in many cases, in earth ready for immediate planting—involving dangers of plant pests introductions which cannot be safeguarded by inspection or treatment—but that it would be absolutely impossible for this department to handle the tens of thousands of small importations which would result or to follow them up to destinations throughout the country with any subsequent safeguards.

There would rarely be any public service of real value in connection with such importations, such as making the new plants generally available or utilizing them for breeding or other work. Some essential service of this sort should be the basis for the entry of the various classes of plants which are not open to unlimited importation. The mere personal gratification of hundreds or thousands of individuals who might wish to make their own importations would be small justification for the risk of carriage of new pests to every part of the United States—a risk which would be vastly greater than before Quarantine No. 37 was established.

This situation led to the exclusion of importations for mere personal use or gratification, and to the limitation of the issuance of special permits for the entry of new or unavailable plants chiefly to plant propagators who will agree to utilize the plants imported for the purpose of reproducing additional stocks for a period of one to five years, based on the time needed for such multiplication or reproduction. The immediate sale of plants thus imported is not permitted, but no restrictions are placed on the sale of the plants produced from the imported stock except that the importer will be expected to maintain a sufficient supply to meet his future needs.

It is expected, therefore, that importations under Regulation 14 will be largely by persons who will propagate the imported stock as a commercial enterprise and thus perform a public service by making such plants generally available. The only exceptions are the issuance of permits to provide for the needs of botanic gardens, agricultural colleges, experiment stations, and other similar public institutions, and to those few amateurs who are widely or nationally known as maintaining collections of real merit and open to the public or engaged in work of public benefit with the plants concerned. If such persons are not known to the experts of this department, they will be required to furnish evidence of their status.

In the event, however, that the authorized agencies, commercial or other, do not bring in varieties of plants which enthusiastic plant lovers may wish, the department has made special provision for the entry through its Office of Plant Introduction of any neglected or overlooked new varieties and, incidentally, this Office has been undoubtedly the principal agency for the importation of new plants into the United States for the last 20 years.

To recapitulate, the existing provisions for the entry of new or unavailable plants under Regulation 14 include (1) all the importations which any commercial grower is willing to make, and such commercial growers include persons of world-wide recognition as plant specialists and breeders; (2) importations by botanic gardens and some hundred experiment stations and other public institutions with enthusiastic experts in horticulture and floriculture; (3) importations by the leading and recognized amateurs of the country, and (4) importations through the Office of Foreign Seed and Plant Introduction of the Department of Agriculture.

Under the plan, therefore, of Quarantine 37, it becomes necessary for persons who are neither commercial growers of plants, or amateurs who are recognized as maintaining collections of real merit, or engaged in research or other work of distinct public benefit with the plants concerned—in other words, the ordinary plant lover who wants the plants for his own garden or the adornment of his own estate—to secure new varieties from home sources, and the department has endeavored, through the means enumerated, to make available such new varieties of plants under methods which involve the least risk to the horticulture and agriculture of the country.

C. L. MARLATT, Chairman,
Federal Horticultural Board.

DAVENPORT, IA.—The Tri-Cities Florists' Club at a recent meeting, elected the following officers for the ensuing year: E. R. Patton, Davenport, president; Raymond De Rycke, Moline, Ill., vice-president; Wm. Knees, Jr., Moline, secretary; Wm. Knees, Sr., treasurer. Preliminary arrangements were made for the club's participation in the Mississippi Valley fair in this city next summer.

Philadelphia Easter Stock.

The City of Brotherly Love is noted for its skilled growers of all horticultural products and in no one department does it excel greater than that of the growth of Easter plants, the excellence of which are known the country over as far as shipping facilities afford their safe delivery. A look around amongst the growers of Easter stock finds them hopefully buoyant with a wonderful lot of plants, of which Easter lilies, rambler roses and hydrangeas are the leading items. Genistas, spiraeas, cinerarias, deutzias, pansies and forget-me-nots, also add to the assortment. In addition there is the usual assortment of hyacinths, tulips, daffodils, etc., in pots and pans which while being of exceptional value in themselves are most useful in adding color and variety to plant basket combinations.

The Robert Craig Co., Norwood Station, Pa., in their large ranges have gathered a wonderful collection, prominent amongst which are their rambler roses, a splendid lot of trained plants in bush form, pyramids, globes, umbrellas, handle baskets, tables, chairs, and aeroplanes, all perfect in form and dimensions and just right in point of time to be at their best for Easter week. Varieties are Tausendschoen, Dorothy Perkins, Lady Gay, Excelsa, Hiawatha and Rosiere. Paul's Scarlet Climber is also seen in quantity, together with strong plants of Magna Charta. There are also a fine assortment of the baby rambler type in five and 6-inch pots. This department contains over 10,000 plants.

Twenty thousand Easter lilies were planted, but as is the case everywhere, about 20 per cent of the bulbs proved defective; the balance have however come on in fine style and are a lot that any grower would be proud to call his own. There are several large houses of hydrangeas, splendidly budded stock containing all the most popular of the French varieties in all over ten thousand plants.

There is a section filled with Azalea Hino di Giri, splendidly budded plants, also a house of genistas in standard and bush forms all full of flower sprays. A large block of golden callas will be appreciated by the retailer looking for novelties. A house of cinerarias and another of the scarce spiraea adds variety that will be appreciated by many. In the ranges filled with variegated foliage plants which are seen here in the greatest variety both as handsome finished specimens and in the small sizes suitable for plant basket arrangement the particular retailer will find plants to suit his most exacting demands. There are exceptionally fine areas in quantity and house after house of ferns in all sizes. Take it all in all the Easter stock is the finest these famous growers have ever offered.

The Wm. K. Harris ranges are found up to their usual high standard. Azaleas that were such a feature here in pre-war days have given way to hydrangeas, a number of the houses being filled with 100 per cent budded stock of all the finest French kinds. Tausendschoen, Rosiere, Dorothy Perkins and Excelsa are leaders of their rose stock in the rambler class, all grown in bush form in from six to 8-inch pots, and some made-up plants in tubs. There are several houses given to ramblers of the baby type in five and 6-inch pots, splendidly finished plants. One of the finest houses of Easter lilies around the city is seen here; they are ideal in every respect except perhaps that of quantity of bloom which is so lacking everywhere. There are several houses of ferns of the Scotti and Teddy, Jr., and almost 100,000 big and little of the bird's nest fern which is a specialty here. A house of splendidly colored Pandanus Vietchii is a feature and in another genistas are showing a mass of buds. When the roses, hydrangeas and lilies are in full flower, as shown in their large shed on Palm Sunday, it is an exhibition open to the public, worth going miles to see.

Alfred M. Campbell, Strafford, Pa., specializes in lilies and hydrangeas, there being 40,000 L. giganteum in pots and for cutting and 10,000 French hydrangeas all splendidly set with buds. Mr. Campbell is a lily specialist but he also had about the average of budless and unhealthy bulbs. Those coming on now are very vigorous and look timed to the minute. He also has a large stock of Emperor daffodils for the Easter cut flower market.

The Floracraft Greenhouses, at Moorestown, N. J., has its usual large house of French hydrangeas which are each season the envy of all Easter plant growers.

W. & H. F. Evans, Rowlandville, a suburb, have a large block of lilies, which barring the poor bulbs are doing very well and will be ready in time for Easter. There are also a good sized block of hydrangeas which make a fine showing.

There are a number of smaller growers and grower-retailers whose stock deserves mention but space forbids. It is the general consensus of opinion that the various stocks are quite up to the standard of other years and all that is required now is a strong concerted move of the retailers to get it over to the buying public.

H. I. Faust, Merion, Pa., has his usual fine stock of Lilies, Roses, and hydrangeas. These are always given a first class gardener's finish that fits them for the best shops.

Macaw Bros., Norwood, Pa., have a large house of lilies and another of rambler roses, the latter trained in a number of forms such as handle baskets, aeroplanes, tables, chairs, pyramids, umbrellas, etc., all in good geometrical form and splendidly covered with foliage and buds. The lilies were strong plants, well clothed with foliage, that looked very promising. Ferns are a specialty here, several houses being seen in the best of condition. Pandanus Vietchii is also a feature exceptionally well colored in all sizes.

The old Godfrey Aschmann place is crowded to the doors with a fine collection of Easter stock of which hydrangeas in 6-inch pots are a feature. They are of uniform size with every shoot showing a bud. Two houses of lilies are coming along in good shape but the usual 20 per cent had to be thrown out. Cinerarias are done well here, two houses being filled with splendid stock. Twelve thousand hyacinths and almost as many tulips make up the Easter assortment.

Aschman Bros., Second and Bristol streets, are particularly strong on hydrangeas having a very well budded stock that fills several houses. Roses are also a feature, American Beauty, Magna Charta and baby ramblers leading in quantity. Paul's Scarlet Climber is also seen. All the stock is in 6-inch pot and appears very promising. Easter lilies are grown to give variety. These, while coming along all right well, when those thrown out are counted, show but about a new dollar for an old one, and are in for the last year unless there can be assurance of better bulbs. Eighteen thousand hyacinths in 4-inch pots and 3,000 6-inch pans of the same together with 1,000 pots of daffodils finishes this well balanced stock. K.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Max Scheinuk, who was in Chicago last week, invested in a 1½-ton Kroeschell refrigerating apparatus.

RICHMOND, IND.—E. G. Hill, who has been on the sick list the past few weeks, is better and expects to address the Illinois State Florists' Association, at Urbana, March 14.

National Flower Show Notes.

The National Flower Show management has received word that there will be an exhibit by W. A. Manda of South Orange, New Jersey. By his decision to enter a display the show is assured a splendid exhibit of rare horticultural novelties, including trained box and yews. It is well known that Mr. Manda has one of the best horticultural collections in this country, and the committee is fortunate indeed to have secured his promise of a fine exhibit of these plants. Mr. Manda has always been a flower show enthusiast, and has ably supported the national flower shows of the past.

An added attraction for the aquarium will be a fine exhibit of allegators by H. Wiegand & Sons, Indianapolis.

The committee of special features, Clarence R. Green, chairman, is making very attractive arrangements for a Chicago Day, Cleveland Day, Indiana State Day and Chamber of Commerce Day, which will be planned for exposition dates when there are to be the finest displays of roses, carnations, sweet peas, etc.

Irwin Bertermann, chairman of the local executive committee, is delighted with the progress of the 16 sub-committees, and the interest displayed by exhibitors all over the country in the coming national show. Within the last week he has been assured that several large rose and bulb gardens and other large groups which were planned for Cleveland, will now be displayed in Indianapolis. Assurances that these groups of roses and flowering plants will be forthcoming has relieved the anxiety of the executive committee to a great extent.

The National Flower Show committee is particularly fortunate in having the support of Governor Warren T. McCray of Indiana, who has promised to co-operate in every possible way with the committee. Richard Lieber, head of the state department of conservation, has offered to put his entire department at the service of the committee, and is already doing everything in his power to make the coming show a complete success.

Mayor Samuel L. Shank of Indianapolis has assured Irwin Bertermann, chairman of the local executive committee, that he will do everything in his power to assist in making the exhibition a success.

Charles A. Bookwalter, former mayor of Indianapolis, now head of the city park board, attended the last meeting of the local executive committee, and in an interesting address promised the wholehearted support of the city park board. The equipment of the park board, he said, would be placed at the disposal of the florists. Any exhibits of large plants and palms desired for the show would be furnished from the city greenhouses.

Efforts will be made to reproduce, at the coming show, the sunken garden of Garfield Park, Indianapolis, widely known throughout the country. H. Huston Tall, assistant superintendent of city parks, is already co-operating actively with the local executive committee.

SECRETARY JOHN YOUNG.

John Young, secretary of the Society of American Florists, with permanent offices in the Chamber of Commerce building, is very optimistic regarding the outlook for a great success, and is delighted with the splendid local organization, which has been formed within such short notice and states one's first impression on attending a meeting of the local executive committee, is that this organization might have been operating for a year or more. Mr. Young reports that exhibitors in very few cases have cancelled their reservations, and these were principally from Cleveland, O., whose interests were only local in character. In Mr. Young's first two day's stay in Indianapolis he secured additional exhibitors for trade space far in excess of that which had been cancelled, and from the number of daily inquiries he feels sure that every available foot of space in the trade section will be reserved for the opening day of the show. The secretary wishes to make it widely known that if anyone has the opinion that Indianapolis is a small town, and an unsuitable place in which to exhibit, they had better get rid of the idea immediately. A more favorable location, at the center of the population of the country, accessible from every point of the compass, over the 17 railroads and interurban lines which radiate from Indianapolis as the hub, could hardly be imagined. Intending exhibitors should make it a point to communicate with Secretary Young if they wish to make a display in the trade section. Mr. Young is also receiving much favorable support in the way of advertising for the year book, or Guide to the Show. This publication contains much valuable information for florists, and cultural notes on the different flowers prepared by the leading specialists of the country.

"It must be borne in mind," Mr. Young says, "that the Fifth National Flower Show is not a local show, but a national one in every way the word implies. While the florist interests of Indianapolis and the state of Indiana are willing to do their part, it should not be expected of them to do all the important work in connection with this gigantic exposition. It should be the duty of every member of the Society of American Florists, and of every florist in the United States to assist in a small way at least in putting this show over 'big.' There is no question but that the exposition will be a success, but it will be much more so if we have the loyal support of everyone in the trade. Don't hesitate or delay in letting the Indianapolis executive committee know that you will send something, if only a plant or two to be shown in the competitive sections. Suitable recognition in the way of medals and certificates will be given any exhibitor not provided for in the schedules, so there can be no excuse for not giving a helping hand along these lines. In closing, the local executive committee urges that you send in to the executive office a memorandum of what you will exhibit; orders for trade space in the trade section, and orders for advertising in the souvenir programme. The final schedule containing entry blanks has been mailed to all members of the society. Additional copies may be obtained upon application to the National Flower Show Headquarters, 606 Chamber of Commerce building, Indianapolis, Ind."

Plan now to exhibit! Arrange your affairs so that you will be present at the National Flower Show.

According to reports received by Irwin Bertermann, chairman of the local executive committee, A. L. Miller of Jamaica, N. Y., past president of the Society of American Florists, will bring an exhibit of flowering plants to Indianapolis.

Thomas Roland, of Nahant, Mass., past-president of the Society of American Florists, who has the finest collection of acacias in the United States, is to have a very large display of these flowers.

Florists of St. Louis, Mo., are arranging to bring two car loads of flowering plants.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., will enter a car load of stock, including flowering plants and blooming roses and will also have an exhibit in the 1,000 cut rose class.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., and W. K. Harris of Philadelphia, Pa., will bring a car of palms and specimen ferns.

F. R. Pierson of Tarrytown, N. Y., who has one of the finest collections of fancy ferns in existence, will enter a car of them at the exhibition.

Efforts are being made by the flower show management to induce Roy F. Wilcox, Howard & Smith, of Los Angeles, Calif., and the McRorie-McLaren Co., of San Mateo, Calif., to send a car of ericas. It is expected that E. B. Washburn, of Los Angeles, will stage an exhibit of palms. Since Quarantine No. 37 was put into effect by the federal horticultural board all palms and other plants with soil on roots have been refused entry to this country. These firms are now producing this stock in California and if they stage exhibits as proposed, it will demonstrate how this stock may be satisfactorily produced in the United States.

From Massachusetts will come the product of leading carnation growers, including Sam J. Goddard, Framingham; M. A. Patten, Tewkesbury; W. R. Nicholson, Framingham; Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, and W. D. Howard, Milford.

Strout, Inc., Biddeford, Me., will stage a fine exhibit of carnations.

Among the rose growers, who will have large displays, are John M. Dunlop, of Toronto, Ont.; E. G. Hill, and Joseph H. Hill, of Richmond, Ind.

Albert Pochelson, secretary of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, has informed Mr. Bertermann that his organization is working hard on an elegant design, "The Temple of Flora," for the exhibition.

TRADE TICKETS.

Chas. Pahud, of Indianapolis, chairman of the admissions committee, announces that special trade tickets, released March 9, are offered in multiples of 100, which will be available to members of the profession at one-half the regular price of admission, namely 25 cents each, which includes the war tax, or $25 per 100. The National Flower Show committee has agreed to offer a limited number of these tickets to the trade and large organizations throughout the country. Judging from inquiries already received, the number authorized will be readily taken up and the amount exhausted in a short time. Checks must accompany all orders, addressing same at once to National Flower Show Headquarters, 608 Chamber of Commerce building, Indianapolis, Ind.

The Indianapolis Star will publish a special National Flower Show section, in its issue of March 25, and members of the trade are cordially invited to advertise in its columns, the rate being 15 cents per line (2,440 lines to the page). Copy should reach the Star not later than March 23.

Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Ass'n.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING.

The executive committee of the Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association met at Montreal, Que., March 6. There was a full attendance with the exception of John Connon, Hamilton, Ont. A number of gardeners and florists attended the sessions. The business on hand chiefly was to arrange for the convention programme, but many other matters of much importance were discussed. It was decided to establish a council of horticulture to look after the affairs of the craft, both from an educational and commercial point of view. The Canadian government has intimated its readiness to assist with the sum of $5,000 for organizing purposes. After once established it is thought that this council will be self supporting.

ANNUAL MEETING AT MONTREAL.

The annual convention of the association will be held August 8-11. Some of the addresses are one on advertising by an expert. Demonstration of greenhouse work will be practically shown by A. Walker, of Macdonald college. Arthur Gibson, the dominion entomologist will explain the necessity of all the plant quarantines "by Order in Council" enacted.

Wm. C. Hall, one of the best growers of cyclamens will tell us how he does it. The Montreal Retail Florists' Association will give a practical demonstration on floral arrangement and other subjects will be announced later.

The tariff and sales tax were brought up, but so much of this had been taken up with government legislators, collectors and appraisers that not much inclination was shown to discuss them. W. A. Groves, sent a flowergram to Mrs. John Connon, Hamilton, Ont., and in exactly 20 minutes a telegram of thanks was received from the recipient. James McKenna suggested that an effort should be made to get this as a news item into the daily press.

After lunch the delegates and others were taken in automobiles to the Montreal West Town conservatories, and greenhouses and shown about by Robt. Miller. The display of flowering plants and preparation of bedding plants was quite a surprise to many. The Hall & Robinson greenhouses were visited. Here the preparations for Easter and bedding plants was in full swing on a large scale and everything in good shape. Supper was provided by Mr. Hall at the Curling Club, with a number of witty speeches after the repast.

SPRING SHOW.

The next visit was to the spring show held at the Exchange rooms by the Montreal Gardeners' and Florists' Club. The quality of the stock was a surprise to all. Geo. Douglas and Sam Kirk, of Toronto and Georgetown acted as judges of plants; J. E. Hay, of Burchville, Ont., and Mr. Millford, of Sherbrooke, Que., cut flowers.

The silver cup donated by F. Rynweld, of Holland for 25 Darwin tulips was won by McKenna Ltd., the other awards owing to the advanced hour could not be given.

Refreshments were served by the club and with a hearty wish on all lips and hearts, "See you in August," the meeting then adjourned. J. L.

Evansville, Ind.

DEMAND FOR FLOWERS INCREASING.

An increased demand for flowers is reported. Funeral work has been exceptionally heavy together with banquet and social work. The coming of Lent apparently has not curtailed the local call, except in party decorations. Roses and sweet peas have been in exceptionally heavy demand, with prices satisfactory. Carnations and violets also move well and the quality is good. There have been no changes in values since the first of the year and firm prices are expected during the spring. Primroses and hyacinths are the favorites in pot plants. The shipping demand is good.

NOTES.

Wm. Blackman, 83 years old, head of the Wm. Blackman Floral Co., was granted his final citizenship papers in the superior court here last week. Mr. Blackman was born in England and came to the United States in 1857. He has been a resident of this city for the past 65 years and is one of the oldest florists in point of years at the business, in this section. He is associated with his sons in the store.

Dr. A. J. Knapp, well known peony grower of this city has recovered from a recent operation performed in a local hospital. W. B. C.

Porto Rico and Hawaii Quarantine.

At the hearing of the federal horticultural board, Washington, D. C., March 7, on the prevention of the entry of dangerous insect pests, in sand, soil or earth in connection with plants from Porto Rico and Hawaii, five firms or organizations were represented, and a considerable number of departmental experts were in attendance. The principal protestants were C. U. Liggit, who has invested $25,000 and Robt. Craig, of Philadelphia, Pa., $15,000, in plants which would have to be brought into the United States with soil attached.

Dr. Marlatt took the attitude that it was the duty of the board to protect the United States against known and unknown dangers in outside territory and concluded by stating that no decision could be reached at that time, but intimated that an embargo is very probable, suggesting that some time might be allowed to protect investments already made.

"The Story of a Slogan" is the title of an attractive booklet just issued by P. F. O'Keefe, the well known publicity man of the Society of American Florists, giving an interesting account of the "Say It With Flowers" slogan of the national society.

Indianapolis Routes.

ST. LOUIS TO INDIANAPOLIS.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will charter two cars for the Fifth National Flower Show, leaving St. Louis, 12 noon, Monday, March 27, via Pennsylvania railroad, due Indianapolis, 6 p. m. the same day. It is planned to make Tuesday, March 28, St. Louis Day at the exhibition. All florists from the west and south are cordially invited to join the party at St. Louis. Full information may be obtained from J. J. Beneke, secretary, St. Louis Florists' Club, 1316 Pine street, St. Louis, Mo.

KANSAS CITY TO INDIANAPOLIS.

The members of the Kansas City Florists' Club have made arrangements to engage a through Pullman sleeping car to Indianapolis, leaving Kansas City, 11:55 p. m., via the Chicago & Alton—Pennsylvania railroads, Saturday evening, March 25, due Indianapolis at 2:50 p. m., Sunday, March 26. The late hour of departure from Kansas City permits passengers from many points in Kansas to leave their homes in the afternoon, with ample time for train connection. Florists from the west and south are cordially invited to join the party at Kansas City. The round trip fare will be $28.36, on the certificate plan, which is fully explained elsewhere in this issue. Pullman fares are: Lower berth, $5.63; upper berth, $4.50; drawing room, $21. Be sure to have your ticket routed via Chicago & Alton railroad, Kansas City to St. Louis; Pennsylvania railroad, St. Louis to Indianapolis, and secure certificate receipt on purchasing ticket. Reservations should be made immediately through G. K. Parker, secretary, Kansas City Florists' Club, care Stuppy Supply Co., 1020 Oak street, Kansas City, Mo., or Chicago & Alton railroad, Ticket Office, 717 Walnut street, Kansas City.

CHICAGO TO INDIANAPOLIS.

Chicago Day at the Fifth National Flower Show will be Monday, March 27, and the Chicago Florists' Club members have chosen the Monon route for the trip. The party will leave the Dearborn station, Polk and Dearborn streets, at 5:30 p. m., Sunday, March 26, due Indianapolis at 10:30 o'clock the same evening. The round trip will be $9.93, on the certificate plan, as fully explained elsewhere in this issue. Delegations from the north and west are cordially invited to join the party at Chicago. Reservations should be made immediately with Herbert Wiley, general agent passenger department, Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville railroad, 606 Merchants' Loan & Trust building, 112 West Adams street, Chicago; telephone Harrison 3309.

Chicago to Indianapolis.

In addition to the special Monon railroad and other trains already announced for the National Flower Show, to be held at Indianapolis, Ind., March 25-April 1, the Pennsylvania railroad has trains leaving the Union station, Canal and Adams streets, as follows:

Leave Chicago	Due Indianapolis
9:30 a. m.	3:00 p. m.
9:50 p. m.	3:55 a. m.

The Pullman sleepers attached to the train due in Indianapolis at 3:55 a. m., may be occupied there until 8 a. m.

Cottage Gardens Nurseries.

In the matter of the proposed sale of the personal property of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Inc., Eureka, Calif., all of the bids for which were required to be in the hands of the receiver not later than March 7. It is reported a bid of $15,000 has been received from David Struss Ward, of Queens, N. Y., with the proviso that the bid be accepted by March 11. It is understood a notice of the hearing of the Return of Sale and petition for the confirmation of the same will be given by publication in one of the local papers at least 10 days preceding the date of said hearing. At that date it will be incumbent upon the receiver to show the court that sufficient notice of the sale has been given to enable the highest and best price to be obtained, also, anyone desiring to raise the bid may come into court at that time and bid at least 10 per cent more, the same as is required in the sale of real property.

Cleveland Horticultural Society.

The regular monthly meeting of the Cleveland Horticultural Society was held March 9, President R. P. Brydton in the chair. It was decided to hold a small exhibit among members, the evening of March 30 with an entertainment combined.

Ralph Huntington, of Painesville, O., was the speaker of the evening and conducted a questionnaire on gladioli perennials and annuals. Mr. Huntington was well able to answer all questions put to him and the members gained considerable knowledge as to new and rare varieties, and what kinds were most suitable in this section. A rising vote of thanks was given Mr. Huntington.

R. P. Brydton exhibited a plant of Begonia Lorraine and was awarded a certificate of merit. Mr. Brydton explained how he grew it saying that the plant had been in bloom at Christmas, and had been exhibited at the Florists' Club. Afterwards he pinched it back, and grew it on, with the result it was more floriferous than at the first blooming.

Plant Quarantine Conference Postponed.

WASHINGTON, D. C., MAY 15.

The plant quarantine conference originally called to meet at Washington, March 15 and postponed, at the request of the Society of American Florists, to April 19, has been again postponed until May 15. The second postponement is made at the request of M. R. Cashman, of the American Association of Nurserymen, who represents that the month of April is the one season of the year when the nurseryman must be on his job to get out his orders and do his planting. The new date was referred to President S. S. Pennock, of the Society of American Florists, and has been approved by him.

Personal.

Dean Davenport of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, who has always been greatly interested in the advancement of horticulture and floriculture at that institution, has resigned.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind., celebrated their golden wedding anniversary March 13.

BALL'S WHITE ASTER

The seed of this splendid Giant Aster of the Late Branching Type--the product of twelve years' selection to develop the ideal of a perfectly double flower, of flawless color--was offered in 1921 for the first time.

The flowering season comes between the Royal and Late Branching types, filling in between the early and late glut of flowers. It grows to a medium height with full, distinctly centered blossoms, ideally formed for long distance shipping. The seed of this Aster is about two-thirds the size of ordinary varieties. It is sold in 1/4-ounce packets, containing about 4000 seeds at 1/4 oz., 75c; 1/4 oz., $1.35; 1 oz., $5.00.

Kunderd Gladioli

are the results of crossing of Species "Primulinus" with my new large flowering types and are no doubt far superior to any other kinds of this popular new race. For their dainty gracefulness, Primulinus are growing in great favor as cut flowers, for none are equal to them for their graceful beauty. My new 56 page catalog describes over 300 varieties and illustrates 19 of them in their natural colors. It contains the most complete information on planting,

Perhaps all readers of The American Florist are familiar with the superior merits of these wonderful new strains, but many have found it impossible to stock up with them, principally because of there being yet insufficient stocks for us to supply them at trade prices. This year for the first time it has become possible for me to publish a wholesale list composed of ruffled, plain petalled and Primulinus varieties. So great has become their popularity that no progressive grower can afford to be without them, and at my wholesale prices, you can now afford to lay in good stocks of many kinds at reasonable prices. Kunderd gladioli are now so well known that you cannot afford to do without a fine collection of these beautiful new varieties. No other strains are so popular as these and you will find them a ready sale if you will plant them plentifully on your grounds.

I would especially call your attention to my new Primulinus Hybrids. These are the results of crossing of Species "Primulinus" with my new large flowering types and are no doubt far superior to any other kinds of this popular new race. For their dainty gracefulness, Primulinus are growing in great favor as cut flowers, for none are equal to them for their graceful beauty. My new 56 page catalog describes over 300 varieties and illustrates 19 of them in their natural colors. It contains the most complete information on planting, culture, care, etc., of the Gladiolus ever written. Any grower will be pleased to own a copy which is free for your address. If you are a grower, florist, or dealer, ask for our wholesale list also. Address Having purchased from Mr. A. E. Kunderd quite a large variety of Gladioli, including many of the newest kinds, I am glad to state that every variety has come absolutely true to name. Mr. Kunderd has raised more fine varieties of Gladioli than any other half dozen hybridists in America combined, and those who want the best obtainable can make no mistake in ordering from him.

DREER'S Famous American ASTERS

We offer below the more important varieties. For complete list and descriptions see our wholesale Price List. Copies free to Florists on request.

ASTERMUMS.

This strain of Giant Comet Asters closely resemble Crego's Giant, but come into bloom fully two weeks earlier.

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
White Asternum	$0.30	$1.50
Pink	.30	1.50
Lavender	.30	1.50

BEAUTY ASTERS.

This recently developed type is a most valuable introduction on account of its late flowering, coming into bloom fully two weeks later than our Superb Late Branching, and furnishing high-grade cut flowers from early October until killing frost.

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
American Beauty. Rich cherry-rose, similar in color to American Beauty Rose	$0.40	$2.00
Lavender Beauty. Exquisite soft lavender	.50	2.50
Purple Beauty. Rich lustrous deep purple	.40	2.00
September Beauty. Delicate shell-pink	.50	2.50

CREGO'S GIANT COMET ASTERS.

Magnificent fluffy flowers, averaging over 5 inches across with long strong stems the finest of this type. Comes into bloom in August, continuing well into September, and unlike most of the Comet sorts, stands when cut and is a good flower to ship. We offer five colors our own saving, of the highest quality.

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
White. Purest white	$0.30	$1.50
Pink. Delicate shell pink	.30	1.50
Purple. Bright purple	.30	1.50
Rose. Rich deep rose	.30	1.50
Lavender. A rich deep shade	.30	1.50
Finest Mixed. All colors	.30	1.25

EARLY BRANCHING OR ROYAL ASTERS.

One of the best Asters of recent introduction, and might briefly be described as an early flowering form of our Superb Late-Branching variety, having all the good qualities of the latter but coming into bloom in July or early August and lasting in perfect condition a long time. We offer six beautiful and distinct colors viz.:

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
Lavender. Soft lavender violet	$0.40	$2.00
Purple. Rich deep violet purple	.40	2.00
Rich Rose. Very bright and attractive	.40	2.00
Rose Pink. Rosy pink, shaded white	.40	2.00
Shell Pink. Very delicate tint	.40	2.00
White. Pure white	.40	2.00
Finest Mixed. All colors	.30	1.50

DREER'S "PEERLESS PINK" ASTER.

This grand Aster may be briefly described as a glorified late branching shell-pink or Mary Semple. It has the same strong sturdy habit of growth; comes into bloom a little earlier bears freely almost globular flowers, rarely under 4 inches across and frequently over 5 inches. The color is rich shell-pink, similar in shade but more decided than the late branching. The center petals are prettily incurved, while the wide outer petals reflex, making a most artistic and finely finished flower, and stands cut longer than any other.

50 cts. per trade pkt., $2.50 per oz.

QUEEN OF THE MARKET ASTERS.

The leading early Asters, of good strong growth and bearing large flowers on long strong stems; begins blooming in July.

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
White	$0.25	$1.00
Lavender	.25	1.00
Pink	.25	1.00
Bright Rose	.25	1.00
Purple	.25	1.00
Crimson	.25	1.00
Mixed	.20	.75

For many years we have made a specialty of high-grade Flower Seeds for Florists' use and offer extra choice strains of Antirrhinum, Calendula, Cineraria, Cyclamen, Pansy, Petunia, Primula, Salvia, Sweet Peas, Verbena, Zinnia, etc. See our Wholesale Price List.

DREER'S
LATE BRANCHING
ASTERS

DREER'S SUPERB LATE BRANCHING ASTERS.

The finest Asters for late August and September blooming.

The plants form strong, branching bushes, 2 to 2½ feet high, bearing on long strong stems their handsome Chrysanthemum-like flowers, which, under ordinary cultivation, average 5 inches across. The form of the flowers together with the length of the stems places them at the head of Asters for cutting. They come into bloom from two to three weeks after the average type, usually being at their best during September, and filling in the gap between the general run of Asters and Chrysanthemums. We offer eight beautiful and distinct colors, viz.:

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
Azure Blue. A rich, deep lavender	$0.30	$1.50
Pure White. Extra fine stock	.30	1.50
Shell Pink. An exquisite shade	.30	1.50
Rose Pink. A very desirable color	.30	1.50
Deep Rose. Rich and brilliant	.30	1.50
Deep Purple. Royal deep purple	.30	1.50
Lavender. A pale grayish-lavender	.30	1.50
Crimson. Very rich rosy crimson	.30	1.50
Finest Mixed. All the colors	.25	1.00

KING ASTERS.

The "King" Asters form a distinct class or type, and have many sterling qualities to recommend them to lovers of fine Asters. They are of strong, sturdy habit, growing fully 18 inches high, and bear from August to October very large double blossoms, the petals of which are more or less quilled, forming very attractive flowers, which have splendid keeping qualities when cut.

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
Dreer's Crimson King. A brilliant new color in this type, which originated with us. It is the richest and deepest crimson variety known to us	$0.40	$2.00
Lavender King. Pale lavender	.40	2.00
Pink King. An attractive shade of delicate shell-pink	.40	2.00
Rose King. A beautiful brilliant rose variety and a great favorite for cutting	.30	1.50
Violet King. This is the original of this type, and is a pleasing soft shade of violet	.30	1.50
White King. Pure glistening white; extra fine large flowers	.40	2.00
King Mixed. All colors	.30	1.50

GRADUAL PRICE DECLINE ON MOST ITEMS.

The favorable weather the past two weeks has greatly increased the supply of stock and prices have gradually declined. Business continues good, especially funeral work. Rose values have declined but the quality of the stock arriving shows marked improvements. Mrs. Chas. Russell is the only kind that retains its former price. Prima Donna, Columbia and Premier are in heavy supply though Ophelia, Butterfly, Hadley, Hoosier Beauty and baby primrose are scarce. Heavy offerings of inferior violets scarcely move. Carnations have declined to $3 per 100, except Laddie, which is in strong demand at $1.50 per dozen, wholesale. Quality is reported good but there seems to be too many reds which are hard to move. The Lilium giganteum cut has not fallen off and prices and values remain nominal. Cattelyas are sufficient for all purposes, a few phalenopsis being noted. Orchid prices are firm. Lily of the valley is in good supply, values of which keep up remarkably well. Gardenias are gradually increasing in supply and move readily. Bulbous stock goes at good figures. Daffodils, which two weeks ago were in oversupply, are now on the short side and cleaning up well at fair prices. Tulips are at their best, bringing $8 per 100 for the high grades. Hyacinths bring the same figure. Freesias are poor, the principal supply being outdoor grown. Short stemmed irises, in good supply, are cheap. Paper White narcissi are available. The quality of snapdragons is improving and are noted more frequently. Acacia mollissima can be bought at low prices. Ericas are gradually disappearing. Mignonettes and gaillardias are making their initial appearance. Marigolds are poor and are hard to sell. Bulbous stock is the leader in the flowering plant group and goes exceptionally well. Tulips and Dutch hyacinths, in pans, lead. Asparagus and fern supply has increased enough to supply all needs. Flowering fruits of every description are obtainable and prove popular.

CALIF. WILD FLOWER CONSERVATION LEAGUE.

An event of great interest to plant and flower lovers throughout the country is being arranged by the California Wild Flower Conservation League, which will stage its eighth annual exhibit of wild flowers and native shrubs at the St. Francis hotel, April 20-22. The league has done much to suppress the wholesale vandalism of native plants and flowers of the Pacific coast, especially the wild Christmas berry. The league is working hard to prevent the commercialization of native plants, by suggesting state laws covering same. Luther Burbank is one of the leading members and will address the members on the opening day. Prof. J. W. Kennedy, of the department of botany, University of California, is working hard for the coming show.

NOTES.

The final meeting of the flower show committee of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society and the Retail Florists' Association was held at the Art Floral Co.'s store, March 9. Treasurer Albert O. Stein rendered his final report and other business matters pertaining to the exhibition staged last autumn were closed.

The Emporium, the city's largest department store, has engaged a lecturer on landscape gardening to deliver talks on that subject at the store. These lectures are free to the public and are being conducted to stimulate the spring planting of trees, shrubs and seeds.

Luther Burbank celebrated his seventieth anniversary, March 7, and received congratulatory messages from all parts of the world and as usual spent the day in work among his plants at his experimental grounds at Santa Rosa.

The regular meeting of the Retail Florists' Association will be held April 5, at Native Son's hall. It is expected that the date of the annual banquet of the association will be announced at that time.

Edw. Schwerin, Walbridge street, is growing high grade hyacinths and tulips from locally grown bulbs. His immense stock of adiantums is helping to keep this market supplied with cut fronds.

Haywood & Peterson, Burlingame, are sending in excellent Hoosier Beauty and Hadley roses. Their Easter plants appear promising.

JAMES T. LYNCH.

SHELBY, O.—The Shelby Floral Co., S. F. Yosiedik, proprietor, will install a new boiler and add a greenhouse to its establishment in the near future.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.—Isaac G. Taylor is referee in bankruptcy in the matter of the Stiles Floral Co., corporation, bankrupt, and has called for a meeting of creditors for March 16 at 11 a. m., in the Baum building.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Morris Schrott recently purchased the property at 544 South 52nd street, near his former location. He will install an up-to-date flower shop and erect a greenhouse in the rear of the building at an early date.

Why Exhibiting in Indianapolis

March 25 to April 1

Means Exhibiting in Chicago, Cleveland,
Cincinnati, Louisville and St. Louis.

Letter from Irwin Bertermann, Vice-Chairman of the National Flower Show Committee, and Chairman of the Local Committee for the Fifth Show:

"In view of the fact that a car load of plants and flowers shipped from any of these cities can be unloaded within a few hours right at the Manufacturers' Building in Indianapolis, where the Fifth National Flower Show is to be held, it must be conceded that anyone placing a feature here is in reality in touch with the whole Central West.

"Even if Indianapolis were entirely eliminated, there would still be the most exceptional opportunity for a national gathering. Reports received at the last meeting of the exposition sub-committee heads, at which there were 25 present, including also John Young of New York, Secretary of the Society of American Florists, and George Asmus of Chicago, Chairman of the National Flower Show Committee, showed clearly that there will be a splendid attendance from the thrifty Indiana towns.

"It will be possible to sell to the florists of any of the above cities, for they will be here en masse.

"The automobile interests of the country say that Indianapolis manufactures more high grade cars than any other city in the world, and recognize that it is for many reasons an ideal place for an automobile show, the same is true of the flower industry.

"The accompanying map speaks in concrete form what those who attend the show in person or with an exhibit will readily realize."

STOCK IS PLENTIFUL.

Business has been good the past week and while there was plenty of room for improvement no one is complaining and everybody is confident that the demand will be on an up-grade from now on. Roses are in good demand and while there are enough to supply all the buyers some of the growers are off crop and the receipts of others are falling off considerably. Carnations are plentiful but are moving nicely at fair prices. Orchids are in good supply and so is lily of the valley. Sweet peas are moving better and the same holds true for violets with the home-grown singles having the best call. Tulips, jonquils and freesias are to be had in quantity. Lilies are good property and so are callas. Mignonette is obtainable at some of the stores. Snapdragons and stocks are included in the offerings. Florida grown gladioli are seen in some of the retail stores in a dozen different varieties. Pansies are more plentiful. The demand is heavy for iris which command high prices. Calendulas, daisies, lupines and other miscellaneous seasonable stock is obtainable. The retail stores are making grand showings of cut flowers and plants with the result that their sales have been much better the past week than for some time. Greens are in good demand and it is rumored that the price of ferns will advance soon. The loss in storage has been exceptionally heavy this year and the talk about early "snowbirds" from some sections of Wisconsin and Michigan should not be given too much consideration for the recent heavy rain, hail, sleet and snowstorm did not do them any good. A few of the retail florists are using the billboards for advertising purposes and have been fortunate in securing prominent locations all of which helps the demand.

CHICAGO DAY AT INDIANAPOLIS.

Monday, March 27, will be Chicago and rose day at the National Flower Show to be held at Indianapolis, Ind., March 25-April 1. The local party will leave Sunday evening, March 26, at 5:30 p. m., on the Monon railroad, Dearborn station, Polk and Dearborn streets, due Indianapolis at 10:30 the same evening. For reservations, address or telephone Herbert Wiley, general agent passenger department, Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville railroad, 606 Merchants' Loan & Trust building, 112 West Adams street. Telephone Harrison 3309.

For those unable to accompany the party, the Pennsylvania railroad has trains leaving the Union station, Canal and Adams streets, at 9:30 a. m., and 9:50 p. m., due Indianapolis, 3 p. m., and 3:55 a. m., respectively. The Pullman sleepers attached to the train due in Indianapolis at 3:55 a. m., may be occupied there until 8 a. m.

NOTES.

More than 721 acres, costing $481,388, were acquired by the forest preserve district during the last few days. Ransom Kennicott, chief forester, delivered an illustrated lecture on "The Forest Preserves of Cook County," March 14, before the Chicago Society of Landscape Architects.

A. L. Vaughan is planning on visiting his old home in southern Louisiana in the near future, returning in time to attend to the Easter business. Lilies are in good supply at A. L. Vaughan & Co.'s store this week and the first shipment of southern jonquils is expected any day.

Gust. Martial is again in the employ of Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s supply department where he is greeting old acquaintances this week.

The American Bulb Co., reports a heavy movement of gladiolus and hardy lily bulbs.

Fred Price, of Peter Reinberg, Inc., and Bill Lorman, of the A. L. Randall Co., are back from Toledo, O., where they participated in the national bowling tournament. They both made a good showing especially Mr. Price in the singles who rolled 536 for three games.

William Lempke of Park Ridge has been doing well with violets this season and grows Governor Herrick exclusively. He is shipping in a good supply of pansies not to mention carnations.

Mrs. Ennis, of Milwaukee, Wis., was here on business March 11 in connection with the new retail store she is opening in the Plankinton Arcade in the vicinity of her old stand on Grand avenue.

Johan A. Ebberts, well-known importer of florists' supplies is back from a business trip to New York. He expects to sail for Japan the latter part of this month.

Peter Miller, manager of George Wienhoeber's store on Michigan avenue, is rejoicing over the arrivals of twins at his home. He calls them Pat and Mike.

Fred Lautenschlager, of the Kroeschell Bros. Co. reports active demand for ice machines. His firm has just completed the installation of a 250 horse power Kroeschell fire and water tube boiler for high pressure operation at the Budlong rose range in Evanston. This concern will now have three 250 horse power high pressure boilers in operation.

C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, and wife returned from California March 12 after passing through a severe snowstorm in Kansas. Mr. Washburn reports business as good in California and that the damage from the recent heavy frost was not as great as first expected.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is cutting a large supply of Mrs. Chas. Russell roses that are attracting the attention of the buyers at the store. The plant stock at the Morton Grove greenhouses is in splendid shape and orders for same have been numerous the past week.

Wietor Bros. are in good crop with roses which are cleaning up nicely each day. The demand for young rose stock is heavy especially Mrs. Chas. Russell in two and one-half inch pots.

Fire in the offices of the John C. Moninger Co., March 10, caused no serious damage beyond the loss of several baskets of ordinary office papers.

A. Lange, who had a big run on shamrocks for St. Patrick's Day, says his February business was fully as good as that of last year.

The Central Floral Co. had an attractive display of St. Patrick's Day greened flowers in well arranged baskets this week.

George Wienhoeber is showing a nice bowl of blue lace flower, Didiscus coeruleus, an attractive annual, in his window.

Herman Schiller who has been visiting a sister in Texas is now in California and is expected home soon.

A. Henderson & Co. have had good demand for cannas, and say the supply of many kinds is now low.

M. C. Gunterberg was called to northern Minnesota last week by the death of her grandmother.

NASHUA, N. H.—The Nashua Horticultural Society was recently organized and Winthrop L. Carter is expected to be elected president at the next meeting.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—The General hospital recently prohibited all local florists sending Primula obconica to any patient or inmate at that institution, because of alleged poisonous constituents in the plant.

Chicago Florists' Club.

There were a number of interesting discussions at the regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club, held at the Hotel Randolph, March 9, President Kohout in the chair, the principal topics being Chicago Day at Indianapolis, which will be Monday, March 27, the local party leaving Sunday, March 26, at 5:30 p. m. on the Monon railroad, Polk and Dearborn streets, due Indianapolis at 10:30 the same evening. The fare one way is $6.62, but everyone should obtain a certificate in order to secure half rate on the return trip.

George Asmus told about the Pageant of Progress to be repeated the coming summer at the Municipal pier on a much more complete scale than last year's event, offering florists another good opportunity to exploit their business at a dull time. He also told of the extensive preparations in progress for the floral display at the West Town Exposition, which will be open at the Second Regiment Armory, Madison and Rockwell streets, March 27, urging all to participate.

Guy W. French called attention to the hardships of florists in the north and west during the recent snow storms in those sections, stating that many of them experienced great difficulty in carrying on business. Traveling men in many cases, were greatly delayed by the bad weather and suffered much inconvenience in belated and snowbound trains.

Chairman W. J. Keimel, of the Indianapolis-Chicago Day committee, said arrangements for the trip to the National Flower Show were progressing splendidly, and that a good attendance of the trade in this city was already assured. He advised everyone to secure railroad certificates and Chicago Day badges, to make certain of all the privileges to be had in making the trip.

Peter Pearson exhibited some well grown cinerarias, twin-flowered Madam Krelage darwin tulips and some good blooms of narcissus, bicolor Victoria. Hans Jepsen received a certificate of merit for a fine vase of Iris filifolia Imperator, a variety of the I. Tingitana type with somewhat smaller flowers. Mr. Jepsen says the bulbs of this variety bloom nearly 100 per cent, and that during February they average 42 cents each. I. Tingitana of course, blooms much earlier.

H. G. Frey, representing the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., gave an interesting account of the good work carried on by the Pittsburgh and Cleveland Florists' Clubs.

New members elected included M. N. Duyts, Lake Forest, Fred Poetzl, 172 North Wabash avenue, C. Parker, 66 East Randolph street, Marshall N. Tyler, 66 East Randolph street, J. K. Rugowski, Manitowoc, Wis.,

FUNERAL WORK HOLDS UP TRADE.

While Lent is now on and this necessarily cuts in on the business, still trade has been good in many ways, especially funeral work. All retailers and many growers reported extra briskness in funeral designs and pieces. There are some parties and social functions which have caused a fair demand for certain loose flowers and plants. Corsages sold well. Carnations, sweet peas, daffodils, lilies, roses and spring flowers are the leaders, with prices as a rule firm at the levels which have prevailed since the St. Valentine's Day increases. Roses are mostly Premier, Sunburst, Columbia and Ward and sell from $3 to $8 per dozen. Sweet peas sell for $1.50 per bunch. Bulbous plants are in good demand while pot plants such as primroses, hyacinths and other kinds attract more attention. Active preparations are being made for a brisk Easter season and indications point to a good supply of excellent quality. Violets are expected to be scarce and of inferior quality.

FLOWER GROWERS' AND DEALERS' ASSOCIATION.

The regular meeting of the Flower Growers' and Dealers' Association which had been scheduled for March 7, was postponed two weeks. It has been arranged to hold the meeting, with entertainment features, at the Elk's Club, March 21, when a large attendance is expected. Questions of policy will be considered and the report from the meeting of the board of directors of the state association will be made by Walter Stephens, who is president of the Ohio District of the National Flower Growers' Association.

A new retail firm has been opened under the name of Czish & Dozer, at the corner of High street and Fourth avenue in a large and well-lighted store room. In addition to dealing in flowers, bulbs and pot plants the concern will also sell seeds, birds and supplies. The partnership consists of Rudolph Czish, formerly in charge of the seed department of the Livingston Seed Co., and James Dozer, who has been employed by a number of local florists.

OHIO GROWERS.

Walter Stephens, president of the Ohio District of the National Flower Growers' Association has returned from Cleveland and Toledo, following a meeting of the board of directors at the former city. A fair attendance was present and the question of co-operative buying was discussed at length. It was decided to take it up in many ways and to do that end lists will be published, showing the cost paid by the members of the association and that where co-operative buying is not employed. These lists will soon be issued and distributed. It was also decided to continue the scientific matter distributed by the association especially along the lines of heating plants, etc. While in Toledo Mr. Stephens visited the plants of the J. L. Schiller Co., Hertzell Bros., Schramm Bros., Heini, and Miller Bros. The last is a vegetable grower of considerable prominence. All of these visits were made in one day and leaving there at 4 p. m. he reached this city at 11 p. m. the same day by automobile. The trip to Cleveland was made in seven hours. Mr. Stephens thinks that is going some.

The window of T. J. Ludwig, North High street, has been featuring bulb stock largely. Pot plants are also shown which attract considerable attention. Mr. Ludwig reports exceptional briskness in funeral work.

Frank J. Steffan, who was connected with the Livingston Seed Co., for 20 years, has been made manager of the retail seed, plant and bulb department

Be sure that the name MEYER is on every spool of green Florists thread that you are buying, and you will get the original and best green Florists thread on the market. A great many of the salesmen on the road and the Florists' supply houses are substituting a cheap and inferior green Florists thread to take the place of the Meyer Green Silkaline and Florists' thread.

Therefore, if you cannot get the real article, send the goods back and order direct from the manufacturer and you will get the best. Guaranteed two ounces of actual thread to the spool, 16 ounces to the pound.

STOCK HARD TO SELL.

Stock is moving very slowly for this time of the year. All spring stock is in heavy supply. Pot roses made their first appearance during the week, crimson rambler being the chief kind. Most of the gladioli comes from Florida. Pot Syringa persica have been seen, chiefly dwarf varieties. Spanish irises are in good supply. Daisies of the African orange type are arriving. Pansies, in limited quantities, are now on the market. In staple stocks roses continue to be the chief item, Premier selling best. Mrs. Chas. Russell, Columbia, Butterfly, White Killarney, Crusader, Sunburst, Hoosier Beauty, Ophelia are on the market, with no change in quotations. Carnation demand has been very poor, no Laddie arriving. Good reds, pinks and whites are going at $6 to $8 per 100. Orchids also move slowly at $1 to $1.25 per bloom. Cypripediums are in good supply but are hard to sell. Lily of the valley at $6 per 100 goes exceptionally well. Violets and sweet peas offer no difficulty in selling, the former at 75 cents to $1 per 100 and the latter at $5 to $20 per 1000. Snapdragons are in heavy supply and excellent. Jonquils and narcissi bring $3 to $8 per 100, the latter shortening up in supply. Cut hyacinths are about finished, the pot plants taking their place. Freesia supply is on the decline. Some excellent cut Darwin tulips are on the market at $12 per 100. Pot tulips sell well. Calla lilies are being shipped in, selling well. Easter lilies are greatly improving in quality and go at $25 per 100. Ferns bring $3.50 per 1,000 and there is no increased demand for galax, green and bronze, leucothoe and huckleberry.

NOTES.

Grimm & Gorly have opened a "Baby Department." A very attractive window decoration was used to advertise the new novelties. All the necessities of the young baby and the nursery were attractively displayed filled with lily of the valley and dainty pink sweet peas and Asparagus plumosa and tied with pink ribbons. It was very attractively arranged and caused quite a bit of attention.

The March 9 meeting of the Florists' Club was at the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., and about 50 members were present. A fine show was staged of cut flowers and pot plants by members of the club. Several of the St. Louis growers intend to send exhibits to the Fifth National Flower Show this year at Indianapolis, March 25-April 1.

SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT IN TRADE.

Contrary to expectations, the past week has seen some improvement in demand, but the supply has been so large that there has been no advance in prices, and at times in spite of the extra demand, the market was top heavy and it was necessary to job stock in order to move it. The supply of roses is smaller, due to the fact that most growers are cropping for Easter, while carnations and bulbous stock are in heavy supply. The quality of everything is of the best; in fact it could hardly be improved on. The supply of sweet peas has been heavy and cheap. Easter and calla lilies are still moving at a fair price, but the supply is increasing daily. Snapdragon is as popular as ever and cleans up daily. Violets are a drug on the market and in the end have to be cleaned up by the street merchants. Lily of the valley is also moving slowly, as has been the case all season. Other items such as acacia, iris, daisies and calendulas come in small quantities and sell readily. Taking everything into consideration, conditions are about normal for the season, and the business seems to be in a healthy condition in this section.

NOTES.

The decorative force of the A. W. Smith Co. is kept on the jump these days, having placed several large decorations. The firm just completed converting the large ball room of the Hotel Schenley into a southern garden for the Lincoln Motor Co.'s annual show. They also report that their landscape department is now going at top speed.

A large and attentive audience greeted Prof. Fish of the University of Pittsburgh to hear his lecture on heredity at the last Florists' and Gardeners' Club meeting. Prof. Fish has made this subject his life's study, and can certainly hold the attention of his audience to the end.

The E. C. P. Weaklen Co. has announced that they have leased the store room at 5817 Penn avenue and will move into their new quarters about May 1. After alterations are made they will have one of the most up-to-date shops in the country.

The E. C. Ludwig Floral Co. report business as good. They are now cutting a large crop of lilies and bulbous stock at their greenhouses, Ludwig Station, Pa.

ACUTE SHORTAGE OF STOCK.

The shortage of flowers for the last month has been very acute, due to the cold stormy weather. Even now, the middle of March, the thermometer hovers around 10 above zero at nights, and if it should warm up a little it seems only to bring a snow storm. Growers are unable to fill their orders, and have proportioned what flowers they have as fairly as possible among their customers. The roses are of good quality, and bring from $3 to $25 per 100 wholesale. Carnations are bringing $5 to $8 per 100. Cut daffodils are quite in demand. Pot plants have moved well of late, especially bulbous stock. Genista seems to be greatly favored by the public here, and sells rapidly. Boston and Whitmanii ferns are not moving so well of late. Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus are in steady demand. Easter plants are selling well in this section. Hydrangeas, rambler roses and baby roses are showing up well, and will be in bloom in time for Easter. There is a good supply of pelargonium Easter greetings. Fuchias are growing well, and should soon be ready for sale. Easter lilies are not plentiful, and not as good as last year. It has been necessary to keep them at a low temperature, to keep them from coming on the market too soon.

BUSINESS GOOD CONSIDERING SEASON.

Lent has opened with a good supply of flowers and there is a fair demand to keep them moving, but at lower prices than most growers like to see. To quote one of the large dealers: "Yes, the stock is pretty well cleaned up but we get so little for it!" Another says: "The trouble is that prices have gotten too low and when they once get down it's hard work to get them up again." Others are satisfied and say the call and prices are as good as can be expected for the first weeks of Lent. Roses have shortened up a bit as have carnations, although there are enough of both to supply the demand. There is quite a lot of short Premier which finds a good sale, the quality of it being fine, in fact, all the varieties are quite up to the winter standard. The quality of the carnations is very good but for some reason they don't sell like they ought to, $3 to $6 per 100 and less, is the price for good fresh stock, with quantity prices much lower. However, it has often been much worse as they are not offered as yet on the corners for 25 cents a bunch. There are an abundance of sweet peas, the choice of which is a splendid stock; it is wonderful how well they clean up when the quantity thrown on the market is so great and constantly increasing. Easter lilies are about even with the call and all the good callas appear to find buyers. As there are fully 20 per cent more on the market than last year, prices have held remarkably well. Snapdragon is now a strong factor, excellent long stemmed stock being in demand at top prices. Bulbous stock is having a hard time of it, very good tulips returning but three and four cents, with Emperor daffodils of excellent quality

STABILITY IN PRICES.

A prominent wholesaler in speaking about prices said that a much better average could be maintained if about 10 per cent of the trade had more back bone. Some of the growers who peddle their stock around the stores and wholesalers as well, appear to take fright at the first little oversupply, or when there seems to be not much doing and start to break prices. Not only do they cheapen their own stock but that of all their competitors. Things are never as bad as they appear at first glance and rumors of sales below the market are often for effect and greatly magnified. When daffodils, roses, carnations or other flowers that are selling for five cents, are dropped to four, it only means 25 cents on a bunch, but on $100 worth it is $20 off, surely a tremendous reduction, and that could be saved to the business with just a little firmness and ability to fight back until the crisis was over. Very frequently, although there is not one-half the flowers in the market that forced the decline, the lower prices still prevail while they could just as easily have been sold at the old figures. Even staple items such as coon-tle leaves or sprays which have been found an admirable green as a backing for sprays and other cut flower work, are sold as low as two cents, when they are worth in comparison with other stock at least five cents and now that they are introduced would readily sell at this figure. Some men think the only way to sell is to be a cent below the other fellow and in consequence they very rarely have anything laid away at the end of the year.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING, APRIL 4.

Charles Henry Fox will be the speaker at the April 4 meeting of the Florists' Club, his subject being "Analyzing the Flower Business with Practical Demonstrations." This is the lecture that made such a hit at Cornell University, February 16. In addition there will be a fine exhibition of Easter plants by all the large growers of the city.

The Kurume azaleas of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., exhibited at the last Florists' Club meeting attracted a great deal of attention; they were splendidly flowered plants in from three to 6-inch pots in many shades of color. Alphonse Pericat, Collingdale, Pa., who also made an exhibit of similar plants, believes this is destined to be a most popular plant both for forcing and outdoor decoration.

C. U. Liggitt staged for Henry Hession, Brooklyn, N. Y., a light pink seedling carnation, Enchantress Supreme color, but almost as large as Laddie. It looked to be a comer.

NOTES.

One of the chief pluggers of the Leo Niessen Co. said its force was the greatest bunch of workers in the trade, fellows that never gave up until the jars were all empty. People just had to buy when they got hold of them, and best AMERICAN FLORIST CO.

440 SOUTH DEARBORN STREET, CHICAGO

Morris Schrott has purchased the property, 544 South 52nd street, a short distance from his old location which he will shortly turn into a first class retail flower shop with a greenhouse in the rear. Morris is a hustler and this step is quite in keeping with his progressive ideas.

Pussy willow has been very popular the past season, all wholesalers carry it in quantity. Each year it appears to be done better, being graded into various sizes with all sprays full of plump buds, many of them of a glowing silvery pink that is much in demand.

Eugene Bernheimer is now at 15 South Mole street, his permanent shop. The new show window admits oceans of light and gives the store a very cheerful appearance. Mole street with its six wholesale houses can surely be called the wholesaler's center of the city.

Edw. Reid wanted to know why we knocked three years off his business career in last week's notes. He has been 28 years in business while we only gave him credit for 25 years. We may also add that he is just as full of pep as ever.

Easter and calla lilies with a full assortment of bulbous stock are the outstanding features at Berger Bros. Sweet peas are also a quantity item. Jack Berger says prices are too low for the fine quality of the stock offered.

Chas. E. Meehan claims that Asparagus plumosus would make a fine greenhouse crop if it did not take so much heat during the three months in winter when it has the field to itself with all discriminating retailers.

Double White Killarney, Sweetheart and Premier roses, together with Spanish iris, were the features of the stock of the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange the past week.

NO IMPROVEMENT IN MARKET.

There has been little change in the condition of the cut flower market since our notes of March 11 were written. Dark weather accompanied with a cold wind set in March 9 and continues at this writing and may somewhat reduce the carnation supply. One of the surprising features at the market is the great quantity of cattleyas. When Quarantine No. 37 became effective we were told that the orchid supply would soon be exhausted, but regular visitors in the wholesale district can testify that more cattleyas have been offered for sale this season than ever before. An immense stock of sweet peas is on hand, many of them of the best quality, with long stems and fine flowers. Such stock, next to roses, sells well but the short and inferior grades hardly move. The limited quantity of American Beauty roses arriving sell fairly well, but tea roses, particularly the special grades, are slow. In Easter lilies, callas and other bulbous stock there are heavy supplies, the common tulips and narcissi being extremely slow. In violets, snapdragons, stocks, calendulas, cut pansies and various minor offerings there is always some trade, but cleanups are the exception rather than the rule.

March 13.—The buying is fairly active for a Monday morning. The weather has cleared and there is likely to be a continued heavy supply of stock as the week advances.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING POSTPONED.

Primarily on account of the opening of the spring show, there was no meeting of the Florists' Club, March 13. The next meeting will take place April 10, at the Engineering Societies' building, 33 West Thirty-ninth street. The annual banquet of the club was held at the Hotel Biltmore, the evening of March 15.

NOTES.

As early as March 9 work had commenced in the Grand Central palace in connection with the staging of the spring show. The rocks and rills and the vales and the hills, so to speak were being laid out and by March 11 loads of plants were coming in. Secretary Young of the exhibition, returned from Indianapolis, Ind., the middle of last week and was present for the opening day, March 13.

Geo. E. M. Stumpp has taken a new lease for 10 years on the store at the northeast corner of Fifth avenue and 58th street, which has long been occupied by himself and his father, G. M. Stumpp. The floor space is 23x55 feet, with a good basement. The rent will be $30,000 per year.

J. S. Fenrich, in the Eighteenth street market, in addition to a fine stock of roses from the Duckham-Pier-son range, is handling a great lot of Easter lilies and callas.

Harry Riedel, recently head salesman for Herman Weiss, 121 West Twenty-eighth street, is now manager for Jos. Klingenberg, Middle Village, L. I.

Theodore Malandre, of Malandre Bros., returned in the best of health, from a two weeks' stay at Miami, Fla.

M. A. Battista and wife, 44 Carmine street, are happy over the arrival of a little daughter at their home.

Wm. Sullivan, well known in the wholesale trade is now with Herman Weiss.

Anton Schultheis and wife, College Point, spent the winter at Miami, Fla.

John H. Troy, the veteran landscape planter, of New Rochelle, N. Y., was welcomed home from the Antipodes March 10, by Mrs. Troy and their accomplished son, who has ably filled Mr. Troy's place during his absence of four months. Mr. Troy, although closing in upon his sixty-sixth birthday anniversary, looks the picture of health, and says he had the time of his life making many new friends and acquiring a large fund of information, important in his business. He brought back all the old companions of his many journeys, the steamer trunk, the mackintosh, the

The hat box came back empty, the Knox silk hat being presented to a Maori chief in New Zealand, the Panama to a sailor aboard the S. S. Maruka, and the Fifth avenue derby to a Los Angeles movie man.

SUGAR beet seeds are being tested this winter in Florida for purity, in the open.

ONE ton of choice Michigan pickling cucumber seed, sold recently at 50 cents per pound.

L. D. WALLER, of the L. D. Waller Seed Co., Guadalupe Calif., is planning an eastern trip.

OSAGE, IA.—The Gardner Nursery Co., a mail order house, recently added a seed department.

THOS. W. CHISHOLM, of the Braslan Seed Growers Co., Inc., San Jose, Calif., is making an eastern trip.

LESTER L. MORSE, the well known California seedsman, says derricks and dividends are sometimes far apart.

SAN DIEGO COUNTY, Calif., claims it can grow good cauliflower seed. Will some responsible seedsman vouch for it?

BET sugar manufacturers in Colorado and Michigan have fixed the price of beets to growers this season at $5 per ton.

NOWATA, OKLA.—R. H. Bane recently purchased the establishment generally known as Wilkinson's Seed Store, from L. E. Morrison.

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y.—The Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., is very busy with large and small orders, particularly beans and canners' pea seed.

MODESTO, CALIF.—The San Joaquin Seed Co. recently purchased the retail seed business of the Bomberger Seed Co., of Fresno and this city.

BOARD OF TRADE.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade March 15 were as follows: Timothy, $4.25 to $6.85 per 100 pounds; Red Clover, $15 to $24.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district remain about the same as quoted in our issue of March 4, $1.90 for colors and $2.25 for whites, prompt shipment in car lots. Yellows are scarce.

PRICES of bags at Chicago, March 15: Anchor, 16 oz., $30.00 per bale, in bale lots or over; Royal River, 16 oz., $30; National, 16 oz., $30.00; Crown, 12 oz., $25.00, an advance of $1 over last week.

JOHN BODGER, of John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, Calif., and wife, who have been spending several months in the European seed growing centers will return about the middle of April by way of New York and Chicago.

THE house of representatives retained the free seed distribution, appropriating $360,000 by a vote of 173 to 142. This is doing better than the vote when Congressman Enloe led the fight 20 years ago with only five supporters.

ALL cotton seed oil mills, except one in Little Rock and North Little Rock, Ark., have closed. Mills generally shut down in May. Early closing this year is attributed to a short cotton crop and unusually early movement of staple and seed.

WE have just received "Scarlett Permanent Pastures for the South Atlantic States," a booklet just issued by Wm. G. Scarlett & Co., Baltimore, Md., giving the exact formulae of its grass seed mixtures which should prove both useful and interesting to the trade.

HENRY FORD's tractor plant, equipped to produce 120,000 tractors annually, turned out only 36,000 last year. Herein may be found explanation of radical price reduction of $210. Manufacture was stopped, and there are thousands of unassembled tractor parts on hand.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Wood, Stubbs & Co. state that its mail order trade up to February 17 was greater than for the same period in 1921, with the balance of the business only fair. However, there seems to be a better demand and items are being sold at a profit rather than a loss.

THERE has been recently purchased by the American Russian Relief Committee, 25,000 tons of pea seed, about half garden and half field varieties, to be shipped from New York to Russia March 20. Some 300 cars of field seed corn will be shipped from Baltimore, Md., by the same organization.

THE United States Grain Growers, Inc., has formed the United States Grain Growers Sales Co. to operate at once in Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha, Indianapolis and Minneapolis markets. The company will be the largest grain selling organization in the world and will handle 110,000,000 bushels yearly.

THE Aggeler & Musser Seed Co., Los Angeles, Calif., is looking forward to a much better season than in 1921, alfalfa and other field seeds now moving satisfactorily. The rainfall to February 16 has been 16 inches, while the average from July 1 to June 30 is 15.64, leaving the soil in the best condition for many years.

VISITED CHICAGO: Roy Wheeler, of the Pieters--Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Calif., returning from the east; L. M. Kimberlin, of J. M. Kimberlin & Co., Santa Clara, Calif.; W. J. Galloway, of the Galloway Bros. Co., Waterloo, Ia.; W. H. de Graaff, of de Graaff Bros., Noordwijk, Holland; G. Krosschell, representing John Vendel, Hillegom, Holland.

Free Seeds.

If the house of representatives stood honestly for economy it would make short work of abolishing free seeds. Instead it has restored the $360,000 item to the agricultural appropriation bill after the committee had cut it out. This has been the usual procedure in recent years—first a pretense of doing what is right and then a shameless scramble for a little more political plunder. It is the sort of thing that helps the public to take the measure of the average congressmen.

The distribution of free seeds is a hoary farce prolonged from year to year. They cost representatives and senators nothing to obtain or to forward by mail to constituents, therefore because of the pettiness of the normal congressional mind they are prized as bait for voters. It is putting a low estimate on the intelligence of the men and women in their districts to think that a few packets of radish and beet seeds will make any difference, but that is the way Washington looks at many matters. The government foots the bill on the pretext that somehow agriculture is being advanced, so nobody cares.

Regularly several hundred thousand dollars every year are wasted in this scrdid political scheme. It is a useless, frivolous expenditure of money, and there is never enough decency or courage in congress to stop it.—New York World.

Field Seeds.

About 35,600 pounds of crimson clover and 9,500 pounds of white clover arrived at New York from Germany. Rather large arrivals of alfalfa seed at New York from Argentina aggregating about 362,300 pounds were reported during the week ending February 25. The prices for domestic alfalfa seed remain firm with an upward trend in a few markets.

There were no changes of note in prices for grass seed. Kentucky blue grass and redbtop prices are at a point where dealers seem reluctant to buy more of these seeds than are needed for their immediate requirements. The export demand for Kentucky blue grass continued good, but the greatest increase in export demand recently occurred in the case of timothy. Approximately 107,300 pounds of timothy were exported to Great Britain and Norway from New York during the week. About 81,800 pounds of rye grass arrived at New York from France, Germany and Great Britain.

Millet and sorgo prices were quoted the same as a week ago in most markets. In the Missouri valley millet prices were considered to be about 10 cents and sorgo prices 15 cents per 100 pounds higher than during the previous week. Large jobbers in that section were quoting these seeds on February 25 approximately as follows: Golden and Siberian millet, $1.85; common millet, $1.50; broom-corn millet, $2; Japanese millet, $4; amber sorgo, $1.75; orange, $1.85; and sumac, $2. Kafir, milo, and feterita were being offered at $1.75, $1.85, and $2 per 100 pounds respectively.

January Business Failures.

The liabilities amounted to $115,301,371, the largest total ever reported in the month of January and only once previously exceeded, namely in October, 1908, when the total liabilities were nearly $173,000,000.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

M. R. Cashman, Owatonna, Minn., President; Paul C. Lindley, Pomona, N. C., Vice-President; Charles Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo., Secretary; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Iowa, Treasurer.

The forty-seventh annual convention will be held at Detroit, Mich., June 28-30, 1922.

BRIAR mowing is said to be easiest to do when the briars are coated with ice.

JOHN G. MORLEY, well known superintendent of San Diego parks, has an interesting article on annuals in the California Garden for February.

BLUE SPRUCE cuttings at the establishment of the D. Hill Nursery Co., Inc., Dundee, Ill., are said to root 50 to 75 per cent from better than half-ripened wood.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK.—The Ozark Nursery & Seed Breeding Farms has opened an office in the Gazette building. The concern recently moved here from Nashville, Ark., and conducts a general wholesale and retail business.

Nursery Freight Rates.

Charles Sizemore, secretary and traffic manager of the American Association of Nurserymen, who appeared before the interstate commerce commission, February 28, to request a reduction of nursery freight rates, full account of which appeared in our issue of March 11, page 372, received a letter recently from Geo. T. Bell, lawyer and interstate commerce expert, who acted as counsel for the association, in which Mr. Bell stated that the commission was very favorably impressed with the facts presented, as were railroad counsel and others present.

Following the hearing, Secretary Sizemore went to New York where he held a conference with the eastern trunk line committee of the carriers, relative to securing the same reduction in freight rates on nursery stock, as has been accorded other agricultural products. Mr. Sizemore has written to the principal carriers and these efforts, together with the favorable impression made before the interstate commerce commission, it is hoped the nurserymen will obtain the relief desired in the near future.

Nursery Course at Amherst.

The nursery practice course given by the Massachusetts Agricultural college, Amherst, under the direction of Prof. Frank A. Waugh, chief of the division of horticulture, at the request of the New England Nurserymen's Association, January 2—March 10, was a success in every way and plans are being made to repeat the course in 1923. With the co-operation of the organization mentioned, the Massachusetts Nurserymen's Association and the Connecticut Nurserymen's Association, which made small appropriations to cover outside expenses, 25 pupils, the full quota, were enrolled, 18 of whom completed the course and made a splendid record. All of the students came from nurseries and some were proprietors of establishments.

The course followed the general plan of the regular 10-weeks' agricultural short course, long maintained by the college, having all the advantages and privileges of the latter, but with studies especially adapted to the needs of nursery workers. The subjects taught were (1) Horticultural Botany, the identification of plants, their correct names, the science of nomenclature, etc.; (2) Soils and Fertilizers, covering the origin of soils, soil types, soil moisture, tillage, organic matter, humus, fertilizers, home-mixing; (3) Propagation and Nursery Practice, seeding, cutting, grafting, layering, seed beds, transplanting, pruning, growing on, digging, packing; (4) Landscape Construction; how landscape plans are made and carried out, including grading, planting, roadmaking, etc.; (5) special lectures by practical nurserymen, covering such topics as advertising and selling, nomenclature, certification, special crops, etc.

Tree Census.

A tree census in Illinois counties is to be undertaken by the pupils of the rural schools, according to an announcement made recently by Edward J. Tobin, superintendent of Cook county schools.

Each enumerator will be given a classified list of trees native to this part of the country. On these lists they are to check off the number and species of trees growing on their parents' lots or farms. In this way it is hoped not only to interest the children in the flora of Illinois and in the preservation of trees as a natural resource, but to interest their parents as well.

Boston, Mass.

HEAVY VOLUME CURTAILS PRICES.

The market this week showed a marked decrease in price on roses and carnations which act as a barometer for other stock. The decline was not caused so much by lack of business as it was due to the heavy volume of stock arriving. A better tone is evident to the trade in general as the stores show a willingness to purchase in greater quantities. Midweek there was a slight glut in stock in general but this was all cleared away by Saturday. The automobile show opening March 11 was a factor in increased sales. Orchids, lily of the valley, gardenias and other specialties are hard to move at a fair price and often are sold away below what they really should bring. If trade does not get any worse during the Lenten season there will not be much cause for complaint.

Joseph O'Donnell has resigned his position with Dolansky, McDonald Co., to take charge of the sales department for Thos Roland.

BRISK TRADE REPORTED.

Business has been very good the past two weeks, the supply of stock being exceptional, due to the bright weather. Roses are at their best. Cyclamens are still arriving but of poor quality. Tulips, daffodils, hyacinths and Poetaz narcissi come in liberal quantities. Cinerarias, genistas and pot hyacinths and daffodils are in great demand.

PRIMULA OBCONICA BARRED AT HOSPITAL.

The General hospital, this city, recently sent a letter to all local florists prohibiting them from sending Primula obconica to any patient or inmate of that institution, because of alleged poisonous constituencies in the plant.

NOTES.

The Florists' Association meeting was held at the Osborn house, March 10. J. M. Campbell discussed the various phases of the "Say It With Flowers," slogan.

Harold Keller, son of J. M. Keller, is learning the growing end of the business at his father's greenhouses, on South avenue.

FRANCE'S rural population, as shown by the 1921 census, is 15,000,000, out of the approximate total population of 37,000,000.

THE best way to detect poison in canned goods is to submit the vegetables or other material to a competent bacteriologist.

In the vegetable markets, week ending March 13, shipments were heavy, potatoes and celery lower, cabbage weaker, onions, apples and sweet potatoes steady to firm.

UTAH is coming rapidly to the front as a canning state, and is specializing in fine qualities of peas, tomatoes and some fruits. The canners of that state are amply capitalized and their facilities are modern and efficient.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, March 14.—Cucumbers, per 2-dozen box, $3.50 to $4.25; head lettuce, per crate, $4.50 to $6; carrots, $4 to $5.50 per barrel; cabbage, $2 to $2.50 per hundred pound sack.

New York, March 10.—Cucumbers, $1.75 to $2.25 per dozen; mushrooms, per three-pound basket, 75 cents to $1.60; radishes, 100 bunches, $3 to $10; tomatoes, per pound, 35 to 40 cents; lettuce, one dozen bunches, $1 to $1.75; beet tops, per basket, $2; rhubarb, $1 to $2 per dozen bunches.

Rhubarb.

Rhubarb is a crop that has gone through some remarkable experiences in a few years. With the great scarcity of sugar and the prices for it during the war, rhubarb became almost unsalable during the war. Many growers plowed up their plantings and others failed to renew output. With the increased cost of labor and supplies, a new factor came into bearing—the high cost of strawberries. Slowly the market for strawberries advanced and tightened up until the price became almost prohibitive. The fact remains that we have three crops far apart in nature, yet close competitors on the market, namely rhubarb, apples and strawberries.

With sugar cheap and apples and berries high, rhubarb once more climbed into favor. We have for a number of years forced the crop under greenhouse benches to good advantage. Recently in looking over some figures we find that our under bench space has yielded as much, foot for foot, as any on top, with less actual labor and no additional charge for heat.

We plow out the roots late in the fall and pack them under the benches. When they start to sprout, we tack fertilizer sacks to the sides of the benches which are good in bleaching rhubarb. Thus we have two incomes from a given house. We also have some valuable potting soil, as those clumps of rhubarb are allowed to decay after exhaustion.

The beginning of the operation is to have the roots. We find that our poorest land will produce the roots if well fed with either manure or fertilizer. The roots are divided into one or two eyes and simply plowed in. We plan to have a good plowman and two extra men to lay the roots against the sides of the furrow and in every third furrow a row of roots are placed. This method is very simple and effective. Give clean culture and feed well for heavy growth. As a caution we would state never to divide the roots or attempt transplanting in the spring after growth has started. Plant in the autumn or early spring.

MARKED IMPROVEMENT NOTED.

Business has shown a marked improvement during the last month here. Many of the local retailers are holding special Saturday sales of roses and spring flowers, which not only encourages buying but also stimulates trade in general. Prices on roses have shown a decided decline since the advent of spring flowers on the market, and carnations are also down. Some excellent Columbia, Mrs. Chas. Russell, Premier and Butterfly are being offered here and the market cleans up daily. Some very fine snapdragon and large sweet peas find a ready sale. Calla lilies are good. Swainsona, daisies, calendula, jonquils, Easter lilies and violets constitute the variety of cut flowers. Bulbous plants move steadily. Cinerarias find a ready market, but cyclamen sell very slowly. Some very good narcissi, cut and in pots are offered.

NOTES.

The decorations for the opening of the large ready-to-wear store of G. W. Gates Co., were furnished by the Blossom Floral Co. and consisted of palms, ferns, and southern smilax and large floor baskets of Premier, Russell and Columbia roses on the three floors of the store. This firm also furnished 5,000 roses to this store which were given away at the opening as souvenirs.

The Doswell Floral Co. have had a good call for funeral work. They are showing some very good roses and spring stock. The wedding of George Doswell and Miss Mary Burton occurred last week, and was a quiet home affair.

Lanternier, Florist, is showing some fine bulbous stock. They report very good results from their Saturday special which they advertised as "Posey Day." Flowers sold so cheap that everybody could enjoy them.

Mrs. Alice Flick Shive of the Flick Floral Co. has been absent from the store for a week on account of illness. This firm reports business as good, with funeral work in the lead.

Trade visitors were representatives of H. H. Bayersdorfer, Philadelphia and American Clay Products Co., Zanesville, O.

Edw. Wenninghoff reports a lively sale of cut flowers and a good demand for funeral work.

FLOWERS IN BOUNTIFUL SUPPLY.

The supply of flowers has greatly improved, the demand keeping pace with it. The call is varied, one day all funeral work, the next for wedding stock, etc. Pot plants move well. Gypsy Smith, the noted evangelist, who is holding revival meetings here, featured a "Mothers' Day," March 3, and requested everyone attending to wear a white carnation. To the great disappointment of the trade the management of the services placed the order, amounting to 6,000 flowers, with a local department store. For several weeks this establishment has been receiving large lots of carnations and retailing them at 75 cents per dozen, which has cut into the regular business of the flower shops. The public had been informed that the carnations would be given free by the department store, but such was not the case. The stock arrived late and because the store was charging for them, the florists put several thousand on the market and did a land office business at 25 cents per flower. The trade enjoyed fine business in platform decorations, mostly pot plants, at the tabernacle, "Mothers' Day," consisting of tulips, cyclamens, etc.

NEW YORK SPRING SHOW.

Under the Auspices of the Horticultural Society
of New York and the New York Florists' Club.
Grand Central Palace, March 13-19.

Show Conspicuous Success.
The New York Spring Show, the opening days of which were fully covered in our issue of March 18, was truly a wonderful exhibition of plants and cut flowers and continued seven days until Sunday, March 19, with a record breaking attendance which exceeded that of any previous year. Commodious as are the dimensions of the Grand Central palace, it was not sufficient to give the various displays the necessary room to show them to the best advantage, as the space was completely taken up the first day, and many of the cut flower exhibits on the balcony, while still at their best, had to be moved and massed together to make room for table decorations, displays of cut roses, sweet peas, carnations, etc., that were scheduled to keep up the interest and provide new attractions for each day in the week.
Roses.

The Wednesday features were the private growers' table decorations and the commercial growers' decorative groups of 1,000 cut roses. There were three entries in this latter display, which was staged on the main floor, each of great excellence. The exhibitors were F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., and Traendly & Schenck, New York. The judges, after repeated inspections, awarded the first prize to Traendly & Schenck. The display was exceptionally well arranged and had rather the best location, being a trifle wider and not so deep as the others. The rear vases stood at least 15 feet in height, with the others, 14 in all, graduated to the front foreground, the central feature of which was a large vase of Francis Scott Key. Other kinds were Premier, Double White Killarney, Crusader, Ophelia, and sports of the same, Columbia and three low vases in front of Mrs. Aaron Ward, and a sport of the latter kind, named Suffragette. The floor of this space was attractively covered with blue cheese cloth. Palms, ferns and ivies were artistically placed about the feet of the pedestals and vases. A broad, white ribbon along the front, looped on low white standards, gave a pretty finish to this very decorative group, which was arranged by Wm. T. Homburg, of G. E. M. Stump's, New York.

The A. N. Pierson, Inc., entry, that was awarded second prize, made a handsome showing. The rear vases of roses were also placed very high, with the four to five-foot stemmed stock, arranged to the best advantage and in their mass of separate color so placed to get the most harmonious effect. The floor of the area was covered with green crepe paper. Cibotiums, Farleyense and other ferns were used to good advantage in decorative effect. A large piece of bronze velvet gracefully trailing on the floor from the central vase of magnificent Dark Pink Columbias, gave a good color effect to this beautiful setting, which was done in George E. M. Stump's best style. Varieties of roses were Double White Killarney, Ophelia, Premier, Butterfly, Columbia, Dark Pink Columbia, Pilgrim and Crusader, 12 vases in all.
F. R. Pierson's exhibit contained 900 fine specimen roses, arranged in tall Japanese vases. The effect here while rich and elegant, was not as decorative as in the other groups as all the rose stems were placed deep in the water, to last for several days and the various vases stood more on a level and in a measure hid one another in the somewhat limited space. There was a beautiful setting of adiantum and crested ferns. Varieties were Francis Scott Key, Premier, Crusader, Ophelia, Columbia, Butterfly and Mrs. F. C. Henderson.

Table Decorations.

The private growers' table decorations were, in the nine entries singularly alike, all the roses used being Ophelia or its sports, and each arranged in a tall slender silver vase for the center with four low vases at equal distances apart near the foot. All the tables were set with the necessary china, candelabra, etc.

The display of cut roses, Tuesday, March 14, by commercial growers, was rather limited although the quality was fine. It is worthy of note that there was but one vase of American Beauties, very choice blooms, entered by Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C. The vase of Souvenir Cladius Pernet, exhibited by the Chas. H. Totty Co., of Madison, N. J., was sensational in its wonderful yellow coloring and was awarded a gold medal. The roses of the Duckham-Pierson Co., showed exceptional culture as did the vase of Francis Scott Key of F. R. Pierson. Another striking vase was the Dark Pink Columbia of A. N. Pierson, Inc., a wonderful color. The large gardens improved daily, the shrubbery and bulbous stock opening out and adding its wealth of color almost the same as if outdoors. It seemed hard to realize that such wonderful outdoor landscape effects could be carried out in such a confined space.

On Friday, March 17, there was again competition in roses consisting of vases of 150 and 50 blooms by commercial roses, which brought out exceptionally good stock, noteworthy being American Beauties by Paul M. Pierson, Briarcliff, N. Y. The Bedford Flower Co., Bedford Hills, N. Y., took first prize with 50 Pilgrims in the class of "any other disseminated pink," and second with Double White Killarney, for 100 any disseminated white. A. N. Pierson, Inc., was awarded a first prize in the latter class, and received a blue ribbon for 100 Madame Butterfly. Among other prize winners L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J., received a first for exceptionally well done Hadley.

Thursday, March 16, was carnation day in cut flowers and brought out excellent exhibits, both in the commercial and private growers' classes. In the former, the Springfield Floral Co., for which Wm. Saville is the grower, was quite successful, taking the first prize for the display covering 150 square feet and containing 1,000 to 1,500 blooms. Several other first prizes were taken by this concern. S. J. Goddard of Framingham, Mass., received a first award for 100 Laddies, which we believe came from Mr. Goddard's range and he certainly knows how to grow them.

Strouts, Inc., Biddeford, Me., represented by H. W. Libby, was awarded a first for a handsome yellow kind. My Welcome, a light pink, shown by Hession, of Flatbush, Brooklyn, N. Y., was displayed to advantage and was the center of admiration by the throngs of visitors. It will be disseminated next year jointly, by Hession and the Springfield Floral Co.

The private estates also made fine displays in carnations. Mrs. Payne Whitney, Manhasset, L. I.; Mrs. Arnold Schlaet, of Saugatuck, Conn.; Mrs. W. D. Guthrie, of Locust Valley, N. Y.; Mrs. L. L. Dunham, of Madison, N. J.; Mrs. Robert Mallory, of Port Chester, N. Y.; Mrs. F. A. Constable, of Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Mrs. F. E. Lewis, of Ridgefield, Conn., were all prize winners.

The $25 prize for a vase of 150 blooms was won by Jos. E. Widener, Elkins Park, Pa., which were magnificent. Wm. Kleinheinz, the gardener for the Widener estate, is a well known attendant at flower shows and was one of the jurors this year, having often acted in that capacity.

Sweet Peas.

The competition in sweet peas was keen and many beautiful displays delighted the eye of the visitor. In the class covering 100 square feet there were two entries: The W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and Herman Mamitsch & Son, Tenaflly, N. J. Variety and excellent stock marked both exhibits, but it is hard to beat an old hand like Geo. Kerr, grower for the Burpee company, in arrangement, and first prize was awarded to that concern. Herman Mamitsch & Son showed a pretty pink, named Miss Jennie Mamitsch, which they consider a pink without a peer.

The exhibits of sweet peas by private growers, though not extensive, were very good. Mrs. W. Redmond Cross, Morristown, N. J., (C. A. Sailer, gardener), won a blue ribbon for a fine display covering 25 square feet. Mrs. W. D. Guthrie won second prize for a collection of six varieties, 25 sprays each. In the class of 100 sprays, one or more varieties, Mrs. F. E. Lewis won first and Mrs. W. Redmond Cross, second prize.

The artistic church chancel, by Wilson, Florist, Brooklyn, in which the flowers and decorative scheme was changed daily was much admired and had great educational value. The tea garden in the west gallery became so crowded both afternoons and evenings that the doors were frequently closed to relieve the congestion.

The only entries, Saturday March 18, were table decorations by private growers, with miscellaneous flowers. Andrew Strachan, Yonkers, N. Y., was awarded first prize; S. Goldring, Morristown, N. J., second, and Thos. Ajtcheson, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., third.

NEW YORK SPRING SHOW.

Traendly & Schenck's Five Hundred Dollar Prize Exhibit Roses, Arranged by Wm. T. Homburg.

NEW YORK SPRING SHOW.
F. R. Pierson's Landscape and Julius Roehrs Co.'s Rock Garden.

Secretary Young, Manager Herrington, Chas. H. Totty, and all other members of the trade including the principal exhibitors who gave so much of their time and energy to working up this beautiful exhibition are to be congratulated on its great success. In fact the florists of the entire country are indebted to them for blazing the way and showing what is possible in every large city in the land. All that is required is organization. There is abundant material for such displays which if worked out on a large scale will be royally supported by the public.

Financial Success.

After a most successful week the doors of the Grand Central palace closed at 10:30 p. m., March 19. While many good features of the show were outlined in last week's issue it could not then be foretold what the ultimate results would be. We can now authoritatively state that in attendance and financial receipts the exhibition was a great success. While there was a considerable attendance on the opening day no large receipts were expected, but in the following five days the attendance and box office receipts were most satisfactory. On at least one day $10,000 in cash was taken at the box office and another totaled over $9,000. It is a conservative estimate that the total receipts for the five days ending the night of March 18 reached $40,000, or more. There was a fair attendance, Sunday, March 19, but for obvious reasons it was not expected to be a big day. When it is considered that every foot of space and a considerable number of trade tickets were sold, it will be seen that there is no exaggeration in our claims.

Notes of the Show.

It takes some time to grasp all the good points in a show of the extent of this one. Taking a second view of the orchid display we were impressed with the beauty of two specimen plants of cymbidiums exhibited by the Jos. A. Manda Co., each being awarded a gold medal. One was of great size, being in a 15-inch pot, and both bore a wealth of beautiful flowers.

By permission of the first lady of the land, A. N. Pierson, Inc., has named a dark pink Columbia rose, Mrs. Warren G. Harding. A huge vase of them was exhibited and attracted much attention.

What might almost be called a novelty in these days was an exhibit of camellia blooms by W. R. Coe, Oyster Bay, N. Y.

The trade exhibitors get no prizes and yet they are a hard working company and their wares greatly add to the novel features of an exhibition.

The seedsmen and nurserymen are always in the large shows, make fine exhibits and usually get a good share of publicity.

In this show, practically all the machinery, tools and other requisites for outdoor and indoor horticulture were exhibited. There were other displays that if not exactly in these lines were nevertheless interesting, some of them amusing.

As an instance of the latter, G. D. Lilly, Darien, Conn., who had space for birds, exhibited two large parrots of gay plumage and their performances gave great joy to the children and even some of the grown-ups.

The E. F. Hodson Co., Boston, Mass., and New York, had portable houses, even the dogs and birds being provided with a clever feeding arrangement.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica distributed a leaflet bearing an illustration of Darlingtonia Californica, "the plant that eats insects."

The foregoing may read like gossip, but we would impress the point that the trade as well as the prize exhibits are both educational and interesting and we believe that the wares of the trade exhibitors are brought to the attention of thousands of people that would never elsewhere see them. In conclusion, we send greetings to our friends who are now assembling at Indianapolis with the wish that the Fifth National Flower Show may be a great success.

Additional Trade Exhibits.

PLANT NOTES.

Bedding Stock.

The general florist will now have his hands full with bedding stock which should now be spread out and given the necessary room. The geraniums should be spaced and if any have grown too tall to make shapely plants the tops should be cut back, but at the present day the trade wants a geranium in bloom at bedding time and very little pinching should be done after the first of April, for it will take from then until the first of June to produce a new branch with a flower. Ageratum, alternantheras, alyssums, heliotropes and like blooming plants should be kept on the move and be given good, light positions. Salvia should be kept pinched back until the latter part of the month which should produce fine shapely plants. The coleus should be rooted and the top rubbed out as soon as established in the pots. Seedlings should be potted or flatted, the former preferred if a price can be obtained commensurate for the extra labor, but if flatted give them room enough to develop properly. Cannas will now require a warm, light location and plenty of root room. The one great factor in growing good bedding stock is, at this season, to keep the plants moving and never allow them to get a check, for if once severely checked a good plant is an impossibility.

Potting Young Stocks.

At this season of the year the plant grower will have thousands of young seedlings to pot or place in flats and as many more to shift from a small pot to a larger size, and it does not seem that any instruction in potting should be necessary, but we chanced not long ago to see a boy potting and wondered if the plants would live and we then saw in the houses many of the plants which had been potted struggling for existence. It seems to be the general idea with the young gardener that the one that can pot the most plants in a given time is the smartest, regardless how well it is done and how the plants afterward grow. The young man whom we saw would fill the pot full and then make a hole in the soil with his finger, place the seedling in the hole and then press the top soil around the stem. The chances were that the roots of many of those plants were still hanging in an enclosed hole in the center of the pot, for the soil should have been firmed around the roots. That he could handle a large number of plants in a given time was no question, but a much better plant can be grown if the soil is made firm around the roots first and then the top firmed down. The same thing happens in transplanting where the loose soil is thrown around between the plant and the pot and the top then firmed down. A little soil should be first thrown in the bottom of the pot and the plant placed in this, then a little soil around the plant which should be firmed down, then a little more soil which can be pressed down from the top. This will take longer, but the plant will live and grow enough better to pay for the extra pains.

Hardy Roses.

The rose bed should be pruned and then spaded as early as possible after the ground has opened and if the canes have been buried the covering removed and the canes cut back. To properly prune a bed of hybrid perpetual roses is a careful, painstaking piece of work. This work if too often done in a careless, haphazard manner, and by many every variety is cut back alike. To get the best results a study of the varieties is necessary, for instance, strong growing varieties like General Jacqueminot and Magna Charta can be cut back and the small wood cut out much more severely than Prince Camille de Rohan or Mme. Gabriel Luizet. When pruning it is first necessary to determine whether quantity or quality is the most to be desired. If quantity is wanted more wood can be left and six to eight eyes left on the canes. If quality is the main object this must be obtained at the expense of quantity, and the strong canes only retained and these cut to two or three eyes, depending on how the eyes are located. The top eye that is left should be pointed out from main stem so that when the growths start they will not crowd toward the center. This will allow of plenty of room for development and a good circulation of air through the plant. After bushes are pruned the soil should be spaded good and deep and leveled off.

Peonies.

As soon as the frost is out of the ground the peony bed should be forked or spaded in, but let this be done by a careful man, or at least not by help that knows nothing about this work. The young growths start very early and are very tender so it is best not to fork too closely to the crowns, but loosen up all the soil around the plants. It is also well to leave the stems covered as deep as they have been all winter, for a sharp frost may injure a stem that has been protected through the severe winter and then subjected to sharp cold. But the loosening of the soil to good depth will conserve the moisture and allow the air to get into the soil. If the plants were not mulched with manure in the fall it is well to spread some old manure, not fresh, on the beds before spading and fork it in.

NEW YORK SPRING SHOW.
Garden of Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J.

Although the fall is the best time to transplant peonies, yet, if not done and it is desired or necessary to move them, they can be transplanted early in the spring, but this must be done before the growths are above the surface of the ground and as much soil left about the roots as possible. These plants make their young roots in the fall and if any attempt is made to shake the soil off, the roots will be broken doing this. Divisions must therefore be carefully made, so as not to disturb the roots more than possible. The dry roots that are purchased at this time are much better planted in pots or boxes until the roots are formed in the soil and later transplanted to the ground. It cannot be expected that plants of this kind will produce any flowers this year, for it will only be possible to get them established in their new location the first season.

Telegraph Delivery Business.

One retail florist says he kept eight trucks busy all day, delivering St. Valentine flowers, and in addition had to take his private car and deliver 40 packages himself to get the store cleaned out before closing time. Since the inauguration of the Telegraph Delivery Association, this retailer says he is sending out double the amount of flowers formerly delivered.

WITH THE GROWERS

Indiana and Tennessee Growers.

Recently having occasion to visit Nashville, Tenn., we stopped off at Louisville, Ky., to make train connections and called upon our friend, Jacob Schulz, on Fourth avenue. Mr. Schulz reported that business has been very good all winter and as far as that city was concerned none of the florists had reasons for complaint. His nursery business is increasing every day and showed a marked improvement compared with the same period in 1921.

Mr. Schulz kindly took us by automobile to New Albany, Ind., just across the river from Louisville, where the range of Anders Rasmussen is located. We first entered the offices and then passed on to the large packing rooms, where the cut flowers are brought, sorted and then placed in large ice boxes, conveniently arranged. One noticeable feature of this large establishment of 275,000 square feet of glass is that every available foot of space is utilized and making money. Several houses were producing a good crop of lettuce, planted in chrysanthemum houses. We also noted several thousand Grand Rapids' tomato plants, to follow up the lettuce. Carnations were somewhat off crop, although in a good healthy condition and should be in heavy crop by Easter.

Roses were in very good crop and in fine condition. Premier was being cut heavily, which Mr. Rasmussen informed was his favorite rose. More of this kind is grown than any other sort, with Columbias a close second. A few White Killarney was seen but is to be replaced by Angelus. Mr. Rasmussen has strong convictions that the Killarney family is a back number, as a forcing rose.

It was dark when we motored to Mr. Rasmussen's new home, some four miles distant from his greenhouses. We wondered if the intervening space was utilized for residences, but soon discovered the reason for his building his home such a distance away from his business. The house is built on the top of a hill and has a commanding view from every angle as far as the eye can see, with beautiful natural scenery surrounding his 35-acre farm. About $4,000 worth of evergreens and flowering shrubs were used to beautify the lawn. A pipe organ in one of the large living rooms is a feature of Mr. Rasmussen's beautiful home.

We bade Mr. Rasmussen and wife good-bye, and the following morning found us in Nashville, Tenn. Our first call was at the Joy Floral Co.'s store and we found them almost buried with funeral work. Asking our genial friend, Thomas Joy, if they were always that busy the only reply was that they were usually pretty busy. The Joy store is located at one of the busiest corners in the business district and is 24x110 feet, giving them ample room for their increasing business. The front of the shop was made very attractive with boxes, mostly birch, filled with spring bulbous stock. Roses were artistically arranged in the windows. On the second floor were well arranged rooms for storing tissue paper, ribbons, stationery, etc. All plants are received through the side door in the basement where they are prepared for sale and then loaded on an elevator and taken to the main floor. When disposed of the plants are returned to the basement and loaded on trucks for delivery. Much of the material stored in the basement comes in carload lots, such as moss, boxes, wire designs, etc. We noticed some 500 or 600 mossed wreaths and asked Mr. Joy the reason. He stated that some days they receive an order for 200 or 300 wreaths and at such a time they do not care to be bothered by mossing, so the work is done during spare moments.

Mr. Joy was kind enough to take us to their large greenhouse establishment, which is big enough to supply their Nashville, Chattanooga, Tenn., and Atlanta, Ga., flower shops. Sweet peas were in the best possible condition and in all stages of growth—from plants just up to very fine stock ready for cutting. Many thousands of Easter lilies were coming along in splendid condition as were 75,000 cyclamens. Nearly 1,000 hanging baskets with Boston ferns, filled last autumn were a pretty sight. Several hundred orchids were noticed but none were in bloom at the time of our visit. Adiantums are grown here in quantity.

We were anxious to see the new white carnation, Thomas C. Joy, of which we have all read and heard so much. Judging from its appearance no one will regret investing in this perfectly free flowering carnation, for it has all the appearances of a good commercial white. Fifty thousand more cuttings were sold than was expected earlier in the season and this number was taken from the blooming plants which should be in flower at this time. Another seedling carnation showed up prominently, a dark pink, a shade lighter than Mrs. C. W. Ward. It has been named Natalie and has a very good stem, good clear color and is a wonderfully clean grower.

We then went to the new rose section, consisting of five houses built two years ago, each $31\frac{1}{2} \times 500$ feet and another one $31\frac{1}{2} \times 350$ feet, all of steel construction. The roses are all on cement benches, supported by cement posts and producing in a way that would make any rose grower proud. Premier, Columbia, Milady, Butterfly and Aaron Ward are the principal kinds. Mr. Joy is a believer in grafted stock as many thousands of plants were already in various stages of development.

Geny Bros.' greenhouses were also visited. A general line of stock is grown here to supply their well conducted store in the city. A very large batch of cinerarias were noticeable, also several houses of sweet peas, producing a fine crop of blooms. Altogether our visit at Nashville was very pleasant, and we will always have the most pleasant recollections of the kindly treatment accorded us by the Joys and Geny Bros.

W. W. C.

John Andre, Doylestown, Pa.

BUILDING HOUSES IN MID-WINTER.

The growing of roses for cut flowers is a distinct branch of the florist business in which to be successful one must have knowledge gained from experience. John Andre is counted one of the best rose growers in the Philadelphia district, which city is his market. He succeeded to the business on the death of his father some years ago and has so well managed the establishment that the glass area has been almost doubled.

No additions have been made since the period immediately preceding the war but in order to make up for lost time and be ready for the prosperous times coming, Mr. Andre is now adding a series of ridge and furrow greenhouses, 35×108 feet, which will make one large structure, 108×350 feet. The houses are built perfectly level but on ground which slopes cross-ways of each section, there being a fall of 16 feet from top to bottom of the range, an average of two feet in each house. While the gutters, seven feet, six inches above the ground floor of the house, are level, there are openings one-third the distance from each end that carry the rain water into submerged main drains that conduct it outside.

The work of erecting the houses has been going on steadily since December, 1921, there being no letup, except in very inclement weather. The iron gutter posts are sunk four feet in concrete and the inside column post two feet in the same material. The first house at the bottom of the slope was finished January 1 and was partitioned off or closed in with a temporary board partition. The steam was turned on, the ground thawed out and the house now contains young rose stock, with which the range will be planted as soon as finished.

Bulb Box Baby Carriage.

American Bulb Co.'s Bulb Case at Helena, Mont.

Three more sections are now glazed and are being temporarily boarded up so that they can be heated to thaw out the ground, one foot of which in depth is to be removed. Then ground beds will be made with 12-inch board sides in which there is to be a drainage of six inches of ashes topped with the same thickness of good soil. There are continuous ventilators on both sides of the ridge and glazing is done with 16×24 -inch glass.

Two 100-horse-power boilers, added to the original plant, furnish the heat for the new addition. One 6-inch main, 250 feet in length, entirely outside the houses, is supported six feet above the ground on iron braces. This is enclosed with heavy, three-ply asbestos, outside of which is a covering of rubberoid coated with tar, which insulation appears perfect, as the outer lining is cold to the touch. On entering the house at the far end on a level with the gutters this main is reduced to a 4-inch to which are attached the radiator pipes, one each side of the ground beds and one on either side of the gutters. The condensation returns to the boilers entirely by gravity the slope of the ground being such and the boilers set six feet below the lowest ground level, that the circulation is rapid and perfect.

All roses are on own roots. Varieties grown are Columbia, Premier and Double White Killarney. To these will be added Butterfly and Golden Ophelia. Intensive culture is the rule here, all roses being planted 10 inches apart each way. The stock in the old houses could not look much better and in its close planting did not seem overcrowded and must be turning out many more flowers than stock, 12 inches each way. Two additional houses 35×108 feet are to be added at the entrance to the place which will run the total glass area to over 105,000 square feet. It is expected the large range will be finished the third week in March, and the two additional houses, May 1.

These houses are being built by the Metropolitan Material Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., which claims that houses can be erected at any time of the year, those finished in time for spring planting, having a great advantage over others not ready until autumn. A large barn which had to be bodily moved to make room for the houses is to be turned into a garage, cold storage and packing room.

Mr. Andre is to be congratulated on his enterprise, as most growers would have been afraid to face the inclement weather, but he has demonstrated that it is practical and will have the houses full of growing plants when others are starting to build.

Bickley Greenhouses, Wallingford, Pa.

When Milton H. Bickley, of Chester, Pa., a prominent druggist with a love for flowers, attached a conservatory to his dwelling so that he could grow and enjoy them to his heart's content, he had no idea of raising flowers commercially or that he would some day have over $100,000 invested in modern greenhouse ranges for this purpose. Opening a small store for the sale of cut flowers in Chester he built several houses at his country place at Wallingford to supply the stock. The venture proving successful he kept adding new houses until there is upwards of 100,000 square feet of glass devoted to carnations, Easter lilies, Christmas and Easter stocks, and the forcing of Dutch bulbs for cutting.

The two largest houses are filled with carnations, one containing 15,000 Wards and another much larger, planted with 28,000 plants in variety. Easter lilies are a quantity product the center of a large house being filled with L. formosum, and a side bench of L. giganteum, all planted out for cutting. Another house contains 12,000 in pots, giganteums for Easter, all being very even and particularly healthy. Twenty thousand cold storage giganteums had been forced through the winter, the last now commencing to show buds. Geraniums are largely grown for spring sales.

A range of three houses on the ridge and furrow plan, each 28×202 feet, erected last summer were, Mr. Bickley considered, ideal as to size and general convenience for working. In one there are two ground beds of callas, each six feet in width, and the length of the house that would be hard to duplicate for vigor and quantity of bloom. Easter lilies, hydrangeas and pot ramblers roses for Easter filled the balance of the houses. Hydrangeas in 4-inch pots are grown in quantity, there being a great demand for this size for plant baskets at Easter. A 200-foot propagating house was filled with carnations nearly all ready to pot. Several large blocks of Mrs. C. W. Wards were features of this stock. The quota of carnation cuttings for this year is 90,000.

One of the most useful facilities is a large storage shed, 36×235 feet; this has large windows every 15 feet on each side with a continuous row of sash ventilators on either side of the center of the roof or ridge. There are steam pipes around the sides for heat, when necessary. Bulbous stock is brought in here for thawing out and the first stages of forcing. It is useful for storing any kind of stock and for holding plants back at Easter. At one end is a carpenter shop with a circular saw run by a gasoline engine. Nearly all the mechanical work of the place, including the building of greenhouses, is done by his own men. A house is filled with chrysanthemum stock plants which are largely grown for an autumn crop.

NEW YORK SPRING SHOW.
Yonkers Nursery Co.'s Terrace Garden.

Mr. Bickley imports all his bulbous stock and each lot is marked with the name of the firm from whom it came until it is cut. He is forcing this year 40,000 Emperor daffodils, 20,000 bicolor, 100,000 Trumpet Major narcissi, 150,000 Darwin tulips and 100,000 other tulips.

Water is supplied under pressure from a 28,000-gallon submerged iron tank into which it is pumped from an adjoining pond by electric power, which automatically begins to work when the pressure falls to 25 pounds and stops when it reaches 60 pounds. A concrete tank for manure water of 8,000 gallons capacity, submerged between two of the houses, is operated with a one horse power electric motor and pump which forces the liquid through the regular water pipes and hose with such force that four men can be applying it at the same time.

Mr. Bickley is justly proud of his whole establishment which is ideal in all its appointments and in his system of cost accounting and revenues by means of which he keeps an accurate knowledge of every crop and just what each house pays for the year.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

As these Lenten days progress the fact that Easter is coming should be kept constantly in mind and every spare moment possible given to preparation for this important event. Greenhouse stocks are now almost forward enough to judge of their quality, and the list of the various items and their quantities should be carefully made out in order to have enough for the business expected, and, particularly guard against an overstock. In going about amongst the Easter stocks there is always a temptation to overbuy, to avoid which it is imperative to stick strictly to the schedule as arranged.

Quality in the various selections is of the greatest importance; the well finished, timed to the minute stock, its best on day of sale, is seldom found in the surplus of the day after. There is also a tendency to buy too many high priced plants which if not sold cut deeply into the profits.

The selection of plant baskets which are now such an important feature of the Easter stock should be given attention, many florists adopting new styles and colors each season which gives their line a distinctive appearance not seen in other shops. It is best to have the selections made and color decided upon well in advance, so they shall be on hand and ready for instant use when required.

There should also be a full line of wreaths of prepared magnolia and oak leaves ready for decorating with fresh flowers for use in the cemetery. Having these made up well in advance avoids much of the drudgery and night work of this busy time. There are many other details of this event which can be worked out now and much valuable time saved later on.

Everything possible should now be done to encourage transient trade. As the better spring days come along people are more in the humor of buying, and flowers and plants must be placed before them in such an inviting way as to be sure to attract their attention. They must in a sense be forced on them or displayed so strikingly that even the usually disinterested passersby will stop to observe.

BE ON TIME WITH ORDERS.

To be always on time is a feature of the business that is not kept to the front as its importance deserves. Customers greatly appreciate punctuality in the delivery of their orders. Many an important customer has been lost by continued dilatory deliveries. There may be excuses for an occasional slip but when madam comes to arrange her table and finds the flowers ordered for an hour before, not there, or the re-filled fernery missing, her call over the phone is not very gracious and is pretty sure to be spoken of when the next order is given.

In filling orders for cut flowers do not take chances; be certain that the stock is absolutely fresh and also that it has been in water long enough to have the stems and flowers well filled up. A little leaflet on the proper handling of cut flowers in the warm rooms of the dwelling; how they should be removed to a cool place free from draft at night, and that if any should become wilted to wrap them in paper and place in deep jars of water in a cool place, is very effective at this time, as are instructions that vases be kept full of water into which the stems are quite deeply inserted, etc. This leaflet should be placed in every box sent out and will be greatly appreciated by the recipient.

A line of ferneries and table ferns should be featured frequently; when nicely filled they are always admired and bring to mind the dish at home that sadly needs filling and the order for its renewal is given. To acquire a reputation for well filled and long lasting ferneries is certainly worth while. Many a fine customer has been secured permanently because of this superior service.

Little things count, such as keeping the boutonniere idea alive by always having a carnation or a few corn flowers for the lapel of the gentleman customer when he calls, or a little Colonial bouquet with its paper edge for the special ladies to whom you may be under obligation. These are also quite salable when made up and nicely displayed.

A small table with a white cloth nicely decorated as for a luncheon will be certain to attract attention. This can be used to show various arrangements and color effects that will result in orders later on.

Frequently one's time appears so taken up that there is not a minute to spare and many important things are postponed from day to day for want of the necessary half hour required. Much time can be conserved by planning ahead or laying out today, the programme for tomorrow. Time is most valuable. A great deal can be accomplished in a half hour and much more in an hour, which time can be frequently saved by a systematic arrangement of the day's work.

The outside decoration of a box of flowers takes but a moment or two and but little material yet the effect adds much to its value to the recipient and incidentally to the store's service.

Art in Floral Arrangements.

Addressed by S. A. Frost, Toronto, Ont., before the Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association, at Peterboro, Ont.

Art, as I understand it, means a system of rules and established methods to facilitate the performance of certain actions with familiarity of such principles and skill in applying them to an end or purpose, such as making a floral design. The first item of importance when you are making up a design, is that the recipient does not discover some part unfinished that would offset the beauty of the flowers, or the excellence of the work. You don't want your customer to see rusty wire, moss exposed, unsightly tooth-picks, a beautiful design with the back uncovered, tin-foil showing, etc. The florist or designer should at all times try to protect our profession by attending to the little points of detail that go towards making what we call "Art in Floral Arrangement."

I shall endeavor in my demonstration to more fully point out these errors of omission. Co-operation in floral arrangement is the key to success, you must learn by experience or from one another. There is no school, college or correspondent course; no other way but by practical experience. What knowledge I possess was gained this way. I had no one to teach me. Select a system, work at it, prove that it is practical, and then adopt it as your own. Teach your help, whether it be he or she, who you think is most likely to take an interest in your business. If they find out you know how, they will endeavor to follow your lead, and as they succeed, they will take a greater interest in you and your business. If I was making a design or arrangement of flowers and was called away my clerks could take hold and finish without any explanation from myself other than color and price of the order in question.

In figuring out the worth of a design we calculate the moss frame, time and all other accessories necessary in making up the same. In calculating the flowers that are used we figure on the value of what the flowers are made to appear. Experience will teach you almost at a glance what to do for the money allowed. In explanation of the above, the idea I mean to convey is, if you can make a No. 3 flower look equal to a No. 1 kind, that is the real value of the flower in the design. If you use a system in all your arrangements, your work is always the same; it matters not what you use if you carry out your system and combination softening and arrangement according to the flowers you have in stock or the flowers that should be used.

Sometimes your customers will insist on picking out the flowers; in that case you must do the best you can as it is your duty to cater to the public and to please them if possible. This only happens once in a while, in fact, for some years we have had very few customers dictate to us what we should put in a design, but in most cases leave it entirely to our own judgment.

I had occasion to make up a design some time ago in the wilds. It was in the month of November when the temperature was very low. There were no flowers of any account but everlasting, club moss and small hardy vines, etc. However, there were quite a number of men to please. They asked me, being the only florist there, what I could do and I suggested a harp and a gates-ajar. I asked them all to go out into the woods and get what looked like flowers. When the boys came back they brought all kinds of dried flowers, foliage and natural mosses and vines, so I had an abundance of material. I also got an axe and cut down a couple of silver birch trees, and made the frame of a gates-ajar. I formed the pillars and arch and steps with birch bark limbs. The gates were made with pussy-willows, removing the husks off the catkins. Of course I had to use hammer, nails and saw, which is a little different from the usual routine of designing. I also made a harp, the frame being made of silver birch limbs suitable in size. The strings were made of pussy-willows, and of course I arranged green moss, hard-vines everlasting flowers and foliage.

Now I had quite a contrast, I had to please them all. I used something out of the material that every man brought in so as to make them all feel that their bit was not in vain. Not only that, but I carried out every suggestion that any one of them made. This was noticed by some of them, and at the same time I made the arrangement satisfactory to all. I just mentioned this to show that we should always be able to demonstrate our ability to make a design wherever we may be, no matter what material may be at hand, if we profess to be a practicable florist or designer.

MAKING A WREATH.

If you will give me your kind attention I will now demonstrate to you what is my idea of how a wreath should be made, that being the most common of all the designs in use in the trade. The first thing to be done, as you all know, is to moss the wreath, which is the foundation of your design, and like all other foundations must be properly laid. Sphagnum moss is the best known to the trade. Next we will arrange green wax paper in such a manner as to assist in shaping up the moss, keeping streamers from hanging unsightly in view. The proper system in mossing a wreath is to gather the moss up in your hands completing the section of frame according to the amount of moss gathered up, and roll to and fro, working your finger on the inside of the frame, and the thumb next to the outer edge till you get it to the proper firmness and shape, taking care that the moss contains the proper moisture.

As we all know, the moss is not only to hold the flowers in their place, but is the means of conveying the necessary moisture to keep the flowers fresh as long as possible. To obtain that result be sure you insert the stem well into the moss. This is one of the most important points. Now that we have our frame all ready for the flowers, how are we to put them in? First I will arrange cedar evergreen, binding the fronds as I go along with thread, completely covering the back of the wreath. Now we are ready for the real work.

I commence with what evergreens are going to use, and for this demonstration I am proving to you that I am a Canadian by using what I consider to be the prettiest of all evergreens, our own Canadian cedar. Follow me as I percolate these fronds through the moss at an angle corresponding with the shape of the design and at the same time making each frond look as if it came from the centre of the moss.

The flowers that I have stemmed ready for use in this demonstration are prepared in this manner: My longest stem flowers are stemmed with a wire six inches long; the next length is five inches, the next four inches and the shortest stems on toothpicks. In other words, the best flowers are stemmed up the longest, the next grade shorter and the poorest are worked in underneath.

Now, I take my longest flowers, and arrange them at the same angle as the cedar fronds, filling in with the second size, then the third length and finishing up with the shortest flowers on toothpicks, the object being to make it appear as if the flowers were coming from a given point, and also conveying the impression that two garlands of flowers have been put together, coming from the said given point. All designs that we make are all on the same principle, that is, every flower but what is used in solid work, is made to appear as if it were coming from a certain invisible point. Last, but not least, be sure to spray your design before you send it out.

Now, if you are not weary, I will demonstrate to you how to make a basket of flowers look as if they grew there. In the first place, don't forget what I said in the beginning about system; the same must be applied to obtain the result of my object. All flowers must come from a given centre. You will note no two objective flowers are arranged the same height, but are all graduating from a common centre, and thereby giving the effect that they were not put there, but grew. Now, in this demonstration you will notice that I have used the commonest of flowers and basket obtainable in the endeavor to prove to you the efficacy of my system.

LEXINGTON, KY.—The John A. Keller Co., has increased its capital from $2,500 to $18,000.

THE S. A. F.

College Florists' Section.

The college florists' section, of the Society of American Florists will meet Wednesday morning at nine o'clock, March 29, Indianapolis, during National Flower Show week. The place of the meeting has not been definitely determined and information concerning it can be secured by asking at the information desk in the Exhibition building.

A. S. THURSTON, Chairman,
College Florists' Section.

Fifth National Flower Show.

Arrangements for the opening of the Fifth National Flower Show are wholly complete, and on the afternoon of Saturday, March 25, will be disclosed an exposition that has required many months of preparation, and has had to face problems which it is hoped no future exposition of this kind will be called upon to solve.

There has been much to favor Indianapolis, in the selection of an emergency city, principal among which has been the assurance of a whole-hearted working force, which, of course, must be locally organized. Reference need only be made to the list of local committees to realize how the whole trade of the city and outlying districts rallied to the call of the Society of American Florists and made the flower show a possibility in spite of contingencies which threatened to put the show back at least a year.

RAILROAD RATES.

Members of the society and co-operating interests, in fact, all in the trade intending to visit the show should ask for a certificate at the time of purchasing railroad tickets, even though personal savings might be slight. There must be a certain number of certificates presented to the secretary in order to insure the fare and one-half concession. It may be that the straight fare is only one dollar or less, but in getting a certificate the longer distance brother is benefitted, and it is a kindly act to fulfill personal obligations in the circumstances.

REDUCED FARES FROM CANADA.

Since the announcement of the reduced rates over American territory, the Canadian Passenger Association has advised us that the same concession will be made from all points in Canada east of and including Armstrong, Port Arthur and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., selling dates March 22 to 28, return journey limit April 5. Canadian visitors also should ask for a certificate when purchasing tickets.

ADDITIONAL SPECIAL PREMIUMS.

Supplementary open classes have been subscribed by the following members of the State Florists' Association of Indiana: John Grande & Sons; C. H. Schwoeyer, W. C. Hamant, E. A. Nelson, H. W. Rieman & Sons; Smith & Young Co.; John Heidenreich, Pahud Floral Co.; Reopke Floral Co.; Bertermann Bros. Co.; C. R. Greene, Temperley's, Hartje & Elder; D. Bash, Joseph Mock, J. A. Grande, B. C. Hitz, August Rieman, of Indianapolis; Edwin Morner, Shelbyville, Ind.; L. A. Coles, Kokomo; L. E. Hitz, Madison; Harry White, North Manchester, Ind.

ADDED OPEN CLASSES.

Class 523—Cyclamens, 12 plants, $25, first prize; $15, second prize.

Class 524—Cineraria stellatas, 12 plants, $40, first prize; $25, second prize.

Class 525—Cineraria hybrids, 12 plants, $40, first prize; $25, second prize.

Class 526—Display of 50 square feet, miscellaneous bulbous plants, $50, first prize; $35, second prize.

Class 527—Display flowering begonia plants, covering 50 square feet, $40, first prize; $25, second prize.

Class 528—Display of Easter lily plants, covering 60 square feet, $60 first prize; $40, second prize.

Entries in the above classes should be made at once, these classes being governed by the same rules as specified in the final premium schedule. Address entries to National Flower Executive Offices, Chamber of Commerce building, Indianapolis, Ind.

Indianapolis Trains.

ST. LOUIS TO INDIANAPOLIS.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will charter two cars for the Fifth National Flower Show, leaving St. Louis, 12 noon, Monday, March 27, via Pennsylvania railroad, due Indianapolis, 6 p. m. the same day. It is planned to make Tuesday, March 28, St. Louis Day at the exhibition. All florists from the west and south are cordially invited to join the party at St. Louis. Full information may be obtained from J. J. Beneke, secretary, St. Louis Florists' Club, 1316 Pine street, St. Louis, Mo.

KANSAS CITY TO INDIANAPOLIS.

The members of the Kansas City Florists' Club have made arrangements to engage a through Pullman sleeping car to Indianapolis, leaving Kansas City, 11:55 p. m., via the Chicago & Alton—Pennsylvania railroads, Saturday evening, March 25, due Indianapolis at 2:50 p. m., Sunday, March 26. The late hour of departure from Kansas City permits passengers from many points in Kansas to leave their homes in the afternoon, with ample time for train connection. Florists from the west and south are cordially invited to join the party at Kansas City. The round trip fare will be $28.36, on the certificate plan, which is fully explained elsewhere in this issue. Pullman fares are: Lower berth, $5.63; upper berth, $4.50; drawing room, $21. Be sure to have your ticket routed via Chicago & Alton railroad, Kansas City to St. Louis; Pennsylvania railroad, St. Louis to Indianapolis, and secure certificate receipt on purchasing ticket. Reservations should be made immediately through G. K. Parker, secretary, Kansas City Florists' Club, care Stuppy Supply Co., 1020 Oak street, Kansas City, Mo., or Chicago & Alton railroad, Ticket Office, 717 Walnut street, Kansas City.

CHICAGO TO INDIANAPOLIS.

Chicago Day at the Fifth National Flower Show will be Monday, March 27, and the Chicago Florists' Club members have chosen the Monon route for the trip. The party will leave the Dearborn station, Polk and Dearborn streets, at 5:30 p. m., Sunday, March 26, due Indianapolis at 10:30 o'clock the same evening. The round trip will be $9.93, on the certificate plan as fully explained elsewhere in this issue. Delegations from the north and west are cordially invited to join the party at Chicago. Reservations should be made immediately with Herbert Wiley, general agent passenger department, Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville railroad, 606 Merchants' Loan & Trust building, 112 West Adams street, Chicago; telephone Harrison 3309.

National Publicity.

The Society of American Florists' national publicity campaign is now in full swing. Three very attractive advertisements, each 2¼x12 inches, prominently featuring the "Say It With Flowers" slogan, Florists' Telegraph Delivery service, wedding anniversaries, birthdays and other events will appear alternately in the following publications during March, April and May: Life, March 23, April 8, May 13; Collier's Weekly, April 1, May 13; Outlook, April 5, May 3; McLean's Magazine, April 15, May 15; American Magazine, Cosmopolitan, Red Book and the Sunset Magazine, in May.

Because of its nation-wide scope the campaign will undoubtedly make more business for every flower grower, wholesaler, retailer and specialty house. These advertisements cost money and the publicity committee says are being paid for by comparatively few in the trade. Is it not time that you did your share? You are bound to benefit if you do. Kindly send a letter immediately, stating how much you will contribute for one, two or three years to Secretary John Young, Society of American Florists, 45 West Eighteenth street, New York.

Milwaukee Spring Show.

The Florists' Club, of Milwaukee, Wis., held its spring flower show in the Public museum, March 15-18. It was originally intended to hold the show but two days, but due to such a large attendance the time was extended. There was a very fine lot of stock shown in great variety. The Joy Floral Co., of Nashville, Tenn., staged a vase of its new pink carnation Natalie, which arrived in fine shape, and made a good impression. A. Jablonsky, of Olivette, Mo., showed a vase of his new dark pink carnation Betty Jane, which looked like a very promising variety.

C. C. Pollworth Co. showed a vase of Columbia and Butterfly roses; also Edna, Laddie, Harvester, Mrs. C. W. Ward and striped seedling carnations. Orchid plants, yellow callas and several vases of bulbous stock were features. E. Haasch had a fine lot of begonias and several pots of very good bulb plants.

Thomas Griebler displayed pansies and callas. The Wauwatosa Floral Co., and Riels Bros., displayed a very fine lot of sweet peas. H. Locker & Sons also displayed some excellent sweet peas, begonias, calendulas, carnations and a very fine basket of General Pershing freesias. Chas. Menger displayed some pot hyacinths. The Schroeder Floral Co., exhibited carnations, Morning Glory and a new seedling.

Holton & Hunkel Co. displayed a nice lot of Premier, Butterfly, Hoosier Beauty and Ward roses. They also showed some plants—Easter lilies, genestas, hydrangeas and bulbous stock. Heitman & Oestreicher Co. showed some very fine Windsor and Edna carnations.

James Livingstone, with some exceptionally fine red amaryllis, attracted considerable attention.

Fred Gutermuth had some fine cyclamens and primula plants and tulips. A. Reinhardt had a vase of improved rose pink Enchantress and Nebraska carnations.

Other exhibitors were: Kamp & Spinti, Laddie carnations; the Greenwood Carnation Co., Maine Sunshine, Happy Day, Ruth Bauer, Hope Henshaw and pink seedling carnations; Cudahy Floral Co., Killarney, Crusader and Richmond roses; Fox Point Floral

Co., bulbous stock and forgetmenots; Gust. Pohl, Matchless carnations and snapdragons; Herman Schwelke, snapdragons.

Gimbel Bros., Edlefson & Leidiger Co., the Baumgarten Floral Co., and James Fox, Inc., made a very attractive display in corsages and bouquets, also baskets that were very artistically arranged. The Grandville Gardens also displayed a basket of spring flowers.

Aug. F. Kellner displayed quite a collection of rare plants in variety, and this firm did the general decorating and arranging of plants for the show. Nic. Zweifel had charge of the show and was kept busy all the time giving information to the public.

The attendance was very satisfactory. The library and library associates gave it considerable publicity. Only the names of the varieties of flowers showed and no other cards or any sort of advertising was permissible, but nevertheless a good bit of publicity was given the trade in general.

Thursday evening a lecture was given by Huron S. Smith, curator of botany, on plants and their relations to our food. E. O.

American Rose Society.

ANNUAL MEETING, MARCH 27.

The annual convention of the American Rose Society will be held in Indianapolis, Ind., on the afternoon of Monday, March 27, in connection with the Fifth National Flower Show and an elaborate programme is being prepared for the occasion.

A rate of a fare and one-half for the round trip on the certificate plan, has been authorized by the different railroad passenger associations, and members should obtain, at the nearest stations offering them, a certificate when purchasing ticket to Indianapolis. Upon reaching Indianapolis the certificate should be presented to the endorsing officer, Secretary John Young, of the Society of American Florists, and properly validated by the railroad representatives at the Exhibition building. The return ticket will then be purchasable at one-half the regular rate, provided the same route is used in reaching original starting point.

As a part of the membership privilege the society has presented each member a ticket for single admission to the Fifth National Flower Show, March 25-April 1. This promises to be the most elaborate and magnificent indoor event of its kind held in the United States since the war, so by all means enjoy this opportunity.

The business matters of the American Rose Society have kept your officers very busy. We have been working very hard for new members and have set our aim at 5,000, but we must have your co-operation in order to succeed.

The American Rose Annual is now in the hands of the printers, containing a survey of everything worthwhile that has transpired in the rose world during the past year. No real rose lover can afford to be without it and will you not tell your neighbors and friends of the opportunity in store for anyone who will join the society. Urge them to send in their subscription in time to get the new annual promptly. To secure copies, address the American Rose Annual, care J. Horace McFarland, Editor, P. O. Box 687, Harrisburg, Pa.

The rose pilgrimage to Portland, Ore., as previously announced by your president, has been postponed until 1923, due to other large and numerous conventions being held on the Pacific coast next summer. The cordial spirit of hospitality displayed by the rose lovers in Portland, Ore., Tacoma and Seattle, Wash., persuade us that every effort should be made to carry out the projected trip in 1923.

ROBERT PYLE, Pres.

Trade Associations' Conference.

WASHINGTON, D. C., APRIL 12.

The secretary of commerce will hold a conference in Washington with representatives of trade associations, the activities of which are national or interstate in their scope, in room 704, Department of Commerce building, April 12, 1922, at 10 a. m., for the following purposes:

First—Securing a list of trade associations that will furnish voluntarily to the Department of Commerce the classes of statistical information outlined in the correspondence between the Department of Commerce and the Department of Justice, published February 16, 1922.

Second—Discussing and considering means and methods that may be best adapted for collecting and forwarding to the secretary of commerce, for dissemination, the classes of statistical information outlined in the correspondence referred to, including the forms of reports that will be most suitable, for associations that are willing to furnish such statistical information.

Third—Discussion of the manner in which such reports of the statistical officer of the associations are to be filed with the Department of Commerce, and the manner and method of distributing the information therein to the members of the associations and to the public.

Landis Labor Award.

The Chicago Citizens Committee to enforce the Landis Labor Award, issued the following, March 20:

"Insurance placed in Chicago last week by the Citizens Committee to enforce the Landis Award in its fight to clean up Chicago building conditions, brought the total amount up to $28,000,000, an excellent indication of the magnitude of the committee's activities.

"This huge insurance policy protected 505 construction jobs of every possible description — from skyscrapers and apartment hotels down to cottages and small plumbing repairs, where Landis Award men are being used in the 10 trades which are being operated on the open shop plan by the committee because of their obstructionist tactics.

"To carry on this work, the committee has placed in the 10 trades, 5,594 open shop craftsmen who are working side by side with union mechanics in the 22 other Chicago building trades unions which have lived up to their Landis Award contracts.

"The committee's programme to date has been a simple one. Confronted by a situation where building construction since the war has been greatly hampered by vicious conditions, the citizens making up its membership decided early in the campaign that 'building must proceed at all costs.'

"It accordingly sent word, union by union, to the crafts which were in open revolt against the wage award of Judge Landis that the time had come for a decision one way or the other. They must either give up their obstructionist tactics and accept the wages and provisions stipulated by the judge as a means of eliminating graft, sympathetic strikes, illicit combinations, and other abuses, or face an open shop fight."

San Francisco.

TRADE IS SATISFACTORY.

Business has been quite satisfactory the past week, in spite of the Lenten season. The supply of all seasonable stock and prices have returned to normal for this season of the year. Funeral work is brisk and decorations have kept up well. In roses, Mrs. Chas. Russell is scarce at $5 per bunch of 24.

Prima Donna is at its best and is very popular. Premier, Golden Ophelia, Butterfly, Hoosier Beauty, Hadley, Kaiserin and Cecile Brunner are in good supply and of fine quality. Late crop violets are in heavy supply since the warm weather set in. A great deal of the stock is poor, however, and hard to move. Carnations are at their best, with no change in prices for firsts but seconds have declined. Laddie brings the highest values. Sweet peas are excellent and have been bringing fancy prices all season and are all greenhouse grown. Little Liliun giganteum is arriving, the growers apparently holding their stock back for Easter. Anemones are not sufficient to go around. Snapdragons are improving. Scabiosa Caucasian is seen in quantity and sells readily. Gardenias have not increased in supply or demand. A fairly good quantity of cattleyas is obtainable and they clean up readily. Lily of the valley is in firm demand. In bulbous stock, freesias are still seen but the quality is poor. Extra fine tulips are to be had and sell well. The offerings of daffodils have shortened up considerably. Fruit blossoms are in large supply and prove popular, giving the retail shops a beautiful appearance. The first Rambler roses arrived last week and at present seem to be the leading flowering plant. Primulas are plentiful and good. Hyacinths, in pans, arrive in quantity and show no decline in price. The past season has been a very prosperous one for growers of bulbous stock in this vicinity. Aspleniums, nephrolepis, and aspidistras go exceptionally well. From the present outlook it seems that there will be a plentiful supply of all stock for Easter.

NOTES.

H. Plath, proprietor of the Ferneries, has just returned from an extended visit to the plant growing industries in the southern part of California. He reports severe damage to the kentia crop from the heavy freezes in January. His houses are now filled with well grown stocks of Easter plants and he says that the shipping trade has been unusually heavy the past few weeks.

The Mac Rorie-McLaren Co. is sending in a fine cut of ericas, in many varieties. Mr. MacRorie states the demand is excellent. The firm's new erica, a red melanthera is a comer. The company is busy with landscape contracts.

The regular monthly meeting of the Retail Florists' Association will be held at Native Sons' hall, the evening of April 5, and President Stein desires a large attendance as many important matters are to be discussed.

The windows of the Art Floral Co. have been great drawing cards lately, one being devoted to Phalaenopsis amabilis, P. Schilleriana and the new red Erica melanthera. Lloyd Pritchard executed the display.

Luther Burbank was recently made a life member of the Santa Rosa Benevolent Protective Order of Elks at a special meeting. Mr. Burbank delivered a splendid lecture on plant life after his initiation.

L. Parodi opened an up-to-date flower store on Ellis street, near Jones street, March 15. It occupies a new building.

The chief source of supply for phalaenopsis in this section is said to be Peterson & Haywood's, Burlingame.

P. Conci, Colma, has his large acreage of Ulrich Brunner roses in fine shape for the coming season.

Jos. Prioeitti states that his gladioli are coming along in splendid shape.

Visitors: W. B. Aldrich, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; M. H. Ebel, Sacramento.

JAMES T. LYNCH.

Lancaster County Florists' Association.

Perhaps it is the imposing and impressive name of our club or it may possibly be the charming personality of its members, but in either case we were able to induce President S. S. Pennock, of the Society of American Florists, to come to Lancaster, Pa., Thursday, March 16, and not only he, but his good wife as well, and with them the president of the Philadelphia Florists' Club, A. F. Campbell and his good lady. They came over the Lincoln highway in a new Lincoln machine that for perfection of detail and delightful riding has no equal. By a prearranged visiting programme we from Lancaster went to Christiana, and with our party were Isaac Passmore and Benjamin Passmore, of Chester county, Pa.

M. J. Brinton's, of course, was the attracting point in Christiana and we were soon met there by S. S. Pennock and A. F. Campbell. The ladies were entertained by Mrs. Brinton and the male portion spent an hour going through the houses. Snapdragons constituted a goodly portion of the day's shipment of cut flowers; next to these came the daffodils in all the best kinds. Mr. Brinton considers Early Spring, Gloria Sassenheim and King Alfred the best three. His carnation houses were filled with Mrs. C. W. Ward, Matchless and Enchantress Supreme with a bed of Beacon cut back after the Christmas crop had been taken from it. He has a wonderfully fine lot of young stock for next year's production.

Mr. Campbell was, of course, interested principally in Mr. Brinton's lily house and here we found them by the thousands in various stages of development and equally different stages of quality. Some lots ran absolutely uniform, others in various percentages of good, medium, and poor. This seems to be the experience of all lily growers and unless the producers of the bulbs reform their methods they are going to miss very seriously the flow of golden eggs from these United States.

The next stop was made at the establishment of J. Rutter Hess, Gap, and here we found a big lot of Enchantress Supreme carnations, making some exceptionally fine flowers but not in superabundance. A house of snapdragons were in fine shape and their line of vegetable and other plants were coming along in great form for the big retail trade.

The Weaver establishments were the next point and as the stock here was described several weeks ago repetition would be useless, but we might add that the new crop of sweet peas is coming along nicely at Chas. M. Weaver's, a bit late for Easter, but they will be started by then and we can look for a tremendous crop during the spring months. At Elmer Weaver's the roses continue in good form and that they are a paying proposition is shown by the fact that houses now occupied by carnations and other stock are being emptied with the idea of planting the whole place to roses for next season. The new crop of mushrooms is coming in nicely and one can almost see the bank account from this establishment swelling into a prodigious size.

As it was getting time for the evening meeting no further stops could be made and the next one was the Hotel Brunswick where the meeting was to be held.

MONTHLY MEETING.

The monthly meeting was in the form of a dinner meeting and was some hot proposition especially the soup which seemed to consist principally of red peppers. After the coffee, President Harry K. Rohrer opened the business session, and the following were elected to membership in the association: Mrs.

Phares S. Hostetter, Mrs. Robert Smallwood, Miss Mary Weaver, Miss Eva Diefenbaugh, Robert Kohr, and A. F. Campbell.

At the request of the president, S. S. Pennock made a few remarks on the Indianapolis National Flower Show, and hoped that Lancaster county would be well represented there.

Mr. Campbell spoke of the high percentage of attendance at the meetings of the club and remarked what wonderful meetings some of the clubs with 10 or more times our membership would have if the members turned out as loyally. Ira Landis reported on the visiting trip of the day. Mrs. E. P. Hostetter told of some of the things florally she saw in her recent trip to Florida.

The meeting was then turned over to B. F. Barr, chairman of the entertainment committee, when we repaired to the ball room of the hotel and were delightfully and instructively entertained by Mr. Pennock with his wonderful set of slides pertaining to his work in Germany. Mr. Pennock decried any oratorical ability but the big audience listened with rapt attention to his description of the slides and his work and at the close gave him a rising vote of thanks.

We might add that the dinner tables were decorated with baskets of flowers from the B. F. Barr establishment.

Mr. Pennock and wife remained at the Brunswick hotel and Mr. Campbell and wife took the 10:18 p. m. train for Philadelphia, thus ending an almost perfect day.

ALBERT M. HERR, Sec'y.

Des Moines Floral Arts Club.

The regular meeting of the Floral Arts Club of Des Moines, Ia., was held at Younker's Tea room, March 14. The speaker of the evening, Harry Watts, advertising manager of the Des Moines Register and Tribune, had as his subject, "Developing Spring Business for the Florist, Nurseryman and Seedsman," which was used as a basis for a round table talk, the discussion being led by J. S. Wilson, Sr., for the florists, E. D. Needham for the nurserymen and Geo. Kutzwell for the seedsmen.

It was the consensus of opinion, after all, that co-operative advertising pays best, but that the short-sighted men will not always take advantage of it.

For St. Valentine's Day, J. S. Wilson said he used the personal letter scheme and learned some days later of a man who received a letter, approved of the sentiment in it and went to the Kirkwood Floral Co., for his flowers. Co-operative the way it works, isn't it?

Mr. Needham said he would gladly "Say It With Flowers," to friend wife more frequently, if he could only be sure as he looked at and admired the florists' display windows that the price was not prohibitive. Hence the question: Why not use a small, inconspicuous price tag, more especially on blooming plants or ferns?

After some discussion following a talk on the displays for the coming Iowa State Fair, the club decided to offer $15 as prizes for gladioli, 25 spikes of a named variety, $10 first and $5 second prize. The meeting then adjourned.

P. B. F.

MEDINA, O.—Hammerschmidt & Clark are adding one house, 29x100 feet.

HOUSTON, TEX.—Carroll, the Florist, was recently incorporated with a capital of $10,000. C. E. Wademan, Festus R. Carroll and Lulu M. Carroll are the incorporators.

OBITUARY.

Henry R. Singler.

Henry R. Singler, 10707 Church street, Chicago, who was seriously injured March 21 when his auto was hit by a street car at Ninety-fifth and Halsted streets, died the same evening at the Auburn Park hospital. He was about 40 years old and well and favorably known to the local trade having been engaged in the florist business for years. Mrs. Singler was in the auto at the time of the accident and is in a critical condition but the baby escaped injury.

No arrangements have been made for the funeral at this writing but it is possible the date will be set for Saturday, March 25.

H. C. Mulder.

H. C. Mulder, proprietor of the store known as the University Florist, 1105 East Fifty-fifth street, Chicago, died March 16 at the Washington Park hospital from injuries received the same day when he was run over by an auto. He was 72 years old and was born in Holland. He was a florist all his life and had been located in Chicago for 52 years and for the last 10 at 1105 East Fifty-fifth street. The funeral was held from the Mulvihill chapel at 1127 East Fifty-fifth street, March 18, with interment at Evergreen cemetery. He leaves a wife and large circle of friends to mourn his loss.

John Leshyn.

John Leshyn, florist, 5329 South Rockwell street, Chicago, was found dead in bed, March 10, age 44 years.

New England Florists' Alliance.

There will be a general meeting of the New England Florists' Alliance, Saturday, April 1, at 7 p. m., at the City Club, Boston, Mass. This meeting is called for the purpose of having an open forum to which all members of the trade throughout New England are invited, to discuss the work of the alliance, its policies and other matters of importance to the industry.

It is hoped that all will avail themselves of this opportunity to become thoroughly acquainted with the real purpose of this organization. The co-operation as shown by the "Spirit of '76" was responsible for the founding of this great republic, and co-operation again, can and will be successful in promoting the interest of this great industry of ours with its millions of dollars invested in plants and equipment.

We have a wonderful slogan in "Say It With Flowers." We florists must stand together to insure our receiving the full benefits of this slogan.

E. M. NAUKAM, Sec'y.

EASTER lilies are reported short-stemmed, with fewer flowers.

SOME bulb salesmen claim the growers make most money when the bulb prices are high.

IN case of a coal strike, Washington says, "If necessary, the mines will be taken under Federal control."

THE Fifth National Flower Show opens at Indianapolis this week, Saturday, March 25, continuing to April 1, with every promise of complete success and a large attendance. The premium list offers $25,000 in prizes.

Plant Quarantine Conference.

S. A. F. COMMITTEE WANTS SUGGESTIONS.

The plant quarantine conference called by the Federal Horticultural Board to meet in Washington, D. C., May 15, is of vital importance to the trade and the committee on tariff and legislation of the Society of American Florists desires to present a constructive programme showing what the florists' trade wants and requires.

Suggestions from the profession on the following questions will be of great assistance to the committee in formulating a programme: Are you for or against Quarantine No. 37? What changes in Quarantine No. 37 do you suggest? On which plant products do you desire the quarantine lifted? What additional items do you want quarantined?

The committee will welcome any constructive suggestions, which should be addressed to James McHutchison, chairman of committee on tariff and legislation, Society of American Florists, 95 Chambers street, New York.

Hill Golden Wedding.

E. G. Hill, and wife, Richmond, Ind., celebrated their golden wedding March 13. Many of Mr. Hill's friends have heard him say that 13 is his lucky number! They were married in 1872 at the home of the bride, in Spiceland, Ind. Mrs. Hill was one of 13 children, born in North Carolina of good Quaker parentage.

E. G. Hill was born in England, came to this country with his father at an early age, and took up the nursery and florist trade with him at the T. C. Maxwell place, Geneva, N. Y. After coming to Richmond, Ind., following the close of the Civil war in 1865, both father and son entered the employ of E. Y. Teas, and in 1881, organized the firm of Hill & Co., operating greenhouses to care for the local demand, and a general catalogue trade.

Mrs. Hill was interested in the work, and beside caring for the children and the home, helped with the cut flowers in the rush times, and always kept open house and a welcome for visiting florists. In this way many warm friendships in the trade were formed which have lasted up to the present time.

Mrs. Hill lost her sister, Mrs. E. Y. Teas only four weeks ago and at first it seemed as if the golden wedding anniversary would be passed without notice; on second thought it was decided to keep open house, both afternoon and evening, March 13, with only a notice in the local papers that all friends would be welcome. Over 400 friends and neighbors paid their respects, and wonderful to relate the refreshments held out in full supply to the end.

The large home was tastefully decorated with narcissi, Golden Ophelia and Amelia Gude roses, the work being done by Fred H. Lemon, the son-in-law, and with an abundance of roses from both the Hill greenhouses, there were plenty for decorations and liberal favors. The event had not been announced in any way until March 11, and it was a great surprise when telegrams from friends, both in and out of the trade, came pouring in, with a magnificent box of orchids from W. J. & M. S. Vesey, who are connected with the family by marriage, and delightful messages were received in the now universal "language of flowers" from many florist friends.

It was a day long to be remembered, and an unbroken family, all present, was a most unusual sight; Mr. and Mrs.

E. G. Hill, Mr. Hill's aged step-mother; Fred H. Lemon and wife and their two children; E. H. Mann and wife and their three children; Joseph H. Hill and wife and little Joanna.

Tuesday morning, March 14, E. G. Hill left on an early train for the meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association, a "solitaire" Golden Wedding trip, as Mrs. Hill stayed at home to "straighten up" as the house keepers say.

Easter Violets.

The prospect for Easter violets in the Hudson river section are not favorable. It is estimated the pick will not be over 40 per cent of a normal crop. The violets are running out as they did four years ago, in 1918, when Easter fell on March 31. Although there was fairly good pick for Easter that year, that was the end of them, there being no flowers in April worth picking.

The present season in general has been a disappointment to the growers. Hot days late in fall, blasted the buds and shortened up that end. The plants seem to run out in the spring earlier than in former years, making the season shorter on both ends. The high price of anthracite coal, too, which they use exclusively, has worked great hardship upon the growers the past winter. Although there is not over 40 per cent of the glass in violets that there was here 15 years ago, and the production per square foot much less than at that time, some are going to give up violets, especially those having farms, which pay better.

J. H. SYNDER.

Drumm Fire.

The frame packing house and the sides of the greenhouses next to that building of the Drumm Seed & Floral Co. Riverside, Fort Worth, Tex., were partially destroyed by fire, March 18. The flames were first seen near the center of the long packing sheds, early Saturday evening, and the origin of the fire was thought to be spontaneous combustion, according to C. A. Byers, superintendent of the nursery department. Only the chemical apparatus of the fire department could be used as the establishment is situated beyond the city limits, which hindered the firemen in checking the flames. The total loss is estimated at about $25,000.

Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Inc.

In the matter of the proposed sale of the personal property of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Inc., Eureka, Calif., we are advised that a return of the sale of this property was filed March 14, and the judge of the superior court has set March 27, 1922, at 10 o'clock a. m. in the superior court of Humboldt County, Department Two, thereof in Eureka, County of Humboldt, State of California, as the time and place of the hearing of said return.

A bid of $15,000 has been received for said personal property, but the return does not say to whom it is sold.

Co-Operative Agency Buying.

The Federal Trade Commission's order in the Meinen case is the first application of Section 2, of the Clayton act to a price discrimination made by a seller between two classes of customers, each buying the same quantity of the same commodity. A co-operative buying agency is placed on equal terms with a jobber or wholesaler.

BUSINESS EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD.

While supply and demand was good the fore part of last week, business ended up with a rush, which was a surprise to everybody. Just to say what the cause for this agreeable surprise was is difficult to define, and yet the free flower exhibit of the local Florists' Club at the Library building, extending over a period of four days, may have helped to stimulate the call to a considerable extent. Carnation growers are a little off crop, after the recent spring-like weather and stock will not be so plentiful for the next fortnight; in all other lines the supply is adequate.

NOTES.

Miss Sheriffs, who 14 years ago with Walter M. Maas, organized the Walter M. Maas Co., retail florists, was quietly married February 20, to John Platner. Mrs. Platner will continue her work until autumn, when they will move to Eau Claire, Wis. Mrs. Platner has many friends here who join us in extending to them our congratulations and very best wishes for a happy and successful future.

The officers of the Wisconsin State

Florists' Association held an important meeting here, March 16. President Fred Rentschler, of Madison; James Taylor, Oshkosh, and John Rindfleisch, of Beloit, were the out of town visitors.

The spring flower show staged by the Florists' Club, March 15-18, at the Library building was most successful. Full account will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Riebs Bros., of North Milwaukee, who specialize in sweet peas and grow them fine, will double their glass area by adding three more houses 36x150 feet this summer.

BALL'S WHITE ASTER

The seed of this splendid Giant Aster of the Late Branching Type—the product of twelve years' selection to develop the ideal of a perfectly double flower, of flawless color—was offered in 1921 for the first time.

The flowering season comes between the Royal and Late Branching types, filling in between the early and late glut of flowers. It grows to a medium height with full, distinctly centered blossoms, ideally formed for long distance shipping. The seed of this Aster is about two-thirds the size of ordinary varieties. It is sold in 1/4-ounce packets, containing about 4000 seeds at 1/4 oz., 75c; 1/2 oz., $1.35; 1 oz., $5.00.

FUNERAL AND HOSPITAL TRADE BRISK.

Business the past week was very brisk. The Lenten season has quite an effect on trade so far as social events are concerned, but our old friends, funeral and hospital work, are on the job. Stock is in first class condition, and can be bought for a nominal sum. Roses are at their best, the only ones moving slowly being the newer kinds, such as Angelus and red Columbia. Values range from $6 to $20 per 100. Bulbous stock is in poor condition, and excepting daffodils, has to be sold at a loss. Rainbow freesias continue to arrive and are very popular with the public. Easter lilies are being disposed of at a premium while callas are very plentiful. Sweet peas are at their best and move readily, the principal kinds being Margaret Atlee and Yarrowa, the best selling at 75 cents to $1 per 100. Snapdragons are abundant and sell well. Other miscellaneous seasonable stock includes calendulas, violets, lily of the valley, primulas and yellow daisies. Greens go without difficulty.

CINCINNATI TO INDIANAPOLIS.

Everything is in readiness for the trip to the Fifth National Flower Show at Indianapolis, Ind., March 25-April 1 and from all indications and reports from Vice-President H. W. Sheppard, of the American Carnation Society, and others, a large representation of the trade from this city is expected at the exhibition. A rate of a fare and one-half for the round trip has been granted by the Big Four railroad, provided a certificate is procured upon purchasing ticket. The certificate is to be presented to the endorsing officer, Secretary John Young, of the Society of American Florists, at the show and validated by the railroad representative there, which will entitle the bearer to one-half fare returning via the same

Our "Supreme" Quality Berlin Pips Make Production Easy

"WE TELL YOU HOW"

Lily of the Valley is always in great favor with the flower-buying public and when offered in pots or pans containing 25 or more blooms, invariably finds a ready and quite profitable sale, especially at such times as Mothers' Day (one Chicago grower having disposed of over 2000 pots last year in a wholesale and retail way.) Berlin-grown Pips, of which our "Supreme" Quality is a selected strain, can be flowered inside of 25 DAYS FROM TIME OF PLANTING, and are of the easiest culture. Book your order now for a liberal supply of these high grade Berlin Pips, and we will express them to you in good season, so that you can produce blooms for sale on one of the most active Florists' Merchandising dates of the year and when pot plants are usually at a premium.

railroad to original starting point. This feature is proving quite a drawing card to many of the florists here, who otherwise would have remained at home.

NOTES.

C. E. Critchell is slowly but surely regaining his strength and it is thought it will not be long until he is back on the job again. This establishment is receiving some very good sweet peas from Ben. Reidel and good carnations from O. B. Murphy, both of Price Hill.

We regret to report that Wm. Taylor, Price Hill, had the misfortune of losing a lot of stock through a fire last week. The fire started in the shed, burning out that building and stock in two greenhouses.

The Wm. Murphy Co. is receiving some very good snapdragons from Chas. F. Murphy, of Price Hill, and a nice variety of bulbous stock from the Schuman & Wahlers Co., Highlands.

L. H. Kyrk reports large sales in green goods, of which he handles quantities. He states that Mrs. Kyrk's condition is very much improved.

Ray Lindsey, of the Sunnyside Greenhouses, Hartwell, is seen on the market daily, which means good business at that place.

H. W. Sheppard has been exceedingly busy with funeral work and booked many decorations for store spring openings.

Fred Gear, Vine street, reports a good week in plant sales and has added a new Dodge truck to his delivery department.

Miss Dorothy Baer, of the Avondale Floral Co., is back to her position again after three weeks' illness with the grippe.

Peter Weiland is receiving some very fancy Murillo tulips and daffodils from his greenhouses at New Castle, Ind.

E. A. Forter, of West Fourth street, reports a good week in wedding orders and plants.

Peter Herb, Mt. Healthy, is shipping in some very exceptional pansies and callas.

Irvin Gebhardt, of the Trome Flower Shop, states that business is excellent.

DYED FLOWERS POPULAR ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

A good St. Patrick's Day business was enjoyed by the florists, dyed carnations being in good demand at $1.50 per dozen, retail. Dyed sweet peas did not move so well. White Killarney roses, colored green, were very popular, retailing at 25 to 50 cents per bloom. The market has improved considerably the past week and not all on account of St. Patrick's Day either. Narcissi has just about completed a very good season, only a few inferior blooms being now obtainable. The same is true of freesias. Roses still lead as the staple stock, Premier and Mrs. Chas. Russell leading and have brought as high as $30 per 100. There has been a quantity of poor rose stock arriving, due it is said to the spring-like weather we have had the past two weeks. Columbia was popular at $6 to $15 per 100. Butterfly, Ophelia and Sunburst were in only fair demand, while Crusader and Ward were scarce. All kinds of carnations met a good demand, especially white for dyeing purposes. Laddie brought as high as $12 per 100, while other varieties averaged $6. Cypridium were scarce and cattleyas had little call. Lily of the valley was shipped in from the east, moving briskly at $5 to $6 per 100. Excellent Darwin tulips with stems 30 inches long, went rapidly, colors ranging from deep red to light magenta. Victoria jonquils have been sold at $6 per 100. Violets are on the downgrade, both as to supply and quality but sweet peas show great improvement, the best bringing $20 per 1,000. Spanish iris, shipped in from nearby points, scarcely moved. Easter and calla lilies are very hard to sell, although some very fine stock has been arriving. All pot stock, including roses and pansies meet a good demand. Greens move well, good ferns selling at $3.50 per 1,000. Huckleberry and leucothoe are still arriving.

NOTES.

Grimm & Gorly enjoyed a very good St. Patrick's Day business, cleaning up completely. Yellow is the predominating color in their most attractive windows, one of them having as a background, a spider web made of yellow maiche ribbon.

The Ayres Floral Co. displayed some fine red carnations which were sold last Saturday as a special at $2 per two dozen blooms. Pot roses, lilacs and pansies move well.

Spring stock, including jonquils, hyacinths, pot roses, cut and pot tulips, lilacs and hydrangeas are headliners with Mullanphy, Florists, Inc.

An exceptionally good week was reported by the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co.

CRAIG'S Quality Easter Plants

WILL BREAK YOUR RECORD IN EASTER SALES

Business is reviving, more flowers have been handled this season than ever before. The recent New York Flower Show broke all records in attendances. Prepare for this great event the largest in the history of the trade. Our Easter stock in is the best we have ever offered.

FOLIAGE PLANTS AND FERNS IN SPECIMENS

and smaller stock for basket work is the largest in the country.

We cordially invite you to our new home at Norwood Station, Delaware County, Pa., easily reached by the Pennsylvania R. R. to Norwood Station, and Baltimore & Ohio R. R. to Holmes Station, or by trolley. Those having their own green-houses or conservatories would do well to have shipments made during the last two weeks in March.

HYDRANGEAS

We have the largest and finest stock of Hydrangeas ever offered to the trade at Easter. Our stock includes over 10,000 of the new French varieties. The plants have all been grown cool and are well hardened off, insuring satisfaction to the buyer.

THE NEW FRENCH HYDRANGEAS

All of the varieties here offered have been tested by us under ordinary conditions as for their adaptability to forcing for Easter.

4-inch pots, $6 per dozen.
5-inch pots, 6-inch pots and 7-inch pots, heavily flowered, $9, $12, $15, $18, $24, $30, $36, $42 and $48 per dozen.

8-inch pots, $4 and $5 each.
April delivery, 2½-inch pots, Hydrangea Otaksa, strong plants, $8 per 100, $75 per 1,000.

April delivery, assorted French Hydrangeas, 2½-inch pots, strong plants, $8 per 100, $75 per 1,000.

ROSES

We desire to make special mention of our large stock of Roses, growing upwards of 10,000 plants in the following varieties. We have no hesitation in saying we are the largest growers of forcing Roses for Easter in America. We are positive our stock will please the most critical buyers, as the quality was never better. It has all been grown cool and will prove very satisfactory.

LADY GAY

In grand condition, trained into fan, globular, and pyramidal shapes, $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5, $6 and $7.50 each.

Special ball shapes, $2.50, $3, $4, $5 and $7.50 each.

Baskets, $7.50, $10 and $12.50 each.

Umbrellas, $6, $7.50 and $10 each.

TAUSENDSCHOEN (THOUSAND BEAUTIES)

This was our finest and most popular Climber last year, and this year our stock is large and the plants are much finer.

Trained plants, fans, globular and pyramidal shapes, $1.50, $2, $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5, $6, $7.50, $10 and $12 each.

Baskets, $10 and $12.50 each.

Umbrellas, $6, $7.50 and $10 each.

ROSIERE (NEW)

Dark sport of Tausendschoen. Very beautiful.

A great improvement on the popular Thousand Beauties (Tausendschoen) and consequently, a welcome addition to this section. While it has the same habit of growth and general characteristics as Thousand Beauties, the color is superior, a deeper and more even shade of cerise-pink or carmine.

Trained plants, fans, globular, and pyramidal shapes, $2, $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5, $6, $7.50 and $10 each.

Baskets, $10, $12 and $15 each.

Umbrellas, $6, $7.50 and $10 each.

In addition to the above trained Roses, we have also trained some very special designs, such as Aeroplanes, Crosses, Chairs, Pergolas, etc., at $10, $12.50, $15, $20, $25 and $30 each.

BABY RAMBLERS, ORLEANS

Exceptionally fine.
5½ and 6-inch pots, $15, $18 and $24 per dozen.

EXCELSA, NEW CLIMBING ROSE

This variety is known as the Red Dorothy Perkins. The color is brilliant and it is bound to prove the most popular red Rambler.

We offer splendid plants in 6-inch, 7-inch and 8-inch pots, $1.50, $2, $2.50, $3.50, $4, $5, $6, $7.50, $10, $12 and $15 each.

Baskets of Excelsa, $10 and $12.50 each.

Umbrellas, $6, $7.50 and $10 each.

PAUL'S SCARLET CLIMBER

One of the most promising climbing Roses yet sent out. Vivid scarlet, semi-double flowers of medium size, produced in large clusters, and in great profusion. The color does not burn or fade. This Rose has been exhibited extensively in Europe and received numerous awards.

5 and 6-inch pots, trained plants, $1.50, $2, $2.50 and $3 each.

HYBRID ROSES

Including Columbia and Mrs. John Dunlop. Very fine plants in bud and flower for Easter sales.

6-inch pots at $15 and $18 per dozen.

MAGNA CHARTA

Exceptionally well grown and well flowered stock. Considered by all to be the very best Hybrid Rose for Easter sales.

5½, 6 and 7-inch pots at $18, $24, $30 and $36 per dozen.

Miscellaneous Easter Plants

AZALEA HINODIGIRI

Bright red in color and one of the finest and best keeping Azaleas ever sent out. We have never been able to meet the demand at Easter. The variety has the added advantage over Indica Azaleas that it is absolutely hardy.

5-inch pots, fine for baskets, $18 and $24 per dozen.

5½-inch pots, $2.50 and $3 each.

6 and 7-inch pots, fine plants, $3.50, $4 and $5 each.

8 and 10-inch pots, $6 and $7.50 each.

GOLDEN CALLAS

6-inch pots, $1.25 each.

GENISTA RACEMOSA

The finest stock of Genistas ever offered. Every plant grown cool, exceptionally well flowered and shapely.

6-inch pots, $12 and $15 per dozen.

7-inch pots, $18 and $24 per dozen.

Also some very good standard and bush forms in larger sizes at $2.50, $3 and $4 each.

TERMS

CASH WITH ORDER: Kindly send sufficient to cover the entire bill. We do not make shipments C. O. D. unless remittance has been made on account to guarantee acceptance. This does not apply to regular customers.

REMITTANCE: Remittances should be made by money order or New York drafts. If money is sent, letter should be registered. All prices quoted in this list are strictly net.

SHIPPING INSTRUCTIONS: Give your name, post office, county and state and the name of your nearest express office to which shipment is to be made. We have always made it prominent in our printed terms that our goods are sold F. O. B. cars at the point of shipment and are at the purchaser's risk while in transit. Because of the present unsettled conditions we wish to emphasize still further that we do not guarantee safe delivery. The ownership of all goods sold by us passes to the purchaser on delivery by us to the carrier, and the issuing of the receipt by the carrier ends our responsibility. Any claims for damage should be made promptly to the agent at the point of delivery.

CORRESPONDENCE: We endeavor to answer all correspondence promptly, but owing to the pressure of business we ask that all requests be clearly and concisely stated. ERRORS: Keep a copy of your order. We aim to have our orders correctly filled. When we are at fault we shall make satisfactory correction.

LILIUM GIGANTEUM

We have the largest and finest stock of Lilies ever offered by us for Easter sales. Suggest placing orders early to avoid disappointment, such as was experienced last year.

6-inch pots, with from 4 to 10 flowers.
8-inch pans, with from 12 to 25 flowers.
Cut Lilies. All of the above are 25c per flower and bud.

CINERARIAS

Largest and finest stock ever offered by us.

6-inch pots, $9 and $12 per dozen.

7-inch pots, $15 per dozen.

SPIRAEAS

GLADSTONE AND QUEEN ALEXANDRA

We are very fortunate to obtain stock, as Spiraeas will be almost an unknown quantity this year.

STOCK IS IN GOOD DEMAND.

Stock is in good demand and the market is well cleaned up at this writing. Roses are none too plentiful and find ready buyers in the short and medium grades. Fancy roses need some pushing to move them but there is seldom a surplus. Carnations are good property and the returns the past week, owing to the heavy demand for St. Patrick's Day, were surprisingly large. Single and double violets are in good supply and in fair demand. Sweet peas are not as plentiful and command higher prices. Lilies are seen in large quantities at some of the stores, but are not selling as well as they might. Callas are quite a factor in the market but appear to be holding their own. Stocks of splendid quality are obtainable at some of the stores and a few of the houses are featuring splendid snapdragons. Daisies are more plentiful. Mignonette is obtainable. Calendulas and pansies are on the list of offerings. Freesias are in good supply, especially the colored varieties, including a new purple, which is attracting much attention. Tulips are to be had in good sized quantities and the same is true of jonquils. Southern jonquils from the Carbondale district made their appearance last week, but the demand for them has been rather slow. Lily of the valley, orchids and gardenias are included in the offerings. Greens are in good supply. Pussy willows are plentiful. This vicinity will be well represented at the Indianapolis show next week, especially as far as the market is concerned. The West-Town exposition opens next week and there promises to be quite an exhibition of cut flowers and plants. Business is gradually showing signs of improvement and all the dealers are devoting their attention to the Easter trade.

NOTES.

Otto Goerisch, formerly with the A. L. Randall Co., has taken an interest in the firm of Zech & Mann and is now on the job at this establishment. Mr. Goerisch has spent a large number of years in the local wholesale cut flower market and his many friends wish him every success in his new undertaking.

Wietor Bros. are cutting heavily in Premier roses of splendid quality which clean up at an early hour each day. The demand for young rose stock is exceptionally heavy at this establishment, not to mention the call for carnation and chrysanthemum cuttings.

Chas. Erne, of Erne & Co., received an unlooked for present for St. Patrick's Day in the shape of a brick all bound with a green ribbon. It is on exhibition at the store, but so far the sender has concealed his identity.

George Goebel, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his mother-in-law, whose death occurred last week. Mrs. Goebel was at one time in the employ of Bassett & Washburn.

Howard A. Muir, successor to the Washington Park Flower Shop, 558 East Sixty-third street, has a good catch phrase on his business card. It starts off with "Don't Think for Hours—Say it With Flowers."

Vaughan's Greenhouses are having a liberal demand for fancy leaved caladium bulbs. At the nursery, spring shipments are well begun. Mail and counter trade is on with a rush at both city stores.

Ronsley had a large number of orders for the Law funeral last week, including those of the Royal Insurance Co., amounting to a nice sum in itself.

George Ball's many friends are pleased to know that he has recovered sufficiently from his recent operation to be about again.

Kirchen Bros., dealers in artificial flowers burned out in the $8,000,000 fire here last week. They are now at 1606 Ansie street.

William Langhout has returned from a western business trip for A. Henderson & Co., with a book full of orders.

Johan A. Ebberts left for San Francisco, Calif., March 18, where he will embark for Japan.

Louis Finnerman, with Joseph Ziska & Sons, started out on a southern trip this week.

The John Kruchten Co. received its first shipment of southern jonquils, March 14.

Miss Esther Kostel, of the E. C. Am-ling office force, was married last week.

The Bergman Decorating Co. will manufacture frieze wreaths for the trade for Christmas and is already hooking orders for future delivery. This firm has built up a wonderful business in its products purely upon the high quality of their goods and have the leading retailers of the country carrying their line of stock. Mr. Bergman was formerly in the retail business and his knowledge of the everyday needs of the florist is probably responsible for the splendid color combinations in all of his firm's offerings.

The Wholesale Cut Flower Association met at the Hotel Randolph, March 16, when the question of advertising was discussed. The market was well represented and those present were in favor of paying one of 15 per cent of the gross sales in the local publicity fund. The Commercial Flower Growers' Association also held a meeting at the same date in the same hotel, when the greater part of the evening was devoted to the identical question. It is expected that favorable action will be taken in the near future.

Chris. Pederson is pleased with his new location and reports an increase in business since moving. It is an ideal location and his window displays can be seen from Michigan avenue, Wabash avenue, the elevated station, the passengers on all the cars that make the alley loop besides the regular East Randolph street crowds. He believes in volume and turns over a large supply of cut flowers and plants each day.

The home of the late John Poehlmann at 4728 Beacon street is being torn down to probably make room for an apartment building. It was well known to many in the trade who had the pleasure of being the guest of the highly respected wholesaler who will never be forgotten.

Our obituary columns record the death of three local florists this week, H. C. Mulder and Henry R. Singler, both of whom died from injuries in auto accidents, and John Leshyn, who was found dead in bed.

W. J. Vesey, Jr., formerly of Ft. Wayne, Ind., and wife, visited friends here this week. They are now located at Oklahoma City, Okla., where Mr. Vesey is identified with a firm selling oil leases.

The Central Floral Co. has secured basement space under its North State street store which will give them more room to handle the increasing trade. A stairway will be built this week.

Chas. Edgar, representing the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., called on the trade here this week before leaving for Indianapolis, Ind., to attend the Fifth National Flower Show.

E. F. Winterson, who was on the sick list a few days, is back on the job again as good as new and says his mid-Lent business is all that could be desired.

Henry Wittbold & Son are conducting a special advertising campaign on the billboards. It is classy copy and commands immediate attention.

Tim Cunneen formerly with Tipton & Hurst, Little Rock, Ark., is again in the employ of Percy Jones, Inc.

Frank Schramm and wife are at Long Beach, Calif., where they are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dunbar.

Bassett & Washburn report a strong demand for roses which they are cutting in good supply.

C. S. Claussen, the gladiolus man, and wife, are leaving this week on a California trip.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are moving a large quantity of southern jonquils.

The American Bulb Co. reports good business in lily of the valley pips.

Joseph Foerster is serving on the jury.

Chicago Day at Indianapolis.

MONDAY, MARCH 27.

The management of the National Flower Show, of the Society of American Florists, to be held at Indianapolis, Ind., March 25-April 1, has designated Monday, March 27, "Chicago Day," and the Chicago Florists' Club members are sparing no effort to make this the banner day of the show in point of attendance and enthusiasm. Everyone is cordially invited to join the Chicago party, including all in the trade from the north, west and south.

The Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville railroad (Monon route) has been chosen for the trip. The party will leave Dearborn station, Polk and Dearborn streets, at 5:30 p. m., Sunday, March 26, due Indianapolis the same evening at 10:30 o'clock.

REDUCED RAILROAD RATES.

A rate of a fare and one-half, on the certificate plan, has been authorized, making the round-trip $9.93. Tickets should be purchased on the going trip at the regular one-way rate and a certificate requested of the agent. Upon reaching Indianapolis the certificate should be signed and stamped by the railway representative at the show which will entitle the bearer to a reduction of one-half the regular fare returning. This arrangement also applies to members of the families of delegates. Certificates will be issued March 22-28, inclusive, and will be validated March 25-April 5, inclusive, owner of return ticket to reach original starting point not later than midnight, April 5. Everyone going must have a certificate to secure the reduced rate returning.

The one way rate is $6.62. Pullman fares are: Parlor car seat, $1.13; lower berth, $3.75; upper berth $3.

Wednesday morning's session opened at 9:30 a. m., President Kohout in the chair. Dr. P. A. Lehenbauer presented an able address on "What the Florist Should Know," emphasizing the necessity of soil fertility and methods for combating insect pests. Secretary Hey, of Maywood, was elected to represent the association in the better community campaign, and Dr. R. E. Hieronymus told of the need of the florists in actively co-operating in the better community movement.

Carnation Betty Jane, exhibited by August Jablonsky, Olivette, Mo., was awarded a certificate of merit.

The afternoon session consisted of an open forum in the university greenhouses. Dr. Lehenbauer, Prof. Dornier, and others led in the discussions, which were of interest to all. Experiments being conducted by the department of floriculture, seeking the selection of high producing strains within varieties, produced much interest among the members. The meeting then adjourned.

BUSINESS IS FAIRLY ACTIVE.

Business is fairly active. Buying is generally for smaller orders than in past years but what is lost in size of orders is partly at least made up in the greater number. The public apparently is economizing on its flowers and plants, the same as in other lines. The supply of flowers is good and the quality as a rule excellent. Roses, carnations, snapdragons, sweet peas, violets and bulbous flowers are quantity items. Roses retail from $3 to $8 per dozen. Columbians, Ward, Premier and Butterfly leading. Carnations are priced at $2 per dozen and the same figures hold true for jonquils. Sweet peas are plentiful at $1 to $1.50 per bunch. Snapdragons are now on the market and prove popular. Funeral work has been quiet but there is sufficient to help out to make the volume of business nearly normal. Active preparations are being made for the Easter trade which it is thought will be better than usual. The lateness of the date insures a larger variety of flowers and assurances are given that the offerings will be adequate. Plants are selling well as a rule, with primroses in the lead. Hyacinths are also in good demand.

OHIO HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

W. H. Phipps, state director of commerce, who is recognized as a foremost grower of gladioli and peonies, was the principal speaker at the quarterly meeting of the Ohio Horticultural Society which was held at the Horticultural building, Ohio State university, March 18. The public was invited to the meeting which was exceptionally well attended.

NOTES.

The Beautification Association has asked residents that when they thin out their flowers and shrubbery this autumn not to throw away the parts not wanted but to notify the association and it will look after giving the slips and roots to others who might use them. Miss Neva Collins, president of the organization, will personally look after the distribution of such flowers, vines and shrubbery. The association can place every plant and bulb available.

A slight reorganization of the Munk Floral Co., following the death of the late H. N. Munk, the treasurer, has been made by the election of I. W. Munk to fill that position. The Munk company has been rather busy selling both plants and cut flowers. In flowers the call is running largely to Easter lilies, callas, carnations, sweet peas and gladioli. Pot plants are selling better than usual.

James McKellar, 35 West Broad street, was confined to his home for a few days about the middle of March because of an attack of the grippe, but he is recovering nicely. His store is selling a good variety of flowers, with roses the headliner. Some demand for green carnations was reported St. Patrick's Day.

The sororities council at the Ohio State university has voted to abolish flowers at their formal events during the remainder of the school year. This action followed that of the men's organizations of the institution.

The S. F. Stephens & Son Co., has been rather busy disposing of bulbous stock, which is one of its specialties. Demand has been good and the result is that stocks are pretty well cleaned up at all times.

Be sure that the name MEYER is on every spool of green Florists thread that you are buying, and you will get the original and best green Florists thread on the market. A great many of the salesmen on the road and the Florists' supply houses are substituting a cheap and inferior green Florists thread to take the place of the Meyer Green Silkline and Florists' thread.

Therefore, if you cannot get the real article send the goods back and order direct from the manufacturer and you will get the best. Guaranteed two ounces of actual thread to the spool, 16 ounces to the pound.

GRADUAL IMPROVEMENT NOTED.

Business was not particularly brisk at the opening of the week and stock accumulated for a few days. From midweek on the market had quite a brisk tone and prices picked up again so that at the close stock was selling at prices better than before. White carnations went at a premium for dyeing purposes, but they seem to have been overdone, as all the stores had a considerable stock of green carnations left on their hands. Spring flowers have not progressed as well as roses and carnations during the readjustment of prices, though they clean up well, which is considered good owing to the heavy shipments coming in at present. There is a very light call for corsage flowers. Violets, sweet peas and other similar stock used principally in corsage work are sold only with great urging on the part of the salesmen. The market ought to open strong next week as the shipping trade has been very brisk. Then the wholesalers will have to replenish their stocks and they really are the best prop for the market.

At the meeting of the directors of both markets, March 12, it was voted to consolidate and buy or build a place that will be large enough for any growth the business might make for the next 10 years. Nothing definite has been decided upon at the present writing.

SUPPLY OF STOCK INSUFFICIENT.

There was a shortening up in the supply of roses the first of the week, and carnations also have been none too plentiful. Bulbous stock such as jonquils, tulips, and cut hyacinths, have taken the lead, and sweet peas and snapdragons have also been big factors. Poeticus narcissi is being offered, the first of the season. Some single violets are seen but the demand for them is not very keen. Old fashioned bouquets are being featured by some of the retailers, using bulbous stock calendulas and stocks. The call has been very encouraging all week, in fact, one retailer remarked that business was so good, it seemed like old times. Not only has there been a heavy demand for funeral work, but the general trade has been better than for months. There have been several parties and social events, in spite of the fact that the Lenten season is on, and these have created a fair demand for baskets and bowls of roses, spring flowers and corsages. Carnations are improving greatly in quality, and there is some fine Laddie. Freesias are being offered, but are short-stemmed. Lily of the valley moves slowly, also cattleyas. Preparations are under way for a record Easter season, and indications point to a large supply of good quality flowers, both in pots, and cut stock.

NOTES.

The opening of the new Dime Savings & Trust Co., created a heavy call for flowers, for not only were there numerous handsome floral offerings presented by the other banks and trust companies to the new bank, but 10,000 flowers were given to all callers on the opening day. Among the florists who had large orders for the bank were: Doswell Floral Co., Lanternier's, Blossom Floral Co., Flick's Floral Co., and E. Wenninghoff.

St. Patrick's Day created a heavy call for green carnations this year, in fact, there was a more universal observance of the day here, this year than ever before, due, no doubt, to the Irish freedom. A large banquet of 300 Irish-Americans was held here and the decorations were very elaborate, green carnations being the principal flower used.

Green roses and tulips as well as green carnations were featured by Lanternier's for the St. Patrick's Day trade, and met with a very good sale. This firm also had a special sale on blooming plants, March 18, and report splendid results.

A two-weeks' special sale on ferns has been held by the Flick Floral Co. with much success. This firm has moved approximately 1,000 ferns. Cut bulbous stock and roses have also been retailed at cut prices by this store.

The Blossom Floral Co. furnished the decorations of southern smilax, palms and ferns for the Fishman ready-to-wear store for its spring opening during Style Show week, which was held March 20-25.

Knecht & Freese are cutting a large crop of Columbia and Ophelia roses and callas. This firm recently purchased a new Ford delivery car. H. K.

Fredericton, N. B.

TRADE IS QUIET.

Trade the past week has been rather quiet although February business was good in many respects. Stock is in good supply and prices as a rule are down to the pre-war level, although lilies have sold as high as 20 cents per flower. The trade is optimistic as Easter approaches, with an abundant supply of good flowers to supply all requirements.

The Fraser Floral Co., of Moncton, N. B., has 24,000 carnation plants in fine condition and is cutting nearly 1,000 per day. The firm has another house devoted to roses and a third mostly to sweet peas.

J. Bebbington recently planted three houses each to annuals, tomatoes and lettuce. J. B.

NEW BERN, N. C.—T. W. Carlisle, formerly of Goldsboro, N. C., and others are building greenhouses near this city. While the plant will not be finished for some time the firm opened for business, March 15.

STOCK CLEANING UP WELL.

Business has held up remarkably well. While there have been no records broken, in fact the volume is smaller than last year, still everything is cleaning up in good shape, and the loss in volume is due to lower prices and not to a smaller supply, as everything in season is arriving in quantity. While most stores made a showing of green carnations, St. Patrick's Day did not cause much more than a ripple in this market. The demand for white carnations was heavier than usual, but the supply was sufficient. Whites brought a little higher price than the colored varieties for this day. The weather has been ideal from a grower's standpoint; bright sunshiny days with frosty nights with the thermometer hovering between 25 and 40 degrees. The supply of American Beauty roses has increased, but the demand is light. Most of the retailers prefer the long Premier to the American Beauty at this season. Roses are in short supply, due to the fact that most growers are cropping for Easter. American Legion, Premier, Columbia, Butterfly, Ophelia, Pilgrim, Richmond, Sunburst, Hilda, Ward and Double White Killarney are the kinds. Carnations were never better, but the supply has been too large to realize top prices. The supply of Easter lilies is small and the market clears daily at list prices. Callas are good property and it is surprising this item has grown the last two or three years. Snapdragon is more plentiful and is as popular as ever, cleaning up daily with not enough to supply the demand. Sweet peas are still abundant and low in price, and at times hard to move. It seems strange, but when a certain flower gets plentiful and cheap, the public pass them up for something that is not so common and higher in price. Tulips and jonquils are not so plentiful and the price has advanced. Lily of the valley and orchids are holding their own, with just about enough to supply the demand. Other seasonable items include yellow daisies, calendula, iris, and baby primrose, all of which find their way to the retailer's ice box.

INCREASED SUPPLY OF STOCK.

The sun has been working full time the last few days, and the supply of cut flowers, especially roses, has increased considerably. The growers are now able to fill all orders, the first time since last December, but there is not an oversupply at present. The price of roses has been reduced from $6.00 to $20.00 per 100. Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty and Dunlop are the best sellers, although all varieties sell quite well. The supply of carnations is hardly equal to the demand, and the price of these has not been reduced. Bulbous stock is the big seller in the pot plant line. Greens were very much in evidence St. Patrick's Day, especially at the many socials and dances. Green carnations were entirely cleaned up.

Robert Miller, manager of the Miller Floral Co., left March 18 for Indianapolis, Ind., where he is to act as a judge at the National Flower Show, March 25-April 1. It is recalled here, that Mr. Miller also acted as judge at the Denver Flower Show, which was held in that city some time ago. All the florists here wish him an enjoyable trip.

The Salt Lake Floral Co. reports business as good. Its cut of carnations has increased considerably in the last few days.

MODERATE DEMAND REPORTED.

The market the past week has been fairly satisfactory, not that there has been much of an increase in the business, but just a moderately steady demand that with the shortening up of most stocks has kept the supply from accumulating. Carnations are ahead of the demand and do not bring the price their high quality warrants, good stock selling as low as three and four cents. St. Patrick's Day demand helped a lot as all the whites were cleaned up for the week at from six to eight cents. Flesh colored sorts were also in demand for the same dyeing purpose. White roses and white sweet peas were also used to some extent. Snapdragon is now seen at its best, the quality is fine and it is sure of a place in all the retail stocks. Roses have shortened up considerably, few being carried over from day to day. There is an abundance of daffodils, mostly Emperors, which sell too low to allow much margin for the grower. Even the splendid long-stemmed King Alfred, with its large flower hangs fire at six cents. There are plenty of tulips and still some paper whites. Stocks in various colors sell fairly well, many of the flowers being fine. Some of the best Delphinium belladonna ever seen in this market was offered the past week. The Easter lily supply is increasing, mostly all L. formosum. There are quantities of callas but they all appear to find buyers with the price holding up very well. Southern gladiol are coming in limited quantities, some of the stock being almost equal to that grown in the greenhouse. Cut lilacs were never better; selling well at a stated price.

events. They were also unanimous in their opinion that such a display was possible here and will be forthcoming just as soon as a suitable building was erected in which to hold it. Among those who attended were Mark Mills, Wm. K. Harris, S. S. Pennock, H. F. Michell, Wm. Kleinheinz, John Kuhn, A. R. Jones, W. Atlee Burpee, David Burpee, George W. Kerr, Frank M. Ross, Chas. Henry Fox, A. M. Campbell, Jacob G. Eisele, and others.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW EXHIBITORS.

The Robert Craig Co. is shipping a carload of fine dracaenas, specimen ferns and crotons to the Fifth National Flower Show at Indianapolis. The date of the exhibition, March 25-April 1, is too near Easter for them to make the display they would like. Other exhibitors from this city are Henry A. Dreer, Florex Gardens, John Andre, W. Atlee Burpee Co., Jos. Heacock Co., S. S. Pennock Co., Jos. G. Neidenger Co., H. Bayersdorfer & Co., M. Rice Co., Myers & Samtman, Wm. Kleinheinz and C. U. Liggit.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING, APRIL 4.

The April 4 meeting of the Florists' Club will be featured with an exhibition of Easter stock by all the large growers around the city. Chas. Henry Fox is sparing no effort to make his lecture, illustrated with artistically arranged flowers, one of the best, particularly for the retailer, ever given before the club.

NOTES.

Alfred M. Campbell, accompanied by S. S. Pennock, motored to Lancaster, Pa., March 16, to attend the meeting of the Lancaster County Florists' Association, before which Mr. Pennock delivered the illustrated lecture on his experiences while in Europe last summer. A full report will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Jos. G. Neidenger has just returned from a very successful trip to Boston, Mass., where he did a record breaking business in wreaths for Memorial Day.

LET YOUR ORDERS COME.

Mr. Neidenger sails for Europe, March 25, to secure stock for his rapidly increasing business.

Eugene Bernheimer is settled at last in his new store, 15 South Mole street, which with its large window has quite an imposing front. A large ice storage box is being erected in the yard which is being roofed over and connected with the store.

The Leo Niessen Co. offer very fine Larkspur belladonna, lilac and high grade carnations. The St. Patrick's Day demand cleaned up the white varieties at double the price of other colors. Fine snapdragon is also a feature.

Berger Bros. report a fair business for the week. Daffodil King Alfred and other choice bulbous stocks, Easter and calla lilies together with sweet peas in quantity are features here.

Edw. Reid is very strong on Ward carnations because he says they are the kind that sell best. Choice snapdragons, roses and sweet peas are also quantity items.

Edw. Dornheim is now a full fledged retailer, having given up his position with the Berger Bros. to devote his entire time to 60th street store.

Manager Lynch of the Philadelphia Growers' Cut Flower Market, reports roses shortening up with a good demand for all they can supply.

NO IMPROVEMENT IN BUSINESS.

The condition of business for the past week was much the same as reported for several preceding weeks. There was plenty of stock to supply all demands and as one wholesaler said: "We can keep it moving by selling cheap." The spring show was the outstanding feature of the week and there can be no doubt that ultimately these shows will be a great benefit to the business. In a good flower show the people get publicity first hand and in a manner that cannot be misunderstood. We will venture the assertion that the flower shows that have been held in the leading cities of this country in recent years have been greater helps in promoting business than all the combined "publicity campaigns."

March 20—Business is fairly active today, with tea roses somewhat firmer. Gardenias and sweet peas are in surplus, also heavy stocks of Easter lilies and callas. The clear and cool weather that continued through the past week was broken up last night by rain, which still continues.

SOUTH AMERICAN PLANTS.

An expedition that was headed by Dr. Henry H. Rusby, dean of the school of pharmacy of Columbia university, has returned after nine months spent in Bolivia and Brazil. It may be supposed that an expedition headed by an M. D. would be on the lookout for medicinal plants and such seems to have been the case, but it also had an eye for beauty. Dr. Rusby and his party found amaryllis that are said to run the gamut of colors. Their explorations were largely in Bolivia, where in addition to the amaryllis they found many kinds of catalpa, custard apples, which are something like Missouri's famous paw paws but larger, and other noteworthy fruits and flowers. They gathered many specimens that the natives use for drugs, but Dr. Rusby does not put great faith in them. He says that the much vaunted knowledge of savages as to the uses of herbs and roots for medicinal purposes is often merely superstition. This does not imply that Bolivia is exclusively inhabited by savages, but a book published about 20 years ago, listed as a part of the population: "Indians in a savage state, 240,000."

FLORISTS' CLUB BANQUET.

The annual dinner of the Florists' Club was held at the Hotel Biltmore, on the night of March 15. An interesting feature connected with the event was the presentation to Past President Hendrickson of a silver service by members of the club. A. M. Henshaw, also a former president, in a clever speech, presented the valuables. An appropriate reply in grateful acknowledgement of the gift, was made by Mr. Hendrickson. President Irwin, in behalf of the club, had previously extended a welcome to all present, the number being about 300. Aside from the foregoing ceremony there was no formal speechmaking. Dancing was indulged in between the dinner courses and after the banquet to a late hour. The prize for the best dancing was won by Mrs. G. E. M. Stumpp.

ing the horse show in the hearts of society. The reason is simple; more people now possess rare flowers; than own blooded horses." So said Joseph A. Millang, the well known florist, to a reporter of a local newspaper in a recent interview.

E. J. Hession and P. J. McKenny, two well known retailers who have been ill for some weeks, are up and about again, we are pleased to state.

Frank McDonald, of Dalonsky & McDonald, Boston, visited the markets, March 20.

Eugene Dailedouze and wife returned from Florida, March 17.

A. F. F.

Allied Florists' Trade Association of N. Y.

A. M. Henshaw, president of the Allied Florists' Trade Association, in speaking of his recent trip abroad, the main object of which was to better the conditions for obtaining supplies, especially from England, says that he was entirely successful along these lines, and that in the future it will be much easier to procure all general florists' supplies. He found that the florists overseas were beginning to enjoy a real prosperity, after the slump of the last six or seven years. Among other interesting facts, he states that the Royal Horticultural Society stages a flower show at intervals of every two weeks, which is a grand medium of advertising, although costly to the florists taking part. Florists in England are intensely interested in our advertising campaigns, and are carefully watching us.

Due to the strike among the lithographers, thus delaying the receipt of the association's window-stickers, added to that caused by the holding of the National Flower Show at Indianapolis, the mass meeting has been postponed to be held during the week of April 3. The circular pamphlet containing the cuts of the proposed advertising, etc., is practically completed, in fact just awaiting the window-stickers. We hope to mail them out to the trade at an early date.

Lincoln Pierson, president of the Co-operative Rose Growers' Association, is still confined to his home, thus holding up their end of the work. This will explain to many rose growers why they have not received any notices, literature, etc.

AUBREY S. NASH, Sec'y.

ALBERT DICKINSON, Chicago, and wife were at Nassau, Bahamas, March 14.

VISITED CHICAGO: Robt. Fulton, of Yokohama, Japan, returning from the east.

M. VAN WAVEREN & SONS, LTD., Hille-gom, Holland, are celebrating the centenary of their firm this year.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district are reported scarce this week, whites and yellows, $2.25, reds a trifle lower.

BOARD OF TRADE.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade March 22 were as follows: Timothy, $4.25 to $6.85 per 100 pounds; Red Clover, $15 to $21.

BAKERSFIELD, CALIF. had the first snowfall in its history March 17, the fall estimated at three inches, by local authorities, one inch remaining on the ground.

LEM W. BOWEN, of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich., and wife are sailing the Carribean sea, not the Mediterranean, as previously mentioned in these columns.

J. C. BROWN has succeeded the late B. F. Brown as president and manager of the Brown Bag Filling Machine Co., Fitchburg, Mass., Perry I. Wilson, assistant manager.

FORMER vice-president of Air Nitrates Corporation, says the $88,000,000 nitrate plant at Muscle Shoals stands as a monumental failure of government effort in private enterprise.

AT Chicago counter trade in seeds has been poor all through March and this week extra bad, because of snow and cold wind with a night temperature below 30 degrees.

BOSTON, ENG.—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Leslie Deal are rejoicing in the birth of a daughter March 2. Mr. Deal is well known to the American trade as a representative of W. W. Johnson & Son, Ltd., of this place.

In general, a heavy producing area of a particular kind of farm seed is also a heavy consuming area of that seed, and in most cases is the area in which relatively greater quantities are used than elsewhere, according to the government reporter.

PICTURE contests and like fake stunts feature the drives of several western mail order seed houses this season. Straight-forward seed and plant offers without trimmings are becoming scarce. Farmers and their families in their 1922 study of economics seem to be looking for prizes with all their purchases.

ROCKFORD, ILL.—The peak of the season is on here now in the mail order trade. R. H. Shumway is running over 2,500 orders a day, and booked nearly 100,000 orders to date, on a catalogue issue of less than 200,000.

It is reported that the senate finance committee has written into the seed paragraph of the tariff law now under consideration, the following: "All other seeds not especially provided for shall be dutiable at eight cents per pound."

New York seedsmen report that Assemblyman Witter, Tioga county, introduced a bill requiring that the country of origin of red clovers and alfalfa must be stated and every package of special mixture must be labeled regardless of the size of the package, while the present law has a limitation of eight ounces and over. This bill has passed as originally drawn. The governor has granted a hearing to the New York seedsmen in regard to it. This is Senator Ferris' bill 751.

Government Seeds.

Among the resolutions adopted at the recent London meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce was one which declared that "government control of or participation in industry and commerce discourages individual initiative and renders trade conditions uncertain and artificial." The resolution further set forth that government control of industry and commerce should be discouraged and private enterprise encouraged in all lines of industry and commerce.

[Some trade member of the International Chamber of Commerce should call its attention to the fact that our United States government continues to buy and give away common garden seeds as bribes to voters while permitting our disabled soldiers to beg on the public streets because of lack of government funds.—Ed.]

Hubam Clover Falls in Wisconsin.

The extravagant statements regarding Hubam, the annual white blossom sweet clover, and the big advantages claimed for the crop in the mass of propaganda circulated around the country has caused considerable unnecessary excitement among farmers, but so far all the experimental work carried out at the Wisconsin Experiment station for three years fails to show any advantages over other crops that should warrant the high prices demanded for the seed, according to R. A. Moore, of the agronomy department of the University of Wisconsin. Similar results have also been obtained at Ohio, Missouri and North Dakota experiment stations in their tests.

During the three years at Wisconsin the crop was a failure with a nurse crop; gave a very poor crop when broadcasted because of the competition with weeds and wild grasses; gave a poorer quality of hay than the biennial white blossom variety; it did not increase the organic matter of the soil as much as other crops; it did not stand drought nor acid soil as well as such crops as alfalfa, red and alsike clover and the biennial white blossom sweet clover.

"Where the crop was grown as a cultivated crop under garden conditions in rows, five bushels of seed was obtained from an acre. When grown under these conditions the crop may prove of value to bee men as a honey crop. As long as farmers are willing to pay exorbitant prices for the seed it will pay to grow it for seed, but so far the experiments fail to show that it is a crop that can begin to compare with our common clovers and alfalfa as a forage crop. There is a possibility for it as an emergency hay crop, but its worth has not as yet been demonstrated in Wisconsin," said Mr. Moore.

Field Seeds—Retail Prices.

The retail prices of field seeds on March 1 were lower for many kinds than on the corresponding date last year, according to reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture. Outstanding exceptions to this are red clover, redtop and Kentucky bluegrass, which are selling at 17 per cent, 45 per cent and 55 per cent, respectively, higher prices than last year.

Among the items for which lower retail prices are reported and the approximate average percentage of reduction are the following: Alsike clover, 16 per cent; sweet clover, 26 per cent; alfalfa, seven per cent; timothy, 11 per cent, soy beans, 25 per cent, and seed corn, 18 per cent. The average price of rape seed for planting purposes, both retail and wholesale, is the same as a year ago.

In the aggregate the spread between wholesale and retail prices of seeds this season appears to be less than in 1921. For example, the average retail price of red clover on March 1 was only about four per cent higher than the average wholesale selling price, while on or about the same date last year was 15 per cent higher. Sweet clover was 35 per cent higher in 1922 and 45 per cent higher in 1921; alfalfa 10 per cent higher in 1922 and 25 per cent in 1921, and timothy 20 per cent higher in 1922 and 35 per cent 1921.

The accompanying table shows the retail prices on March 1 for the various kinds of seeds by geographical divisions. The retail price of cotton seed for planting, not shown in the table, ranges $3.90 to $6.25 per 100 pounds, averaging $4.55.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

M. R. Cashman, Owatonna, Minn., President; Paul C. Lindley, Pomona, N. C., Vice-President; Charles Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo., Secretary; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Iowa, Treasurer.

The forty-seventh annual convention will be held at Detroit, Mich., June 28-30, 1922.

At the recent exhibition of the Women's National Farm and Garden Association in the Art Institute, Chicago, Olmsted Bros., of Brookline, Mass., were represented by pictures of estates and gardens and Welles-Bosworth, of New York, garden plans.

Horticultural Service.

Prof. Frank A. Waugh, chief of the division of horticulture, Massachusetts Agricultural college, Amherst, at the recent conclusion of the nursery practice short course given by the college, account of which appeared in our issue of March 18, page 456, pointed out certain advantages enjoyed by eastern nurserymen and especially by those in New England. The nurseryman there is in close contact with his customers and can retain the same customer year after year, which stabilizes the business and reduces the cost of selling. Thus the nurseryman is able to give a considerable amount of personal service along with his stock, which in many cases is more valuable than the stock itself. This service, Prof. Waugh believed, should be charged and paid for at a uniform rate.

Although this class of work is often called landscape gardening, it really is horticultural service, for it also includes the trade in nursery stock. By giving immediate and practical assistance to customers in their problems ample opportunities for developing good business are opened up.

Spruces from Cuttings.

Referring to the propagation of blue spruce from cuttings by the D. Hill Nursery Co., Inc., of Dundee, Ill., mentioned in our issue of March 18, page 456, P. M. Koster, the well known blue spruce specialist, of Koster & Co., Bridgeton, N. J., writes as follows:

"Why, yes, Picea pungens glauca Koster can be grown from cuttings. We have done so often but we found that they are very little use as they grow exceedingly slowly. It takes years before they make a decent plant.

"I wonder why the Hill concern grows them from cuttings. They claim they have thousands and thousands of Picea excelsa, and when one has plenty of stocks, why not graft them? We have had stocks from different parties who claimed they had Picea excelsa which we denounced as such while other experts also agreed with us. We also had samples of Picea excelsa which were good plants, whereas the stock received was of such inferior quality that we had to return them all. Not all, we kept a few hundreds which all died. There are some difficulties, as you will see from this letter, to grow Koster's blue spruce.

"We also have difficulty in obtaining the true 'Koster.' Some people, with whom we never did any business, while yet in Holland claimed that they bought the original plants from us. Still we do not despair. The variety is too useful not to be grown."

Apples in Oiled Wrappers.

Results during 1921 in preventing apple scald in stored apples by the use of oiled-paper wrappers have confirmed all previous reports that the trouble may be controlled in this way, if the oiled wrappers carry a sufficiently high percentage of oil. The United States Department of Agriculture has recommended that the wrappers should carry 15 to 20 per cent of oil if they are to be effective in preventing the development of scald. When wrappers carrying a low percentage of oil, in some cases as low as five per cent, have been used poorer results have been obtained.

The demand for the right type of oiled wrappers for apples has been so great that many of the orders from growers have not been filled. About 80,000 boxes of apples were packed in oiled wrappers at Wenatchee, Wash., last season, and a similar number at Yakima, Wash.

Scald is a transportation and storage disease that is produced by gases given off by the apples themselves. The disease is greatly favored by a warm storage and by delays in reaching storage. It is particularly serious on the York Imperial, Grimes, Arkansas (Mammoth Black Twig), Rome Beauty, Rhode Island Greening, Stayman Winesap, Wagener, and Baldwin varieties. In mild cases the apple is merely tinted with brown, but in more severe cases the entire skin layer is killed. The disease looks like an apple rot, but is rather a cause of rot. The gases which cause scald can be removed by ventilation or by absorbing them with oils. Apples scald far less in boxes, crates, or ventilated barrels than in the usual commercial barrels, but scald can be entirely prevented by storing the apples in oiled, not waxed, wrappers. This treatment has been found completely successful even when susceptible varieties have been placed in unventilated storage and held far beyond their usual storage season.

"Plan to Plant Another Tree" Week.

The Illinois State Nurserymen's Association, in its "Plan to Plant Another Tree" week, full account of which appeared in our issue of March 4, page 360, held March 12-19, has met with great success. Hundreds of organizations have held meetings during the week on this subject and 1,300 moving picture theatres throughout Illinois are running slides at every performance, entitled: "Plan to Plant Another Tree; Plan in March What to Plant in April."

More than 300 newspapers throughout the state are featuring various subjects pertinent to the industry, such as "Varieties of Fruit to Plant in Illinois;" "Twenty-five Best Shrubs for the State," and others. Prominent men and women of Illinois are interested in and working for the success of the movement.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, March 21.—Cucumbers, per crate, $6 to $8.50; head lettuce, per crate, $4.50 to $6; carrots, $4 to $5 per barrel; cabbage, $2 to $2.50 per crate.

New York, March 17.—Cucumbers, $1.75 to $2.50 per dozen; mushrooms, per three-pound basket, 80 cents to $1.70; radishes, 100 bunches, $3.50 to $10; tomatoes, per pound, 35 to 40 cents; lettuce, per crate, $2.25 to $5.50; beets, per crate, $1.75; rhubarb, $1 to $2 per dozen bunches.

Lettuce Mildew.

If we were asked what was the greatest enemy to lettuce under glass we would unhesitatingly say, mildew. Strange to say, mildew is one of those afflictions that never troubles some growers, while others can find no remedy. This proves at once that it is either the fault of the grower or his location.

If the fault of the grower, we know of some methods that are easily a factor in producing mildew. We will name them in about their order of destructiveness: Allowing temperatures to rise high in the morning and then opening wide, inducing cold draughts. Much might be said on this subject, but a few words to the wise should be enough—Never allow temperatures to mount without some ventilation, and if sometimes this does happen keep the house rather close the rest of the day and make no attempt to cool it off suddenly. The next trouble is no doubt frequent and excessive watering, especially in the afternoon or on cloudy days. Another may be poor soil drainage, as ground water will rise to the surface and produce dampness.

One of the experiment station scientists recently told the writer that 25 years ago when small, low houses were the rule, mildew was very common, while now in modern, large and high houses it is rarely seen. This proves that the sudden rise in temperature, followed by quick cooling off, is mainly responsible for mildew. In other words, mildew in a plant is similar to pneumonia in an animal. Lettuce thrives best in a cool, dry atmosphere and a fairly even temperature and these conditions must be supplied to produce good results.

As an exciting factor, overly rich soil might be mentioned, which induces quick growth. Sulphur or grape dusts are often recommended, but they are not effective in a low temperature. To get results we should close the houses on a sunny day and raise the temperature to nearly 90 degrees, which will induce the sulphur to destroy the mildew. But this high temperature is bad for lettuce. Where steam heat is used, sulphur can be painted on the steam pipes and evaporated more efficiently. Where hot water is utilized, this method is not so effective. However, we have found that by increasing the painted area in hot water heated houses, some very good results have been obtained. We have painted the entire heating area in a hot water house, using one-half sulphur and one-half hydrated lime, which effectively stopped the mildew.

Mildew on lettuce seedlings, by killing the seed leaves, develops a disease known as pink spot, among growers. This will girdle the plant where the seed leaves were attached and eventually destroy the plant, no matter how large.

Fifth National Flower Show.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 25 to April 1.

Hoosiers Present Fine Exhibition.

The Fifth National Flower Show, of the Society of American Florists, co-operating with the American Rose Society, and the American Carnation Society, held in the Manufacturers' building, Indianapolis, was a wonderful exhibition exceeding all previous events in the number and high quality of its exhibits. This great floricultural event of the year, to which so many of the best men in the business have given their time and attention the past year and particularly for two months prior to the opening, March 25, grew and grew and finally blossomed out into the greatest floral exhibition ever held in this country. The building in which the show was staged is the best constructed, well lighted and most commodious in the country. The floor space on the ground level is 220 x 360 feet and in the center is a depressed area two feet below the level of the side floors. This area is 100 feet in width and 240 feet long without columns to break the view.

In the lower levels was displayed all the important plant decorative effects, the rose gardens, the central acacia exhibit, the Florists' Telegraph Delivery "Temple of Flora," fancy bedding of the Indianapolis park department, Dutch bulb gardens and other important entries. The 60 feet around the central depression, both at the ends and side afforded abundant space for the retail booths, all the smaller classes of exhibits and the decorated areas of the retail florists of Indianapolis as well as the daily competitive flower displays. In addition there was ample room for wide avenues, so that visitors could move freely about and view the show with comfort and rest at will on the convenient chairs and listen to the music and enjoy the solo singing every afternoon and evening.

Arthur Herrington, of New York, stated there was about the same floor space as in the Grand Central palace of that city, but the advantage at Indianapolis was in having it all on one floor and in a building without the obstruction of pillars to break the vista. The lighting during the day was ample and at night greatly enhanced the beauty of the scene. Mr. Herrington laid out the floor space, while in New York, from the plans furnished him and did not have to make a single change in the arrangements when he arrived at the exhibition.

The outstanding feature of the show was the acacia exhibit made by Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass., of over 100 plants, a number of them standing eight feet in height covered with their misty, yellow blossoms. This wonderful display, occupying the center space, was always in view from all parts of the hall. The rose gardens of A. N. Pierson, Inc., the State Florists Association of Indiana and Merkel Bros., were very well arranged and greatly added to the beauty of the exhibition. The "Temple of Flora," staged by the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, was Secretary Albert Pochelon's best work so far in his untiring efforts for that organization. Against a large, blue background, 25 feet square, was a heroic winged Mercury standing on a rose decked pedestal which rested on a hemisphere of the globe. The figure in his outstretched hand, held a one cross section of a telegraph pole from which wires stretched in graceful lines to all parts of the background, with a bunch of miniature roses where the wires touched. "Flowers Delivered to all Parts of the World Within Two Hours," and other inscriptions, together with several miniature flower shops at the base and a border of spring blooming plants made a most conspicuous display that was a feature of the extreme end of the depressed garden.

Although the show was ready for visitors at noon, Saturday, it was officially opened by President Harding at 2 p. m., at the White House, in Washington, who, pressing a button, rang an electric gong for fully a minute. Later in the afternoon there were addresses by President S. S. Pennock, of the Society of American Florists; Colonel Reynolds and President Iles, of the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce, who spoke of the immensity of the undertaking and the great number of national flower organizations that had worked so hard to make this the greatest floral exhibition ever staged in the United States. When one considers the magnitude of the undertaking, the great number of exhibits, the long distance from which many of them were brought, the work entailed in setting them up and the fact that the show was fully completed and opened on time reflected great credit on the management and exhibitors alike and was truly a great achievement.

Central Competitive Exhibits.

The special features of the show, the F. T. D. exhibit, the acacias, the rose gardens, bulb gardens and groups of foliage and flowering plants arranged for effect, were all staged in the depressed area in the center of the building. There was high class finish to all these exhibits, each being worthy of a place in this greatest of flower shows.

One of the strong features of the show was the exhibit of acacias made by Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass. Although coming so far they had carried in perfect shape and were in a state of great perfection. Carrying clouds of blossoms, which while all yellow in color, were very different in their feathery sprays of tufted blossoms and lace-like foliage. There were over 100 plants comprising 30 varieties. They varied in age from seven to 15 year old specimens, some of which stood 10 feet in height. These had the place of honor in the center of the hall, arranged in semi-circles around the electric fountain. The longifolia varieties, Macrantha, Magnifica and M. Lowii were especially beautiful, as were specimen plants of A. pubescens and A. longifolia. This group of plants was undoubtedly the most admired in the entire hall.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn., made a wonderful contribution to the exhibition staging 42 entries, covering almost every section of the premium list. Considering the distance their plants, flowers and garden furniture had to be transported and the great quantities and excellence of the stock exhibited it was really an achievement and had so much to do with the success of the national show that the whole trade is indebted to this firm's enterprise. Their rose garden covering 500 square feet, the space enclosed in a low, white open railing fence, heavily entwined with Tausendschoen and Hiawatha roses, was wonderful. An arched pergola with seats was the central feature, a wide graveled walk leading from it to the rear of the space. Beds cut into the grassy lawn, were filled with baby rambler roses very full of bloom. Tall Hiawatha roses hedged the rear fence and carried their wealth of bloom over the pergola. It was indeed a most beautiful garden. Flanking the garden on either side were staged entries for the baby rambler and tea rose classes, which, with their sod-lined borders added to the general effect.

The Pierson firm's grouping of ornamental plants, arranged for effect, was a most artistic setting. The features were cibotiums, *adiantum*s, Lemkesii, a species of the Farleyense fern, dracaenas in variety and a number of stove plants, all selected for their highly colored foliage. The grouping divided into four parts, separated by narrow graveled paths, was very artistic and showed a finished effect that could hardly be improved upon. Their rose arbor covered with tall plants of Hiawatha and Dorothy Perkins, hedged in with tall cedars, relieved at the back with a stone garden seat was very effective. Bougainvilleas, specimen glory of adiantum, Lemkesii, bird's nest, stag horn ferns and stove plants in variety, with magnificent specimen rambler roses, were entries in the various classes.

The rose garden of the State Florists' Association of Indiana was beautiful. It covered 500 square feet of space and two entrances arched with pergolas on which were large plants of Excelsa, clouded with blossoms, presented a very pleasing picture. A garden seat covered with a pergola of the same roses and an arch opposite, with white and pink Dorothy Perkins roses and a large, low, white sun dial in the center surrounded with Excelsa roses, were the special features. The four elaborate groups in the corners of the garden, consisted of high Tausendschoen and a banking of hybrids, hybrid tea and baby rambler roses which bordered the paths. The low, white, open fence enclosure was thickly entwined with Dorothy Perkins roses, making in all an ideal garden.

A very pretty grouping of rambler roses in pots was staged by Merkel Bros., Mentor, O. Well flowered specimens, on their grassy, lawn ground-work made a fine showing.

Bertermann Bros. Co., of Indianapolis, featured a bulb garden, bordered on three sides with a thick cedar hedge, which was planted in its well arranged center beds with Darwin tulips and bordered on the sides with daffodils. Phlox subulata edged the gravel walks along the front. The beds were cut out of a fine grassy sod, which, with the stone garden seats, added much to the effect.

A Dutch bulb garden occupying 500 square feet, enclosed in a neat, white pale fence, thickly bordered with Darwin tulips, presenting a harlequin of color was shown by A. Wiegand & Sons'

Co., Indianapolis. A central fountain was encircled with early Dutch tulips. Four beds of tulips and hyacinths filled in the center of the rectangular space, all of which was set off with fine grass sod. It was a finished and most beautiful garden. In another space the company exhibited an artistic grouping of flowering and foliage plants in which Cineraria stellata and Primula obconica were prominent.

A 500 square foot plot staged by the Indianapolis city park department was a replica of a section of Garfield park in that city and in its perfection of detail looked as beautiful as if grown under the July sun. The green sod was perfect and the coleus, alternantheas and centureas all worked into a beautiful design that attracted a great deal of attention.

Bertermann Bros. Co., arranged a garden effect with foliage and flowering plants. A gazing globe in the center was most effective and attracted much interest. Dark blue hydrangeas were also a feature of this group. The same firm also covered 50 square feet with a display of growing lily of the valley, arranged in an irregular formation of tuffa rock, that was most attractive.

The Robert Craig Co., Norwood Station, Pa., beautifully arranged a group of crotons, flanked on either side with specimen dracaenas in large sizes and upwards of 15 kinds, which were a center of attraction at all times. The vigorous health of these plants was exceedingly fine. Dracaena tricolor, D. Lord Woolesey, D. striata and a handsome specimen of D. Victoria were splendidly colored.

Ferns in great variety, excellent types, were staged by F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y. There were 25 different varieties, prominent amongst them being the new Nephrolepis aurea, its light green foliage giving a golden glow and a kind not yet named, having a very hard, lasting frond, a sport of N. elegantissima. The arrangement was most artistic.

E. E. Temperly, of Indianapolis, whose exhibit covered 200 square feet, showed doves in flight held by ribbons from a life sized kewpie doll, which was surrounded by Easter lilies. Above a large group of spring flowering stock, over which the doves were flying, was a background of tall cedars, with borders on each side of the space. Groups, in rockwork, of cinerarias and primulas, with ferns, made altogether a very striking display.

At the left of the main entrance, John Rieman, Indianapolis, showed a fine group of spring flowering plants in 200 square feet. A center bed was of Azalea amoenus, with Pandanus Veitchii mixed throughout, which gave a good color contrast.

A. Wiegand & Sons Co., in their display of well flowered French hydrangeas, with fern border and a handsome specimen otaska in the center was a much admired group. The plants as a whole showed great vigor.

A very artistic decoration of cut spray orchids arranged by Bertermann Bros. Co., in concealed vases, hanging from a cork covered tree, arising from a rockwork in which there were also cattleyas growing apparently from the crevices of the stone.

There were four entries in the competition for the best 25 pots of Easter lilies which were grouped at either side of the rear of the hall, in front of the collections of conifers, all of which gave a pleasing decorative effect.

The Riverside Station, Ind., Conservatories made a display of hardy greenhouse plants, of which aspidistras, cyrtomiums and Sandersonias were features.

C. H. Schwonerper, Indianapolis, had a very well arranged bed of begonias of the Vernon type covering 50 square feet.

A group of hydrangeas arranged for effect, by L. Anderson, Rocky River, O., contained handsome specimens in whites blues and pinks and all were remarkably well flowered.

A. L. Miller, of Jamaica, L. I., featured a group of well flowered heathers, bougainvilleas and begonias. Exceptionally well developed Easter lilies formed the center of this collection. Mr. Miller's heathers, Azalea hino digiri and chorizemas were placed in two of the entrance groups where they attracted great attention.

John H. Dunlop & Sons, Ltd., of Toronto, Ont., staged several vases of their rose, Frank W. Dunlop, and Golden Ophelia. The flowers of each kind were very fine in spite of the fact that they were cut three days previous to the opening of the exhibition.

The Daisy Hills Farms, of Chagrin Falls, O., had a splendid lot of pot roses, including hybrids and hybrid teas.

Lars Anderson made a fine showing of hydrangeas in six to 10-inch pots, all splendidly flowered. These covered 150 square feet and justly won first prize. A handsome specimen blue hydrangea, four feet in diameter also was awarded a first.

Along the west side of the hall were the various exhibits of polyantha and baby rambler roses, hyacinths, cinerarias, azaleas and Dutch bulbs, all showing high quality. Prominent in this section was the display of the Friedley Co., of Cleveland, O., whose collection of Darwin and Cottage tulips was much admired.

On the opposite side of the hall the display of Easter lily plants, occupying 50 square feet by the Roepke Floral Co., of Indianapolis, won first prize, while adjoining was a very pretty grouping from the conservatories of Mrs. Hugh Mc K. Landon, of the same city.

In the same section of the hall was displayed entries in the various classes of flowering plants, prominent among these being an exhibit of shrubby cinerarias of fine type, very well flowered, entered by John Heidenreich, Indianapolis. A large group of fine plants of Pandanus Veitchii shown by the park board of that city was attractively arranged.

The alligator pond of A. Wiegand & Sons Co., at the further end of the hall was an interesting spot for visitors. There were six alligators in all, one being over five feet in length.

The Grassyfor Fisheries, of Martinville, Ind., made a wonderful display of fancy gold fish, Japanese fantails, and Chinese telescopes.

The fish and game division of the Indiana department of conservation exhibited specimens of native fish in illuminated tanks. A large collection of butterflies by the same department, was a feature.

One of the features of the show was the exhibits of Kurume azaleas made by Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa. There were only a dozen plants, but in their proficiency of bloom and range of color they showed the possibilities of this new type of hardy azaleas. One called Pink Pearl, the same shade as the Pink Pearl rhododendron, was exceptionally well flowered. The plants were in from eight to 10-inch tubs and pots. This firm also staged the new bougainvillea, Crimson Lake, which will be a wonderful Easter plant when it becomes more plentiful. In color it is a brilliant crimson. They were represented by James Cairns.

Indianapolis Retail Florists' Exhibits.

The decorated spaces, 10x20 feet, or 200 square feet, not competitive, but exhibited by the various firms to show their good will and interest in the show, were, for the most part very decorative and beautiful. These were staged in the center of the south end of the hall and added much to the attractiveness of the exhibition.

The Roepke Floral Co., arranged a background of palms, relieved with baskets of cut flowers and two very large flats of white hyacinths.

The Pahud Floral Co., gave their decorated space a garden effect, with corner groups of spring blooming plants and ferns and a center mound of Cineraria stellata, the whole presenting of finished appearance.

The pergola of the Circle Flower Store, was artistically decorated with garden furniture and huge vases filled with choice, long stemmed roses. Large flats of daffodils and pot rambler roses were added features.

M. Brandlein covered his floor space with green denim, on which was grouped ferns, pandanuses and pots of cinerarias.

Easy chairs with vases of snapdragons and handle baskets filled with choice spring flowers were the features of the display of the Marer Flower Shop.

Green's Flower Shop bordered their space with hydrangeas in jardinières. A large floor vase filled with long stemmed Premier roses was most striking. A feature was the dollar plant, each branch of which blossoms out a dollar bill. This was a stove plant and was confined in a glass case.

Before a magnificent grouping of cibotiums in a bed of adiantums stood a large marble slab, supported on winged lions. In the center of this stood an enormous vase filled with long stemmed American Beauty roses. Vases of cat-tleas, violets and lily of the valley added to the effect. Large bowls of daffodils were used at each corner of the space. This was Bertermann Bros. Co.'s exhibit and stood in a class by itself.

H. W. Rieman's Sons featured an illuminated electric fountain, encircling which were jardiniere baskets handsomely filled with spring flowering plants Cinerarias, daisies and azaleas with a background of palms gave a very good finish to this display.

A Wiegand & Sons Co. had a very artistic exhibit. Four large white wicker bowls on standards containing roses and ferns were prominent cover pieces. Jardiniere baskets of begonias bordered the bed of ferns that covered the floor space, in which was placed tall handled vase baskets of long stemmed roses. Garlands of asparagus added to this very effectively.

Choice ferns and artistic reed furniture decorated the space of E. E. Temperley's. A center table contained an elaborate basket of spring flowers.

Cut Rose Display.

Monday, March 27, was rose day, which judging from the number of famous rose growers who exhibited, must have been a marked period on their calendar for some time. New England, New York, Philadelphia, Pa., Chicago, St. Louis, Mo., and a number of Indiana experts made numerous entries. Unfortunately the express companies fell down. The 1,100 flowers of the A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., did not arrive until late Monday night and the large collections of the Florex Gardens, North Wales, Pa., and of John Andre, Doylestown, Pa., did not reach the hall until the judges had awarded the prizes. These collections were unusually fine and it was generally conceded that the awards would have the vases were placed about added very materially to the beauty of the show. Several huge hundreds of Double White Killarney made a wonderful showing. been differently made had these been in place. All the stock in the various classes was unusually fine which, when Premier and Columbia were seen at their best.

Spectacular vases were the 100 Hadley of the Jos. Heacock Co., Anders Rasmussen's, Hoosier Beauty in the same quantity, and the 100 Celestial, a light pink sport of Premier staged by Myers & Samtman, Philadelphia, Pa.,

each a winner in its class and wonderfully fine.

F. R. Pierson's large vase of Francis Scott Key was also greatly admired.

In the competition for 12 blooms of any rose not disseminated, Celestial the pink sport of Premier won out over Hill's America and Montgomery's dark pink seedling 9,199, which caused great surprise. Both the latter kinds were however awarded the American Rose Society's silver medals for the best new rose not disseminated that scored over 85 points. Of the newer roses Golden Ophelia of the Jos. H. Hill Co. and the Florex Gardens was the most striking.

The E. G. Hill Co., staged a handsome large vase basket filled with Hill's America in a velvet lined booth. Vases of Premier and Columbia were also features here. This space was electrically lighted with a fine portrait of E. G. Hill in the background.

Two very elaborate displays, mostly of roses, were made by the E. C. Amling Co., Chicago, and the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, both of which contained over 50 vases of commercial cut flowers. A collection of colored freesias in the Amling group was a striking feature.

The exhibit of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association contained a wonderful assortment of commercial cut flowers including in addition a large display of roses. Every standard flower in the market was seen and all of splendid quality. Manager Paul R. Klingsporn showed great enterprise in making this great display.

In the bridal bouquets arranged by members of the Ladies' Society of American Florists, there were three entries. Miss Amelia Gude won first prize for a very graceful shower bunch of lily of the valley and gardenias. Mrs. Lewis Pahud Augspurger, of Indianapolis, and Miss M. C. Gunterberg, Chicago, entered artistically made bunches with shower effects.

In the competition for baskets of spring flowers four classes were entered, Bertermann Bros. Co., winning the blue ribbon with lupines, daffodils and tulips in very artistic arrangement. Four entries were also made in the six tumbler basket class. Fred H. Lemon & Co., was awarded first prize, with Bertermann Bros. Co., second.

Tuesday, March 28, was Carnation Day and right nobly did the carnation men of the country respond, as there were over 70 vases entered, more than half of them of 100 flowers each. There were eight entries of Laddie in the 50 and 100 classes all of which vases made a wonderful showing. Rosalia and Red Rosalia were sensational in their superb flowers and were exhibited by Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, as was a very fine vase of Ruth Baur.

The three vases entered in the undisseminated class were Hartje & Elders' No. 16, a splendid bright pink, which won first prize; Betty Jane, second and F. Dorner's & Sons' light pink carnation, enough like Laddie to be called Laddie, Jr., third. Belle Washburn and Aviator with Red Rosalia were the best in their color. Mrs. C. W. Ward held its own in the bright pinks with several vases of fine flowers, Bertermann Bros. winning a blue ribbon in this class.

White Delight won first place for white, with Matchless, second. Mrs. Thos. C. Joy, a spotless white with a fringed edge was also exhibited. Cottage Maid won in flesh pinks, and superb flowers they were. Other kinds that stood out prominently were Red Matchless, Sensation, Whatcher, a perfectly formed, large, quite double flower, medium pink in color and F. Dorner & Son's deep pink seedling of fine form.

The carnation stocks all appeared to have come through on time. Strouts, Inc., Biddeford, Me.; S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., and W. D. Howard, Milford, Mass., brought large shipments through without delay. Chicago, Kansas City, Mo., and Milwaukee, Wis., also had entries with Indiana growers, showing up well. The flowers were all exhibited in the vases of the American Rose Society and staged after being judged in a large group in the rear of the hall.

Retail Trade Exhibitors.

The trade exhibitors who also sold to the general public had spaces next to the outer wall of the Manufacturers' building, in which commodious area their goods were all displayed to advantage.

The exhibit on the right, next to the executive offices was a section of curved eave rafter iron frame greenhouses, fitted with tables filled with plants, erected by the Lord & Burnham Co., New York and Chicago. An inviting space fitted up with chairs and tables, decorated with cut flowers, was for the use of visitors. Photographs and literature were features. M. C. Wright, and H. M. Berner were representatives.

The T. J. Callahan Co., Dayton, O., had a section of a greenhouse showing easy splice V joint, ventilating apparatus and roller bearing hangers. H. G. Miller, the company's Indianapolis representative was in charge.

Indianapolis Public Library made a display showing garden literature and books on flowers. Chas. E. Rush, librarian, in charge.

FIFTH NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Decorative Display of Temperly Florists, Indianapolis, Ind.

FIFTH NATIONAL FLOWER SHOP.

Dutch Bulb Garden of A. Wiegand & Sons Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

Notes of the Show.

The publicity features or the persistence with which the show was kept on the front page of the newspapers had much to do with its success. The large eight page supplement of the Indianapolis Star entirely devoted to the show published on the opening day was a winner. Each day following, show news was front page stuff illustrated with exhibition photos on the inside pages.

One of the greatest features of the exhibition was the finish to every display which gave a perfection to the whole, that has seldom been equaled. A sod border enclosed every exhibit that was not otherwise ornamented. The wide cement aisles at least 10 feet in width, were kept spotlessly clean and in wider spaces were groups of chairs where the visitors could rest while listening to the music.

The wide foyer inside the entrance contained a number of mounds, edged with touffa rock, planted with flowering bulbous stock and plants. The central bed had the plaster figures of a life-sized strong young girl with an ear of corn in one hand striving with all her might to pull a goat which she had lassoed by the horns. Roman J. Irwin said this represented Indianapolis getting Cleveland's goat.

The attendance has been good from the opening, there being great throngs afternoon and evenings. There were over 30,000 trade tickets sold, with 4,400 50 cent admissions at the gate on Monday.

Although the paths in all parts of the building are so wide, policemen had to keep the crowds going in one direction to enable them to get around without congestion.

The various retail trade exhibitors appeared to have a throng about them at all times and were quite satisfied with the business prospects.

Secretary Pochelon of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, pulled off one of his greatest publicity efforts to celebrate the opening of the show. Over a week before March 25 he sent a circular letter to all members of the F. T. D. requesting that they send, March 25, something in plants or flowers from their store to the mayor of their city, with the card of the mayor of Indianapolis as coming to them from the great National Flower Show, through the F. T. D. service. They were to charge this expense to publicity and see that it was noticed in the columns of their newspapers. By Tuesday night, March 28, Mayor Lewis Shank had received over 600 replies from mayors all over the United States, thanking him for the gifts and wishing success to the great show. This is undoubtedly the greatest publicity stunt ever accomplished, at least by the craft in this country, and all hats are off to Secretary Pochelon for his clever work.

The J. W. Davis Co., Terre Haute, Ind., showed some choice florists' plant stock in very healthy condition.

The Jos. H. Hill Co., gave out 5,000 cut roses as souvenirs, Monday, and 5,000 2½-in. pot rose plants, Tuesday.

Frank Stuppy, St. Joseph, Mo., staged a vase of their new rose, a double sport of Ophelia, a fine full flower, which they have named Freida Hemple.

W. A. Rowe, Kirkwood, Mo., exhibited Tuesday, seven vases of Dutch irises in variety, very fine flowers.

Baur's Flower Shop, Tucson, Ariz., filled a table with sample cactus.

Edward Towill, Roslyn, Pa., made an exhibit of his new rose, Loyal Legion, that attracted much admiration.

The Dale Estate's cattleyas, arranged in the rock work at the F. T. D. exhibit were a pleasing feature.

A telegraph instrument in the F. T. D. flower show was ticking away all the time receiving and sending out messages and orders.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., captured 16 firsts, two seconds and a gold medal out of 13 entries on the first day. A clean sweep!

Vice-President Samuel Murray, of Kansas City, became suddenly ill Tuesday and left for home that night.

The Kansas City delegation including Messrs. Murray, Rock, Bohannon and W. J. Barnes, reinforced by Chas. P. Mueller, of Wichita, Kan., arrived Monday.

Thomas Roland's genista group was greatly admired by many local amateurs.

A fine tinted portrait of E. G. Hill was hung in the canopy over his display of roses, with America in the center.

The Indianapolis morning newspapers the opening day, carried several pages of local and out-of-town advertisements of both seedsmen and florists, the A. Wiegand & Sons Co., using a full page.

Saturday, the opening day of the flower show, was flower day in Indianapolis. Thousands of roses, carnations, sweet peas and tulips were given away by a score of pretty girls stationed at the main downtown street corners at noon, announcing the opening of the National Flower Show in the Manufacturers' building at the Indiana State Fairgrounds.

OBITUARY.

Charles M. Loring.

Charles M. Loring, founder of the great park system of Minneapolis, Minn., and public benefactor, died at his home in that city, March 18. Death came suddenly to the man who has often been called the best beloved citizen of Minneapolis. Mr. Loring was in the sixty-second year of his citizenship in the community whose commercial and esthetic development he had so much influence in promoting. He had been in constantly failing health for many months and had grown accustomed to speaking to his friends and relatives of the end that was coming. He was 89 years old.

Mr. Loring was one of the early Maine emigrants to Minneapolis, who helped to stamp the growing town with the sturdy virtues and high cultural ideals of their native New England. He died leaving his name proudly enshrined, not only in the annals of the civic and commercial development of Minneapolis from its earliest village days, but also on such monuments as he helped to construct to the city's permanent beauty. Loring park, the first to be laid out in the Minneapolis park system, the Loring cascade in Glenwood park a gift of the Lorings to the city and the new Victory Memorial drive, which Minneapolis owes largely to the vision and loyalty of Mr. Loring, are among the symbols of the Loring tradition which he bequeathed to the city he loved.

Charles Morgridge Loring, who was of a family long resident in New England and eminent in professional life, should have been a sailor. He was born in a coast town, Portland, Me., on November 13, 1832, and a love of the sea and of the tree-lined streets of his native town was one of his prime heritages. He used to say that he was born under the beautiful trees of Portland, and that was one reason his love for them had persisted all his life.

Harry A. Barnard.

The death is announced of Harry A. Barnard, well known to the American trade as representative of Stuart, Low & Co., of London, Eng. Mr. Barnard was a genuine cockney, having been born within sound of Bow Bells, and was practically all his life in the service of the Low family. He had a wide knowledge of garden plants, especially orchids, and was highly esteemed by all who knew him. We received one of his very interesting letters February 27, recording some of the things he saw at the previous exhibition of the Royal Horticultural Society, and the particulars there given would indicate he was then in his usual health.

Alexander Waldbart.

Alexander Waldbart, of St. Louis, Mo., died at his home in that city, March 14, age 77 years. Mr. Waldbart was born in Haden, Germany and came to St. Louis in 1866, and early engaged in the florist business. Six years later he built a range of seven greenhouses at Grand and Lawton avenues. Due to increasing business Mr. Waldbart moved his establishment to Horton place and Hamilton avenue, where it was continued until the time of his death.

Mr. Waldbart was active in the early formation of the Society of American Florists and was one of its charter members. He also helped to form the St. Louis Florists' Club, of which he was the first treasurer and later president for two terms. As one of the pioneer florists of that section his death is sincerely mourned by the trade of St. Louis.

The funeral services were held from the late home, burial being in Calvary cemetery, March 17. Mr. Waldbart is survived by three sons, Alexander F., Eugene J., and Lee A. Waldbart, who will continue the business; two daughters, Emilie and Anna and a brother, Geo. Waldbart.

COLUMBIA, Mo.—The annual Farmers' Fair, of the College of Agriculture, will be held here April 7.

TERRE HAUTE, IND.—J. W. Davis and family, will return April 2 from their winter vacation in Florida.

GLEN FALLS, N. Y.—A. J. Binley's greenhouses were recently damaged by fire to the extent of $2,500.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.—Frank X. Stuppy and Dr. Murphy, of the Stucky Floral Co., spent the first days of the week at the Indianapolis show.

CAMP POINT, ILL.—Arthur Little recently erected greenhouses here and will engage in both the retail and wholesale trade.

FREMONT, NEB.—Plans are being developed to make a playground for the children of this city in the near future, with landscape features.

DAYTON, O.—Under the title of "Men Who Have Made Good," the Sunday News of March 5 of this city, devotes the front page of its magazine section to Rolf Zeltitz with portrait.

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y.—Stanley G. Barnes has opened his second flower shop in this city at 17 Main street. His other establishment is in the Chamber of Commerce building.

TOPEKA, KANS.—One of the greenhouses of the C. E. Hubbard range was totally destroyed by fire recently and a quantity of glass in another one was cracked. The loss to the plants was small.

CANTON, O.—The referee in bankruptcy in the matter of Fred G. Geltz, bankrupt, reports that the assets are about $150 and the liabilities about $8,000. There will be nothing left for the general creditors after payment of the costs of administration.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.—A meeting of the creditors of the Stiles Floral Co., bankrupt, will be held at Room 309, Baum building this city, at 10 a. m., April 1, to consider sale of the property, etc. So far, $12,000 have been bid. April 1 looks like a dangerous day for creditors.

The gate receipts at the New York Spring Show, March 13-19, amounted to $48,000.

Personal.

Professor Arno Nehrling, of the department of floriculture, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y. will make an extended European tour the coming summer.

The many friends of Patrick Welch, Boston, Mass., former president of the Society of American Florists, will learn with regret of his illness.

Mrs. J. J. Hess and family of Omaha, Neb., have the sympathy of many friends in the recent death of her father.

Dr. L. H. Bailey, of Ithaca, N. Y., is in Bermuda, pursuing his studies of palms.

American Iris Society.

A meeting of the New York exhibition committee of the American Iris Society was held March 15. Arrangements were made to hold the iris show in the Museum building, New York Botanical gardens, Bronx park, New York city, Saturday and Sunday, June 3-4, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

The schedule of classes for the exhibition is now being prepared and may be secured after April 15 from R. S. Sturtevant, Wellesley Farms, Mass., or Mrs. George V. Nash, New York Botanical gardens, Bronx Park, New York. Prizes amounting to more than $200 have been donated by the Horticultural Society of New York and the New York Botanical gardens. All flowers will be staged June 2, and judging will begin promptly at 3 p. m.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the American Iris Society will be held June 3 at the New York Botanical gardens. The morning session will be devoted to inspecting the iris show and after luncheon at 12:30 p. m., the business meeting will be called to order at 2 p. m. The reports of the officers and committees will be heard, followed by the election of officers and discussions. After adjournment the members will inspect the iris test gardens from 3 p. m. to 7 p. m. R. S. STURTEVANT, Sec'y.

Iris Tingitana.

In answer to a recent inquiry, Dr. D. Lumsden of the Federal Horticultural Board, writes as follows:

"As a suggestion to the growers of this plant, I would state that Iris tingitana detests deep planting. It seems to be at its best when planted close to the surface of the ground and revels in the baking it receives after its growth has been completed.

"The matter of flowering I. tingitana is largely one of cultural requirements and I have every confidence that many of our American growers will be able to produce flowering bulbs in quantities greater than has ever been produced in Europe of this iris in much less time than was taken by the European growers in the initial stages of its cultural requirements necessary to successfully flower it.

"I feel confident as heretofore stated in my letter that in a very short time proper cultural directions followed by both the producer and the grower who undertakes to force bulbs of I. tingitana will demonstrate that this iris, 100 per cent American, can be entitled to the brand X. L. C. R."

[It would be interesting to practical growers, who have lost their entire time, cost and space on California I. tingitana this season to have the above general data so "boiled down" that they would know how to treat the bulbs on arrival, just how deep to plant them and how to continue their cultivation. —Ed.]

Fifth National Flower Show.

The Fifth National Flower Show, in progress at Indianapolis, Ind., this week, March 25-April 1, is a credit to everyone concerned. The outstanding features the first two opening days were Burpee's sweet peas, Roland's acacias, the rose gardens of A. N. Pierson, Inc., and others. Dreer's Kurume azaleas, F. R. Pierson's superb specimen nephrolepis, and the booths of the local florists. The attendance was light the opening day, but good the second day, Sunday, although the weather was wet and chilly.

The principal exhibits are housed in the Manufacturers' building on the state fair grounds, in many respects a model structure for flower shows.

National Flower Show Appreciation.

A show such as is staged here in Indianapolis, wonderful in every way, with exhibits from near and far, small and large, every kind of flower known to horticulture, would not have been possible, had we not had the loyal and unselfish support of so many growers, trade exhibitors, the Cleveland and Indianapolis florists, who realized that to make the show a success they must exert every effort to exhibit, and that is what they did and most splendidly they came across, giving us the finest show ever staged by the national society.

On behalf of the National Flower Show management, I want to express through the trade press their warmest thanks and appreciation for this splendid backing. S. S. PENNOCK, Pres., Society of American Florists.

Sweet Peas at Indianapolis.

Wednesday was sweet pea day at the Fifth National Flower Show and a large showing of this beautiful flower was made. The W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and Peter Wendland of Evanston, Ill., each had entries in 100 square feet. There were also a number of exhibits in the separate color classes.

The decorative displays of 1,000 cut roses were also made on that day, there being three entries, each of which was elaborate and beautifully arranged. The Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago; Fred H. Lemon & Co., Richmond, Ind., and A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., were the exhibitors.

The attendance has been wonderful and most satisfying since Saturday, there being 30,000 admissions up to and including Tuesday night, March 28, over $6,000 being taken in at the box office on that day.

Official Catalogue of Plant Names.

EXTENSION OF TIME.

The pre-publication price of $3.50 ($3.75 west of the Mississippi river, in Canada and abroad), is good on all orders accompanied by cash and received by May 1, 1922, for the official catalogue of plant names.

This extension of time was made necessary as it was found impossible to get the prospectuses to organizations in time for their members to avail of the special pre-publication price.

HARLAN P. KELSEY, Sec'y.

American Rose Annual.

The members of the American Rose Society are entitled to a copy of the society's splendid new annual just received. This is a handsome book, beautifully bound and well filled with valuable information about roses. Dues for annual members and a copy of the book are $3.00 and should be addressed to Secretary John C. Wister, 606 Finance building, Philadelphia, Pa. We hope to give a more extended notice of this book in a later issue.

Cutting Bench Notes.

Brick, the common unglazed kind, according to some highly successful propagators, is the best material for the bottom of propagating benches.

Poinsettias cuttings are usually given too much shade, an expert grower says. Shade is necessary only the first two or three days. Wilting after that time does not harm them.

BALL'S WHITE ASTER

The seed of this splendid Giant Aster of the Late Branching Type—the product of twelve years' selection to develop the ideal of a perfectly double flower, of flawless color—was offered in 1921 for the first time.

The flowering season comes between the Royal and Late Branching types, filling in between the early and late glut of flowers. It grows to a medium height with full, distinctly centered blossoms, ideally formed for long distance shipping. The seed of this Aster is about two-thirds the size of ordinary varieties. It is sold in 1/4-ounce packets, containing about 4000 seeds at 1/4 oz., 75c; 1/2 oz., $1.35; 1 oz., $5.00.

EXCELLENT CALL FOR STOCK.

The market opened up with a good show of strength this past week and held it throughout. Roses, carnations and lilies are mostly in demand as the bulk of the business at present seems to be funeral work and the shorter grades of roses are what sell best. There has been an extraordinary call for red roses and red carnations for church work, both in town and for the shipping trade. Carnations still continue to sell well and at fine prices for this season but the past few weeks there has been a very noticeable shortage of them at the week end. Lilies have been more plentiful than for several months past though the heavy supply was quickly absorbed at $20 and $25 per 100. Bulbs do not fluctuate to any extent, the supply and demand being about normal. Sweet peas of inferior quality still continue to arrive. Good stock is not overplentiful and will likely sell better from now on as the violets are about done for this year. Orchids and lily of the valley are cleaning up well, much better than was expected during Lent. The weather has turned suddenly warm in New England being like summer, which will likely force prices down this coming week.

SPRING BULB SHOW.

The spring bulb show opened March 23 in Horticultural hall. The show was not as large as in former years but was an exceptionally fine exhibition. The principal feature was a bulb garden by Allan J. Jenkins, of Shrewsbury, Mass. All classes were represented with extra fine varieties well grown. The most conspicuous were those of E. S. Webster, group of foliage and flowering plants; L. D. Towle, Pink Pearl rhodoendron and acacia plants; R. M. Saltonstall, cineraria and schizanthus. W. W. Edgar had a fine group of lilies and roses; Wm. Walke, amaryllis hybrids and E. E. Palmer, a group of flowering and foliage plants. C. Warburton showed a carnation called Remington Red.

NOTES.

The spring exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, held March 23-26, was a noteworthy success. L. D. Towle was awarded a silver medal for azaleas and Allen J. Jenkins received first prize for spring bulb garden. The societies splendid library catalogue is now ready.

The Gardeners and Florists' Club held its monthly meeting March 21 at Horticultural hall. The speakers were H. Bartsch on "Commercial Bulb Growing"; W. Golby, "Private Bulb Growing" and W. N. Craig gave an interesting talk on lilies.

Mayor Shank, of Indianapolis, Ind. presented Mayor Curley with a basket of flowers through the New England Florists' Alliance, March 25, at the mayor's office in the City hall.

E. F. S.

DECATUR, ILL.—The Mueller Heights Floral Co. was recently incorporated with a capital of $10,000. Fred B. Mueller, Frank Cruikshank and Leda M. Cruikshank are the incorporators.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—The greenhouses of A. Mohr, Broadway and 75th street and the Rock Floral Co., Sixty-third street, were considerably damaged by hail and wind, March 23, the former having nearly 600 and the latter establishment, 5,000 lights broken.

Providence, R. I.

MARKET HOLDING ITS OWN

Conditions in the wholesale and retail markets are about the same as last week. The call has been even and stock cleaned up fairly well. Carnations are arriving in large supply at present; the flowers are fine and have a good demand. The call for cattelyas is poor. Sweet peas are in fair supply and demand. Local violets are poor, better ones being shipped from Boston every day and are having a heavy call. Bulbous stock arrivals are normal with a constant demand for them. Some of the bulb growers are doubtful about holding for Easter, but the indications are that stock will be excellent. Calla lilies are plentiful and Easter lilies, both cut and in pots, meet a ready sale. The rose supply is equal to the demand, prices showing little change.

NOTES.

It is reported that Paul Brockner, formerly with the Colonial Flower Shop, will establish at 27 Broad street soon, a new flower store.

Jerry Trotter of the Westminster Green houses was a visitor in Hartford, Conn., the past week.

Fisher the Florist, of Boston, will install a local shop before Easter, on Westminster street.

Smith the Florist will open his new store in the Biltmore hotel at an early date.

Several salesmen have been booking orders in the city the past few days.

BUSINESS GENERALLY SATISFACTORY

A decided improvement in the volume of business is reported by the retailers. Prospects are good for an active Easter business and arrangements are being made to take care of more trade than ever before for that event. Owing to the lateness of Easter bulbous stock will be reduced to a large extent. Roses are probably the best seller at this time and the supply is good. Prices range from $3 to $8 per dozen. Premier and Columbia are the best varieties for sale although a number of other kinds are being displayed. Carnations sell around $2 per dozen while sweet peas and snapdragons bring $1.50 per bunch. Plants have been in good demand, with primroses leading. Hyacinths are also selling well. Funeral work has been rather brisk and there is also some party work. Violets are practically out of the market.

FLOWER GROWERS' AND DEALERS' ASS'N.

The regular meeting of the Flower Growers' and Dealers' Association was held at the Elks' Club, March 21 with 12 out of the 16 members present. Following a good dinner, Walter Stephens of S. F. Stephens & Son who is president of the Ohio District of the National Flower Growers' Association talked on co-operative buying. He urged the members to buy coal and wreaths and other supplies in which large quantities are used co-operatively. Many of the members present favored the plan and on the meeting following the Easter rush the matter will be taken up and in all probability endorsed. The association took steps for co-operative advertising of the business for the Easter period. This expense will be taken care of as in former advertising campaigns, by subscriptions. The next meeting will be held at the Neil house, April 4.

NOTES.

James McKellar, 35 West Broad street, who was seriously ill is recovering and will soon be able to be around. His shop is doing a big business both on cut flowers and plants. Preparations are being made for a big Easter trade.

Herman Kropp, in charge of the Neil Flower Shop, reports a good call for various kinds of cut flowers such as roses, carnations, sweet peas and snapdragons. Trade is gradually improving as spring advances.

The Gay Street Floral Co., in charge of H. T. Flynn, is having a good call for cut flowers and also plants. The window of this shop is attractively decorated.

T. J. Ludwig, florist at 82 North High street, is selling a good many plants and cut flowers such as roses, carnations, snapdragons, sweet peas and jonquils.

A good trade in plants is being enjoyed by Underwood Bros., growers on Twenty-first street, owing to the forwardness of spring.

GOOD ST. PATRICK'S DAY TRADE.

The trade was in good supply with shamrocks and dyed carnations for St. Patrick's Day and all reported a good demand, many of the shops cleaning up on shamrocks early in the day. Trade generally seems to be good and stock is of fine quality. It is thought that the bright warm weather will shorten the Easter supply, especially bulbous stock.

NOTES.

Violets, sweet peas, pansies and other spring flowers are moving well at Ley & McAllen's, counter trade and design work keeping the store's force very busy.

Campbell, Florists, Inc., are featuring a fine window, consisting of rhododendrons, Darwin tulips, genistas, polyanthus and primroses.

The Montreal Wholesale Florists' Exchange has a steady call for flowers from all over the city. General supplies also move well.

R. Burrows reports a good trade in seeds, certain lines being cleaned up.

Miss J. S. Murray reports business as good, especially funeral orders.

McKenna, Ltd., had a very attractive window for St. Patrick's Day.

The Language of Flowers.

Editorial in the Indianapolis Star, Fifth National Flower Show, Sunday, March 26.

Speaking of flowers—and who in Indianapolis is not speaking of them now that the great national flower show is with us?—the thought of their meaning arises. "Nature speaks a various language," says Bryant, and no part of nature makes so great an appeal to all kinds and conditions of men and women as flowers. It is not always the same meaning that any given blossom conveys to all its friends and admirers. Sometimes it is less for its beauty than for its associations that it is dear, for the memories that the sight or the fragrance of its brings back over the years. The odor of the lilac perhaps recalls a vision of a great flowering bush by the doorway of the old home—a door which opened upon much childish joy. Spring brides came to one such bush for their wedding bouquets, since they would not carry white roses as brides do now, for its traditional meaning thereabout was "I would be single," while the language of lilacs is "First emotions of love."

It is sometimes the flowers of the field that are cherished as warmly as the wonders of blossoms made more wonderful by science. There, for example, is the wild crabapple bloom, with its incomparable fragrance, that is inseparable, it may be, from a dream of a day that is dead. Returning to the cultivated blossoms, there is the red rose associated with festivities and happy days, but its wild cousin, sweet briar—or as the poets have it, eglantine—revives memories not less pleasant.

"The various language" of flowers is given less heed by modern, unsentimental folk than by those of an earlier day. By the latter the language was arranged, classified and accepted as significant. A book published in Philadelphia in 1851, called "The Floral Offering," contains a long list of flowers with their meanings, and each blossom in turn is accompanied by poetical quotations either directly celebrating the flower or expressing a sentiment in accord with its meaning. The volume is one in which to delve at leisure, or for reference with a flower in hand. Its lore is interesting, also illuminative.

A man, for example, may learn from it what to send or not to send to his lady love. Althea, he should know, signifies "consumed by love;" forget-me-not carries its own meaning; heliotrope is devoted affection, the hyacinth constancy; the moss rose is a "confession of love;" the red rose means beauty and love. The man must have a care in sending tulips, which mean a declaration of love, whereas, its near relative, the daffodil, carries risk in another direction for its language is self love. The sender must beware of mignonette, which says, "Your qualities surpass your charms."

So they go. Opportunity for the study of flowers is not confined to florists and gardeners. There is a literature that deals with them and is worth the reading. Shakespeare knew much about flowers and wrote much. He knew

Daffodils

That come before the swallow dares, and take

The winds of March with beauty; violets dim,

But sweeter than the lids of Juno's eyes

Or Cytherea's breath.

We shall all go to see the magnificent display now spread at the Coliseum, and as our eyes are satisfied by the glories of bloom we shall think also of the poetry and the significance of flowers and the various language that they speak to us.

BUSINESS ESPECIALLY BRISK

Stock last week was plentiful but not overloaded, due to the great volume of business. Funeral work was extra heavy, with hospital trade a close second and many decorations were in effect. Roses and carnations are coming in about right for the season. Sweet peas are picking up as they have been off crop. Bulbous stock of all kinds is making a better appearance as the quality is much improved over previous weeks. Pot plants are going well as they are much in color and the public is taking them in preference to cut stock, and you will hear many say: "Well we can only buy this variety of pot plant for such a short time, whereas we can get the cut flowers nearly every day in the year." Pot lilies in this section from all indications are going to be plentiful and good, in fact the best for several years as the foliage is on the plant instead of being dead as is the usual case and instead of the usual two, three or four buds, there are this year four to six on each plant. Hydrangeas and daisies are going to be good and plentiful.

On March 23 a heavy windstorm with plenty of rain and some hail struck this section, with some damage to glass, although the hail was not large but plentiful in spots. The heavy losers were A. Mohr, Broadway at 75th street, with 500 or 600 lights broken and Rock's greenhouse, Troost and 63rd streets, 5,000 to 6,000 lights.

A large delegation of the trade from this city attended the Fifth National Flower Show. Florists from all parts of the south and west came here March 25 and took the same train and they picked up florists all along the line to Chicago, where they journeyed on to Indianapolis.

CRAIG'S Quality Easter Plants

WILL BREAK YOUR RECORD IN EASTER SALES

Business is reviving, more flowers have been handled this season than ever before. The recent New York Flower Show broke all records in attendances. Prepare for this great event the largest in the history of the trade. Our Easter stock in is the best we have ever offered.

FOLIAGE PLANTS AND FERNS IN SPECIMENS

and smaller stock for basket work is the largest in the country.

We cordially invite you to our new home at Norwood Station, Delaware County, Pa., easily reached by the Pennsylvania R. R. to Norwood Station, and Baltimore & Ohio R. R. to Holmes Station, or by trolley. Those having their own green-houses or conservatories would do well to have shipments made during the last two weeks in March.

HYDRANGEAS

We have the largest and finest stock of Hydrangeas ever offered to the trade at Easter. Our stock includes over 10,000 of the new French varieties. The plants have all been grown cool and are well hardened off, insuring satisfaction to the buyer.

THE NEW FRENCH HYDRANGEAS

All of the varieties here offered have been tested by us under ordinary conditions as to their adaptability to forcing for Easter.

4-inch pots, $6 per dozen.
5-inch pots, 6-inch pots and 7-inch pots, heavily flowered, $9, $12, $15, $18, $24, $30, $36, $42 and $48 per dozen.

8-inch pots, $4 and $5 each.
April delivery, 2½-inch pots, Hydrangeas Otaka, strong plants, $8 per 100, $75 per 1,000.

April delivery, assorted French Hydrangeas, 2½-inch pots, strong plants, $8 per 100, $75 per 1,000.

ROSES

We desire to make special mention of our large stock of Roses, growing upwards of 10,000 plants in the following varieties. We have no hesitation in saying we are the largest growers of forcing Roses for Easter in America. We are positive our stock will please the most critical buyers, as the quality was never better. It has all been grown cool and will prove very satisfactory.

LADY GAY

In grand condition, trained into fan, globular, and pyramidal shapes, $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5, $6 and $7.50 each.

Special ball shapes, $2.50, $3, $4, $5 and $7.50 each.

Baskets, $7.50, $10 and $12.50 each.

Umbrellas, $6, $7.50 and $10 each.

TAUSENDSCHOEN (THOUSAND BEAUTIES)

This was our finest and most popular Climber last year, and this year our stock is large and the plants are much finer.

Trained plants, fans, globular and pyramidal shapes, $1.50, $2, $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5, $6, $7.50, $10 and $12 each.

Baskets, $10 and $12.50 each.

Umbrellas, $6, $7.50 and $10 each.

ROSIERE (NEW)

Dark sport of Tausendschoen. Very beautiful.

A great improvement on the popular Thousand Beauties (Tausendschoen) and consequently, a welcome addition to this section. While it has the same habit of growth and general characteristics as Thousand Beauties, the color is superior, a deeper and more even shade of cerise-pink or carmine.

Trained plants, fans, globular, and pyramidal shapes, $2, $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5, $6, $7.50 and $10 each.

Baskets, $10, $12 and $15 each.

Umbrellas, $6, $7.50 and $10 each.

In addition to the above trained Roses, we have also trained some very special designs, such as Aeroplanes, Crosses, Chairs, Pergolas, etc., at $10, $12.50, $15, $20, $25 and $30 each.

BABY RAMBLERS, ORLEANS

Exceptionally fine.
5½ and 6-inch pots, $15, $18 and $24 per dozen.

EXCELSA, NEW CLIMBING ROSE

This variety is known as the Red Dorothy Perkins. The color is brilliant and it is bound to prove the most popular red Rambler.

We offer splendid plants in 6-inch, 7-inch and 8-inch pots, $1.50, $2, $2.50, $3.50, $4, $5, $6, $7.50, $10, $12 and $15 each.

Baskets of Excelsa, $10 and $12.50 each.

Umbrellas, $6, $7.50 and $10 each.

PAUL'S SCARLET CLIMBER

One of the most promising climbing Roses yet sent out. Vivid scarlet, semi-double flowers of medium size, produced in large clusters, and in great profusion. The color does not burn or fade. This Rose has been exhibited extensively in Europe and received numerous awards.

5 and 6-inch pots, trained plants, $1.50, $2, $2.50 and $3 each.

HYBRID ROSES

Including Columbia and Mrs. John Dunlop. Very fine plants in bud and flower for Easter sales.

6-inch pots at $15 and $18 per dozen.

MAGNA CHARTA

Exceptionally well grown and well flowered stock. Considered by all to be the very best Hybrid Rose for Easter sales.

5½, 6 and 7-inch pots at $18, $24, $30 and $36 per dozen.

Miscellaneous Easter Plants

AZALEA HINODIGIRI

Bright red in color and one of the finest and best keeping Azaleas ever sent out. We have never been able to meet the demand at Easter. The variety has the added advantage over Indica Azaleas that it is absolutely hardy.

5-inch pots, fine for baskets, $18 and $24 per dozen.

5½-inch pots, $2.50 and $3 each.

6 and 7-inch pots, fine plants, $3.50, $4 and $5 each.

8 and 10-inch pots, $6 and $7.50 each.

GOLDEN CALLAS

6-inch pots, $1.25 each.

GENISTA RACEMOSA

The finest stock of Genistas ever offered. Every plant grown cool, exceptionally well flowered and shapely.

6-inch pots, $12 and $15 per dozen.

7-inch pots, $18 and $24 per dozen.

Also some very good standard and bush forms in larger sizes at $2.50, $3 and $4 each.

TERMS

CASH WITH ORDER: Kindly send sufficient to cover the entire bill. We do not make shipments C. O. D. unless remittance has been made on account to guarantee acceptance. This does not apply to regular customers. REMITTANCE: Remittances should be made by money order or New York drafts. If money is sent, letter should be registered. All prices quoted in this list are strictly net. SHIPPING INSTRUCTIONS: Give your name, post office, county and state and the name of your nearest express office to which shipment is to be made. We have always made it prominent in our printed terms that our goods are sold F. O. B. cars at the point of shipment and are at the purchaser's risk while in transit. Because of the present unsettled conditions we wish to emphasize still further that we do not guarantee safe delivery. The ownership of all goods sold by us passes to the purchaser on delivery by us to the carrier, and the issuing of the receipt by the carrier ends our responsibility. Any claims for damage should be made promptly to the agent at the point of delivery. CORRESPONDENCE: We endeavor to answer all correspondence promptly, but owing to the pressure of business we ask that all requests be clearly and concisely stated. ERRORS: Keep a copy of your order. We aim to have our orders correctly filled. When we are at fault we shall make satisfactory correction.

LILIUM GIGANTEUM

We have the largest and finest stock of Lilies ever offered by us for Easter sales. Suggest placing orders early to avoid disappointment, such as was experienced last year.

BUSINESS IS IMPROVING

Business has been good the past week and stock is cleaning up nicely at good prices. Roses are in strong demand and there is seldom a surplus when the stores close for the day. Premier, Russell, Milady, Crusader, Columbia, Butterfly, Golden Rule, Montrose, Victor, Maryland, Ophelia Double White Kilmarney, Dunlop, Hearst, Hoosier Beauty and Nesbit are the principal offerings in this line. Carnations are moving nicely at good figures. Lilies are in good supply and while there are enough to go around there is no great quantity left over. Sweet peas are bringing better prices and orchids and gardenias appear to be holding their own. Tulips and jonquils are quite a factor in the market and are in good demand. Southern jonquils are much more plentiful and considerable pushing is needed to move them. Lily of the valley, single and double violets, calendulas, stocks, forget-me-nots, irises, mignonette, pansies and snapdragons are obtainable together with freesias especially in the colored varieties. Greens are in good supply and while one or two items may be scarce at times there is nearly always plenty to go around. Blooming plants are prominently featured in all the stores, especially azaleas, tulips, hyacinths and other seasonable stock. The retailers are pleased with business the past week and are speaking in more optimistic tones. A large number of people in the local trade are attending the Indianapolis flower show and those who have already returned speak in glowing terms of the wonderful exhibition and the general opinion of those present that the demand has taken a great change for the better with the outlook very bright for a brisk Easter trade.

NOTES.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. won first prize with Mrs. Chas. Russell and Milady roses at the Indianapolis flower show this week. The Russell were exceptionally fine and attracted much favorable attention. This house was represented at the show by August Poehlmann and sons Earl and Roland, Adolph Poehlmann and son Walter, M. Tyler, Gust. Martial, Gust. Wuestenhoff and J. C. Nielsen.

Zech & Mann started in the wholesale commission business March 29, 1905 and have been at it ever since. Their first day's sales ran between $29 and $30 which is a drop in the bucket to those of the present when a single ticket often calls for many times that amount. Their first sales was made to Walter Kreitling & Co., who are still buying from them not to mention several others who have been loyal customers from the start.

John Risch, of the Weiland-Risch Co., advises placing orders early for cut lilies for Easter owing to the limited supply of good stock in sight. Others in this vicinity agree with him and are writing their customers accordingly.

The J. A. Budlong Co. is showing a fine supply of roses in all the leading varieties which are in good demand at the store. Roswell Schupp is representing this house at the Indianapolis flower show.

Glen Parker, of the Stuppy Floral Co., Kansas City, Mo., left March 28 to attend the Fifth National Flower Show at Indianapolis, Ind., after spending a few days here on business.

A. L. Randall has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his mother whose death occurred in her eighty-seventh year near Erie, Pa., last week. The funeral was held March 25.

Paul Klingsporn is again attending to his duties as manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association after attending the Indianapolis flower show.

Peter Reinberg, Inc., is booking orders for Easter lilies which promise to be scarce in this vicinity this season.

Frank Johnson accompanied by Arthur Hansen drove down to Indianapolis in his new Packard.

George Rozakles and daughter Loretta have returned from a pleasant visit to California.

C. L. Washburn and wife left March 28 to attend the Indianapolis, Ind., flower show.

Carl Bachler and family will leave soon on an extended pleasure trip to Europe.

George Ball of Glen Ellyn left March 28 to attend the Indianapolis flower show.

FUNERAL WORK HELPS TRADE

In spite of the quiet Lenten season business has been brisk, several large funerals helping matters considerably. Roses were scarce the past week and prices again advanced. Carnations are of excellent quality at high prices. Sweet peas of the orchid type very good and lily of the valley is scarce. Spanish iris is arriving in large quantities. Tulips, Poeticus narcissi, daffodils and jonquils are in heavy supply. Green galax is hard to obtain.

NOTES.

The spring flower exhibit at the Lamberton conservatory, Highland Park, is at its height. Rhododendrons, azaleas, tulips, genistas, rose bushes, lilacs, cinerarias and daffodils are in full bloom and make a beautiful showing.

Wm. L. Keller is spending a few weeks in Denver, Colo., visiting his son Wilford Keller.

J. B. Keller & Sons decorated an excellent window for St. Patrick's Day.

DANVILLE, ILL.—Frank B. Smith finds an increasing demand for fancy pottery as flower shop accessories.

West Town Exposition.

The West Town Exposition which opened March 27 at the Second Infantry armory, 2656 Madison street, and continued throughout the week is a great success and it is estimated that the total attendance will reach close to 250,000. All the leading business houses on the west side, of Chicago, are represented in the trade exhibits and the three great features of the exposition are the flower show, style show and art exhibits.

The florists have the best space in the entire hall and are making a wonderful showing and in the opinion of some greater than that at the Pageant of Progress last summer. Axel Setterberg, who is acting as manager of the flower show deserves much credit for the display considering that almost the entire trade is devoting its attention to the big Fifth National Flower Show at Indianapolis, Ind., this week. Mr. Setterberg was ably assisted by T. E. Waters, Arthur Christiansen and John Walsh.

H. N. Bruns has a booth artistically decorated in which are shown all the seasonable cut flowers beautifully arranged in baskets, vases and other containers. His booth is right in front of the main entrance and the first thing that makes an impression on the visitor is the sign in the background which is an exact duplicate of his advertisement on the billboards. Lily of the valley occupies a prominent place in his exhibit not to mention the floral arrangements by his daughter Madaline.

Schiller's have a beautifully arranged booth on the north end of the west middle aisle which makes an ideal setting for the entire show with that of H. N. Bruns on the opposite side. Artistically decorated baskets of cut flowers and plants together with other floral arrangements are on display and the proprietors are firm believers in this form of publicity exhibiting at shows wherever possible. Fred Coulterjohn assisted by Mr. McCarthy of the north side store are in charge while Manager Asmus is busy with show matters at Indianapolis.

The Allied Florists' Association helped greatly to make the flower show a big success and had over 100 baskets of cut flowers on display consisting of all the seasonable offerings in this line, particularly roses. Arthur Christiansen assisted by John Walsh arranged all the baskets and it was easily to be seen that the public was most interested in the finished product and that the retailers in general are overlooking a wonderful opportunity to secure valuable publicity at practically no cost whatever.

Frank Oechslein, Peter Pearson and the Wallace Floral Co., had a group of plants and the A. L. Randall Co. installed a large electric fountain to help put a finish on the show. Wendland & Keimel, Joseph Kohout, Weiss & Meyer Co., Henry Neve, Dramm Greenhouses, E. C. Amling Co., August Juergens, Ridgeland, Miss., and others contributed stock which came in handy for the basket arrangements.

LOCAL GROWERS ORGANIZE.

This district is now represented in the National Flower Growers' Association. A call was sent to the growers of this vicinity to meet at Charles Plumb's establishment, February 21, and a good number was present. At a later meeting L. C. Vinson, Cleveland, O., met the growers and laid before them the plan under which the Ohio District is operating, and with minor changes the constitution and by-laws of that body were adopted by the Detroit District, the officers of which are:

Chas. H. Plumb, president; Gus Schimmel, vice-president; Robert M. Plumb, secretary and Jos. Streit, treasurer. The board of directors consists of Jos. Streit, chairman; Chas. A. Keller, Robert Rahaley, Carl Schimmel, Robert M. Plumb and Jos. Dinser.

Charles H. Plumb was elected as a member entitled to sit with the directors of the national association. A meeting of that body was held Wednesday morning, at Indianapolis, Ind., March 29.

A meeting of the members of the Detroit District of the National Flower Growers' Association, was held at the Hotel Statler, Thursday evening, March 23, to which the local retailers were invited, and about 15 responded. The purposes of the local growers were fully explained by President Plumb, who urged the retailers to form a separate organization and elect directors who can meet with the directors of the national association and by united action accomplish much for the benefit of both organizations.

Acting upon the suggestion, the retailers present appointed Louis Charvat, temporary secretary with instructions to issue a call for a meeting of retailers to be held at Hotel Statler, Monday evening, April 3. At this meeting a permanent association of retailers will be organized and officers elected and its directors will meet the growers' directors and endeavor to eliminate many of the evils at present afflicting the local trade. Among these is the baneful practice of many retailers buying stock from amateur growers to the detriment of the commercial growers who supply the more important stocks throughout the season. The practice of some growers selling to department stores and others not in the trade will, it is expected, be eliminated by the operation of a mutual understanding growing out of the formation of these two organizations.

The retailers present who signed the call for a meeting of the retailers April 3, at Hotel Statler were as follows: Louis Charvat, F. J. Lawrence, Peter Papes, Roy Thibadeau, A. H. Evans, Thomas L. Berry, Herbert Cassell, Andrews Flower Shop, Arthur Cobey, A. T. Hurst, Howard Knope and J. F. Sullivan.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW VISITORS.

The National Flower Show, Indianapolis, was visited by a good representation from here. Joe Streit got up a party of 23 and engaged a Pullman car for the trip, leaving here Tuesday evening. The party consisted of the following: Joe Streit and wife; Chas. H. Plumb and wife; Chas. Keller and wife; J. K. Stock and wife; Herman Knope and wife; Fred Miesl and wife; Joe Dinser and wife; Robt. Jean and wife; John Warnake and wife; Raleigh Wells, W. B. Brown, M. Bloy, Robert Rohaley, Harry Taylor, Robert Krumholz, Carl Schneider.

Philip Breitmeyer preceded this party leaving March 23, after having attended the meeting of florists and exhorting both growers and retailers to co-operate along lines of advancement for the benefit of all concerned.

BUSINESS SHOWS ENCOURAGING REVIVAL.

Due mainly to a lively demand for funeral flowers, florists here have been enjoying some very encouraging days and stock has been moving at a brisk pace for the Lenten season. All seasonable stock is in first class condition and prices are very reasonable. Many shops are showing excellent arrangements of pot tulips, daffodils and hyacinths. These are also being extensively used for funeral work. Primroses and cineraria are also selling actively. Roses can be said to be at their best and move readily. Sweet peas are showing great improvement. Carnations are only fair. Greens are plentiful and move briskly.

ADVERTISING CLUB ORGANIZED.

Forty local growers and retailers met recently at the Waldorf hotel, held at banquet and formed the Florists' Advertising Club. The following officers were elected: A. A. Suder, president; Edward Bayer, vice president; F. E. Thompson, secretary; Harry Heinly, treasurer. J. L. Schiller, Harry Heinly and Tom Magee are trustees of the fund to be raised and Earl Metz, William Krueger and Joseph Avery were appointed to act as an entertainment committee. The purpose of the new organization is to raise funds and to conduct an advertising campaign to increase the sales of flowers in this city. A subscription paper which was passed around during the meeting showed a very encouraging amount subscribed. Enthusiasm was rampant during the evening and prospects seem bright for real co-operation among the trade here in the future.

NOTES.

Metz Bros. is the new name of the former Metz & Bateman Flower Shop since Earl Metz purchased the interest of Miss Ruth Bateman. Miss Bateman retires after a long and successful career in the flower business and with the best wishes of a host of friends here. Earl Metz is an artist of excellent ability and expects to increase the already large business enjoyed by this firm.

Schramm Bros. took an active part in the "Talk Toledo" week just completed which aroused the entire community to the merits and advantages of their home town. "Talk Toledo With Toledo Flowers" was the topic centered upon in a large newspaper ad and also of a 60 foot poster stretched across their front.

Harry Heintz believes in advertising at least one would judge so after taking a peek at the two "Say It With Flowers" billboards he has erected on his grounds on Phillips Avenue.

The Avery Flower Shop reports an increasing demand week by week. Joe Avery keeps his windows nicely trimmed and is a real business-builder with his pleasant ways.

The Scottwood Greenhouses has been busy during the past week with funeral work and bulbous stock is in excellent shape.

HEAVY SUPPLY MOVES WELL.

The spring like weather has brought marguerites, forsythias and crocus into blossom which are now arriving. Roses met a fair demand last week, the market being flooded by a lot of second rate stock. There were, however, some excellent Premier and Mrs. Chas. Russell, prices ranging from $4 to $20 per 100. Crusader and Butterfly went at lower figures. Other offerings were Columbia, Ophelia, Sunburst, White Killarney and Ward. Scarlet climber roses, excellent plants are selling well. Carnations went slowly, Laddie not being obtainable. Some fine pinks were seen which sold at $4 to $8 per 100. Lily of the valley found a good market which was of excellent quality. Cattelyas and cypripediums were on the short side. Sweet peas continue to arrive and sell easily. The stock is excellent, values being from $4 to $15 per 1000. Snapdragons and calendulas sell well at good prices. Jonquils find no trouble in moving out at $4 per 100. The offerings of Poeticus narcissi are very limited. Darwin tulips, ranging in color from red to magenta, prove popular. Daisies are of fine quality and sell well while freesias are about winding up. Excellent stocks are coming in. Callas move slowly at $10 to $20 per 100. Easter lilies are fine sellers at $20. to $25 per 100, the quality constantly improving. Pot plants are in good demand, offerings including tulips, jonquils, hyacinths and lilacs. Excellent Asparagus plumosus and A. Sprengerei met with little difficulty in selling at 75 cents per bunch. Galax, leucothoe and huckleberry move well.

NOTES.

Robert D. Mitchell, who was the local representative for THE AMERICAN FLORIST until August, 1921, left last week for Florida where he has taken a position as general manager for the Everglades Nurseries. Mr. Mitchell formerly grew bedding plants at Tower Grove park, this city.

Grimm & Gorly state that spring flowers are selling well. Vincent Gorly, Alfred Jensen, of the sales force and father, Lars P. Jensen, aboriculturist at the Missouri Botanic garden, attended the Fifth National Flower Show at Indianapolis, this week.

Spring stock in great variety is seen at the Mullanphy, Florists, Inc., establishment. The firm's Saturday special box of roses and two bunches of sweet peas are quite popular.

Excellent light blue delphiniums were sold by F. C. Weber last week, the first seen on the local market. Spring flowers in quantity are also seen here.

The warm weather has brought the street venders out again, who are trying to get rid of a second grade lot of stock.

STOCK GREATLY SHORTENS IN SUPPLY.

Market conditions here seemed to change over night, not that there was any increase in demand, but that the supply of most items fell off about 50 per cent, which caused prices to remain firm and in some cases to advance. Roses clean up daily and at times more could be used to advantage, but no matter how scarce they are when the price goes above $20 and $25 per 100 for fancy stock they begin to stick, for the public will buy flowers up to a certain amount and when you exceed that amount they pass them up. Carnations is the one item that the supply has greatly fallen off to the largest extent, while for the past three or four weeks it has been necessary to push their sale and the prices averaged were very low. Prices are now firm and advancing. The supply of Easter lilies is short and from all reports the supply for Easter will fall short of the demand. Some houses are quoting $25 per 100 for Easter delivery, which is no increase as this price has prevailed since the first of the year. Callas are good property and some retailers are using them in preference to Easter lilies, for when you buy one hundred callas you get one hundred fully developed flowers, while with Easter lilies at least 50 per cent will be buds. Snapdragon is next on the list in popularity and from now on will be at its best. Pink is the popular color. Sweet peas is the only item that has been in over supply, and while the returns have been low, if the present crop holds out over Easter, the growers will reap a harvest, as there is never enough good stock to supply the demand for that day. Bulbous stock has tightened up and from now on growers should at least get enough to break even. Some of the best jonquils and tulips of the season are now arriving. The demand for orchids and lily of the valley is light and at times both items are hard to move. Daisies, calendulas, for-get-me-nots and baby primroses complete the list. Southern plumosa supply has been heavy. The quality of the cut ferns could be better, but we understand that this condition prevails all over the country.

TRADE IN GOOD CONDITION.

In spite of Lent, local dealers report that trade has been very good, in fact a little better than for the same period in 1921, with prices holding firm. Funeral work is brisk. Social work fell off some in March, but it is expected to show a decided improvement after Easter. Corsages however, are selling well. Carnations, sweet peas, daffodils, lilies, roses and spring flowers are among the leaders. The Easter season is expected to bring in a fine trade and the dealers believe that the supply will be equal to the call. Easter lilies will not be more than the usual $5 per dozen, in spite of the floods in Japan, which rotted many of the bulbs, it is said. To meet the demand, importers are sending out smaller bulbs which do not yield as many flowers, but it is thought there will not be a shortage this spring. General business conditions are improving.

George Blackman, of the Wm. Blackman Floral Co., and wife and Mel Lockyear, of the Lockyear Floral Co. and wife, were among the local people who attended the Fifth National Flower Show at Indianapolis this week.

Suit for $20,000 damages has been filed by the law firm of Veneman, Welborn & Roberts, of this city, against Emil and Waldemar Niednagel and Elsie Land, heirs of the late Julius Niednagel, one of the pioneer florists here. Veneman, Welborn & Roberts represented Waldemar Niednagel and Elsie Land in their suit which broke the will of Julius Niednagel. The will had left the bulk of the Niednagel property to Emil, who also had deeded to the property, estimated at $125,000, made a few days prior to his father's death. The complaint sets out that the defendants conspired to defraud the attorneys of their rightful fees.

BUSINESS ONLY FAIR.

Trade has been only fair, funeral work being the biggest factor. Bulbous stock such as tulips, jonquils and hyacinths move off well. Primula obsconica is good for the season. Roses and carnations are in excellent condition and sweet peas were never better. Special Saturday sales have helped to liven matters. Greenhouse stock is looking fine and it is thought will be timed just right for Easter.

NOTES.

"Better Home Week," at the auditorium called for a quantity of palms, ferns and other decorations. Spring openings in the department stores also used up considerable stock.

MARKET ABSORBS ALL STOCK.

There are quantities of flowers and yet the market seems to take them all at what are considered very fair prices for the season. The past week cannot be compared with the same period a year ago which was the week previous to Easter. Lent this year has been a little unusual in that the overstock that generally accompanies lengthening days and increased sunshine came a couple of weeks sooner and with the advent of Lent, prices took a raise which for the most part has been sustained ever since. It looks now as if the market will hold until Easter for which there is predicted a very good supply of all staple stocks. The quality of all the popular flowers now coming in is fine, roses in particular being very good. Prices are from six cents for the short stock up to 35 and 50 cents for the special Columbia and Hadley. Very good American Beauty bring 75 cents each. The carnations are plentiful but all good stock gets used up at from four to six cents with 10 cents for Laddie. Some of the new crops of sweet peas are wonderfully fine; three cents is about the highest. Bulbous stock is plentiful but for some reason it does not bring as much as it should considering the high price of this season's bulbs. Growers should give bulb salesmen very little encouragement in ordering for next season, unless they get a substantial reduction in price. Callas and Easter lilies are quite plentiful at last week's prices. Larkspur in fine and sells up clean at top prices. There is a good supply of lilac, plenty of lily of the valley with cattleyas enough for all demands, Snapdragon is a quantity stock that sells well. Violets are on the wane.

Asparagus is plentiful as are other greens. Take it all in all the market is satisfactory although growers would like to see prices a trifle higher.

LOWERING COSTS OF PRODUCTION.

A grower in commenting on this season's prices said that the general average was so much below that of a year ago that it was difficult to cut down expenses to meet it, to say nothing about providing a margin of profit. However economies would have to be worked out to meet the new conditions. Labor is now more plentiful but we prefer to keep up wages for efficient men rather than to reduce and put more on. We hope that coal will come down as the result of so much inquiry into the mysteries of mining and shipping. Keeping in close touch with the market, growing the varieties that bring the best returns and trying to hit the periods of scarcity were helpful when they worked out satisfactorily.

LILIES FOR EASTER.

The price of lilies for Easter delivery is a problem. Many of the pot plants carry but two to three flowers, with some only one, and as they stand the growers from 35 to 40 cents per pot after deducting a loss of 25 per cent on the bulbs which most of them have, with the expense of growing, selling and delivery, they see little or no profit at the standard price of 25 cents per bud and flower. It seems as if the price will have to be 35 to 50 cents per flower on the light flowered stock.

NOTES.

There appeared to be a more general use of artificially colored fresh flowers for St. Patrick's Day than ever before, all white kinds being particularly in demand for this purpose. Yellow sweet peas for which hybridizers are so eager were very common and other shades appeared very bizarre in their mixed coloring. While the business of St. Patrick's Day may not be very profitable it attracts the public's attention to the shops.

Easter plant men are much pleased with the bright sunny weather of the past week as some of the roses of the Dorothy Perkins type might be a trifle further advanced. Some of the lilies are also a trifle backward but for the most part they look very well. There never was a better lot of hydrangeas and if all sell out there should be great rejoicing.

S. S. Pennock and Geo. W. Kerr, of the W. Atlee Burpee Co. left for the show, March 24. Wm. Geiger, of the Florex Gardens, John Andre, Doylestown, and the Jos. Heacock Co. will all be on hand with their displays of choice roses. George Burton is to be one of the judges. E. J. Fancourt, of the S. S. Pennock Co. left on Thursday.

Keep the April 4 date open for the Florists' Club meeting and Easter display. This unusual exhibit, together with the illustrated address of Charles Henry Fox should prove a record breaker for attendance.

The Leo Niessen Co. report a large stock of all standard flowers of excellent quality, with prospects of a wonderful assortment at Easter. Trade is said to be larger than last year at this time.

Jack Berger would like to see more St. Patrick's Days as it stiffens the carnation market very perceptibly. Sweet peas, high grade daffodils and other bulbous stocks are a feature here.

Ward and Sunburst roses of exceptional quality are features at the S. S. Pennock Co. establishment. New crop sweet peas of unusual size of flower and stems are also being offered.

The Century Flower Shop is making a great display of helichrysums. Tied in colored papers they attract great attention in the show window. Spring flowers are seen here in quantity.

Manager Lynch, of the Philadelphia Growers' Exchange, states that their Easter crop of roses promises to be very fine. Choice sweet peas are good sellers.

The Robert Craig Co. shipped a fine lot of crotons, dracaenas ferns and other foliage plants on Thursday last to the Fifth National Flower show at Indianapolis.

Godfrey Aschmann has two houses of exceptionally well grown cinerarias just right for Easter. Well flowered hydrangeas are also seen in quantity.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Jos. G. Neidenger Co., and the M. Rice Co., are all making large displays at Indianapolis, as is also Henry A. Dreer, Inc.

Charles Henry Fox has made a great hit with the blue lace flower. It is exquisite in its form and coloring and has great lasting qualities. K.

BUSINESS QUIET THE PAST WEEK

Business was quiet during the past week and there is a suspicion that the people are saving for Easter. However that may be, if the present influx of stock continues they will have no trouble in finding a great variety to choose from. Besides the roses, orchids and carnations that are always with us, there are sweet peas in abundance. The cool weather is preserving the bulbous stock. Other noteworthy features are snapdragons, yellow daisies, irises, cut acacias, pansies and gardenias. The violets must not be forgotten although in this market at least the violet trade is at a rather low ebb. Retailers are now scouring the greenhouses for Easter plants. From the wholesale price that is being asked for lilies, 30 cents bud and flower, it would appear that the growers are expecting a strong demand. There seems to be a good supply of pot roses, hydrangeas, daisies and a fair sprinkling of cinerarias. There will of course be a good supply of tulips and hyacinths, in pots and pans, as well as primulas and other minor offerings. As recently stated in these columns the spring flower show staged here, March 13-19, seems to have awakened an interest and there is reason to believe that there will be good Easter business.

March 27.—There is no change in the condition of the market.

NOTES

A reminder of plant Quarantine No. 37 was waived from the docks a few days ago, but is doubtful if any of the victims knew it by name. The North German Lloyd S. S. Yarde arrived here from Bremen and many of the passengers are said to have been German-Americans. A number brought Easter plants and were much vexed when told their plants would be confiscated and destroyed. Passengers on the Italian line S. S. Colombo, from the Mediterranean, had brought fig, orange and lemon trees and grapevine cuttings, all of which shared like fate.

Calling recently on Wm. P. Sears, 840 Sixth avenue, we found him busy as usual. In the 33 years since he established himself in business he has seen many changes around him, but preserves his youth.

Calling recently at the range of Henry A. Wagner, Flatbush, Brooklyn, we found a great stock of roses and other flowering plants coming on for Easter. Ferns in variety are also grown here.

Seventh avenue and 116th street, reports excellent business in decorations, funeral work and counter trade.

Geo. Rondires, 2162 Eighth avenue, although yet a young man may be said to be a pioneer retailer in that part of the city. Calling recently we found his store busy and attractive.

Beautiful, well flowered plants in Dorothy Perkins and other roses and genistas are being displayed at the store of Malandre Bros., Broadway and 72nd street.

Frank H. Traendly and Wm. H. Duckham started March 24 for the Indianapolis show. Chas. H. Totty and Wallace R. Pierson had preceded them.

One of the handsome and well kept shops of the upper part of the city is that of Geo. Stathes, 889 Columbus avenue. It is always well stocked.

In addition to many other good features Harry Charles, 104 West 28th street, is now handling double white and colored stocks.

At Geo. C. Siebrecht's, 109 West 28th street, we recently noted exceptionally fine offerings in cymbidium and cattleya orchids.

The Art Flower Shop is a new enterprise opened at 2237 Broadway and it seems to be making good.

The John-Scott range, Flatbush, Brooklyn, is showing a good stock of lilies and hydrangeas.

The Rosen Bros. is a new wholesale firm that has recently taken space with Harry Charles.

J. G. Leikens, Inc., was very busy the past week with table decorations and funeral work.

The venerable Louis Schmutz is still on deck with a good stock of Easter plants.

Sam Seligman is now with M. H. Levine Co., the ribbon firm, at 874 Broadway.

Ed. Jansen and wife are making a tour of the Pacific coast. A. F. F.

Albany, N. Y.

On May 1 the Albany Cut Flower Exchange, Inc., Thomas F. Tracey, manager, will move into new quarters in the P. V. Fort estate building at 664 Broadway. The Exchange has for several years been selling flowers plants, and florists' supplies, wholesale, at 611-613 Broadway. A marked increase in the rent under a new lease caused Manager Tracey to look around for new quarters to be occupied after May 1 next. With the assistance of a local real estate agent, Mr. Tracy, has been able to secure quarters that in a number of respects are more desirable than the one he now occupies.

George E. Nagengast, Jr., proprietor of the Flowerdale Greenhouses, Washington and Main avenues, has plans to build this season, a carnation house, 25x103 feet and a conservatory 25x25 feet. These will be addition to the present plant. Mr. Nagengast is featuring attractive advertisements in the local newspapers 4x6 inches.

The next annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 19-20, 1923.

SOME seedsmen are mailing a follow-up letter with a second catalogue.

VISITED CHICAGO: Theodore Cobb, representing D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich.

FARMERS are reported using lower grades of grass seeds than usual this season.

SWEET PEAS are as liable to attacks of weevil as other peas during summer storage. Watch out!

SPRING work in the Holland bulb fields has been started, and is going on about as usual at this time of year.

BOSTON, MASS.—James H. Cheyne, formerly on the staff of the R. & J. Farquhar Co., is again with that firm.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Chicago and New York, has issued a second edition of its Dealers' Green Trade List.

THE Wonder Pink tomato and Washington rust proof asparagus are both scarce items, so is Laxtonian pea.

G. C. ELDERING, of W. J. Eldering & Son, Overveen, Holland, is due on the S. S. Rotterdam at New York April 1.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district are reported in strong demand this week, whites and yellows, $2.25, reds a trifle lower.

JOHN BODGER, of John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, Calif., and wife, will sail from England on the S. S. Aquitania, April 1.

THE W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa., is using Indianapolis show days to run its sweet pea advertisements in local papers.

BOARD OF TRADE.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade March 29 were as follows: Timothy, $4.25 to $6.50 per 100 pounds; Red Clover, $15 to $21.

AFTER five snowy and cold days in Chicago last week, Saturday opened as a spring day, and local counter trade was good, set back some by an afternoon drizzle.

D. M. FERRY & Co., Detroit, Mich., had a half-page seed advertisement in the Indianapolis News, Saturday, March 25, the opening day of the Fifth National Flower Show.

ONE Chicago lawn seed dealer is retailing his brand at 25 cents per pound, with blue grass above 45 cents and red top nearly 25 cents. How the Oliver can he do it?

NEBRASKA CITY, NEB.—Johnson Bros. have opened a wholesale seed store in the building formerly occupied by the Oteo Mercantile Co., and will specialize in field seeds.

WICHITA, KANS.—The final dividend in the bankruptcy proceedings of the Ross Bros. Seed House here, is depending on the outcome of a lawsuit. The first dividend, already paid, was 25 per cent.

EVASIONS of the laws of the United States by the German potash monopoly, controlled and directed by the German government, have completely wrecked the American potash industry, according to a petition sent to congress by 45 American potash producers.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA.—Morgan F. Jones, referee in the bankruptcy case of the E. A. Martin Seed Co., reports that there will be no further distribution of dividends to creditors. It will be remembered the first and only dividend in this matter was the one per cent, leaving the creditors holding the bag for 99 per cent of the debts. This seems almost to make a record.

NEW YORK.—John Wilk and wife returned recently from a six weeks' visit in Europe, four of which were spent in Holland. Mr. Wilk states there is much dissatisfaction in Holland over our Quarantine No. 37, and that there is a strong probability of a retaliatory law being passed that will enforce vigorous inspection of the large quantity of California fruit exported to Holland. He also found much dissatisfaction in England with our quarantine regulations.

THE location of a seedsman has but little bearing on the area from which he obtains most vegetable seed, according to the government crop reporter, because the bulk of these seeds is produced in comparatively few rather well-defined sections. In vegetable seed the terms "northern grown," "dry land," etc., are not so significant as in farm seeds, but nevertheless these or similar terms are frequently used by vegetable seedsmen.

Peacock Receivership.

E. D. Buell, in Judge Carpenter's court, was appointed receiver for the Everette R. Peacock Co., Chicago, bond $25,000, according to record of March 28. No schedule of assets and liabilities has been filed and no figures are obtainable at this time.

New York Seed Bill Hearing.

A hearing on Senator Ferris' Seed Bill, No. 751, will be held Tuesday, April 4, at 11 a. m. A preliminary meeting will be held Monday, April 3, at 8:30 p. m., in the Hotel Ten Eyck, Albany, for a conference, and as this is a matter of vital importance, it is hoped as many as possible will be present Monday evening as well as at the hearing before the governor.

MARSHALL H. DUREYEA,
New York State Correspondent,
American Seed Trade Association.

Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Calif.

From the plant of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., is shipped 500,000 pounds of seed annually. The seed is distributed throughout the United States and Europe and is one of the biggest industries of Gilroy. There are over 50 different varieties of seed included in the output. The staples are lettuce, onions, radishes, carrot, mustard, vegetable oyster, parsley, parsnip and sweet peas, estimated, in value over $250,000 each year. The company operates a $20,000 seed cleaning and warehousing plants on the spur tracks near the Standard Oil Co. plant.—Gilroy Chamber of Commerce Bulletin.

Vick's New Store.

For a number of years Vick's Seed Store, located on Stone street, Rochester, N. Y., has been regarded by the seed trade as one of the best equipped up-to-date seed stores anywhere in this country. It has carried a larger and more complete line of seeds, plants, bulbs and other garden requisites than any other establishment in the state outside of New York city.

Now the time has come when Rochester has outgrown these facilities and has made it necessary for Vick Seed Store No. 2 to open at 36 Exchange street, thus giving the west side the same facilities as have been offered for many years by the east side store on Stone street.

Both stores will supply the same high quality products and the same efficient intelligent service, which has made the name of James Vick's Sons known in Seed Fund Distribution.

Distribution of the $1,500,000 provided in the seed loan act just signed by President Harding for relieving the acute stress of the farmers in the crop-failure area of the northwest, will begin immediately, the Department of Agriculture announced March 22.

Arrangements have been made for opening a branch office at Grand Forks, N. D., as was done in the case of previous government loans for the relief of farmers in that section of the country. The clerical force which served at that office last season will be reassembled.

The relief is provided for farmers in the "crop-failure area" for the purchase of spring-grown grain for seed, which includes wheat, oats, barley and flax.
The area comprises North Dakota, northwest counties of South Dakota,
Montana, several counties in Idaho and Washington.

Free Seeds.

Two horticulturists at the University of Wisconsin have just issued statements that echo very distinctly the growing sentiment throughout the nation against free seeds. This sentiment has recently been crystallized in a resolution of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America calling on congress to send all free seeds to starving Russia.

"So far as benefitting agriculture is concerned, free seeds amount to practically nothing. I suppose that 50 per cent of the seeds sent out are never planted," says J. G. Moore, of the horticultural department at the college of agriculture. "If new varieties were sent out and the matter followed up in such a way as to secure data on their adaptability, there might be some excuse for the practice."

"Under the present system, it is a pure waste of public funds. I don't know as I would advocate sending them to Russia, but I would certainly advocate cutting off the free seed appropriation," says R. H. Roberts, another horticultural expert at the college. "So far as free seed distribution is concerned, most of the seeds sent out are never planted. Frequently they are not of a variety adapted to that particular locality."

"It looks to me as though it might be a good idea to send the seeds to Russia, if the Russians can use them."

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

M. R. Cashman, Owatonna, Minn., President; Paul C. Lindley, Pomona, N. C., Vice-President; Charles Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo., Secretary; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Iowa, Treasurer.

The forty-seventh annual convention will be held at Detroit, Mich., June 28-30, 1922.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—C. M. Loring, father of the park system here, and a public spirited citizen of note, died March 18.

BARRON, WIS.—Ole K. Knosberg has considerably enlarged his establishment by planting 3,000 additional fruit trees and shrubs.

PUBLICITY propaganda by the nurserymen's association does not seem to have as smooth sailing as that of the florists and seedsmen.

FOR western nurserymen, who are only just able to dig stock out of the mud, this is sure to be another short and troublesome season.

SILAO SPRINGS, ARK.—The Swenson Nursery Co., is now owned outright by Peter Swenson, Caddo, Tex., T. S. Lutes, formerly manager of the concern, having severed connections with it. W. T. La Follette is the new general manager, who will also have charge of the sales force and Garthe Rolfe continues as superintendent.

Tree Centuries.

A Douglas fir tree, one of the oldest in British Columbia, which was cut down recently, was over 420 years old, judging from the number of rings in the cross section. It measured over six feet in diameter.

Nursery Freight Rates.

REDUCTIONS IN CERTAIN CLASSES

The official classification committee of the interstate commerce commission recently informed Secretary Sizemore, of the American Association of Nurserymen, that certain changes and additions in ratings of nursery stock, in transit, have been adopted, as forecasted in previous issues of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, which are of advantage to all nurserymen, as some of the rates have been reduced and others allow shipments in certain packages not heretofore listed, which will also show a lower rate. The changes follow:

Nursery and florists' stock, other than cut decorative evergreens, prepaid; other than citrus and other than cranberry vines or strawberry plants.

Dormant.—Roots in tubs or boxes, tops protected by crating, less carloads—DI (new rating). In crates, less carloads—second class: (was one and one-half times first class).

Not dormant—Same as above.

Plants or vines N. O. I. B. N.—In baskets with solid or slatted covers, less carloads—double first class (new rating). Carloads—second class (new rating.)

Shrubs.—In bundles completely wrapped, less carloads—first class (new rating). In boxes with slatted covers or in crates, less carloads—first class (new rating). In barrels or boxes, less carloads—second class (new rating).

Trees.—Not dormant in bundles, completely wrapped, less carloads—first class (new rating). In boxes with slatted covers or in crates, less carloads—first class (new rating). In boxes or barrels, less carloads—second class (new rating).

Illinois State Nurserymen's Ass'n.

Illinois has many Chambers of Commerce, each of which has committees and will be glad to help put over the programme. The Kiwanis is an organization of business men which meets once each week at luncheon. A speaker is secured to talk on some subject of interest. Kiwanis Clubs of our state will welcome the opportunity to get behind such a splendid activity. The Rotary Clubs are representative men of a community. The Rotary Clubs meet either for luncheon or dinner and a speaker talks on a subject of vital importance to the community. Can any one thing be of greater importance than that of uniting with similar organizations in this movement to make Illinois a better state? The Rotary Clubs will do something for this programme. Other bodies, including the Lions Clubs, Y. M. C. A., churches, bankers' associations, etc., are expected to co-operate and merchants who advertise in the state will be asked to insert the slogan, "Plan to Plant Another Tree," in their publicity matter.

UNSELFISH ACTIVITY.

This is a plan to make Illinois a better state. The campaign is conducted by the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association for convenience, as we are the logical society to bring all other organizations into a combined effort for the good of the state. We do not care to be mentioned. All we wish to do is to help each society in a much needed work, that of making Illinois a better place in which to live. Any further information may be secured by addressing: J. A. Young, secretary, Illinois State Nurserymen's Association, Aurora, Ill.

"PLAN TO PLANT ANOTHER TREE" CAMPAIGN.

We plan our homes, our churches, schools, Our boulevards, our parks and pools; We plan our music, songs and books, Our gardens and our eagle nooks; We plan our children's hours so they May have some sunshine every day; We plan our lives and with a sigh Cease planning only when we die. But all through life how seldom we Plan to plant another tree.

So plant a tree and watch it grow, Through it some of your blood may flow; It may become a safe retreat That friends will seek with eager feet, And 'neath its shade in cool content Bless it—your living monument, A tree that sings a lullaby To every pilgrim passing by, And reaches out a friendly limb, As if to shade and shelter him. Selfish—selfish indeed is he Who never plans to plant a tree.

A tree, a shady, sheltering tree, Is like a living prayer to me, A prayer that grace and comfort lends To mortal men e'er it ascends In thankfulness to bless the hand That planting it, both worked and planned. "A tree whose thirsty mouth is prest Against the earth's sweet flowing breast; A tree that looks at God all day, And lifts its leafy hands to pray; Poems are made by fools like me, But only God can make a tree."

—T. H. Kendall.

RECLAIMED land is being settled on a large tract near Albert Lea by Dutch gardeners.

MELONS worth $500,000 are grown in southeast Missouri each year, on land which was formerly swamp.

THE Brookings, S. D., Experiment Station authorities are advising gardeners and others to secure supplies of insecticides now.

IN the week ending March 27, onion prices reached highest point since 1917. The supplies seem nearly exhausted and prices jumped $2.50 to $3.50 per sack of 100 pounds in leading eastern cities.

Stocks of potatoes in the hands of farmers and local dealers March 1, in 15 leading potato states, were estimated by the Department of Agriculture at 90,946,000 bushels, of which 73,486,000 were held by farmers.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—The California Packing Co., recently announced opening prices for the 1922 asparagus crop and sold out the entire prospective crop in 48 hours at substantial advance in prices over last year. Considerable increase in the crop is expected this year over last.

Tariff Making.

A new section was added to the free list of the tariff bill, which relieves from payment of duty non-edible blackstrap molasses, which contains up to 52 per cent of sugar, but is not fit for human consumption. This is the kind of molasses which goes into manufacture of cattle feeds, and is another concession to the agricultural "bloc."

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, March 28.—Cucumbers, per crate, $4 to $6; head lettuce, per crate, $6.75; carrots $3.50 to $4 per barrel; cabbage, $1.75 to $2.25 per crate.

New York, March 24.—Cucumbers, $1.75 to $2.50 per dozen; mushrooms, per three-pound basket, 80 cents to $1.70; radishes, 100 bunches, $3.50 to $10; tomatoes, per pound, 35 to 40 cents; lettuce, per crate, $2.25 to $5.50; beets, per crate, $1.75, rhubarb, $1 to $2 per dozen bunches.

Asparagus by Parcel Post.

Shipments of fruits and vegetables in great quantities by retail and wholesale merchants to all sections of the United States is steadily increasing, according to reports to General Superintendent W. H. Riddell of the railway mail service.

As an illustration of the use to which the parcel post is being put by merchants, it was asserted by Superintendent Riddell, that recently an entire freight car was loaded with individual cases of asparagus and shipped by parcel post rates. Each parcel, however, conformed to weight regulations, and it would not have been possible to ship the carload as a bulk, it was explained.

Department officials said that there appeared to be no reason why sufficient number of crates to make up a half car or a carload, cannot be shipped in the future as parcel post. Parcels of a perishable nature, however, which are likely to spoil within the time reasonably required for transportation and delivery, will not, it was said, be accepted for mailing. The rates for parcel post matter depend upon the zone to which shipped and the weight of the package.

The Song of the Plow.

It was I who raised from famine
All the hordes and tribes of Man;
I have never ceased nor faltered
Since the tith of fields began,
Since the first poor crooked stick was drawn Across the wondering earth
While upon the man who used it
All his tribesmen gazed in mirth;
But the wild seeds sprang in blossom
More abundant than before,
And the fool who toiled all summer
Had the wise man's winter store.
It was I who built Chaldea
And the cities on the plain;
I was Greece and Rome and Carthage
And the opulence of Spain—
When their courtiers walked in scarlet
And their queens wore chains of gold,
And forgot 'twas I that made them,
Growing goddess folk and bold.
I went over them in judgment,
And again my cornfields stood
Where their empty courts bowed homage
In obsequious multitude,
For the nation that forgets me—
In that hour her doom is sealed
By a judgment as from heaven,
That can never be repealed.

Fifth National Flower Show.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 25 to April 1.

Great Artistic and Financial Success.

In spite of the wet Sunday, March 26, and the succeeding rainy days of Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, when it poured down more or less all day, the Fifth National Flower Show at Indianapolis, which closed April 1, has gone over the top financially and marked a distinct step forward in the florist industry. It was astonishing to see the crowds that braved the rain and the tedious car ride, all day long from the opening at 10:30 a. m. until the closing at night. Early each afternoon barriers were set in place inside the front entrance, which turned the visitors to the left, where police officers were stationed to keep them moving and prevent congestion. The central depressed area, while only two feet below the level of the sides of the building, looked most enchanting in its garden effect and the throngs of visitors generally wended their way first through the flower lined avenue of this space. With the exception of a few large vases of choice roses all the special competitive exhibits were staged at the sides of the building, except that of roses arranged for effect, for which room was made in the center.

The large wicker covered vases of the American Rose Society, under whose auspices and rules the rose display was held, again demonstrated its great worth and it was also seen that the society would have to go even further and provide large, bowl-like receptacles in which to arrange the stiff stemmed Hadley, Premier and Double White Killarney, in order to show each flower to the best advantage. The wonderful vase of Hadley displayed by the Jos. Heacock Co., Wyncote, Pa., while greatly admired, never had a chance in its huddled-up space, to show the real individual beauty of the flowers and foliage. The contrast of this style with the vases in the groups of 1,000 flowers arranged decoratively, covering 300 square feet, was most noticeable. These were entered Wednesday, March 29, by A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.; Fred H. Lemon & Co., Richmond, Ind., and the Poehlmann Bros. Co. Chicago.

The roses in the Pierson group were Double White Killarney, Premier, Butterfly, Ophelia, Mrs. Warren G. Harding, Aaron Ward, Milady, Pilgrim, Crusader and Columbia. The flowers were arranged by Bertermann Bros. Co. in an artistic setting with cibotiums and other ferns making a splendid showing. Tall floor vases and large handle baskets were the receptacles used and color effects were produced with velvets and ribbons. The exhibit was awarded first prize. The Lemon display arranged by Fred H. Lemon personally, was grouped in much the same manner as the blue ribbon exhibit, the quality of his Premier and Columbia being especially noteworthy. Angelus showed up well, while Amelia Gude was refined in its light, orange tints. There were also two vases of his rose, Freedom. When finished the display was a fitting companion to the Pierson group across the aisle and was granted second prize.

The Poehlmann Bros. Co. also made a fine display, their varieties being Butterfly, White Ophelia, Ward, Columbia, Premier, Crusader and Milady. This group won third prize.

The Closing Days.

The displays of arranged carnations which were staged on Thursday, March 30, while not numerous, were quite elaborate and contained blooms of exceptional quality. Baur & Steinkamp, of Indianapolis, were the only exhibitors in the display covering 80 square feet and they made a very fine arrangement. Square cornered, post like vases painted white, each contained 100 blooms of Red Rosalia. In the center of the space stood a large wicker bowl vase filled with over 100 superb Laddie. On the floor space were four handle vase baskets, two of which contained Ruth Baur carnations and the others mixed colors.

A bed of ferns in the center surrounding the group of Laddie gave a fine finish. The arrangement was very artistically made by the skilled hands of Mr. Baur and the whole exhibit greatly admired by the visitors.

In the private growers' competition for the best display of carnations, not less than 200 blooms arranged in vases, J. E. Widener, Elkins Park, Pa., won with exceptionally good flowers of Laddie, Mrs. C. W. Ward, Matchless, Ethel Fisher and White Wonder. Wm. Kleinheinz, gardener and superintendent, made a fine arrangement of the flowers with asparagus.

A large panel standing six feet in height, quite artistically arranged in light pink and red shades of carnations on a fern background and having as a feature a picture of Governor McCray, of Indiana, made a fine showing. An orange and purple ribbon was inscribed "Governor's Day" and the panel was presented to the governor who visited the exhibition Thursday afternoon. This feature exhibited by the Pahud Floral Co. won first prize in its class.

In the basket arrangements, Strouts, Inc., Biddeford, Me., made a wonderful showing of 200 carnations in a made-up basket, which was arranged by Bertermann Bros. Co. Maidenhair ferns were placed at the base of this oval handled basket, which was tied with a light green, ribbon bow, giving it a very pretty finish. Bertermann Bros. Co. entered a beautiful made-up basket of Natalie, with pussy willows, placed on a large, round table with white cloth, bringing out the color in fine style. A tall ornamental floor vase filled with 200 Laddie, by the same firm, made a fine showing. Cut nephrolepis and Asparagus Sprengerii were used as greens.

E. E. Temperly, of Indianapolis, staged a splendidly arranged vase basket of Laddie, as did W. A. Rowe, Kirkwood, Mo., whose tall, floor, vase handle basket, filled with selected Laddie, very fine blooms, was superb. There were several other entries all of which were quite elaborate.

There were three entries in tables where carnations were the principal flower used. A. Wiegand & Sons Co., Indianapolis, formed a large star, from the center of which arose a slender vase containing 50 blooms, well above the line of vision, a very pretty arrangement although much too large for the table on which it was placed. The Pahud Floral Co.'s table also had a tall vase centerpiece filled with Laddie, arising from a plateau of lavender sweet peas, snapdragons and Ophelia roses. Corsages of lily of the valley and lavender, sweet peas at each plate made the whole very distinctive.

A novel display entered under the schedule calling for arrangements other than baskets or vases was seen in Baur & Steinkamp's exhibit, which consisted of a coal scuttle turned on its side on a green velvet cloth from which was pouring, as from a cornucopia, a well arranged spray of striped carnations.

H. B. Marinelli, Montvale, N. J., made a large exhibit of his new carnations in pinks, whites, striped and mottled purple shades. They were all so odd and unusual that they attracted a great deal of attention from the visitors and were an interesting feature of the show.

The Banquet.

The banquet held in the handsome Lincoln room of the Lincoln hotel, March 30, provided, in addition to a fine menu, a quartet of accomplished singers, who rendered a number of familiar and operatic songs as the various courses were served. Governor McCray, of Indiana, who honored the florists with his presence, was seated with the officers of the Society of American Florists and show managers at a long side table, while the 200 or more guests were placed at round tables seating six each. All of the tables contained baskets of flowers. Immediately after all were seated a photo was taken of the scene.

With the serving of the coffee the toastmaster rapped for order and after welcoming the guests introduced Governor McCray, who in expressing his great satisfaction that it had been Indiana's good fortune to get the show, extolled Hoosier hospitality and said that he was prepared to admit that Indiana was the greatest state in the union. The Hoosier loves flowers and the beautiful in nature. We realize what a desolate and forbidding world this would be without flowers, and the governor was glad to welcome to Indianapolis men and women who are engaged in this vocation which contributes so much to human progress. What the city lacked in population was more than made up by enthusiasm, and while the weather had been unfavorable throughout the week, the local officials could hardly be blamed for it, as such matters were managed from Washington. In conclusion Governor McCray said that Indianapolis was a great city, and he always felt sorry for those who lived elsewhere.

Irwin Bertermann in speaking of the great success of the exhibition said its staging and local success was due to the great co-operation of city and state officials, civic bodies, the press and everyone in the trade. He had yet to hear the first man say no to any request he had made. The people in Indianapolis felt they were enjoying a great privilege, and he desired to thank all who had so nobly and so eagerly helped in making this the finest flower exposition ever held in this country.

FIFTH NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.
Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s Rose Exhibit.

FIFTH NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW
Henry A. Dreer's Kurume Azaleas.

"Who would not be proud of the welcome we have received from Indiana and Indianapolis?" asked President S. S. Pennock. "We have felt more than the traditional Hoosier hospitality. We have been at home here ever since we arrived in Indianapolis six weeks ago. No flower show ever had the backing of the press that the local papers have so kindly given. Indianapolis has made good, and because of this we have the best exhibition ever held by the Society of American Florists." Mr. Pennock spoke of the great building in which the show was staged, the best for the purpose he had ever seen, the magnificence of the exposition, its opening on time and that every city of 300,000 or more should have a great annual event of this character.

Herman P. Knoble, of Cleveland, O., told how the florists of that city had turned over their large stock and shipped two carloads to Indianapolis. He said the local people were a lucky bunch of Hoosiers who had been most fortunate in getting the show and was glad to report that the exhibition had gone over the top, financially, Wednesday noon, and that more than 50,000 people had passed through the gates up to that time. In conclusion Mr. Knoble urged the craft in Indianapolis to make the show an annual event which would be of great benefit to the trade.

Geo. Asmus, of Chicago, the concluding speaker, stated that the flower show was a great object lesson in co-operation, in which the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce, state and city officials, the entire florists' trade and the newspapers had combined to produce the greatest of floral events. He gave great credit to the Cleveland florists for what they had done to assist in its success, and he had no criticism for the mayor of Cleveland, as he had done just right in not granting permission to use their auditorium until completed. Everyone who had anything to do with the show should be proud of its wonderful success. He praised the great publicity given by the newspapers and hoped the local craft would stage similar events in future years.

The Attendance.

The following details of the attendance are interesting as showing the number who availed themselves of the opportunity to buy tickets at half price, also that the admissions show the greatest number of visitors, March 28-29-30 when there was a continuous downpour of rain. The grand total of admissions was 71,754 which includes 3,559 press and exhibitors' tickets not shown in the accompanying table.

The expenses incurred in all departments of the show at Indianapolis were fully provided for by noon Wednesday, and the large attendance on succeeding days brought the figures up to an amount that it is hoped will wipe out the debts incurred at St. Louis, Mo., and Cleveland, O., and hasten the opening of another national exhibition in one of the large cities. The Indianapolis Star,

Daily News and other local papers kept up the interest throughout the week with their elaborate reports of all special entries and gave the premiums entire as fast as they were awarded.

An Appreciation.

When in the emergency Indianapolis was selected as the city in which to hold the National Flower Show, the weight of responsibility to the trade here seemed at first appalling. The florists proved, however, that no task was too great for them and in their co-operation, all working together, they have made possible the greatest flower show ever held in this country. I want especially to thank all my co-workers in the business, the chairmen of the various committees and the men under them who have labored so hard and given so much of their valuable time to uphold the honor of our city, and state, and demonstrated to the florists of the United States that we were equal to the task imposed upon us.

I also want to thank His Excellency, the Governor; His Honor, the Mayor, the Chamber of Commerce and other trade bodies who have given unstinted support to this great undertaking. To the press of the city and state we owe a debt we can never repay, as the financial success of the show was due largely to their elaborate reports and broadcast publicity.

To the National Flower Show officials and Superintendent Arthur Herrington, whose planning of the displays was so efficient and beautiful, I have only words of the greatest praise. I also want to thank the florists of Cleveland in bringing to Indianapolis the stock they had grown for the exhibition in their own city. Their hydrangeas, roses, bulbous and other flowering plants gave a wonderful finish to the show.

IRWIN BERTERMANN, Chairman
Indianapolis Executive Committee.

Resolutions.

An appreciation by the National Flower Show committee and the executive board of the Society of American Florists, of the great work in the preparation of the Fifth National Flower Show by local representatives of the trade and other civic bodies is expressed in the following resolution:

"Whereas: In the closing days of the Fifth National Flower Show it is fitting, and a genuine pleasure, to note the willing co-operation of many individuals, societies and organizations who have carried it forward; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we, the executive board of the Society of American Florists, herewith express our sincere appreciation of the activities of those who have helped to make this exhibition; to Irwin Bertermann, chairman of the local executive committee, who, with the united support of the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce, through its general secretary, John B. Reynolds, brought to us at Cleveland in our emergency the enthusiastic welcome of your city; second, the indorsement of the State Florists' Association of Indiana and later its collective exhibit.

"Further, our grateful thanks to that great body of exhibitors whose plans, though made for another city and though coming in numbers from far New England to a greater distance and under increased risk, immediately consented to the change; and to those guarantors who renewed their allegiance and financial support to the new location.

"And to Governor Warren T. McCray of Indiana, the state department of conservation, the mayor of Indianapolis and the city park board.

"Further, to the chairmen and members of the florists' local committee, who, at the sacrifice of their own business at this critical time, have labored with full devotion.

"And, finally, let us say: We have never received such interested service and co-operation as from the Indianapolis press and local merchants; our sincere thanks to them and every one we have come in contact with in your city."

J. C. VAUGHAN,

S. W. COGGAN,

ROMAN J. IRWIN,

Resolutions Committee.

Donors of Flower Show Souvenirs.

Owing to the confusion in the handling of the various lines of stock, in plants, cut flowers and seeds presented to visitors of the show as souvenirs, the proper recognition cannot be given to each of the donors of these gifts, which were such an appreciated feature to the show patrons.

I, therefore, desire to use this method of thanking those who so generously responded to our call. There is no doubt that these very materially helped the attendance and gave valued publicity to the exhibition. Again I thank you.

CLARENCE R. GREENE, Chairman,
Special Features Committee.

Correction.

In the competitive classes of cut roses, commercial growers, for 50 any disseminated red, appearing in last week's issue, page 526, Anders Rasmussen, of New Albany, Ind., should have been credited with first prize and Myers & Samtman, Philadelphia, Pa., second prize.

Notes of the Show.

The Dracaena Victoria of A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., standing five feet in height, was one of the handsomest specimen foliage plants in the show.

The Garfield Park sunken garden with its palm background was a finished piece of bedding and very much admired.

The bulb garden arranged by A. Wiegand & Sons Co., with stock furnished by Walter E. Cook, Inc., of Cleveland, with its white paling enclosure was very showy and perfect in every respect.

The largest roses in the show lay between Celestial, Hadley and Hill's America, all superb vases. Hoosier Beauty was another striking vase seen, and F. R. Pierson's Francis Scott Key was greatly admired.

The Kurume azaleas of H. A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., were beautiful until the very last day.

Cinerarias, particularly the shrubby types, were never seen in better form, there being several entries in this group.

The touffa rock work mounds that flanked either side of the F. T. D. temple were very nicely arranged, both containing a display of orchids.

The bird's nest ferns of Wm. K. Harris, Philadelphia, were also arranged in a portion of this rockery along with well flowered standard plants of bougainvilleas, shown by A. N. Pierson, Inc., each artistically arranged.

The visitors never seemed to tire of the great acacia exhibit of Thos. Roland, which was at all times surrounded by throngs of inquiring people seeking to know if it was possible to have such plants in their home grounds or gardens.

The large, central electric fountain of the A. L. Randall Co., of Chicago, with a miniature Bartholdi's statue of Liberty in the center was in perfect order during the show, with its hundreds of sprays and colored lights it was a great feature.

The carnations arranged in blocks of 25 vases, Wednesday, made a much better showing than when all bunched together as was the case Tuesday. A striking vase of seedlings, from the Fred Dorner & Sons Co., LaFayette, Ind., of at least 50 kinds was most interesting to the carnations experts. Valentine, a pretty shade of Ward pink was also much admired by the growers which was shown by John Steidle, Clayton, Mo.

W. D. Howard, of Milford, Mass., stated that he enjoys a very good demand for Cottage Maid carnations, which bring top price in the New York market.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., gave away 6,000 packages of orchid flowering sweet peas seed, labeled "Complimentary trial packages."

The retailers' spaces always presented a bright and fresh appearance as all the cut flowers were renewed and rearranged each day.

The Jos. H. Hill Co.'s trade exhibit was a bower of cut roses, changed every day, and at all times surrounded by great crowds.

Carl Hagenburger, West Mentor, O., added to the beauty of the foyer groups with his genistas, hydrangeas and azaleas, none of which were entered for competition.

The new rose of A. N. Pierson, Inc., a dark sport of Columbia is a wonderfully formed flower and while not shown with as long stems as will be possible when wood is not so scarce it made a fine vase, being entered in the American Rose Society's competition for novelties. In color it is a deep, cerise pink, full of fire and pleasing to a great degree. It is well worthy of the name of the first lady of the land, Mrs. Warren G. Harding. The exhibit was awarded a silver medal.

E. G. Hill's America, a vase of superb flowers, which staged in the foyer Wednesday, in the novelty class of the American Rose Society, was most exquisite. It seems almost impossible to imagine a rose more perfect in form, either as a bud or when fully developed. This rose also won a silver medal.

The large groups of cut flowers staged by E. C. Amling Co., Chicago, were kept replenished with fresh stock each day and were of keen interest to the visitors because of the great variety shown.

The sweet peas were very popular with the visitors, the fine long stemmed stock of Mrs. F. E. Lewis, Ridgefield, Conn., in 25 square feet being especially noteworthy. Additional vases in three varieties and six of different kinds were extra fine, all receiving first prize.

Mrs. Redmond Cross, Morristown, N. J., sent three vases of superb sweet peas but they arrived too late to get into the competition.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association made a fine display of sweet peas, all the popular kinds, grown by Geo. Ball. He filled a basket with his new strain of calendulas, a truly gorgeous shade of orange, very much admired.

Amelia Gude, as seen in Fred H. Lemon & Co.'s group of roses was beautiful and chaste. Its light yellow shade with coppery center and well formed flower made a most pretty vase.

The group of heathers in one of the foyer beds shown by Anton Schultheis, College Point, N. Y., was very well flowered and a great attraction.

G. R. Gause & Co., of Richmond, Ind., showed a large six-foot vase made of carnations and filled with roses with a plateau of the same flower at its base.

The well arranged bed of crotons, by the Robt. Craig Co., Norwood Station, Pa., with its highly colored foliage seemed as if just taken from a summer lawn.

A fine specimen cibotium in the foyer, staged by F. R. Pierson, was greatly admired.

The hydrangea groups which gave such color to the exposition appeared to open out and improve as the week progressed and were at their best the closing day.

A. L. Miller, of Jamaica, L. I., staged his new giganteum lily, immense flowers on three and four foot stalks, which proved very attractive to Easter plant growers who tried hard to find out its name and where the bulbs could be purchased.

Edw. Towill's new rose, American Legion, as shown by Myers & Samtman, Philadelphia, stood up well and when open made a flower not unlike Francis Scott Key.

The splendidly flowered Primula obconicas staged by the Daisy Hill Farms, Chagrin Falls, O., were the envy of all growers.

The trade exhibit of sweet peas made by the W. Atlee Burpee Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., was kept at its best all week, the flowers being renewed four times, coming every other day by special messenger from Fordhook Farms, Doylestown, Pa. The great assortment of kinds was a revelation to visitors.

The A. N. Pierson, Inc., group of beautiful foliage plants was sold to the Zeltitz Floral Products Co., Dayton, O.

The fern exhibit of F. R. Pierson was purchased by the Pahud Floral Co., Indianapolis.

The large rose garden of A. N. Pierson, Inc., was sold entire to Mrs. Hugh McLanden, of Indianapolis.

The Wayside Gardens, Mentor, O., furnished bulbs for the Dutch garden which was beautifully planted by Bertermann Bros. Co.

H. N. Bruns' lily of the valley and the fancy colored freesias were features of the E. C. Amling Co.'s exhibit all through the week.

A strong delegation from Dayton, O., came over Tuesday to spend the day.

W. A. Rowe, Kirkwood, Mo., took first prize for 100 Laddie carnations in a field of 15 competitors.

A message of sympathy with flowers was sent to Former President Patrick Welch, Boston, Mass., who is on the sick list.

College Florists' Section.

The college florists' section of the Society of American Florists met during National Flower Show week in Indianapolis, March 29. Representatives from the following states, Illinois, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Maryland, met with President S. S. Pennock for the consideration of reports and other business pertaining to college work in floriculture.

At the morning session committee reports on floricultural teaching and research in floriculture were heard. Much discussion as to the most satisfactory methods for the practical training of students under the system of floricultural teaching developed. A survey was given of the present work being done in experimental floriculture and the possibilities for new work in this line as soon as funds were available.

The committees on college floriculture and its relationship to the trade; floriculture in relation to agriculture, and future policies in floriculture reported at the afternoon session. It was noted that the trade was interesting itself more and more in the college development of floriculture and that students with college training were finding places for themselves in the trade. It was shown that, although floriculture was still a pioneer course in most of our colleges, in its development in the past few years it compared favorably with the other agricultural courses, such as fruit growing, vegetable gardening and dairying, considering that as yet it did not have the general support which these others had.

It was brought out that some of the future policies should include a balance between theory and practice in our teaching work; that we should develop training in business methods at the same time that we educate students as growers. The possibilities for the establishment of field workers to aid the florists, and the great opportunity for increasing the interest of the public generally in flowers and the planting of flower gardens by amateurs, were discussed.

The college section was in favor of plant quarantine, but agreed unanimously that it must be well regulated and that changes in the present quarantine were necessary to make it desirable.

Prof. H. B. Dorner of Illinois university, Urbana, was appointed vice-chairman of the college section to serve during the European absence of Prof. A. H. Nehrling of Cornell university, Ithaca, N. Y.

Due to the distance of Kansas City, Mo., from most of the colleges doing floriculture work, and in view of the fact that only one or two members contemplated attending the Society of American Florists' convention in August, it was decided not to plan on a meeting at that time. The desirability of the section meeting some time during the coming year at one of the agricultural colleges was favorably looked upon. The section was unanimously of the opinion that there was an immediate need for more experimental work to be done in floriculture and for field extension workers to visit the growers and help them with their troubles and that as soon as the florists felt the need of this aid and helped to secure the funds necessary for these purposes it would be possible to develop work which would be of direct benefit to them.

SOME OF THE MEN WHO MADE THE FIFTH NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

What the Florist Should Know.

Address by Dr. P. A. Lehenbauer of the University of Illinois, Urbana, before the Illinois State Florists' Association at Urbana, March 14-15, 1922.

In attempting to discuss a big and more or less indefinite subject such as the title of my paper suggests, I do not wish to have you think that the writer knows more about the practice of growing greenhouse crops than do his listeners. The writer is fully aware that growing plants for the production of flowers of high quality is an art based, in a large measure, upon experience. This experience involves a long and continuous contact with plants.

But aside from the knowledge acquired by experience, there is a mass of knowledge, more or less systematized, which has been acquired by careful and painstaking experiments. Experiments, if properly carried out, give us definite and accurate information. Scientific facts, however, are not always easy of application and often, unfortunately, it is difficult to harmonize them with our experiences. This is either because the facts discovered by experiment are misunderstood or because the results of experience are not properly analyzed.

It is my purpose in this paper to apply some of the facts known to the laboratory man and apply them to the practice of growing plants. I shall endeavor also to point out, so far as is possible, some of the reasons for certain difficulties of the grower—and, at the same time, emphasize the necessity of understanding certain limitations which often are responsible for these difficulties.

One of the important problems of the florist at the present time is the control of soil diseases. Many inquiries come to me concerning this type of problem. By soil disease I mean not a lack of fertility of soil due to an insufficiency of plant nutrients, but I mean diseases caused by fungi which inhabit the soil. The aster is killed by a wilt, the sweet pea by a root-rot, the carnation by stem rot, the violet by a root rot, the cyclamen by a rot at the base of the leaves. These are typical examples of soil diseases caused by fungi. We have identified these fungi, we can separate them from the diseased tissue and we can produce the disease at will. In other words, we know the cause of these diseases and we know that the causal organism lives in the soil.

We have not yet learned how to control these diseases in every case. The fact that the causal fungi live in the soil and attack the plant at the root or at the base of the stem makes the common practices of spraying and fumigating useless. Soil sterilization by means of heat is now always practical and in the case of some diseases it also is ineffective. Our investigations have shown that there is a rather definite relation between the prevalence of these diseases and the temperature in which the host plant is growing. While this does not give us a very practical method of control, it does help us in understanding the reasons why these diseases occur more noticeably during certain years and why they are more destructive at certain seasons than others. Stem rot of carnations is most destructive early in fall, during August September and October; the root rot of the sweet pea is noticeably destructive if the crop is planted early. In a similar way with other crops, the temperature of soil and air is a determining factor. During the cooler months these diseases do little damage. We may conclude from this that a method of control of such diseases lies in the time of planting of the crops, a method which is practiced with certain outdoor crops with success, but from the standpoint of the florist this does not prove to be a practical method. Neither is control of temperature in our greenhouses possible at all seasons of the year. Soil sterilization by means of heat, as pointed out previously, is not always practical in the case of some of these diseases not effective.

Although methods of culture, such as the proper use of water, the omission of natural manures from the soil, and the selection of propagating material apparently free from disease, are factors which assist materially in keeping these diseases to a minimum, other methods of attack must be found which are more effective.

A large number of chemical substances have been tested in an attempt to disinfect the soil and several have apparently proven successful and thus been recommended for this purpose. Formalin has been tried extensively by several experiment stations for the control of root rot and damping off of seedlings and is definitely recommended. Sodium cyanide in solution has been recommended for the control of eel-worm, with the suggestion that this substance may prove efficient against soil fungous diseases as well. Acid phosphate has been found useful in the control of the root rot of some plants. Bleaching powder gave good results in England in some experimental plots of vegetable crops. All of these substances no doubt are of value and when used properly will give good results.

We must realize, however, that soil disinfectants, although they have proven successful in particular cases, have certain limitations and shortcomings and an understanding of these is essential for success. Aside from certain detrimental effects on the soil, which may result if not used properly, there are conditions under which a soil disinfectant cannot accomplish the object in view.

The object of the disinfectant is to kill the parasitic fungus. Fungi often are in a stage in which they are very resistant and, like seeds of higher plants, may be subjected to drying, freezing, high degrees of temperature and poisons without being killed. A fungus is killed readily, however, when in the growing stage. It is imperative, therefore, that when a disinfectant is applied to a soil, condition must have been favorable for the growth of the fungus. Such conditions imply a favorable temperature and adequate moisture. But it is more important to keep in mind that any additions of soil, manures or other organic matter will inoculate the treated soil with the fungus and thus influence the effectiveness of the disinfectant. The soil in the bench may be disinfected and the parasitic fungus thus destroyed, but when seedling plants are set into this soil, the fungus may readily be reintroduced by means of the soil clinging to the roots of the plants. Adding natural manures to the soil after disinfection may bring about similar results. Soil disinfection, therefore, has its limitations, but they are largely limitations in method and may be readily overcome by any careful grower.

Such factors of limitation as operate in the control of soil diseases, prevail also in other phases of plant culture. I have outlined, on different occasions, the values and uses of fertilizers. Every florist appreciates the importance of fertilizers and practically every grower systematically treats his soils with what he considers the best. It is but natural to assume that the presence of ample food material is the essential factor of growth and that this, therefore, should receive the greatest attention. It is true that soil nutrients do play a very important part in plant culture and their use often means the difference between success and failure. However, in the use of fertilizers, the grower must recognize and appreciate certain limitations which may influence his results.

SOIL FERTILITY ELEMENTS.

From the standpoint of fertility there are three essential food elements with which the grower is concerned, namely, nitrogen, potassium and phosphorus. In the use of these, two questions arise; first in what form should fertilizers containing these elements be used, and secondly, what amount should be applied. As to form in which fertilizers occur, we may classify them in a general way into two groups: those which are readily available to the plant, and those which become available only slowly. The florist expects a relatively rapid growth of his plants and in order to obtain this a fertilizer which is readily available is desirable. It is for this reason that we recommend such fertilizers as sodium nitrate, dried blood, acid phosphate and treated bone, rather than the less available forms. As to the amount to apply, the grower must largely determine this for his particular type of soil. Soluble nitrogen compounds are more or less pronounced in their effects on plants by the resulting type of growth; too much nitrogen results in long, weak and succulent growth.

The effects of phosphorus and potassium compounds are less evident, but, on the other hand, overfeeding with them is also less likely. Due to this fact, together with the fact that they do not leach readily from soils, it is recommended that the phosphorus and potassium compounds be added to the soil in amounts sufficient for the growing season and that the nitrogen compounds be supplied the plant from time to time as growth of the plant requires it. By this method the grower, in the opinion of the writer, can secure maximum growth of good quality and, at the same time regulate, to a degree, the balance between the vegetative and flowering activity of the plant.

If the success of growing plants for flowers were determined by the proper use of food materials only, our difficulties would be comparatively few. But the old proverb, "Man shall not live by bread alone," applies as well to plants. The application of proper fertilizers to soils does not necessarily insure the best growth of plants; the use of phosphorus and potassium and nitrogen will not result in high grade plants if other conditions are unfavorable to growth. The plant has certain soil requirements aside from those of chemical composition of soil. The physical state of the soil is no less important. This is especially true of plants grown under glass where a rapid and continuous growth is desirable. We must not forget that the root system is an integral portion of the plant and that its requirements are very similar to that part of the plant which is above soil. The root system grows in length and it develops new parts as does the part of the plant above soil and in this process of growth it too requires the oxygen of the air, elaborated foods and it gives off carbon-dioxide as a waste material. Therefore, growth of the root system requires conditions within the soil which permit a ready diffusion of air in order that the cells of the roots may be supplied with oxygen and, at the same time, conditions which permit them to dispose of the useless waste products.

In addition, a circulation of air in the soil is essential for the various chemical processes which are going on in our soils, whereby the soil materials are made soluble and changed into forms usable by the plant. The importance of water in the soil need not be emphasized for all of us realize the large quantities of water taken up by the root systems, but it is well to know that water, as the universal solvent, hold in solution the various mineral substances of the soil, delivers them to the root system and thus makes possible a distribution of food materials in the soil.

These physical conditions of the soil often are the limiting conditions of growth, that is they are the factors which determine the amount and quality of growth rather than the quantities of fertilizers present in the soil. As I have pointed out to you on previous occasions, these physical conditions of the soil may be provided in our greenhouse soils by means of organic matter, such as manures, and by regulating the moisture conditions of the soil. Natural manures supply food materials to the plant, but in addition they furnish, what is equally as important, a favorable environment for the roots of the plants. The organic matter of soils, which may be provided by means of manures, furnishes not only food materials for both plants and bacteria but by means of it the soil is provided with proper conditions of air and moisture for the growth of the roots. If the soil is heavy and compact it is made more open and porous so that water and air pene'rate more freely, thus enabling the roots to receive oxygen, and also permitting necessary chemical reactions to be carried out; if the soil is light and sandy, it is made more compact, preventing the access of too much air and enabling such soil to absorb and retain not only the water but also the soluble essential food constituents.

I need not dwell on soil acidity as a possible growth limitation. Its detrimental effects are, no doubt, known to you. In a soil high in acidity the root system of the plant fails to respond and, in addition, in such a soil chemical changes take place which influence its fertility. As a single illustration: if soil is acid in reaction, the application of acid phosphate is followed by the formation of an almost insoluble phosphate which of course is unavailable to the plant and thus in this manner soil acidity becomes a limiting condition.

In my contact with florists, and in noting the content of the letters that come to me, I have come to the opinion that practically all difficulties of the grower can be grouped into three classes. The first embraces those produced by parasitic fungi in the soil which I discussed at the beginning of this paper; the second are difficulties caused by soil conditions, either a deficiency of food materials or a faulty physical condition. The third is less easily defined but includes all such phenomena as defoliation of plant, loss of color of leaves, falling of flowering buds, etc., which I, for want of a better word, classify under the term hardiness. We may also term it resistance, for the difficulties are in the last analysis dependent upon the resistance of the plant to withstand certain unfavorable conditions when they occur.

The florist grows his plants under intensified conditions, that is, under conditions stimulating rapid growth. The factors involved in this forcing process are a relatively high temperature, increased moisture, and an abundant food supply. Under these intensified conditions, the plant reaches a high state of perfection, a perfection, viewed from the standpoint of the grower, which implies succulence of the tissues, and an ideal balance between rigidity and flexibility of all parts of the plant. From the standpoint of the plant, however, we have a more or less strained and unnatural condition for the plant is in a state of physiological tension, keeping itself adjusted to the intensive factors of its environment. So long as the external conditions, as well as the internal conditions of the plant, remain uniform the plant responds ideally, but with each and every change in the growing factors there occurs a critical period in which the health, if not its very life, hangs in the balance.

In its natural state the plant is adjusted to the variable and even severe changes and it responds readily without effect. But in our greenhouses where conditions of intensive culture prevail, at any rate during its early period of growth, the plant in its tense state is but little adapted to any change in its environment and when such changes come, be it a cloudy period or be it sudden change in temperature or moisture, the plants responds by a change in color of leaves, by defoliation or perhaps by a loss of many buds. In other words, the plant being under high tension of growth is lacking in resistance and sufficient hardiness to withstand any rapid and pronounced change in its environment.

Such cases of course cannot be cured after they have happened. In course of time the plant will adjust itself to the new conditions and grow again to the highest perfection possible. The only remedy lies in prevention, and this consists in following either one or two courses. One is the regulation and the control of all growing conditions in such a way that the highly sensitive plant is not severely checked in its physiological processes; the other lies in methods of growing plants so that they are less sensitive, that is, more highly resistant to any or all changes of the environment when they occur.

The first method is the more difficult and often not possible; the latter, although difficult, is possible. It depends for its success upon supplying the plant, during its early growth, with conditions of food, soil, water, and air, which will make it desirable in every respect, yet hardy enough to withstand all influences to which it may become exposed. I receive letters in which the writers tell me that their plants grew nicely and then suddenly the leaves stopped growing and are now falling off; or possible the writer encloses some leaves, saying that the leaves are turning yellow. In answer to such an inquiry I can only say that the plants grew nicely because there was no disturbing factor, but when the disturbing factor came the leaves turned yellow. Possibly you watered too much, possibly the plants, under the conditions of your houses, needed a different degree of temperature, possibly there was a lack of light, for all of these things may produce yellow leaves; or possibly your plant was over-forced so that when the critical time came it was not strong enough, not resistant enough to stand up under adversity. A recent letter expressed this point very clearly as follows: "I know the reason why the buds dropped from my sweet peas; it is because the plants are too soft. When a cloudy spell comes the buds fall because the plants are too watery. What can I do to make my plants harder; what fertilizer would you recommend?"

It is not a question of fertilizer, but it is a question of growing the plants under a set of conditions which makes for perfection of growth, yet hardy enough to resist the changed conditions of a cloudy spell.

Fifth National Flower Show.

"If thou wouldst attain to thy highest, go look upon a flower; what that does willessly, that do thou willingly."

The transformation by the Fifth National Flower Show of the interior of the Manufacturers' building at the State Fair grounds into a thing of such beauty that it beggars description gives thousands of Hoosiers the opportunity this week of following Schiller's injunction.

The show, displaying plants and flowers from every clime, is a distinct tribute to man's love of the beautiful. All of the exhibits were brought to their present state of perfection by long years of patient experimentation and cultivation, which has enhanced the attractive gifts of nature.

Hoosiers can take a particular delight in the exhibit, for among the prize beauties are many products from Indiana soil. In fact, the displays from the native greenhouses rank with the best supplied from other states.

Indianapolis this week is the center of the flower kingdom and the public should not fail to avail itself of an opportunity that is seldom, if ever, presented to a community to see such a vast collection of plant life.—Indianapolis Newspaper.

ROCKFORD, ILL.—Invitations are out for an Easter flower show at the Buckbee greenhouses, Sunday, April 9.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—The park board is planning to build greenhouses at the Mitchell Park conservatory at an early date.

ELGIN, ILL.—Ohlson Bros. sustained a loss of $500 when the boiler shed of their greenhouse establishment was damaged by fire recently.

MANITOWOC, WIS.—The Manitowoc Floral Co., was incorporated March 23 with a capital of $50,000. O. V. Janson, Laura Wedegartner and W. L. Hamilton, of this city, are the incorporators.

EASTERTIDE.

Great Spring Festival.

Progressive growers and retailers look forward to Easter as the greatest harvest time of the year which if systematically planned for, with the records of the previous season kept constantly in mind, is sure to provide bountifully to the wide-awake hustling men of the trade. Preparedness is the watchword of the successful man; he is always planning and looking ahead providing for and being ready for the call when the time comes. The systematic grower as soon as the Easter season is over, begins at once to work up the stock for next year calculating carefully how much he will grow of this or that and soon getting the young plants off to a good start.

The retailer must also look ahead, as much of the stock that is made up in the store can be prepared well in advance, turning the dull days of summer into a profitable manufacturing period that will show a profit instead of the usual loss.

Publicity.

The entire list of the store's customers and prospects should have a cordial invitation to attend the Easter opening and display, accompanying which there should be a description of the choice plants and various arrangements and novelties of the season. Also the cut flowers in stock as well as a particular mention of the corsage creations for Easter morning wear. Cemetery memorials should also be a feature. Particular emphasis should be given to the advantages of early ordering and selection.

The outside decoration of the street front of the shop is a publicity feature that should not be overlooked. It is in good taste, emphasizes the fact that Easter is coming and in its elaborate display impresses the importance of the shop on ever passerby. This should also be backed up by striking window arrangements of Easter lilies, rambler roses, advance samples of these and plant baskets that will call attention to the event. Newspaper columns while expensive are a good medium particularly to emphasize one popular stock which is more likely to attract attention than when the space is taken up in smaller type.

Selection of Stock.

The wide-awake retailer is always early on the job in the selection of his Easter plants, buying to a carefully prepared schedule which includes his entire stock for the event. In this way the plants purchased are exactly suited to the store's needs and as a rule very little is left over or goes to waste. The man who keeps it all in his head is never certain as to just how much he needs and is likely to overbuy. High-priced specimens on account of their beauty are a great temptation but should be bought sparingly, as they are frequently amongst the left overs and cut deeply into the profits. Insist that all pots shall be scrubbed both sides and bottom and the plants properly staked.

Leading Easter Plants.

Probably the most showy and conspicuous of the Easter specialties are the rambler roses, the lovely Tausendschon, Dorothy Perkins, Lady Gay, the brilliant Excelsa and Hiawatha, which in their bush forms or trained as pyramids, umbrellas, globes, and some of the fancy shapes offered of late, are outstanding features of every stock.

CALENDULAS IN BASKET.

Paul's Scarlet Climber is a feature this season, and there are quantities of the baby rambles.

Next come the hydrangeas, of which the French varieties furnish such a range of form and color. The splendid whites, the various shades of pinks and the artificially blued, in their range of sizes from 4-inch pots with two or three heads of bloom suitable for combination baskets, to large specimens in tubs are a most valuable addition to the list, taking in part the place of the embargoed azaleas. Lilies are next in importance depending somewhat on their quality, as when of good height and carrying perfect large flowers, they are always a first choice, but when below par are only taken because they are the ideal Easter flower.

Hino Digiri azaleas are the best substitute at present for the missing Belgians; the former will soon be seen in quantity in pyramids and other fancy forms. The lovely genistas with their clouds of yellow blossoms in standard and bush forms are very effective. It has been found that the Spiraea Japonica types can be grown here as well as abroad and they will soon be as plentiful as when imported. They are indispensable at Easter.

Marguerite daisies when well flowered find a ready sale. Deutzias when finely set with flower sprays are good stock. Pelargonium Easter Greeting is most showy when well done and certain to be amongst the early selections. The Polyanthus with its quantities of yellow primula like flowers, is fine stock for pans. Pansies in about 10-inch pans when well covered with bloom are great sellers. Then there are the acacias and heathers, which latter always add class to the stock, and in the smaller sizes are indispensable for basket combinations.

The Dutch bulbous stock always fills an important place, they being great favorites in pans and for making up in combination basket work. It does not pay to sell them singly where delivery has to be made so they should only be offered in pans where the price warrants this expense.

Well grown foliage plants will also sell at this time; handsome pandanuses, dracaenas, crotons and ferns which will soon be available for porch decoration will be included in many of the assortments.

Combination baskets, in their artistic arrangement of flowers and foliage, are now most popular and a leading feature in all the large stores. The material for these baskets had best be gathered at one of the growers where they can be filled the week before by the store men and brought in as the demand requires. They are then in fresher condition than when filled under the pressure of night work during Easter week at the store and the men's time can be turned to better account, with perhaps a few hours more sleep to help them in their strenuous work.

There are other stocks such as cinerarias, the annual forget me not, which in pans is very attractive, Bellis daisies and the more expensive gardenias and Otehaite oranges, and also the pot roses of which Magna Charta is a leading kind.

The best service is with growers with whom you have previously placed business, as good growers say: "Our stock is practically all sold from year to year, it being just a matter of getting it placed to suit our customers, which at times is difficult, as many are so late in leaving their orders and yet depend on us to hold the stock for them."

Planning for its delivery on different days is important as the stock must be at its best when the rush comes, the early plants being shopworn before the week is out. An annex or extra storeroom, if obtainable near by, is a great help for storage and a delivery department. Each establishment has its problems to meet in handling and displaying stock. Step shelves to fit into corners or along blank walls are a great help, as is a broad shelf raised just above the head line, over stationary counters, which offer a convenient place temporarily for sold plants or those waiting for cards, etc.

Color Massing Effective.

In arranging stock for display keep each kind as far as possible to itself, all hydrangeas, all lilies, roses, bulbous pans, made-up baskets, etc. These color blocks will be found more striking and having all of a kind together, selections are more quickly made than when the varieties are scattered all through. When the rush is on there should be one or two whose business it is to keep the floor cleared of sold stock that is ready to go and get it at once into the delivery.

All plants should be featured or have a more or less decorative touch if only a crepe paper pot cover, as such a finish is necessary before delivery. There should be one or more decorators, young women, who for a week or more before the rush is on, make crepe paper covers for pots and pans fitted to the various sizes they are intended for, which are then ready to slip on without further adjustment.

Chiffon and ribbon bows should also be made up in advance from material definitely measured, which is much more economical than cutting it hit or miss fashion in the rush. Pink and blue ribbon or chiffon bows add very greatly to the appearance of flowering plants, when the contrast is correctly made, the pink rambler with the light blue and the blue hydrangea with the proper shade of pink. Narrow tapes, the color of the flower used to bind the cover to the pot, are always effective.

Plants that are a bit defective in foliage can be helped a lot with branches of laurel of the proper length, which stuck in the soil supply the deficiency. Pussy willow sprays also give a good decorative effect. Small birds' nests with candy eggs are placed at times in large rambler roses and are a good selling point for those who want something elaborate and unique.

Boxes or flats of tulips, crocus and daffodils are, when the coarse boards are covered with crepe paper, made to look very attractive with long pussy willow sprays arched over the top and tied with a ribbon bow in the center. All these little touches are to be added to and included in the price tag and unquestionably help in making the stock more salable, giving it a dressed-up gift appearance that catches the eye.

There should be someone whose place it is to see that the floor is kept clear of unsold plants, stock that was set down for examination, which is to be replaced and the various groups kept in order, as it is most important that the plants and flowers be kept in good presentable appearance, as otherwise late callers will exclaim: "The best has all been picked out, there is no assortment to choose from." It is a mistake to reduce prices at the last unless the condition of the stock warrants it, as late comers may be most eager to buy in remembering friends from whom they have just received the same kind of gifts.

Easter Cut Flowers.

Gifts of cut flowers are made at Easter as at Christmas, while the great demand for corsages for the Sunday promenade is the final strain on the tired forces of the store, the grand wind-up of the holiday work. Whatever happens these personal bouquets must be out on time, each with flowers as fresh and perfect in every detail as if it was the only order.

Lily of the valley, cattleyas, gardenias, sweet peas, Sweetheart and Ward roses are the favorite flowers. Violets at one time the only flower are waning as they are never at their best at Easter and will not then keep from one day to another. Sample corsages to show the prospective customer are a great help in taking orders, better prices being the rule when the flowers are shown to warrant the higher figures. Nicely arranged boxes of cut flowers displayed in the case will assist many in making a decision. Corsage ribbon ties ready to be attached, further the work and in addition to the time saved are much more economical than when the ribbon is hurriedly cut from the roll.

Safe Delivery.

That plants reach their destination in good condition is most important. In the first place no plant should be allowed to go out in need of water. Many a $5 item or more, has had to be taken from the bill simply because the plant wilted down over night and was said to be dead when it arrived. As far as possible every plant should be wrapped; in this way the flowers are protected and they pack closer and carry better.

The greatest care should be taken with personal cards; these should be enclosed in tag envelopes on the outside, on which is to be written the name of the plant it accompanies. While there should be sufficient cars for delivery, extra boys to make the long trips by train or trolley, where it does not pay to send a machine, are also necessary. One boy can make a lot of trips in the course of a day that will be handled most economically.

Memorial Arrangements.

There is always a strong demand for cut flowers for memorials for the decoration of the graves. These are made into sprays or wreaths or for the decoration of wreaths of prepared foliage.

EASTER PLANTS.

Hydrangea with Crepe Cover and Ribbon.

There should be a standard in all shops of several sizes of sprays, of all roses, carnations, Easter lilies or callas, with or without cypress leaves, also of prepared foliage wreaths in several sizes to be decorated with fresh flowers.

Retailers' Easter Rush.

Address by E. C. Tipton, of the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., before the Pittsburgh Retail Florists' Association, April 6, 1922.

When I entered the florist business 15 years ago, a holiday rush reminded me of a "catch as catch can affair," with everybody for himself and no one responsible for anything, and if you did not have to work from 50 to 60 hours before Christmas or Easter, business was poor, but today it is different, because the florist, whether large or small in a business way, has found that he must have some system to his business the same as any other line. My retail experience has been with firms who cater to big volume: The A. W. Smith Co., Pittsburgh and Penn The Florist, of Boston, Mass., so my suggestions tonight are from what I learned from them with a few of my own.

First, I will take up the handling of plants, which at Easter with its lilies is always a worry. Every plant should be marked plainly with the selling price before placed on the floor for sale. Next when a plant is sold even early in the week, try and have it delivered that day, for your customer might as well have the pleasure of having that plant in the home those few extra days as having it knocking around the store taking up valuable space that you need, and there are very few who will not let you deliver it at once if properly explained to them. If they insist on future delivery, have numbered checks ready, so that a plant can be checked the minute it is sold, pinning the stub to the sales slip with the day of delivery written plainly on the check and have space set aside for your sold plants, each day separate, so that when your packers are filling orders they will only have to handle the day in question.

Again when packing plants do not let your man select an order and go to the table and hunt the plant, for each time he does this it means that like as not the whole table of plants will have to be moved before he finds the plant wanted. Let him take a plant and find the order with the numbered stub corresponding to the check on the plant, thus saving time and wear and tear on your plants. There should be a man in charge of the plant packing, with as many helpers as your business demands, and they should do nothing else as long as there are plants to be packed either for today's or tomorrow's delivery.

Your extra help should not be allowed to wait on trade unless thoroughly experienced, as many a good sale has been lost by doing so. Divide your extras up among your old help, say two or three to each one. Let the regular help take the order, then turn the customer over to one of the extras to take the name and address, attend to the card; in fact to attend to all details, thus allowing your salesman to wait on another. As soon as the cashier has rung up the sale, the order should be turned over to the party who is writing shipping tags and cards, and this is one of the most important things on the list, as I venture to say there have been more mistakes made by poor writing and wrong addresses copied from orders, than everything else put together. From there the orders should go to the man in charge of the packing and stock, to be filled or filed away on their proper days.

CHORIZEMA IN UMBRELLA FORM WITH MAT AND RIBBON TRIMMINGS.

CUT FLOWER ORDERS.

Next we come to cut flower orders and made-up work, such as corsages, fancy baskets, etc. There should be enough help set aside for this to be able to handle it at all times, and keep up with the orders and not let them get behind. They should not be taken away from this work under any circumstances. Your boxes should be made up ahead of time, your packing tables prepared, and everything in readiness before the big rush begins. The largest cut flower volume is handled on Saturday and Saturday night, so I will take Saturday night as an example, as that is when all the Sunday orders are filled.

Get every experienced man on the job in the packing room not later than 6:30 p. m. Get those who are to work on corsages and divide the orders up among them—sweet peas to one, violets to another, roses to another, and so on. Let the sweet pea man work on one color at a time and not be changing after each order, as there is too much time lost in doing so. We will say let him make all the orders calling for pink sweet peas first, then lavender, and so on. Then finish up with the ones that are not specified as to color. Let your rose man do the same thing and you will be surprised how much time you will save. The man filling the cut flower orders should work the same way, working on one item at a time. Fill his rose orders first and work each variety separate, and finish up with assorted rose orders. Then take carnations in the same way and so on down the line, and last of all fill the assorted box orders. Working this way one man can keep two packers and two wrappers busy, for a packer should not have to stop to wrap the boxes but pass them along to others to be wrapped.

The next is the delivery, and this is very important and should be in charge of a man that knows his business thoroughly, for no matter how careful you have been with everything else, if the delivery falls down, it means nothing, and a black eye that will take you a long time to cure. There should be enough boys and automobiles provided to handle it in quick order, and your corsages should all be delivered on Sunday morning before the church bells begin to ring. My advice is to start the corsages first and follow up with the plants and cut flowers.

Now some of you may say that it can't be done, but it can. If you try hard enough you can find some plant men at some of the greenhouses whose rush is over before yours begins, who will be glad to earn a little extra money by coming in and packing your plants, and so with the other help you can always find someone to assist you.

Another important thing that I almost forgot is keeping a check on what is sold. The man in charge of the order department should have a list of what cut flowers are ordered and check up on them as they are sold, so that you do not oversell on any item and have to substitute, for if there is anything that hurts the business in my estimation it is substitution. No doubt the most of you here tonight have been following along these lines for years, but maybe there are some here who will get help from some of these suggestions. If so I am well repaid.

PLANT NOTES.

Cyclamens.

The plants of cyclamen grown from seed sown last fall will now be nice, stocky little plants if properly grown and should be large enough to transplant to 2½ or three-inch pots. The soil should be live fibrous loam with about one-third leaf mold, and in mixing a liberal sprinkling of sand should be included. In potting, the small bulb should be so placed that the soil just covers it; many leave the bulb out of the soil, but best results are obtained with the young stock to leave the bulb in the soil. Later, after the bulb has grown large and mature, this is not so necessary. The plants should be placed in a cool house and if possible near the glass and where they can have all the ventilation possible. Just as soon as safe they should be removed to frames outside and plunged in the soil even with the rim of the pot. The cyclamen will not tolerate poor drainage and if anything happens to block the drainage the plant quickly sickens. This sometimes happens where the pots are sunk in the soil and is often caused by angle worms. Where these are seen or the appearance of lumps on the top of the soil denotes their presence, they should be removed at once. In the final potting, be sure and place plenty of crocks in the bottom of the pot.

Salvias.

There are few more popular plants for bedding purposes than the salvia and when properly grown they are a great ornament to a garden either as beds by themselves or as an edging for cannas or other tall plants, the dwarf varieties being especially adapted to this purpose. To make a showing in mid-summer the plants should be started early either by cutting or seeds so that the plants at this time should be large enough for a three-inch pot and should have been pinched back at least once and beginning to branch. These can be potted into four-inch pots in April and will be showing bud by the time for planting them outside in June. Such plants of course cannot be sold as cheaply as the late-sown seedlings that are grown closely together, and allowed to run up to a single stem, but it will not take so many of the former plants to fill the same space and the bed will be in flower through the summer and fall while with the latter too often there is no bloom until just before frost, and when the first frosts are early the plants are not in bloom but a few weeks. The early plants are much more satisfactory to the customer and will cost but little more owing to the larger space which they will cover during the season.

Geraniums.

At the approach of spring, the geraniums and other bedding stock will make rapid growth and from those which are large enough, a top cutting may be taken now. While these cuttings will not make good-sized plants for bedding out, yet they can be grown on for stock plants for another year. It is time now to take account of the stock on hand and look over the amount that has been required in the past, and if it is found that there will be a probable shortage of any varieties procure them at once. They can be obtained at this time, either small plants or rooted cuttings, at low prices. Many growers lose every year by putting off their buying too late when the prices have advanced to such a figure that there is no profit in handling them. It is seldom that one who has much bedding to do has geraniums enough, especially of S. A. Nutt or Alphonse Ricard, and this is the time to procure the stock, and if a grower has any room to spare it is good business to stock up with these varieties, for there is a guaranteed sale for all well grown plants in May. The plants that are now in three-inch pots will require going over often and spacing out that well-grown stocky plants may be had. If crowded now, tall, weak, spindly plants are too often the result, and when grown in this way, are not fit to make a good showing in the bed when planted.

Bedding Plants.

The plants for bedding out in the spring will take not only much of the plantsman's time, but will keep demanding more room, for the growth from now on will be rapid, and unless constantly watched and cared for, the plants will quickly get crowded and much of the stock injured. The final shift of the geraniums in the northern section of the country will be delayed until the middle of April, but the plants should not be allowed to get badly pot-bound, and they should be given plenty of growing room. The propagating bed should be full of cuttings of the more rapid growing plants and the seedlings will have to be potted as soon as of proper size. The cannas and other bulbs that have been started should be potted and given good location for growing on. Now is the time to take account of stock and see of what kinds there is going to be a shortage and of what there will probably be an over-supply and obtain the first and dispose of the second. This is the time to buy, for the stocks are large and shipments can be guaranteed, and the prices are low compared to what they will be a month hence. The amount of stock that annually goes to waste is large and a little foresight will prevent much of it. Every summer some growers throw away thousands of plants that have cost much in labor and should have made returns. Auction sales in some sections are the means of disposing of much of this stock, but this is generally at low prices. This stock can most all of it be disposed of by a little judicious advertising and letting the other fellows know where it can be obtained. An attendant at any plant sale in early spring will find many growers looking for all kinds of stock. It is often quite difficult to know just how much of each kind of bedding stock is wanted, but as soon as an oversupply is noted let the other growers know where they can obtain it, and place a price on it that will guarantee a sale. It is much better to move it at some price than to throw it away. The wide-awake, up-to-date growers clean up their stock every year.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—A municipal rose garden in Thornden park has been promised to the Syracuse Rose Society at an early date by T. H. Mather, city engineer.

LITCHFIELD, ILL.—The Cottage Greenhouses have been sold by R. A. McPheron, the former proprietor, to C. A. Forehand, Staunton, Ill., who will take possession June 1. Mr. McPheron will retire to his fruit farm after 42 years in the florist business.

CINERARIA WITH MAT COVER.

Greenhouse Heating.

Second of the Series of Papers Prepared by H. Ralph Hadlow, of the Watson Engineering Co., Cleveland, O., for the Ohio District of the National Flower Growers Association.

As stated in the preceding paper, which appeared in the January 7 issue of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, page 1231, hot water heating systems may be divided into three distinct forms: open tank gravity system, pressure system and forced circulation system. The most used hot water heating system is the open tank gravity system of the one-pipe upfeed, one-pipe downfeed, two-pipe upfeed or two-pipe downfeed type. The pressure system piping is practically the same as that of the open tank gravity system, with the exception that a heat generator or safety valves are used. The forced circulation system may be either upfeed or downfeed two-pipe system.

OPEN TANK GRAVITY SYSTEM.

The open tank gravity system is the simplest hot water system in extensive use. It is suitable for small installations only, since the circulation is slow and less positive than in the pressure or forced circulation systems. The circulation in the open tank gravity system is produced by the difference in weight of the water in the flow and return risers. The hot water is supplied to the heating coils where the water cools due to exposure to the room temperature, thus increasing the density above that in the supply riser, creating a difference in head and a corresponding flow in the system. This system requires an expansion tank placed at a high point in the system to care for expansion of the water in the pipes, due to this variation in temperature.

The one-pipe upfeed system consists of the flow main taken from the top of the boiler and run uniformly at a slope of not less than three-quarters of an inch in 10 feet downward, dropping at the extreme end and looping back to the boiler with an equal or greater slope. The hot water supply risers are taken from the top of the flow main and connected to the highest point in the heating coil. Returns lead from the lowest point in the coil and connect to the side of the flow main. It is necessary to keep the flow and return mains as far as possible below the highest pipe coil, but great care must be exercised to avoid dropping the flow main so as to interrupt the circulation. This system is not ordinarily adapted to greenhouse heating, due to the necessity of a cellar or tunnel for the flow and return mains, large piping and the sluggish circulation of the water.

The downfeed system permits the use of smaller risers and is more positive in action than the upfeed system, and also facilitates the automatic removal of air from the pipes. In the one-pipe downfeed system the flow main or riser is run from the boiler to the top of the building. Then the main is run around the building horizontally to serve all the coils. The supply lines are taken from the bottom or sides of the main and dropped to the coils. This system may have single or double risers. In the single riser system the returns are connected back into the flow riser, while the double riser system has a flow riser for supplying the hot water to coils, and a separate return riser leading from the coils to the return main; thence back to the boiler. The flow main should grade up uniformly to the main riser and down from the top of the main riser not less than three-quarters of an inch in 10 feet. The risers for the double-riser system may be made somewhat smaller than in the single pipe system. Either the single pipe or the two-pipe system may be operated with an open expansion tank only, or with a pressure generator and expansion tank.

PRESSURE SYSTEM.

Theoretically, it is possible to heat water to a temperature in excess of 212 degrees Fahrenheit by increasing the pressure, since the boiling point of water varies with the pressure to which the water is subjected. This, however, is not practicable in the open tank system since the hot water will immediately rise to the expansion tank and boil. Various devices have been employed to increase the temperature, thus accelerating the circulation in the system as well as increasing the temperature difference between the water in the heating coils and the air in the room.

The most common type of generator is known as the "Honeywell" generator which maintains the increased pressure on the system by means of a mercury seal, the open end of which is connected to the expansion tank. This permits of the increase in pressure of the water to 10 pounds, which is equivalent to 240 degrees Fahrenheit. The expansion tank with this system is equally as essential as the old type of gravity system. The radiator tappings may be made much smaller than necessary in the old steam controlled systems. Minimizing the size of pipes and valves eliminates as much water as possible from the system and thus increases the capacity and efficiency of the boiler, since heat from the fuel is more rapidly taken out, due to the higher temperature which is maintained, in turn establishing a more rapid circulation of water over the heating surface of the boiler.

The smaller quantity of water and the increased rate of circulation facilitates the more rapid heat transmission. The rate of heat transmission between the hot gases and water increases in proportion to the temperature difference. Sluggish circulation will under certain firing conditions materially reduce the rate of heat transmission and therefore, the efficiency of the furnace.

FORCED CIRCULATION SYSTEM.

The forced circulation system is the most positive of all hot water systems and is best adapted for use in large installations or where conditions do not favor the gravity system. The circulation is maintained by means of a pump, preferably, of the centrifugal type. The piping scheme is essentially the same as for two-pipe upfeed or two-pipe downfeed gravity systems, with the exception that the pipes may be made smaller and the heating surface may be reduced due to more rapid and positive circulation of the hot water through the circulation coils. The pipe must be carefully sized for any heating system. However, special care should be exercised in sizing the pipes for this particular system.

We recommend the installation of the forced circulation systems where the gravity system of hot water is not especially favored. This applies particularly to the larger ranges. This system had the advantage over the steam heating system from the standpoint of the generation of heat. In the hot water system the circulation commences sooner after starting new fire than with steam. The water may be circulated in the system above room temperature and give off heat to the surrounding atmosphere while steam has a definite lower temperature below which it ceases to exist and therefore, no heat is transmitted through the pipes. This advantage is one of firing. In very mild weather, the water may be maintained at a low temperature which is suitable for the weather conditions.

With the hot water systems, less frequent attention to the fires is required, than with the steam boiler, which will in many cases eliminate the necessity of a night fireman. In the case of the small greenhouse, where a regular night man cannot be afforded for night firing, the temperature may be maintained throughout the night sufficient to prevent injury to the plants, by long firing periods, while with the steam system, the fire may become low and fail to generate steam in which event the system would not give off any heat at all, and possibly result in the temperature falling to a point which would be injurious to the plants.

The hot water system contains a considerable amount of water which will continue to give off heat until the room temperature is attained, while the steam at atmosphere pressure will be condensed and will cease to give off heat below 212 degrees Fahrenheit. For small greenhouse heating, under ordinary conditions, the two-pipe downfeed gravity or pressure system is most practical. If electric current is available, the forced circulation system could be installed and operated economically. For the large installations we would recommend the forced circulation system of hot water heating, due to the positive and rapid circulation of the water, which makes it possible to meet sudden changes in the weather. A thermostatic control may be used with any of the hot water heating systems, so as to maintain a specific temperature of the water.

COMBINATION OF STEAM AND HOT WATER

There is one system which we have not heretofore mentioned, which, under certain conditions, is quite satisfactory. This system consists of the use of a steam boiler operated at high pressure supplying steam to a closed water heater. The heat from the steam is absorbed by the water in the system, which is circulated through the heater tubes. The idea of generating high pressure steam is chiefly to supply steam for operating the boiler feed pumps as well as the pumps for the circulation of water in the system. This system is quite economical; it being possible to use the exhaust steam from the pumps in conjunction with the live steam at reduced pressure.

The piping of the radiation system itself is essentially the same as the forced circulation system herein described. Where electric current for driving the pumps is not obtainable, this system is quite desirable. In the forced circulation systems, the heating coils may be made of pipe and branch tees or of pipe and return bend fittings. More uniform heating can be obtained where the return bend fittings are used. Since it is possible to supply hot water to the coil at the same end where the return is taken thus keeping a uniform mean temperature throughout its length. The consideration of the length of pipe to be traversed is much more important with water than with steam. However, less important with the forced circulation than the gravity pressure systems.

There is little difference in coal consumption of the two systems, the water having the edge on the steam, if any. Crooks or angles in the piping are a decided disadvantage in hot water and steam without pressure, while steam under low pressure shows practically no effect. In all hot water systems the flow main decreases in size when the branches are taken off, and the return main increases correspondingly. The return main usually has its flow in the opposite direction, so as to give equal water travel for all coils.

All changes in size of pipes should be made with eccentric fittings with straight side of the pipe at the top to avoid water pockets. All piping should be carefully graded not less than three-quarters of an inch in 10 feet and provision made for expansion. The coils must be properly valved, and all risers and mains must be provided with suitable drains, so that the system may be completely drained in case of shut-down of the system. Air pockets must be avoided wherever possible, and where unavoidable must be provided with suitable automatic air vents.

Coils should not be made too long since this makes the circulation less positive and more sluggish. All piping should be reamed after cutting, and run as straight as possible, so as to use as few elbows and tees as possible. The expansion tank should be provided with an automatic make-up water line, gauge glass, vent to atmosphere and overflow, and must be of adequate capacity to take care of expansion and contraction of the water, since the volume of water increases about four per cent from 40 degrees to 212 degrees Fahrenheit. It should be located where there is no possibility of freezing of the tank or piping.

It is customary to make the tank capacity two gallons for each 25 gallons of water in the heating system. The volume of one lineal foot of 1-inch piping is approximately .0447 gallons; 1¼-inch, .0779 gallons; 1½-inch, .1060 gallons, and 2-inch piping .1747 gallons. The bottom of the tank should be not less than three feet above the highest point of radiation.

FLORISTS' MASS MEETING APRIL 21.

The circular pamphlet giving the particulars of the florists' mass meeting, is ready for mailing, and will be sent at once to all growers, seedsmen, wholesalers, supply men, greenhouse builders and retailers representing the whole city, as well as Long Island, Westchester county and New Jersey.

The New York Rose Growers' Cooperative Association, the Greek-American Florists' Association, the Associated Retailers of New York, the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers, the New York Florists' Club and the Horticultural Society of New York, as well as that of individuals who represent the dominating influences of every branch of the business, have declared their support and are sponsors of this florists' mass meeting.

For better co-operation, for bigger, better business during the rest of 1922 and every year to come, for pleasanter business relations all around, we are holding this meeting. The florists' mass meeting will be held at the Engineering Societies' building, 29 West 39th street, New York, Friday afternoon, April 21, at 3:30 o'clock.

The plans of the Allied Florists' Association of New York for the remainder of 1922 are of the greatest interest to every branch of the florists' trade in the metropolitan district. We have laid out an extensive campaign of unusual advertisements to appear, not when business is good, but when sales are slow, throughout the year in eight New York and Brooklyn newspapers.

Everybody knows that flowers are beautiful; it's no use advertising that. Everybody knows in general that flowers make perfect gifts; why spend money saying it over and over? Our aim in the advertising this year is to build up new ideas of flowers in the public mind.

The point is to be specific. We're going to catch people when they're on their way home and tell them, in a way they can't forget, to take flowers with them. We're going to be original and interesting in what we say. We're going to get our advertising read.

This newspaper advertising is only one feature of the service which is planned for 1922. A plan has been approved whereby every retailer can tie himself up with this advertising, for more prestige and better business. Our first aim is more co-operation, better understanding of one another by the allied branches of the trade and better understanding of the florist industry by the public.

In order to accomplish this last end, we plan to issue a series of small pamphlets to be given to retailers for distribution, educating the public to a clearer conception of the cost of flower production and merchandising. Pamphlets of this kind explain retail prices, which now seem unreasonable, and promote good feeling towards the trade in general. At the mass meeting, April 21, these and other plans will be discussed; suggestions will be heard and talked over; in short, we will get under way with the biggest movement ever made for business. We want to hear what you think of our plans. We want to get any new ideas you have to offer. We need your support, if we are going to succeed.

Below are listed a few of the sponsors of this mass meeting whose names you will recognize: Geo. Cotsosnas, L. B. Coddington, F. B. Abrams, Wm. Badgley, C. H. Brown, A. T. Bunyard, A. S. Burns, Jr., James G. Carlatas, Marshall Clarke, Eugene Dailedouze, Wm. Duckham, Edward Dupuy, Geo. Hanges, A. M. Henshaw, John Lang, Nicholas Louke, H. Hentz, Jr., E. MORE STOCK THAN MARKET CAN ABSORB.

The usual spring oversupply of cut stock is now crowding the market and in many instances it is more than can be absorbed. This has caused a general decline in values, except fancy roses. Outdoor stock is now a factor in the market. Extra Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are bringing the highest figures in that stock. Premier is fine and reasonable. Outdoor Cecile Brunner proves most popular. In the short grades, Butterfly, Kaiserin and Ophelia are overabundant. Violets flood the market to such an extent that the bulk of them are being sold by the street merchants. Late narcissi is in full swing being more than plentiful. It is said, however, that this flower will shorten up in the near future. White and Red Enchantress carnations flood the stores, Laddie alone holding its former price. The best grades of sweet peas still command good prices. Bulbous flowers are rapidly disappearing after the most profitable season on record. Prices on hyacinths are not being quoted as they are very scarce. Limited lots of tulips are quickly snapped up and freesias are scarcely seen. Giganteum lily supply is still limited and it is thought that growers are holding off until Easter. Acacia mollissima and fruit blossoms enter largely into decorative work. The supply of lily of the valley is liberal but orchids are limited and much desired as the opera season opened last week. Phalaenopsis, while shortening up, is still sufficient for all purposes. Excellent offerings of gardenias are becoming more numerous. The leading flowering plant is rambler roses, the supply of which is gradually diminishing. Ericas, primulas and cyclamens are plentiful. All green goods are in heavy demand for decorative work. Outdoor growers are anticipating a long season and one is already cutting marigolds, scabiosas, etc.

GROWERS OF EASTER STOCK.

Growers appear to be in a position to handle a very large business in flowering plants this Easter. At the Eric James range are to be seen as fine a lot of rambler roses as anywhere in this country. If anything they seem to surpass the stock of former years. His foliage plants are also in fine condition. The Western Evergreen Nursery is going to be strong on pot grown Easter lilies and will have several houses ready for the holiday. This firm is heavily stocked with rambler roses. Donoto Bros. will have their usual large supply of rambler roses and lilies. The Mac Rorie-McLaren Co. will make a bid for popular favor with its splendid array of erica novelties. Azaleas will also be ready in quantity.

NOTES.

On the opening day of the Fifth National Flower Show in Indianapolis, March 25, Mayor Shank of that city wired to Mrs. R. E. Darbee, 1036 Hyde street, to present a large basket of flowers to Mayor Rolph advising that the national show commenced and sending greetings from the Society of American Florists. Mrs. Darbee received considerable publicity through the local newspapers because of the unique order.

Ground is being broken at the Besse Boston Dahlia Farms, San Mateo, for growing dahlias the coming season. Bulbs have kept most satisfactorily this winter and Mrs. Lymberry expects to increase her acreage. She reports the constantly increasing demand for this flower has made the move imperative.

Podesta & Baldocchi are making active preparations to handle their Easter trade which is expected to be heavy. The new marble furniture in the shop, recently imported from Italy adds much to its appearance.

Chrysanthemum growers along the peninsula are having great difficulty in securing sufficient propagating stock, in many standard kinds, due to the disastrous cold spell last January.

The flower show of native wild flowers to be held at the St. Francis hotel by the California Wild Flower Conservation League, in May, is attracting considerable attention.

F. D. Pelicano is planting dahlias at his farm on Guttenberg street. He reports a splendid call for his 1922 novelties since the distribution of his catalogue.

At the meeting of the Retail Florists' Association in Native Son's hall, April 5, plans for the Easter advertising campaign were fully outlined.

A. O. Stein had considerable decorating for the opening of the Chicago grand opera season at the local auditorium last week.

H. Plath, of the Ferneries, says the Easter call for foliage plants is excellent, the medium sized stock getting the most call.

GOOD EASTER TRADE EXPECTED.

The time of growers and retailers is now being devoted to arranging for the Easter trade, for which prospects are exceedingly bright. Industrial conditions are gradually improving. The principal flowers are roses, which sell from $5 to $12 per dozen; carnations, at $2 to $3 per dozen; snapdragons, sweet peas, Easter lilies and pot plants of all kinds. Trade during the past week has shown a slight improvement. Prices are at about the same levels as the previous week. Funeral work has been rather brisk, which is the best feature. With Lent reducing the social functions more attention is being given to it.

NOTES.

Fruit trees, shrubs and bulbs are to be distributed by the city department of education at cost to the people who will agree to plant and care for them. Order blanks are to be obtained from the department and a list made out, which will be filled early in April, giving adequate time for planting. The fruits include peach, dwarf pears, grapes, currants, apples, cherries and plums. In the list of shrubs are deutzias, forsythias, red snowberry, bush honeysuckle, spiraea, Van Houtti and others. The bulbs to be distributed consist of cannas, gladioli, dahlias and madeira vines.

Quite a large delegation attended the National Flower Show, at Indianapolis, last week. Walter Stephens, of S. F. Stephens & Son Co., drove through in his machine. Others present were W. F. Emil, W. E. Metzmaier, Carl W. Huber, William Brust, H. S. Jones, of the Fifth Avenue Floral Co.; E. G. Hill, of the Indianapolis Floral Co.; M. E. Holbrook, of Newark, O., a grower; A. Capuano of the Bexley Floral Co., and others. All reported a very good show.

McKellar the Florist, West Broad street, is recovering from his recent illness and is able to be around again. Trade at this shop is tending largely towards roses, carnations, violets, sweet peas and snapdragons. Active preparations are being made for a heavy Easter trade.

T. J. Ludwig made a cleanup with his Saturday sweet pea special. A large bunch of the blooms are being sold for $1, and on the first day it was started a total of 62 specials were sold, which is proving to be a good advertising medium.

RETAIL FLORISTS' ASS'N ORGANIZED

Pursuant to a call by the Temporary Chairman Louis Charvat, 32 retail florists met at the Hotel Statler April 3. This meeting was for the purpose of organizing and electing officers for the Retail Florists' Association. The officers elected are as follows: Louis Charvat, president; Arthur Cobey, vice-president; T. L. Berry, secretary; J. K. Stock, treasurer.

A commission was appointed to frame a constitution and by-laws on lines similar to those governing the Retail Florists' Club of Chicago. Those appointed were: Peter Papes, Harry Breitmeyer and John Carey.

A spirited discussion was held on various alleged evils that it is the purpose of the association to correct and many suggestions were made to that end. A committee was appointed to confer at various times with a similar committee of the local Flower Growers' Association and with power to co-operate with that body toward the elimination of abuses that now hinder the progressive movement of the florist business. This committee is composed of Philip Breitmeyer, J. K. Stock, John Warncke, Chas. Keller, John Klang and A. Cobey.

The greatest enthusiasm was manifested by the members and all are hopeful of great benefit following the activities of the two new associations.

Those present at the initial meeting were the following: Carl Schneider, Philip Breitmeyer, Harry Breitmeyer, Louis Charvat, Herbert Cassell, Peter Rush, J. K. Stock, A. Cobey, John Klang, J. Wearing, Roy Thibodeau, B. Smokie-wickz, Amos Rideout, Howard Knope, A. Pochelon, Murray Patterson, August Collins, Mrs. Rewitzer, A. Andrews, Peter Papes, Geo. Pamel, Harry Taylor, A. Hilleker, J. G. McMurchey, Chas. Keller, John Warncke, Joe Skryczke, Jack Bleeker, Harry Smith, Fred Pautke and J. F. Sullivan.

The next meeting will be held April 18, 1922. J. F. S.

MOTHERS' DAY is May 14, the second Sunday of the month.

WE are in receipt of the premium list of the St. Louis Fall Show and annual exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America to be held in St. Louis, Mo., November 7-12. Copies of the premium list may be had on application to J. J. Beneke, 1316 Pine street, St. Louis, Mo.

Personal.

Leonard Barron, editor of the Garden Magazine, is giving a series of horticultural lectures at Marshall Field's, Chicago, this week.

Mothers' Day Misrepresentation.

On the approach each year of the second Sunday in May, the Mothers' Day Association, of which Miss Jarvis, the founder of the day, is president, sends out propaganda against the use of flowers, declaring that florists have taken advantage of the day for profiteering, and proposing ribbons, miniature flags and now buttons, on which is embossed a carnation flower, this latter to be the official Mothers' Day badge, to be sold at 10 cents for the benefit of the association.

While the idea of Mothers' Day and the wearing of a white carnation in honor of one's own mother originated with Miss Jarvis, she does not own nor can she control the method of its observance. She only originated the idea, the countrywide observance of sending and using flowers for the occasion having been brought about by the live florists of every community, who prepare for the event with large stocks of all the standard flowering plants and cut flowers and create a demand for them by featuring their use in connection with the day.

If your mother has or had no pronounced preference, then all flowers are alike beautiful and applicable to be presented or used in remembrance. A foliage or flowering plant is as appropriate for a gift as cut flowers and will probably give more enjoyment, and if planted at the cemetery last the season through or possibly for years.

The trade should pay no attention to the various agencies who, for purposes of their own, are decrying the use of flowers with profiteering lies and other false statements that somehow find space in the newspapers.

Wherever the trade of any community has united in preparing for and featuring the occasion through newspaper advertising a wonderful business has been built up, which in many cities has overtaxed the facilities of the trade. In many other centers, however, where the florists are not alive to their opportunities and do nothing collectively to bring about its observance before the public, there is very little increase over the business of an ordinary week.

In Philadelphia, Pa., Miss Jarvis' own city, where the stores have never collectively advertised the day, the demand is very light. The wholesale markets do a great shipping business, but their orders are nearly all for out of town, which goes to prove that the florists themselves have brought about the demand and general use of flowers in connection with Mothers' Day and not Miss Jarvis.

Omaha's Mothers' Day.

The florists of Omaha, Neb., and Council Bluffs, Ia., called a meeting March 31 to protest against the misrepresentations in the columns of the newspapers regarding profiteering in the sale of flowers for Mothers' Day. This was issued by the Nebraska Auxiliary of the International Mothers' Day Association and advising that its Mothers' Day button be worn instead.

L. L. Reber, of the Arnold Flower Shop, said there was no truth in this talk of high prices. Of course if everybody wanted carnations they would go sky high, but all flowers were appropriate and for anything but carnations prices were but little higher. C. C. Hargadine president of the Omaha Florists' Club, said buttons were as sentimental as a salt shaker. There is only one thing appropriate to carry the sentiment for the occasion and that is flowers. F. L. Lanson offered to show Mothers' Day officials his books. J. Eiche, of Lincoln, claimed they had the same trouble there but ignored it and always had all they could do. L. N. Rogers never made a cent on buttonhole carnations but sold pot plants to children at 15 cents each and could not be charged with high prices.

President Hargadine summed it up by stating that if other stock was sacrificed to get full crops, the public must expect to pay a fair price or else wear a button.

"Uncle Robert" Speros, who has been spending a few days in Omaha, says there should be one day in the year sacred enough to be free from commercialism and that should be for our mothers. A. E. L.

Botanic Garden, Washington, D. C.

For years there has been efforts made to enlarge the grounds of the Botanic Gardens at the National Capital. Recently through the energetic work of Director George W. Hess, together with interested members of congress and the District of Columbia commissioners an agreement has been brought about that will increase the garden area up to 90 acres. This is land largely owned by the government running out to the Potomoc river. The connecting link is a strip along the old Jones creek canal bed which runs from Maryland avenue along six city blocks to South Capital street thence to Second and N. streets, S. W. and spreads over to include all the land from First street S. E., to First street S. W. extending through to the river.

Large modern greenhouses will be added to the garden equipment in one of which Director Hess expects to hold exhibits of seasonable plants in flowers. With the additional space Director Hess proposes to arrange beautiful landscapes and bedding effects that will make this famous garden one of the most beautiful in the world.

The Late Dr. Walter Van Fleet.

The March issue of Portland Roses, a magazine devoted to roses, published under the auspices of the Portland, Ore., Rose Society, states that on January 31, the day set aside to award to Dr. Van Fleet the greatest rose honors of this country for his great work in the raising of new varieties, he was laid in his grave. He was to receive the trophies awarded him in the test at the International Rose Test Gardens, from the city of Portland, the Portland Rose Society and the American Rose Society. The event was carefully planned and would probably have been one of the most notable gatherings of rosarians ever held in this country.

Asmus Gets Distinguished Service Medal

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Society of American Florists, held in Indianapolis, Ind., March 28, it was unanimously agreed to honor George Asmus of Chicago, with the society's distinguished service gold medal for the most meritorious work in the advancement of horticulture in the past five years. This great honor was a surprise to Mr. Asmus, but is a fitting reward for his sacrifice of time and personal services for the general advancement of the business.

BALL'S WHITE ASTER

The seed of this splendid Giant Aster of the Late Branching Type—the product of twelve years' selection to develop the ideal of a perfectly double flower, of flawless color—was offered in 1921 for the first time.

The flowering season comes between the Royal and Late Branching types, filling in between the early and late glut of flowers. It grows to a medium height with full, distinctly centered blossoms, ideally formed for long distance shipping. The seed of this Aster is about two-thirds the size of ordinary varieties. It is sold in 1/4-ounce packets, containing about 4000 seeds at 1/4 oz., 75c; 1/2 oz., $1.35; 1 oz., $5.00.

BAD WEATHER SLACKENS TRADE

Stock of all kinds has been plentiful the past week, with business none too brisk and reduced prices were in order. The weather has been miserable, dark rainy days that do not produce first class stock, so that it was a poor week from the growers' and wholesalers' standpoint. Everything in season is obtainable including roses in all varieties, carnations, lilies both Easter and callas, snapdragons, jonquils, tulips, sweet peas, baby primroses, forget-me-nots, calendulas, etc. Sweet peas have been the one big disappointment, the arrivals having been poor. If there is not a change the crop will be poor for Easter, for when they are at their best there are never enough to supply the demand.

NOTES.

The writer had the pleasure of a talk with A. W. Smith one day last week and he can be counted as the grand old man of the florist business here. He started with a few hot beds and a stand in the Allegheny market, 48 years ago and has seen the business grow to its present large volume, with its thousands of square feet of glass and the largest floor space of any retail flower shop in America. Although 76 years of age, Mr. Smith still takes an active part in the business, he being at the green-houses the biggest part of the time. Mr. and Mrs. Smith celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last year.

The first week of each month is always a busy one for the florists of this section as both the Florists and Gardeners' Club and the Retail Florists' Association hold their regular monthly meeting during the week. The meetings will be

THE NEW JAPANESE KURUME AZALEAS

Unquestionably these new Azaleas are the most important flowering plants that have come forward since the introduction of the Lorraine Begonias and its types and the French Hydrangeas, and we believe they will in a short time due to the ease with which they are handled, their many varied colors and the satisfaction which they will give to the amateur become even more popular than these standard favorites.

The illustration here shown is a 5-inch pot plant, the photograph of which was taken just eighteen months after the cutting was inserted in the propagating bench. It is one of the plants that was shown in our exhibit at the International Flower Show at New York which attracted so much attention. This plant demonstrates the speed with which good salable plants with an abundance of flowers can be developed.

It will be noticed that with the exception of the variety Hinamayo introduced some 6 or 8 years since we are offering these new introductions under descriptive English names and not under the Japanese names under which they were imported. This may be open to criticism but in explanation of same we will state that the Japanese stock supplied to us was so badly mixed, 3 and 4 different colors having been supplied under one label so that identification was impossible. Furthermore, we believe the trade as well as the public in general will better appreciate the descriptive names under which we are now offering them.

WE ARE NOW BOOKING ORDERS FOR DELIVERY FALL OF 1922 AND SPRING OF 1923 OF GOOD 2 1/4 INCH POTS OF THE FOLLOWING VARIETIES:

APPLE BLOSSOMS —The name conveys an idea of the color of this dainty flower, which is a delicate old rose suffusion on a silvery white ground, flowers single.....	$20.00	$150.00
CHERRY BLOSSOMS —The general color effect of this gem is that of cherry blossoms, the centre of the flower being a delicately lilac-tinted white, shading to a delicate mauve-pink at the edges, semi-double	20.00	150.00
CHRISTMAS CHEER —This name was suggested on account of its brilliant coloring, a real Christmas red, a rich cochineal-carmine, semi-double	20.00	150.00
DAPHNE —Pure white with just a faint suffusion of delicate mauve towards the ends of the petals reminding one of the sweet Daphne odora, single.....	20.00	150.00
FLAME —A most brilliant madder-red with coppery suffusion lighting up wonderfully under artificial light, single.....	50.00	450.00
PEACH BLOW —A beautiful peach blossom pink, shading lighter towards the centre, a perfect gem, single.....	25.00	200.00
PINK PEARL —Suggestive to the popular Rhododendron Pink Pearl in color. A beautiful salmon-carmine shading lighter to the centre, flowers semi-double and remarkably free in large full trusses....	25.00	200.00
SNOW —Purest white, the semi-double flowers being of most graceful shape and remarkably free-flowering and lasting in good shape for an unusually long time	25.00	200.00
HINAMAYO —Introduced some 6 to 8 years since but still very scarce. It is a gem for freedom of bloom, very early. Color a lively pink with crimson suffusion, single	15.00	140.00

CRAIG'S Quality Easter Plants

WILL BREAK YOUR RECORD IN EASTER SALES

Business is reviving, more flowers have been handled this season than ever before. The recent New York Flower Show broke all records in attendances. Prepare for this great event the largest in the history of the trade. Our Easter stock in is the best we have ever offered.

We cordially invite you to our new home at Norwood Station, Delaware County, Pa., easily reached by the Pennsylvania R. R. to Norwood Station, and Baltimore & Ohio R. R. to Holmes Station, or by trolley. Those having their own greenhouses or conservatories would do well to have shipments made during the last two weeks in March.

ROSES

We desire to make special mention of our large stock of Roses, growing upwards of 10,000 plants in the following varieties. We have no hesitation in saying we are the largest growers of forcing Roses for Easter in America. We are positive our stock will please the most critical buyers, as the quality was never better. It has all been grown cool and will prove very satisfactory.

LADY GAY

In grand condition, trained into fan, globular, and pyramidal shapes, $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5, $6 and $7.50 each.

Special ball shapes, $2.50, $3, $4, $5 and $7.50 each.

Baskets, $7.50, $10 and $12.50 each.

Umbrellas, $6, $7.50 and $10 each.

TAUSENDSCHOEN (THOUSAND BEAUTIES)

This was our finest and most popular Climber last year, and this year our stock is large and the plants are much finer.

Trained plants, fans, globular and pyramidal shapes, $1.50, $2, $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5, $6, $7.50, $10 and $12 each.

Baskets, $10 and $12.50 each.

Umbrellas, $6, $7.50 and $10 each.

ROSIERE (NEW)

Dark sport of Tausendschoen. Very beautiful.

A great improvement on the popular Thousand Beauties (Tausendschoen) and consequently, a welcome addition to this section. While it has the same habit of growth and general characteristics as Thousand Beauties, the color is superior, a deeper and more even shade of cerise-pink or carmine.

Trained plants, fans, globular, and pyramidal shapes, $2, $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5, $6, $7.50 and $10 each.

Baskets, $10, $12 and $15 each.

Umbrellas, $6, $7.50 and $10 each.

In addition to the above trained Roses, we have also trained some very special designs, such as Aeroplanes, Crosses, Chairs, Pergolas, etc., at $10, $12.50, $15, $20, $25 and $30 each.

BABY RAMBLERS, ORLEANS

Exceptionally fine.
5½ and 6-inch pots, $15, $18 and $24 per dozen.

EXCELSA, NEW CLIMBING ROSE

This variety is known as the Red Dorothy Perkins. The color is brilliant and it is bound to prove the most popular red Rambler.

We offer splendid plants in 6-inch, 7-inch and 8-inch pots, $1.50, $2, $2.50, $3.50, $4, $5, $6, $7.50, $10, $12 and $15 each.

Baskets of Excelsa, $10 and $12.50 each.

Umbrellas, $6, $7.50 and $10 each.

PAUL'S SCARLET CLIMBER

One of the most promising climbing Roses yet sent out. Vivid scarlet, semi-double flowers of medium size, produced in large clusters, and in great profusion. The color does not burn or fade. This Rose has been exhibited extensively in Europe and received numerous awards.

5 and 6-inch pots, trained plants, $1.50, $2, $2.50 and $3 each.

HYBRID ROSES

Including Columbia and Mrs. John Dunlop. Very fine plants in bud and flower for Easter sales.

6-inch pots at $15 and $18 per dozen.

MAGNA CHARTA

Exceptionally well grown and well flowered stock. Considered by all to be the very best Hybrid Rose for Easter sales.

5½, 6 and 7-inch pots at $18, $24, $30 and $36 per dozen.

LILIUM GIGANTEUM

We have the largest and finest stock of Lilies ever offered by us for Easter sales. Suggest placing orders early to avoid disappointment, such as was experienced last year.

6-inch pots, with from 4 to 10 flowers.
8-inch pans, with from 12 to 25 flowers.
Cut Lilies. All of the above are 25c per flower and bud.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

We are pleased to announce that owing to the recent drop in the price of lumber, it enables us to give our customers the benefit by reducing the price on packing as follows:

Full size cases.....	$1.50 each
Three-quarter size cases.....	1.25 each
Small size cases.....	.50 each
Half size boxes.....	1.00 each

TERMS

CASH WITH ORDER: Kindly send sufficient to cover the entire bill. We do not make shipments C. O. D. unless remittance has been made on account to guarantee acceptance. This does not apply to regular customers.

REMITTANCE: Remittances should be made by money order or New York drafts. If money is sent, letter should be registered. All prices quoted in this list are strictly net.

SHIPPING INSTRUCTIONS: Give your name, post office, county and state and the name of your nearest express office to which shipment is to be made. We have always made it prominent in our printed terms that our goods are sold F. O. B. cars at the point of shipment and are at the purchaser's risk while in transit. Because of the present unsettled conditions we wish to emphasize still further that we do not guarantee safe delivery. The ownership of all goods sold by us passes to the purchaser on delivery by us to the carrier, and the issuing of the receipt by the carrier ends our responsibility. Any claims for damage should be made promptly to the agent at the point of delivery.

CORRESPONDENCE: We endeavor to answer all correspondence promptly, but owing to the pressure of business we ask that all requests be clearly and concisely stated. ERRORS: Keep a copy of your order. We aim to have our orders correctly filled. When we are at fault we shall make satisfactory correction.

STOCK IN GOOD DEMAND

Not many in the trade have had much cause for complaint regarding business conditions the past fortnight. To judge by the demand the retailers were busy especially with funeral and hospital work. The growers are all cutting plenty of stock which brings good prices. Sweet peas head the list regarding supply, for the daily receipts, regardless of weather conditions, are heavy. Bulbous stock likewise is plentiful. Good carnations are scarce, and no doubt some are holding back for the coming holidays, which is bad business at its best, especially at this season of the year. Plenty of roses are obtainable with the main call for medium and shorts.

NOTES

Maggie Edlefsen Kroseberg, 628 Grand avenue, will move to more spacious quarters on Eleventh street between Grand avenue and Wells street. They will also occupy the living quarters in the same building. Mr. Kroseberg will make a trip to the old country in the near future.

The Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., retailers at 419 Milwaukee street, have changed their corporate name to Semler-Leidiger Co. Miss Rose Semler, who has been with this firm since its inception, has been its vice-president for many years.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. has a fine lot of roses, genistas, Easter lilies, bulbous stock in pots and pans which will be in prime condition for the Easter business. At Brown Deer their roses will be right on time for Easter.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. will have a good cut of fancy carnations, such as took prizes at Indianapolis at the recent National Flower Show. Their pot plants are fine and the assortment is good.

James F. Fox, who left the hospital March 27, expects to be able to visit his establishment the end of this week. A few weeks' rest will be necessary to put him back in the harness.

We are pleased to report that Mrs. Fred H. Holton, who was very sick, is again able to be around, although not yet quite as strong as she would like to be.

Everybody is anticipating a big Easter business, caused by good general business of the past week and the inquiries by the public for stock at this time.

The A. F. Kellner Co. say that the recent style week caused a larger demand for ornamental and blooming plants than ever before.

The Gust Rusch Co. promise a good supply of roses from the Cudahy Floral Co., with no shortage in sight of any of the other items.

There is still considerable frost in the ground and the season is backward compared to the same period of 1921.

Toledo, O.

BUSINESS GOOD IN SPITE OF RAIN.

The weather during the past week has been anything but springlike, but flower shops in all parts of the city report brisk business. There seems to be no end to the call for funeral flowers, with birth-days and flowers for the sick helping out to some extent. Flowers are being used in this city for many such purposes, due to the consistent and constant advertising of same in the trade. Stock is plentiful, but cleans up nicely. Roses,

Japanese Lily Bulbs

For indoor planting now or later and for outdoor planting in May. Arrange for your supply now and we will ship when you say the word. Lilium Auratum and Rubrum are ideal for planting in the open especially in perennial border and they furnish excellent cut flower material particularly L. Rubrum and L. Magnificum, which are now very popular for use in Memorial design work, etc. (Complete cultural directions for the asking.)

particularly Premier, Mrs. Chas. Russell and Killarney, are good offerings and are in strong demand. Carnations are in fair supply and their quality is excellent. Lilies, sweet peas and lily of the valley are sufficient for all demands. Those florists who have greenhouses in connection are strongly featuring pot tulips, hyacinths and daffodils and the surplus is used to good advantage in funeral work. The writer has seen some wonderful baskets and other designs made up of these flowers. Florists are preparing for Easter and it seems now as if business would justify large preparations, as many factories report a substantial increase in their pay rolls.

NOTES.

The writer dropped into Metz Brothers' shop the other day and found that some excellent changes and alterations had been made in their store. The refrigerator has been moved to make way for a modern and attractive office that looks very businesslike. Trade shows life at this store.

Not many of the local florists attended the National Flower Show at Indianapolis. Frank M. Schramm, who attended last week, says it was a wonderful exposition and hopes it will be brought to this city some time in the future.

John Barrow is showing some exceptional tulips, daffodils and hyacinths these days and reports the demand very brisk. Besides retailing, he ships all over northwestern Ohio.

Harry Heintz is already booking orders for his fine crop of Easter lilies, of which he is an excellent grower. He is also nursing along some exceptional hydrangeas.

Kusel & Gilbert, on Buffalo street, had a busy week turning out funeral work. This firm's trade is showing a steady and healthy growth.

A. C. K.

Montreal, Que.

McKenna, Ltd., are treating the public to an F. T. D. window display, which brings out in detail the rapid way in which floral orders can be transmitted. Highways and roadsides are depicted, small balloons marking the location of various cities of importance. Begonias, kalmias and fancy ferns figured prominently in the arrangements, the whole display showing careful thought. This firm is installing a Frick refrigerating plant of about three-fourths tons capacity, the first in this city, it is said.

Business generally has shown improvement the past two weeks.

NOTES.

C. W. Neilson's greenhouses are full of polyanthus, primroses, azaleas, and rhododendrons of large size. Sweet peas of excellent quality are being cut and a fine crop of pansies, equal to anything seen in this locality, is coming on.

C. Gratton has a very fine display of Easter lilies in excellent shape and well budded. Excellent Darwin tulips are grown in 10-inch pans and make a very showy plant. Sweet peas also look good here.

Rowville Greenhouses are shipping carnations of good quality, which will be a factor in the Easter trade. St. Bridget anemones of large size and fine coloring are seen here.

Some fine azaleas, rhododendrons and rose bushes are seen at the A. Wilshire range. He is cutting some extra fine callas.

Rose bushes of various sizes and very fine rhododendrons are being grown by R. Scott.

Geo. Hopton is growing some very good Lilium longifolia.

ORDER NOW FOR EASTER.

Business has been very quiet the past week, but is improving at this writing and prices have advanced considerably the last few days. Roses are in good supply, but are moving well, although there are more than enough to go around. Mrs. Chas. Russell, Premier and Milady are arriving in splendid condition and the same holds true for roses in general. Carnations are moving better than they have been and have advanced considerably in price. Lilies are in large supply and the receipts of callas are exceptionally heavy. Choice snapdragons and stocks are obtainable in good sized quantities. Colored freesias are having a good call, especially a new purple, which is making new friends every day. Candytuft and wall flowers are included in the offerings. Calendulas, single and double violets, daisies, pansies, forget-me-nots, tulips, jonquils, southern jonquils, narcissi and mignonne are in good supply. Lily of the valley is in good supply and the receipt of orchids are large enough to meet the demand. Pussywillows are seen everywhere. Greens are plentiful. The local people are back from the Indianapolis flower show and are all devoting their attention to the Easter business. Lilies will be in strong demand for Easter, judging from the many early orders that are being booked in the wholesale market. Some dealers are inclined to believe cut lilies will be scarce, while others claim there will be enough to fill all the orders at the prices quoted. Pot lilies are well sold up, according to all reports in this vicinity, with some dealers refusing 20 cents spot cash for 1,000 lots, and not anxious to sell at 25 cents and even 30 cents in some instances. Blooming plants in general will be scarce, according to the leading growers, who are already sold out in some items and are refusing orders every day. Cut flowers will be in good supply, but will clean up early with favorable weather; consequently everyone who has not already placed his order will do well to do so immediately.

the Uptown Chicago Exposition, March 28-April 1. The entire decorative arrangements of the large armory were executed by Edw. Boyar, proprietor of the establishment, ably assisted by Mrs. Boyar and J. B. Barnett, consisting of 164 hanging baskets of asters and smilax. An interesting feature of the decorations was 150 imitation parrots, suspended throughout the hall from wires attached to the ceiling. The firm supplied the 10 very artistic bouquets for the bridal group of the style show, consisting of sweet peas, White Killarney and Ward roses. The Boyar booth, with its fine array of flowers was the center of attraction at all times.

NOTES.

John Hoffman, employed for several months as a forest preserve guard, was shot and killed in front of the West Thirty-fifth Street Bank, March 30, by a shabbily dressed companion, who escaped in an automobile.

Peter Pearson and his Mrs. Warren G. Harding tulips occupied a prominent place in the picture magazine of the Chicago Herald and Examiner March 31. The tulips were on display all last week at the West Town Exposition.

Wietor Bros. are in full crop for Easter and are cutting heavily in roses and carnations especially Premier, Mrs. Chas. Russel and Columbia. Leo Wietor is on his way home from California and is due to arrive this week.

T. E. Waters, of the Ove Gnatt Co., Inc., received a package April 1 that was a winner. The sender did not disclose his identity but what is worrying the boys most is what became of the other part of the package.

The Poehlmann Bros. Co., have a splendid lot of Easter stock in great variety. This however, was reported all sold early this week. Some azaleas in the smaller sizes are remarkably fine being full of bloom.

Zech & Mann are having a good call for stocks which are arriving in large supply this week. This house will be strong on cut lilies for Easter again this season and are busy booking orders for same.

Miss Corinne Allen, of Allen & Heasley, Benton, was a welcome visitor this week. Miss Allen has been in the retail business for about a year and is well pleased with the sales the past season.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. will have a good supply of cut lilies to offer for Easter in addition to its regular line of stock. Jonquils are in heavy supply here this week and at times are in strong demand.

Hugh Will and wife of Minneapolis, Minn., were the guests of Hans Jepsen and wife March 31, when they were on their way home from the Fifth National Flower Show at Indianapolis.

Chas. Erne, of Erne & Co., received an unexpected consignment April 1 that is on exhibition at the store. Be sure and read the inscription and then try and find out who mailed it.

The E. C. Amling Co. is offering Russian statice in addition to its regular line of stocks. Alois Frey's new purple freesia is attracting much favorable attention here.

The George Wittbold Co., is considering the erection of another apartment building on the Buckingham place property, moving the greenhouses to Edgebrook.

E. W. Vineca, manager of the Crowl Fern Co., Millington, Mass., and wife visited here for a few days on their way home from the Indianapolis flower show.

Arthur Christianson, who has been in the employ of the Ove Gnatt Co. since it opened its local office and display room, is back with Paul Blome & Co.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is featuring particularly fine lupines in addition to its regular line, not to mention fancy sweet peas.

George Reinberg is cutting so many callas that his store manager, Robert Northam, is having his hands full moving them.

Wittbold's giganteum lilies at Edgebrook are of good height and will make Easter with some favorable weather.

Ed. Martin has resigned his position with Kennicott Bros. Co. to enter the employ of the J. A. Budlong Co.

A. Henderson & Co. say the demand for cannas, gladioli and other spring bulbs continues brisk.

A. Lange, Ed. Winterson and Fritz Bahr are planning a trip to Rockford this week.

EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD TRADE REPORTED

The market has been exceptionally good the past week and from present indications it is thought the Easter trade will surpass former years. Spring flowers are in most demand with roses and carnations closely following. Roses are improving in quality Premier and Mrs. Chas. Russel bringing $6 to $20 per 100. Columbia, Crusader, Butterfly, Sunburst are meeting a good demand at $4 to $15 per 100. Excellent carnations move rapidly. Lily of the valley demand is fair and stock is gradually deteriorating. Orchids move slowly and violets are very poor. Delphiniums clean up early each day at $3 per dozen spikes. Light blues have large spikes with many immense flowers. Double calendulas are fine at $3 to $6 per 100. Both cut and pot callas are popular, cut stock selling at $2 to $3 per dozen while pot yellows are going at 50 cents per flower. The call for Easter lilies is steadily increasing at $25 per 100 blooms, pot stock going at 30 cents per flower. Jonquils, hyacinths and tulips are selling well. Sweet peas are an important item stock moving out rapidly. A good demand is noted for stocks. Spanish irises continue to arrive but the demand is only fair. Snapdragon developed a strong demand last week, excellent flowers bringing $2 to $3 per dozen. Pot plants are most popular, roses tulips, hyacinths, jonquils and hydrangeas heading the list. Asparagus plumosus and A. Sprengerii, adiantums, ferns, galax and leucothoe sell easily.

INDIANAPOLIS EXHIBITORS.

W. A. Rowe won first prize in pink carnations and A. Jablonsky, Olivette, carried off blue ribbon for flesh pinks, with his new kind, Carnation Betty Jane. Woodlawn Gardens, Edwardsville, Ill., won a first in whites. Phil Goebel, Jr., Webster Grove, took 11 out of 16 firsts in sweet peas, a remarkable showing.

The third annual garden show will be held at the Missouri Botanic gardens, May 20-21. There is no charge either for entries or admission. The show is staged by the Garden Club and its main object is to encourage gardening and demonstrate what can be done in the way of raising flowers, shrubs, etc. It will be open to the public from 9 a. m., to 10 p. m.

The local delegation to the Indianapolis show, 70 strong, were loud in their praise of the exhibition and hoped that the Sixth National Flower Show could be staged here as the show just finished was to have been held in this city in 1917 but was postponed on account of the great war.

STOCK SELLING UP CLOSELY.

There has been a very fair demand the past week, all good stock selling up close at moderate prices. It is not the time of year when fancy, long stemmed stock brings what the growers think it is worth, but as the quantities are so much greater the total figures, even at lower prices, foot up satisfactorily. There is a good out of town demand, that is the balance wheel of this market and which patronage appears to be getting stronger each year. The stock of roses in all standard varieties is fine. Carnations are slowing up a trifle, but there promises to be a good crop at Easter. Sweet peas are seen in quantity, with first grades of splendid quality. They are largely used in corsage work in place of cattleyas, which are now scarce. Snapdragon as a quantity stock was never seen better and sells well. There are daffodils galore, mostly Emperor. White lilac and lily of the valley are splendid stocks. Calendulas, white and yellow daisies, stocks and pansies are small flowers that find a market for spring boxes. Fine larkspur is a feature.

THIS CITY AHEAD.

That the rose growers of this market hold the supremacy for their favorite flower against all competition was shown at the Fifth National Flower Show, when on rose day they captured all the first prizes in classes in which they entered and also some of the seconds when in competition with one another. The record of the Jos. Heacock Co. was wonderful. Their Hadley vase was superb. Ophelia, Butterfly, Pilgrim, Crusader, Columbia and Double White Killarney were all unbeatable, winning a first on every entry.

any disseminated red and second for 50 American Beauty. They also exhibited American Legion of fine quality, their vase of 50 opening up much like Francis Scott Key in form and color.

The Florex Gardens and John Andre were unfortunate in trusting their large shipments to the express companies, as they did not arrive until late in the afternoon long after the judges had made their awards. The quality of the stock was very fine and more firsts would have been brought to this city had these gotten into the competition. The other local entries which the exhibitors brought with them as excess baggage is a lesson for the future.

EASTER STOCK.

Much has been said about the excellence of the Easter stock as seen with the growers but it is developing even better than expected. The large trained roses of the Robert Craig Co., are wonderful as are their huge blocks of lilies and hydrangeas. Mark Mills says that in all his long experience he has never had a finer batch of pot Easter lilies, and that the W. K. Harris stock generally and particularly the hydrangeas is exceptionally fine. The Bickley greenhouses whose stock is handled by Berger Bros. have over 60,000 hyacinths, tulips and daffodils in pots and pans, all of which stock is in splendid shape timed right to the hour for the Easter trade.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING.

The April 4 meeting of the Florists' Club held at the Adelphia hotel was largely attended. There was a fine exhibition of Easter plants, the best ever made before the club. Choice roses were also a feature. The lecture by Chas. Henry Fox on "Analysis of the Flower Business," with illustrations was a most enjoyable feature the speaker was at his best and with cut flowers deftly arranged presented many new ideas to his large audience.

NOTES.

Edward Reid would have liked very much to have gone to Indianapolis but was kept busy with the best Lenten trade he has ever enjoyed. Choice Premier and Columbia roses together with high grade carnations are features of his stock.

The Leo Niessen Co., is certain that John Andre whose roses they handle would have had several firsts to his credit had his stock arrived on time at Indianapolis, they are preparing here for a great Easter trade in cut flowers.

Manager Lynch, of the Philadelphia Growers' Cut Flower market is much pleased with the business during the past two weeks and the promise from his growers of a fine crop in all lines of cut flowers for Easter.

Carl Cortis of the Jos. Heacock Co., now offers only first premium roses, but charges nothing extra for the title, preferring to give his customers all the benefits in handling the choice stock.

Richard Umfrid and William Dunning who ran the Fox Floral Shop on North Broad street have dissolved partnership. The business will be continued by Mr. Umfrid.

George Burton attended the great national show as a judge in the rose classes. There could be none better.

MARKET CONTINUES SLUGGISH.

To use a time worn expression, "the market went to pieces," the past week. Freakish weather was to some extent blamed for it but the result would probably have been the same with any other kind of weather. The first two days of the week were so warm and humid that roses and tulips opened up about as soon as they were out of the boxes. March 29 was a fair day as to weather but cold rain set in on the following day and continued for the remainder of the week. Slackness in trade for two weeks before a great holiday is not unusual but it seems to be going the limit this year. The steamship offices report heavy bookings for European ports and similar news comes from Boston, Mass. It is believed that steamship travel, outward bound, will equal if not exceed that of pre-war years. The people that can afford to travel are usually good customers of florists when they are here and their absence is felt in the trade. As an offset it may be stated that there is likely to be a good Easter trade and there should be many steamer orders. Memorial Day is not far off and it may be hoped that the memory of our soldier dead will serve as an incentive to a greater observance of the occasion. To show that we have not exaggerated the condition of the market it may be stated that many No. 1 pink roses are selling at $3 per 100. About a month ago they brought $8 to $12. As shorter grades are always more in demand than specials it is unnecessary to enlarge on conditions in that grade. It would seem that about all the growers that ship to this market are sending in sweet peas this season. They are good sellers but enough is a plenty. Lily of the valley is also glutting the market. As unlike some other flowers its supply can be regulated and it seems surprising that growers of it do not catch on. Good cattleyas are arriving but there is little demand for them and the same can be said of various other offerings. It is about this way in this city—When people want flowers they will pay good prices; when they don't want them—good night! There was necessarily a little more activity in the market Saturday. It stopped raining but the weather continued cold and cloudy which may put a slight check on the supply.

April 3.—The weather is clear and cool and there is more life in the market but as there must be some stocking up by retailers Monday, the improvement may be but temporary.

NOTES.

The range of Anton Schultheis, College Point, is now managed by Anton Schultheis, Jr. It is showing a fine line of Easter plants, noteworthy being ericas, roses and hydrangeas. Mr. Schultheis, Sr., and wife, who are at Miami, Fla., will remain there until after Easter.

Henry Hession and brother, of the Hession carnation range, Flatbush, Brooklyn, visited the Indianapolis show and displayed their new carnation. My Welcome.

Walter F. Kleine, well known to the retail trade of this city, is now the florist at the Hotel Majestic, Central Park, West, and 72nd street.

fine line of Hadley, Ophelia, Premier and Columbia roses.

Fine pot lilies from the range of F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, are being sold by J. A. Millang, Sixth avenue at Twenty-sixth street.

Wm. Kessler and wife, who spent several weeks at Miami, Fla., are home again and much pleased with their trip.

The Easter plant outlook from the growers' viewpoint is good, most of them reporting they are about sold out.

Frank H. Traendly and other bright lights have returned from Indianapolis and report a fine exhibition.

The Kuhn retail flower store, Sixth avenue near 50th street is undergoing extensive improvements.

M. C. Ford, in the Eighteenth street market, continues to receive fine American Beauty roses.

Cattleyas, gardenias and other good offerings are being received by Doyle & Booth.

Decorations and funeral work are brisk with A. C. Scemmadau, 485 Eighth avenue. A. F. F.

Toronto, Ont.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS EXCELLENT.

Business conditions are good and trade has kept up remarkably well the past month. There is considerable sickness and a large call for funeral work and the market has cleaned up daily so that the usual surplus at this season is absent. Stock is of excellent grade and when a shortage is noticed it is in the cheaper kinds which are used in made-up work. Roses are all of good quality, Dunlop, American Beauty, Columbia, Butterfly and Premier being principal kinds. Carnations are in fair crop and look well. Sweet peas were never better and there is a good supply of lily of the valley, orchids, lilies and all bulbous stock.

NOTES.

The death of Sir John Craig Eaton, one of Canada's best known citizens and one who leaves a place in the life of this city and Canada which no other man can fill, occurred March 30. A keen patriot, sincere philanthropist, generous employer, shrewd and candid business man and all round worthy citizen, for 15 years was president of the largest retail establishment in the British Empire, the T. Eaton Co., Ltd. Sir John was only 43 years of age and his broad sympathies and frank candor made him popular with his 20,000 employees. Saturday the flags of the city were at half mast and many business houses placed memorial windows in his honor and many words of generous praise came from the different pulpits Sunday. At the request of Lady Eaton the phrase "No flowers" appeared in the funeral notices, but it was made known through the newspaper comments that those desirous of sending flowers could do so by giving them to the different hospitals. Telegraphic orders were forwarded direct to the late residence as ordered, but it meant the cancelling of many thousands of dollars worth of stock and designs.

A few weeks ago about 15 of our retailers got together on co-operative advertising and each Saturday they have announced that with the increased sunshine and larger production of flowers they are enabled to give their customers good quality flowers at greatly reduced prices. This so far has worked out well and many customers are coming back to the stores, many of them stating that the high prices have kept them from buying stock. From the way these sales are taking it appears that many of our old-time transients will be brought back to the shops again.

The outlook for Easter stock is very promising and with favorable weather there should be a plentiful supply. Many lilies are being grown and they appear good, fair and indifferent, as many are on the short side, but roses, carnations, sweet peas and bulbous stock, with the usual supply of plants all show great promise.

The Retail Florists' Club held its annual theatre party, on March 31. Baskets and bouquets were presented to the actresses and considerable publicity received from the press.

Nine delegates went from this district to attend the Fifth National Flower Show at Indianapolis and we expect a full report of the exhibition at our next club meeting night.

STAMFORD, CONN.—The Quality Seed Store here is asking an extension.

MILLET prices to growers in most areas is the lowest in several years.

L. D. WALLER, of the L. D. Waller Seed Co., Guadalupe, Calif., is due in Chicago April 6.

MAIL and counter trade in the middle-west both show material improvement this week.

SAN DIEGO, CALIF.—J. B. Agnew, of 4433 Hermosa way, is planning to make an eastern trip next June.

THE striking hard coal miners are said to be preparing for a spring garden planting on an unusually large scale.

ONION SET prices in the Chicago district this week are as follows: Yellows $3.00; whites $2.75 and reds $2.00.

ROCKFORD, ILL.—The H. W. Buckbee Co. filled 20,000 orders in the plant department, the last 15 days of March.

"GOVERNMENT CERTIFIED" means only that the potatoes are fit to eat, not that they're good seed. States certify seed potatoes.

CHARLES WATERMAN, the well known Chicago onion set dealer, is republican candidate for the state legislature in the seventh district.

PRICES of bags at Chicago, April 5: Anchor, 16 oz., $30.00 per bale, in bale lots or over; Royal River, 16 oz., $30; National, 16 oz., $30.00; Crown, 12 oz., $25.00.

BOARD OF TRADE.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade this week were as follows: Timothy, $3.00 to $5.25 per 100 pounds; Red Clover, $15 to $20.

VISITED CHICAGO: H. A. Johns, of the Sioux City Seed Co., Sioux City, Ia.; A. L. Beckert, of Beckert's Seed Store, Pittsburgh, Pa., returning from Montana.

THE J. C. Robinson Seed Co., Waterloo, Neb., in its April calendar says: "Don't get discouraged—it's often the last key in the bunch that opens the lock."

THE Canadian Seed Growers' Association has issued its catalogue of registered seed produced in 1921. The headquarters of the association are at 114 Victoria street, Ottawa, Ont.

SANTA CRUZ, CALIF.—The Bulb Growers' Supply Co. is a new firm recently organized by Robt. O. Lincoln, formerly of Los Robles, Calif., and Delos Whipple, who have purchased six acres near this city and will specialize in freesias, gladioli and other bulbous flowers.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—On Saturday, March 25, the St. Louis Seed Co., had 3,800 retail sales. Lawn grass seed was a leader. Their price for blue grass at retail was 75 cents per pound, 10 pounds $7.00.

THE failure of the Everette R. Peacock Co., Chicago, is causing much concern to local stockholding market gardeners. Report now has the liabilities as high as $750,000, but the receiver, Edwin Buell, 105 West Monroe street, claims figures are still unavailable.

Southern Seedsmen's Association.

NEW ORLEANS CONVENTION, MAY 29-31.

The annual convention of the Southern Seedmen's Association will be held at the St. Charles hotel, New Orleans, La., May 29-31. The hotel is centrally located and every attention will be given the delegates while in the city. Frank S. Love, P. O. Box 27, Montgomery, Ala., is secretary-treasurer of the organization.

Another Evansville Suit.

Evansville, Ind.—Judge Elmer Q. Lockyear, of the Vanderburg county superior court ruled against B. F. Metcalf & Son, of Syracuse N. Y., April 1, in a suit to recover $10,992.71 from the First National Bank of St. Louis, Mo., which grew out of the affairs of W. H. Small & Co., bankrupts, wholesale seed distributors, a $1,000,000 concern. B. F. Metcalf & Son purchased 610 bags of timothy seed from the Small company, which gave a warehouse receipt and drew a draft which was accepted and paid. Evidence showed that there was no seed in the warehouse at the time of the purchase. The Metcalf concern sued for the recovery of the money from the St. Louis bank, claiming fraud. Judge Lockyear held that of the two innocent parties, the bank was entitled to the money and was given permission to apply the sum of $103,000 that W. H. Small & Co., owed it when the failure of the Small company occurred.

Horticultural Board Admits Dicytra.

In the summer of 1921, the Federal Horticultural Board refused permits for Dicentra spectabilis. Under date of March 29, the board admits error in the above decision and states that it finds insufficient stock available at the present time. The board would do well not only to look up its other similar cases in which permits have been denied and further reverse themselves, but would do exceedingly well to state the maximum amounts which they are allowing importers to bring in, it being well known to the trade that certain individuals have been given permits for a very large number of certain items, while other individuals have been allowed to import but a few.

The secrecy in the operations of this public board should be done away with as early as possible.

Field Seeds.

Unfavorable sowing weather for the third consecutive week brought about by too much rainfall further retarded the demand for field seeds. Warm weather and sunshine are needed to liven up the trade and induce country merchants to replenish small stocks. No far-reaching gains were made in prices of any seeds during the week ending March 18, but alfalfa and sweet clover prices were considered firmer and a little higher in a few markets. Alsike clover, timothy, and Japanese millet were quoted lower in several important markets.

In a few markets, seedsmen were reducing their prices on red clover but taking the country as a whole the market for this seed was considered to be unchanged from the previous week.

The first large arrival in many weeks of Italian red clover seed at New York was reported for the week ending March 18. About 273,700 pounds arrived from Italy and 102,700 pounds from Germany, both subject to the seed importation act. Several more consignments of Italian seed are expected within a few weeks. About 121,000 pounds of crimson clover from France and 22,000 pounds of white clover from Germany arrived at New York.

Prices for crimson clover are considered firm but the demand usually does not become active until after the domestic crop is harvested. A few markets increased their prices 50 cents per 100 pounds on alfalfa seed and the trend was considered upward for this seed, as well as for sweet clover.

About 169,000 pounds of timothy was exported to Great Britain during the week and the export demand at New York was still reported as good. The export demand for Kentucky bluegrass and redtop at important eastern seaports continues to be fairly good. Declines of five to 25 cents in timothy prices occurred in several markets, but some of the largest seedsmen anticipate much more business in this commodity as soon as the soil in many sections is in better shape to work. Prices for other grass seeds were considered to be firm but remained at last week's levels. About 11,300 pounds of rye grass arrived at New York from Great Britain.

Japanese millet was 25 to 50 cents per 100 pounds lower in a few markets and other millets were about 10 cents lower in one or two important markets, which seemed to indicate a slight weakening in the position of these seeds from the preceding week. A late spring, however, would enhance the demand for millet as well as for sorgo seed.

About 80,300 pounds of rape arrived at New York from Holland. Approximately 495,600 pounds of canary mostly from Argentina and 163,600 pounds of sunflower seed from Argentina were imported at New York during the week. The total imports of these seeds at New York since Jan. 1 amount to 1,254,300 pounds of canary (all from Argentina except 44,000 pounds from Italy) and 643,680 pounds of sunflower seed from Argentina.

Grass and Clover Seed Prices.

The following were the wholesale prices in dollars per 100 pounds on timothy, Kentucky blue grass, red top and red clover at principal points of distribution, March 18, 1922, as given by the government market reporter of March 25, 1922:

The forty-seventh annual convention will be held at Detroit, Mich., June 28-30, 1922.

INDIO, CALIF.—The Cowgill Date Gardens is erecting a new offshoot rooting house, comprising 4,300 square feet.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—The pay of common laborers in the parks here has been cut 50 cents per day.

DUBLIN, GA.—Mofton Moffett will start a nursery and greenhouse range in this city at an early date.

TROY, O.—A. H. Ellerman recently purchased land near this city and will establish a nursery at an early date.

VENTURA, CALIF.—W. P. Weber is establishing a nursery in the Imperial Valley, in addition to his five other nurseries in the state.

WHITTIER, CALIF.—Mrs. Sara A. Pleas, formerly peony specialist at Spiceland, Ind., will celebrate the eighty-eighth anniversary of her birthday April 24.

Arbor Day Anniversary.

FOREST WEEK PROCLAIMED.

The period from April 16 to April 22 was officially designated as forest protection week, and April 22 was fixed as the golden anniversary of Arbor Day, in a proclamation issued April 1, by President Harding.

Illinois Arbor Day Plans.

Illinois' plan to plant soldier memorial trees in school yards on Arbor Day, April 14, an outgrowth of the "Plan to Plant Another Tree," campaign recently initiated by clubs, civic organizations and agricultural associations, has developed into such a big idea that school superintendents in other states are joining the movement to make it a midwest affair.

The spring planting programme will be started by the schools in both city and country and will be followed by highway planting by various organizations. In Michigan it is said that 978,412 pupils will take part in the ceremonies and reports from Iowa indicate that trees will be planted in every school yard in the state.

Boston, Mass.

MARKET AT LOW EBB.

The market this week reacted as was expected owing to the warm spring weather the first of the week. All stock was affected though carnations and roses were the worst hit, the prices receding in some cases as much as 50 per cent. Jonquils were also hard to move, some very fine stock being sold as low as $2 and $3 per 100. Specialties such as orchids, lily of the valley and gardenias were really the only things which held their own, the supply being light which is the saving factor for them. There has been a feeling among the salesmen that they can have a general house cleaning at the week end as the market has been rather firm for the past few Saturdays and consequently they hold stock from midweek to week end for better prices. This week though the weather conditions were against them, and the heavy snow and sleet storm of Friday and Saturday simply killed off what business there might have been. To sum it all up this was the most disastrous week we have seen for many months.

NOTES.

The New England Florists' alliance held its meeting at the City Club April 1, W. H. Elliott in the chair. E. Naukam presented his report. There are 100 members in good standing at present. The wholesalers and commission men are not inclined to join and give no reason.

Jack Cook, the Commonwealth avenue Florist, has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his wife who passed away March 31, from a complication of diseases.

An exhibition of wild flowers and ferns common to New England, will be staged in Horticultural hall, May 3-7.

BUSINESS IS DULL.

There was a heavier rainfall during the past week than for many months, and business suffered accordingly, trade having been quiet with the exception of funeral work, until Saturday, when "Old Sol" shone his brightest and the florists enjoyed a record trade. Both blooming plants and cut flowers sold well and these receipts made up somewhat for a dull week. In regard to the supply, there was a glut on the market of roses due to the quiet week. Bulbous stock is also coming on faster than it can be moved, on account of the warmer weather. Snapdragon is of excellent quality. Easter lilies are being offered and retail at 30 cents per bloom, but indications are that they will be much higher for Easter. Sweet peas are very plentiful, and prices have declined. Cinerarias meet with a good sale, and a few calceolarias are being offered. Hydrangeas have appeared on the market the past week, also ramblers roses. Although the sale of cut flowers has fallen off some during Lent, there has been a good demand for corsages. Prima obconica is being offered. Special Saturday special sales are being run by many of the retailers, which helps to ease conditions.

NOTES.

The local florists who attended the Fifth National Flower Show were: Aaron Shive and wife of the Flick Floral Co.; Clem. Lanternier and wife Ed. Lanternier, F. J. Knecht, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Freese, R. W. Doswell and wife, John Doswell, Herbert Gluserkamp and Clarence Comincavish.

Ralph Tinkham, of the House of Flowers held a sale of Danish pottery last week with good results. He reports business much improved. Mr. Tinkham and Miss Junetta Schock attended the National Flower Show at Indianapolis the latter part of the week.

The Blossom Floral Co., is selling some handsome bulbous stock, and specimen snapdragons. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blossom of this firm spent several days at the Fifth National Flower Show.

Some very nice hydrangea plants are being shown by the Doswell Floral Co. This firm is located opposite the Inter-urban terminal, and enjoys quite a good business from traction travellers.

Edgar Wenninghoff is showing excellent arrangements of pot tulips jonquils and hyacinths. He reports a good trade in flowers and plants for the hospital the past week.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, April 4.—Cucumbers, per crate, $3.50 to $6; head lettuce, per crate, $3.50 to $5; carrots $3.50 to $4 per barrel; cabbage, $2 to $2.50 per crate.

New York, March 31.—Cucumbers, $3.50 to $7.50 per basket; radishes, 100 bunches, $3.25 to $4.50; tomatoes, per crate, $1.25 to $3.25; lettuce, per crate, $6 to $7; beets per crate, $1.50.

Vegetable Movement.

WEEK OF MARCH 27-APRIL 1.

Texas early Bermuda onions have appeared in several consuming centers, the prices as a whole maintaining former levels.

Potato values are steady and new Florida stock is meeting with a good demand. Sweet potatoes showed some declines, but strawberry markets were firmer under a limited demand. Apple prices show no change.

Shipments over 11 important lines of railroads of both fruits and vegetables for the week ending April 1 totaled 9,118 cars compared with 8,683 the preceding week. Most staples moved in heavier volume except potatoes, spinach, cauliflowers and barreled apples which showed a decrease.

Sugar Beets.

The sugar-beet industry of the United States produced more than 1,000,000 tons of sugar and the 106 factories, 97 of which were in operation in 15 states, paid American farmers more than $99,000,000 for their beets in 1920.

In a comprehensive new bulletin, No. 995, "The Sugar Beet Industry in the United States," the United States Department of Agriculture says that almost any fertile soil capable of producing good yields of other crops will, if properly handled, produce good sugar beets. This statement, however, is restricted by considerations of climate, moisture and topography as related to the questions of producing enough beets of the requisite sugar content within reasonable hauling distance to maintain a sugar-beet factory.

The bulletin reviews the history of the sugar-beet industry from the first mill, built in 1870 at Alvarado, Calif.; analyzes soil, climatic and topographic requirements; and deals at length with the necessary equipment, best methods of planting and cultivation; the important relation of the sugar-beet to the live-stock industry; the management of parallel and rotating crops; the labor problem; insect and disease enemies of sugar beets; and the business of selling beets to the sugar manufacturers. "The successful production of sugar beets on any farm depends to a great extent upon the temperament of the farmer and upon his attitude toward the production of this crop," says the bulletin, adding that the man who handles cows, especially dairy cows, is more inclined to take up the growing of such an intensive crop as sugar beets and is more apt to succeed in this line than the grain or forage crop man.

A list of more than 50 department publications on different phases of the beet-sugar industry is included in the bulletin, which may be had free upon application to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

GOOD JUDGMENT IN BUYING A BOILER

C. H. Totty

For many years C. H. Totty has used Kroeschell Boilers. He expresses great satisfaction with the service of his boilers and highly commends the efficiency of Kroeschell Boilers in greenhouse heating.

Good judgment based on experience is what makes successful business and, naturally, the more capable a man is of using good judgment and the greater his power of utilizing his experience and the experiences of others in exercising his judgment, the greater will be the success of his business.

It is impossible to believe that the judgment of a man that is responsible for the establishment of a large, permanently successful greenhouse business is anything but good. It is sensible to let the judgment of the big men in the flower business guide you in making decisions for your own flower business.

Merit alone is responsible for the favorable opinion of Kroeschell Boilers that prevails among the largest and most successful growers. They select Kroeschell Boilers for their heating problems and recommend them for all growers, large and small. You can make no mistake by installing a boiler in your greenhouses that has gained the favor of men whose success in the greenhouse business qualifies them as experts in knowledge of greenhouse requirements.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Freestias.

Although the freestias are a cheap bulb they should not be thrown away, for it takes but little attention to ripen them off after they are through blooming and as good bulbs can be procured as those that are purchased. The freesia is a native of southern Africa, so they are blooming at the natural season when flowered in midwinter in the north. But the bulbs must be allowed to mature their growth and then dried off gradually. The pots or boxes in which they are grown can then be placed in full sunlight and allowed to become very dry. A shelf near the glass makes an admirable place on which to place them after the growth has finished, and no more watering is required, but they must not stand where any drip from a roof on a stormy day is liable to keep them moist. They can be shaken out in June and the bulbs started, as it is comparatively easy to select the flowering bulbs and store in a dry place until wanted for planting. For Christmas blooming the bulbs should be started early in July and a succession of plantings until September will give the grower flowers until the following spring.

Bedding Plants.

The general florist will now have his hands full with bedding stock, which should now be spread out and given the necessary room. The geraniums should be spaced, and if any have grown too tall to make shapely plants the tops should be cut back, but at the present day the trade wants a geranium in bloom at bedding time, and very little pinching should be done after the first of April, for it will take from then until the first of June to produce a new branch with a flower. Ageratums, alternantheras, alyssums, heliotropes and like blooming plants should be kept on the move and be given good light positions. Salvia should be kept pinched back until the latter part of the month, which should produce fine, shapely plants. The coleus should be rooted and the top rubbed out as soon as established in the pots. Seedlings should be potted or flatted, the former preferred if a price can be obtained commensurate for the extra labor, but if flatted give them room enough to develop properly. Cannas will now require a warm, light location and plenty of root room. The one great factor in growing good bedding stock is at this season, to keep the plants moving and never allow them to get a check, for if once severely checked, a good plant is an impossibility.

Hydrangeas.

There are very few plants that are generally grown that show more variance in their culture or in the returns to the grower than the hydrangeas, especially those that are grown for summer blooming. In looking over the stocks in the several markets one will often see the extremes of these plants grown in the same sized pot; one with eight to 10 heads of bloom, short and stocky, with fine foliage, an ornament on any porch in any yard; and the other tall and long jointed, with two or three heads of bloom and five or six branches with no flowers and the foliage thin and small, the former bringing the grower $3.00 to $3.50 and the latter hardly averaging $1.50. Yet these two plants have practically cost the grower the same amount of labor. These plants grow rapidly and must have plenty of room, an abundance of sun and lots of nourishment. It is useless to try to grow a good plant when they are crowded together. Many growers finish these plants by raising the pots over the benches of bedding plants that do not now require the full amount of sun, placing the hydrangeas about four feet apart in the center of the bench and standing the pot on a stand two feet above the other plants. This gives the hydrangeas a fine location. When the plants have set their buds, the pots will probably be full of roots and a watering of liquid manure once or twice a week will greatly assist them in finishing up the flower and keep the foliage in good color. To grow good hydrangeas they must have plenty of food, room enough to grow shapely and for the air to circulate all around the plant and a light well ventilated location. Under these conditions they are easily grown and are remunerative to the grower.

Lilium Lancifolium.

Among the best flowers for greenhouse culture during the summer months is the Lilium lancifolium, of varieties rubrum, roseum album and Melpomene. While these varieties can all be grown outside, yet under those conditions they rarely give perfect flowers and they also tarnish quickly in the direct rays of the sun or under heavy rains, and to have flowers that can be used for decorative work or designs it is far better to grow them under glass. Those that are to bloom in July should have been started in March, but for August blooming they can be planted now. One of the easiest ways to grow these bulbs is to plant them in boxes from four to six inches deep, not too large, but of a size that one man can handle when filled with soil. Do not fill the boxes too full when planting the bulbs, for like all lilies they throw out roots at the surface, so it is well to leave room for top dressing later. Grow them in a cool, shady location and after the spikes begin to grow, give them plenty of water and keep them tied erect to stakes. Constant fumigation will be necessary to keep the green fly in check. This is in no way forcing these bulbs, and if properly dried off after blooming the bulbs may be grown year after year and a good crop of flowers obtained.

Sweet Peas.

A sowing of sweet peas made in pots late in March which can be transplanted outside as soon as all danger from late frosts is passed, will give a crop of these flowers two or three weeks earlier than the seed sown in the ground. There is generally a time in late June and early July that the sweet peas in the greenhouses come very poor, owing to the excessive heat under glass and the infection of red spider, and the early sowings outside are not yet in flower. Five or six seeds sown in a three-inch pot and these placed on the sill or window ledge or on a hanging shelf will make nice stock for planting out after the middle of April and the advantage of those started in the greenhouses over the ones sown in the cold ground will be quickly seen upon trial. They can be grown so that they will take but little valuable room under glass and the extra expense of this and the labor in transplanting them, will be more than recompensed by having fine flowers at a time when most of the stock is in poor condition. The plants that are growing inside will require considerable attention as the sun increases in power; the growth is very rapid and the vines must be kept erect or crooked flower stems will be the result. They should be gone over every day, and where the growing shoots are getting away from the supports they should be fastened to them.

NILES, O.—John Dunstan, grower at 26 Girard street, has opened an up-to-date flower shop in the Shelton block to dispose of his stock.

ROGERS, O.—The greenhouses of Geo. Young, one mile south of this city, were almost totally destroyed by fire recently, the loss being $1,000 with no insurance. Mr. Young is planning to rebuild at an early date.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

With the rush of Easter over, and it is the hope of THE AMERICAN FLORIST that it was most successful for everyone, there is that matter of great importance, the inventory, in which should be listed all left over stock in plants and cut flowers, special baskets and other supplies bought for the Easter trade and which are still on hand. While the business of the week is still fresh in mind a record should be made of all the important features, the plants that sold best and where they came from, the various styles of plant baskets, colors, etc., with details of their filling, and ribbon decoration; how the bulbous pans sold and all the other details of the plant section, including the pot coverings; how the cut flower orders were handled, the corsages and the wreaths for the cemetery as well as deliveries. Best of all write fully your suggestions for the improvement of next season's business as it occurs to you at this time, all of which will be found most valuable when arranging for the Easter season of 1923.

Easter weddings will now keep those busy who make a bid for this business. A few good sized orders for these functions are a great help to use up any overstocks of Easter lilies, hydrangeas and rambler roses. Galvanized iron or tin buckets in various sizes painted green, are most appropriate in this decorative work, as plants in full flower which often at times have to stand over night in a building with even a little heat, if placed in these buckets can be watered and there is no danger of drip or their drying out. Painted, green tubes, two inches in diameter and a foot long, with a wire hook at the upper end will hold stalks of lilies, long stemmed roses or other flowers and be hung to pots, pot covers or other vantage points in the decoration to give a finished touch, where it would be dangerous to place plants.

Pansy boxes and Bellis daisies should now be in demand; they make a fine showing until after May 10, when it is time to fill with the summer geraniums.

Keep a good showing of flowering plants as they help to decorate the shop and if well featured are almost certain to move off satisfactorily. The annual forget-me-not is now at its best, which, with its wealth of blossoms makes a beautiful gift pan. Feature boxes of spring flowers, with a few arranged and displayed in the case and window. Just the suggestion brings to mind a use for them and sales are frequently made when the pretty arrangement catches the eye and is ready to take along.

The window should be kept attractive, so much so that some one is always standing in front. To be effective it must always have a story to tell and no matter how much work is put on it good business is sure to result.

This is the season of special sales when flowers can be bought in quantity at low values. Short stemmed roses, sweet peas and a host of other flowers can be featured in the small, tumbler or vase handle baskets, that if a window is filled with them will attract attention, and with the silent salesman price card move off quickly.

Every live florist has always a number of features in his store or window that are a trifle out of the ordinary; many are just staple plants or flowers featured in a little different way or given a decorative use or setting by which a new interest is created. It is this getting the people to stop and look that counts. Watch the persons who pass by the shop, for say 15 minutes, and note how many pause to look in the window. Then place a well written card of good size, about 12 x 16 inches, describing the window features and count up those who now glance in for the same period of time and the difference will surprise you.

AN EASTER BASKET.

"Our Saturday Box" is a title for a special for the week end; it puts the thought in the mind that often flowers in the home over Sunday will be welcome and the sale is made. It is just one of the 100 ways in which business may be quickened and things kept moving.

A wedding scene for the window will attract attention now, as this is the season for such affairs. A kneeling stool nicely decorated or a shower bunch with an explanatory card or a more elaborate display shows that this work is a specialty with the establishment and is certain to influence orders or bring inquiries that should be followed up.

Carefully scan the social columns in the newspapers every day and follow up the chances for business offered. Many orders are secured by the live, progressive man who goes after them that would have gone elsewhere had he not made the bid.

New Uses for Flowers.

The use of flowers in the commercial world is growing in spite of the fact that the florists have made no effort whatever to develop it. Florists seem obsessed with the idea that their only field is the social one, yet knocking at their doors is this opportunity, a field that gives as great promise as any I know of.

There was a time, not so long ago, when it would have been considered effeminate and showed a weakness in a business man to have floral displays in a business house. Today, hardly a new enterprise opens its doors without having a few flowers about the place. The writer has been watching this chance for the florists to develop this new field for some time, and his observation has been that banks were the first industry to take the lead in this new move. When the financial men of a community, that is, the men upon whom all commercial enterprises must in a measure depend, set their seal of approval on a custom, you may depend upon that custom being a good one.

On November 29 the National Exchange Bank, Baltimore, Md., moved into new quarters. This bank first opened its doors in 1865, and in the 56 years of its business life, efficiency and service have been its watch words. The equipment of these new quarters is the most modern that could be devised for banking purposes. So proud were the officers and directors of the way in which they had built, that the public was invited to inspect the new building. On this occasion, wise as these veteran financiers had been, men who all their business lives had known but one thing, finances, they had their eyes opened to the fact that sentiment is not lost, even amid the borrowing and lending of money.

Early in the morning of the opening day the florists' trucks of the city began to drive up to the doors of the bank with quantities of flowers from all parts of the country, all bearing cards of congratulations and wishing them prosperity for the future. One noticeable thing was the part played by the F. T. D. service. Nearly every city in the east was represented.

BANK OFFICERS CONVERTED TO FLOWERS.

The writer asked one of the officers of the bank what he thought of flowers for such an occasion. His reply was: "They are wonderful; they give a new spirit to the whole thing." These financiers, who had grown old amid what is considered the greatest power on earth, had no experience with flowers, except, perhaps, years ago when they sent a camelia for their wives' hair when they were courting, or more recently when the women folks were giving a dinner and they received the florists' bills to pay. These financiers were just as excited and nervous over the bank's floral offerings as any debutante at her first cotillion.

Now let's talk business. The first question I am going to ask the florists is: What are you doing to educate these business men in the greater use of flowers? There is just one thing that was responsible for the quantities of stock used at the opening of this bank's new home, and that is the education disseminated by the national publicity committee in popularizing the slogan, "Say It With Flowers." Are you doing your part? Are you contributing your just share to this cause?

When the sale of Liberty bonds was on there was a phrase: "Give till it hurts," and yet we all know that in reality we were just investing our money at a fair rate of interest. Those were the days in which we were taught thrift, and every dollar you invest in the systematic publicity of the greater use of flowers for business purposes is going to prove a better investment than the purchase of Liberty bonds. On occasions like the opening of this bank it is pathetic to see such people groping for the light. They are willing to learn and yet there is no systematic effort being put forth by the florists of this country to educate them. We never pick up a trade journal but we see an appeal from Henry Penn or John Young for funds to keep the national publicity of "Say it with Flowers" going. The half-hearted campaign the committee has been able to carry on because of the lack of funds, is looked upon as wonderful by publicity experts for the amount of business it has brought to the industry, and yet the surface has not been scratched.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.

Now let us use our imagination. Let us suppose a photograph of the interior of this bank on the opening day, with its immense baskets of fine roses, bunches and horse-shoes, for the latter were there in abundance. Many of these bankers in their ignorance thought that when sending flowers for such an occasion the emblem should be one representing good luck. They were like the employees of the proprietor of an oyster business; when he died the employees would have nothing but an oyster reproduced in flowers. But take the photograph of this flower-decked bank and reproduce it on one of the pages of the Saturday Evening Post, with such data as an expert like Major P. J. O'Keefe, of Boston, Mass., could supply. It would be money well invested.

The business man is always on the alert for good things; a hint is all he needs. Beautiful as this bank was, with nothing but the best grades of flowers used, admired by everyone, yet to the eye of a florist it fell far short of what it might have been. A case of southern smilax and a truck load of palms would have made a setting for these offerings that would have doubled its artistic effect.

THE CARNATION.

Carnations—Past, Present and Future.

Address by Albert M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa., Before the American Carnation Society at Hartford, Conn., January 25-27, 1922.

"Carnations—Past, Present and Future," sounds like and is a mighty big subject. Do not expect too much from the writer, for this will be more of a ramble than a continuous journey. It must have been in a fit of abstraction that I yielded to persuasion of your secretary to tackle this subject. At least it was not due to anything in the line of the old time wet goods, so we will have to blame it on the characteristic way your president and secretary have of getting what they want. They wanted a paper for this meeting; there were only a few of us at this Washington, D. C., convention and I was made the victim. Now, it's my turn at them and here goes.

God, in his wisdom, created the universe, and set mankind upon a little whirling ball, suspended in infinite space and surrounded by numberless worlds and suns, so that man might know how small he is against the background of all things. This is how I, a geranium grower, feel today in the presence of the divine flower, it's growers and hybridizers. I can, however, look back to many happy and profitable days spent with carnations and look forward to experimenting with their hybridization in the future.

To speak of carnations in the past is a misnomer as they have no past, being a strictly modern production. We only know that the carnation evolved from it's predecessors up to the point where it was noticed by man and brought to it's present state of development.

The past, for this paper, will go back to October 15, 1891, at 2 p. m., when Edwin Lonsdale opened the organization meeting of this society, which was the result of a call issued by C. W. Ward, 19 of us signing our names to it.

Sometimes in the hurly burly of success we forget the men who made that success possible. I am, if nothing else, a good Elk and believe in writing the faults of our fellow men on the sand and their virtues on the tablets of our hearts and memories. Before going any farther I want to call to memory two men of two distinct types but both carnation noblemen—Fred Dorner, Sr., and C. W. Ward. Mr. Dorner was perhaps, the pioneer in the present day development of the carnation, (a development that fortunately is being continued by Fred Dorner, Jr., with equal success). Carnation history will give you a long line of hard working predecessors, but Mr. Dorner gave to C. W. Ward a vision and with his means to carry it out we must give him credit for putting the carnation on the upward plane financially where it is today, as well as some wonderful developments in the line of hybridizing, developments that if followed up would no doubt, have given us some valuable additions by this time.

In those days the three great lights of carnationdom were Dorner, Ward and Fisher with a number of smaller lights, all worthy of mention and all or nearly all attaining results, some greater than others. To go back and recall these results is also a matter of history and today there are none or at least very few of their efforts in evidence. This business seems to be an ever changing one and because of this a fascinating one, yet it does seem a pity that the noble work done by your predecessors in a few years becomes merely a memory. Mr. Dorner at one of our meetings made the announcement that the life of a carnation was about six years. This has been exceeded in many cases with his own varieties but it is nevertheless true that varieties do not have long lasting qualities.

RESULTS OF FIRST MEETING.

Getting back to that first meeting the following resolutions were adopted: To improve the excellence of the flower; to improve the methods of cultivation and the methods of placing it on the market; to increase it's use as a decorative flower; to improve the methods of growing cuttings and plants as well as marketing the same; to infuse into the grower a more thorough understanding of the general rules of successful business management.

With very slight modifications these rules can be applied to the society and it's members today. In fact they might well be framed and hung up in your office, instead of that sign, "this is my busy day." If you would cut a little of that busy bee business and take a little time each morning to read over these resolutions before getting into harness, perhaps at the end of the year both you and your carnations would be the better for it. Another suggestion brought out at this meeting was the use of carnation foliage in offering flowers for sale. Of course, right now you need not offer anything, not even service, to sell them, but these conditions will not last forever, and the day will come when you must put forth some inducement to the consumer to buy your carnations. To any one who loves them nothing can be handsomer than a bunch of good carnations with several buds in various stages of development and some of their own foliage. The critical and artistic buyer will gladly pay the price if you are a salesman and come back time after time as regularly as the clock ticks.

Before leaving this first meeting we must not lose sight of the fact that three retailers gave a detailed report of what in their estimations was the ideal carnation, to serve as a guide for the grower and hybridizer. The gist of those recommendations is to strive for size, not too double but with center petals erect to avoid a flat flower. In color the colors to be decided and pure. They also made a plea for a light shade of pink that would go with made-up work and blend with other colors. This has since been obtained in the Enchantress type and colors, preceeded by Daybreak a grand variety in its day. I am not an advocate that all new ideas and all new things are tommy rot and not half so good as the old ones, but some of these old time ideas would work out better today than they did then and a few of them might and ought to be revived and this to my mind is one of them, a real recommendation from the retailer to the grower.

A paper of this kind would be incomplete without mentioning John Thorpe's prediction of carnations with 4-inch flowers on three foot stems and selling at $1 each. We have had a few of these but the demand for this class of stock is very limited. It seems that the medium sized flower of good color, with plenty of fragrance and good keeping qualities sold at a reasonable price, is the one that meets the popular demand.

In these first days of the society there was considerable groping for cultural knowledge and the meetings consisted of cultural papers and discussions, much of our present day knowledge being due to these papers and the discussions that followed. The social feature was developed very rapidly and many interesting incidents could be recalled, along this line. Just before a meeting in Chicago, the Florists' Club of that city wrote me to try and attend. I wired to E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., then a carnation enthusiast and an originator of no mean ability, to go with me if possible. Traveling by way of Richmond we arrived in Chicago about 6 p. m., attended the meeting, slept in a room with a poker game going on at our door, with four revolvers on the table to keep the game straight, but we slept all the same and early the next morning started for home. This is just a sample of the enthusiasm we had in those days.

Speaking of enthusiasm recalls a banquet we had in Toronto, Ont., where Wm. Scott was down for a speech and the toasts were all drunk in ice water. Sitting next to him, he remarked to me, "How can one work up any enthusiasm on ice water." Those were not ice water days. At another banquet held in Brooklyn, N. Y., a miniature war was put on with champagne corks as artillery and more than one full dress suit received a shower of champagne. Are we any better off today? I doubt it. According to John Westcot's theory we worked hard and we played hard, but times change and we are the cause, so "requiescat in pace."

Being in the "down east" district one recalls the names of Wm. Nicholson, M. A. Patten, Peter Fisher, E. N. Pierce, S. J. Reuter, C. Warburton and, of course, your own Wallace R. Pierson. All carnation enthusiasts in their time. These men were boon companions to R. Witterstaetter and E. G. Hill and others from the west and if we could have an account of their round table talks it would be both interesting and instructive.

Matters went along pretty smoothly until 1892, when we had our first scare from carnation rust, this scare continuing for a number of years, but better houses and better methods of culture has made it practically a forgotten issue. It is occasionally found today, in fact, I found recently a very good case of it on a novelty, but the grower considered it a minor matter. It is fortunate that it has died out before we started on our present day mad career of quarantines or there is no telling what might have happened to the carnation industry.

Coming down to present day varieties, it would be presumptuous on my part to attempt to do justice to either originators or varieties. They are here for your inspection and actions speak louder than words. I would like to do justice to your secretary, the present day Dorners, your host of eastern hybridizers, and some of the good varieties or recent introductions. At the first meeting the committee of retailers, consisting of John Westcot, Robert Kift and H. H. Battles, agreed that a good clear yellow carnation was badly needed. We have it today in Maine Sunshine. A good free blooming pink was needed and we Pennsylvanians think that our Henry Elcholz has given it with Lassie. The rest of the story is before you.

FRAGRANCE OF FIRST IMPORTANCE.

Hybridizers should attain first for fragrance, for a carnation without fragrance is a nonentity; substance, second; habit and freedom, third; size and color, last, and in the latter give decided shades as there is little call in our markets for fancy combinations. They should also aim to produce a good summer blooming strain of carnations, a strain that could be planted in gardens along with roses and other garden plants which, I believe, would add to their value as a cut flower with the public. Some years back it was thought that we ought to have a race of carnations that would make good pot plants, but to my mind we do not need these and they would not benefit carnation growing as an industry.

Next to the production of needed kinds, we should have in the United States a Carl Engleman to devote a good portion of his range for experimental purposes and make it the Mecca for carnation growers here that his establishment is in England. There is no end to the education such a place would be to our wideawake American growers. Publicity, like many other things, has been neglected by the American carnation growers and the Britishers are far ahead of us in this respect. We have plenty of the very best trade paper publicity, but what we want and need is Associated Press publicity, news notes and items of interest to the general public. Such items are always eagerly sought by the press and are of incalculable good if truthfully presented. Here are a few:

Messrs. Lowe & Shawyer, Oxbridge, Eng., with 130 acres of grass, have six carnation houses 43x276 feet, and have carnations growing in them for three years in succession, in full health and vigor, plants fully six feet high filled with buds and flowers of first quality.

Some room for discussion here. Carnation roots are known to have gone into the soil to a depth of 12 feet, showing conclusively that they are gross feeders. (This might be used as an argument for solid beds.)

In South Africa our winter carnations are a popular garden flower and new kinds, such as Laddie and Maine Sunshine sell for $1.75 per plant. We all know the publicity that Thomas W. Lawson gave to Peter Fisher and his variety, Mrs. T. W. Lawson. We know what a furor there was all over this land and how everybody wanted to see it. Any store that was fortunate enough to obtain a few for their window had an attraction that nothing before or since equaled. There is no reason why other meritorious varieties should not have similar publicity.

In 1891 the need of carnation growers was better business methods; in 1922 the same need exists, in fact, to a certain extent, a greater need exists today. The first step is to get the cost per flower of your production. This, of course, on account of various conditions, cannot be done to the fraction of a cent, but in a society with the scope this one has it ought to be practical to arrive at a fair average cost. This cost is absolutely necessary to arrive at a fair selling price. It is also necessary as a guide to individual growers for comparison. The man who can decrease it by fine equipment or better business methods will have just that much more profit. The man who would increase the costs would reduce his profits in proportion and he would know when to quit.

COST TABULATION IMPORTANT.

Cost tabulation has been discussed from time immemorial, but let me tell you that today is the time to stop discussing it and getting down to actual work. Cost knowledge is as necessary to the life of your business as the action of your heart is to your own life. Look back and see the prominent men who grew carnations under the haphazard system then in vogue and see how many have dropped out. Take a man like E. G. Hill, whom no one could accuse of not being a good businessman. Carnations for some years were a big feature of his business, but he was growing in competition with men who knew absolutely nothing about costs and today they are not part of his business. Today the carnation has some advantages over the rose as a great many of these carnation men have dropped it and taken up roses, the consequence being that carnations are scarce and roses too plentiful, but this condition is not going to last and the quicker carnation men can stabilize their business the better it will be for it and them. To stabilize it, cost comes first, then co-operation and cannot meet with the success that the til we have real co-operation we will carnation deserves.

When the wholesaler tells the grower not to grow a certain variety of carnation and the grower goes ahead and plants this same variety in quantity, then there is lack of co-operation on the part of the grower. When a wholesaler tells the grower to produce a certain kind which he knows can not be grown at a profit, then there is lack of co-operation on the part of the wholesaler.

When the retailer gets carnations for $1.00 per 100 and sells them for $2.00 and $2.50 per dozen, then the grower does not get his just share of the transaction, and his only remedy is to get an exorbitant price when the demand is below the supply and the retailer can not make his just share of profit. Any business man will tell you this is a wretched condition of business and that it will take real co-operation to remedy it.

To have real co-operation we must first get rid of that spirit of greed and selfishness that seems to have reached its culmination in the past four years. This thing of everybody for themselves and the devil for the hindmost will send the business to the gentleman in question just as sure as the sun rises. I was going to advocate that carnations should be advertised at a certain moderate price, say $2 to $2.50 per dozen, from September 15 to June 15, with prices doubled for special days, and then let the grower and the retailer get together on a wholesale price covering the same period. This, I am told, is not feasible, but like the man who is convinced against his will, I am of the same opinion still. I fully believe that the stabilizing of prices to the public and letting them know about it would build this business to wonderful proportions. It is a poor rule that has no exceptions, and this would, no doubt, run up against some exceptions, but these, if properly explained in your sales and advertising, could be overcome.

After all is said and done, it is the public who make or break a business. People will buy only what they want, when they want it, and at a price that they consider fair. With oceans of publicity you can sometimes create a demand and at all times stimulate a demand, but unless you can make your advertising absolutely truthful better not advertise at all. There is nothing will kill a business quicker than to use a finely worded advertisement and then not live up to the letter of that publicity.

In some of the national advertising now being done (I am not speaking of our own) the dealers are not living up to the wording of them and, as a consequence, the trade mark or slogan is a detriment rather than a help to sales. If we are not extremely careful to "Say It With Flowers" of the right kind eventually our slogan will lose its pulling power and that is a loss we all should work to avoid, for we have the best of them all.

Finally, this carnation society, to my mind, should be a combination of grower, wholesaler and retailer all working together for the advancement of the industry it represents. Every meeting should have a report from a committee consisting of three retailers, three wholesalers and three growers, one each from a different center, say Chicago, St. Louis, Mo., and New York, this committee to report on the high spots of the business for the year past and the weak spots as well and give recommendations for the year coming.

Following the Golden Rule will not grow carnations, but unless you are growing them as a hobby then you will want to make their growing a business. As a business following the Golden Rule is the only sure road to success. Every other business is coming more and more to recognize this fact; let us beat them to it. Carnations and roses or roses and carnations (which ever way you want to put it) are the staple cut flowers of commerce, and why should not the growers work hand in hand. I am not making any apologies for this paper, but I did hope to give you a little more than I have been able to do. The time I had set aside for preparing it was so full of other things that I could not devote the time desired. Any questions about old times that you have I will be glad to try and answer, and do not hesitate to knock. I have been secretary of too many things and too many years to mind criticisms or differences of opinion.

Kloosterhuis' Methods.

The Horticultural Trades Association of England has communicated the following to the British Nurserymen and Seedsmen of December 16, 1921.

E. Kloosterhuis, Jr., has set up trading in England as a rose specialist at Uckfield, Sussex. This might be quite all right, and Mr. Kloosterhuis might easily have become as respected and successful as any British-born trader, but unfortunately Mr. Kloosterhuis is not, in our judgment, acting at all properly. He seems to be hostile to the British nursery trade and endeavoring to injure the trade.

This is unfortunate, because we are informed that the Kloosterhuis firm in Holland is much respected by British nurserymen, and a British nursery firm actually got young Mr. Kloosterhuis his passport and vouched for him to the British authorities in war-time. After this it is difficult to credit the way young Mr. Kloosterhuis writes about the British trade to the trade's own customers. The executive council of the Horticultural Trades Association has reluctantly decided that Mr. Kloosterhuis' methods must be made public, and therefore we give below copies of two postcards which this trader has sent to private customers:

"November 14, 1921.

"Dear Sir—I'm much obliged for your inquiry. Can offer you the wanted 50 bush roses in good quality, budded on the best stock, seedling Dog Brier, for 55s., carriage paid. Cash must be sent with order. I beg to enclose herewith my full list. I sold the last fortnight over 3,000 bush and 500 standards to members of the National Rose Society. I used to grow and supply roses only to the trade, but since they charge so high to the retail, I try to supply at half price.—Yours faithfully, E. Kloosterhuis."

"November 18, 1921.

"Dear Sir—Thanks for yours of the 17th to hand. Don't you be misled by humbug of some nurserymen about British grown. Most of them sell for three-quarters of what they sell in roses, outside England grown. Mine are grown in a cold climate on the best stocks and on the best possible rose soil, and are perhaps better than them, so-called superior British grown. I have supplied the British trade for over 20 years with over 100,000 rose trees annually, but since they are charging so much money from the retail people, I try to supply at lowest price.—Yours faithfully, E. Kloosterhuis."

We directly challenge Mr. Kloosterhuis' statement that he has supplied the British trade "for over 20 years with 100,000 rose trees annually." We believe he is aged about 30, and he certainly was not supplying the British trade as a child! Before the war he was calling on British nursery firms for orders for the Holland firm. We also understand that he has been a cycle agent, amongst other activities. And when he talks about "the humbug of some nurserymen about British-grown" he is talking nonsense. If it is humbug, how is it that the Dutch horticultural expert, Dr. K. Tjebbes, tells everyone that the British are better?

EASTER DISPLAY AT GARFIELD PARK, CHICAGO.

We have already challenged Mr. Kloosterhuis last week in the trade press as to whether his rose trees are Dutch or British-grown, but he has not replied. And he has not replied for a very good reason. We now understand that he grows nothing himself, and that all his stuff is imported. Mr. Kloosterhuis may think the difference between British and Dutch roses all humbug, but his yellow price list was in the hands of a London drapery-store manager last week, and this gentleman asked a friend in the trade whether Kloosterhuis being Dutch, his roses also were Dutch, and on receiving an affirmative reply threw away the circular.

Last week we communicated with Mr. Kloosterhuis regarding his methods of business, and received the following reply:

"November 24, 1921.

"Dear Sir—Your letter of the 23rd instant reached my desk this afternoon, and I will explain to you about this rose matter, although I'm not in any horticultural association. I have been supplying rose trees for several years to the English trade and still supply large quantities to them. Now a lot of them have a kind of scheme out to kill foreign-grown roses in this country. You have only to look in the amateur gardening press papers; they style roses which are not grown in England 'foreign rubbish,' and I know in many cases that the firms who use similar cries to the buying public buy my roses, which are nearly all grown outside England, and I suppose they are selling them again to the public, as I don't think they use them to decorate their own nurseries with.

"Now I thought this autumn to give the public a trial with foreign grown roses, and I admit that my prices are not the double prices as what I charge the trade. Retail I charge 15s. a dozen for bush roses, and trade about 90s. per 100. Standard roses I charge retail 46s. dozen, and the trade 33s. I have not sold many roses to retail, though, as the large advertisers in my articles have made this impossible for me. If, however, these people keep on with running my roses down, I will another year not sell another plant to the trade, but everything shall go to the direct consumer. You, sir, are a secretary of a big association. I quite see your point, and I consider quite what I do myself.

"I should like to know why roses grown outside the British Isles are inferior to those grown within the United Kingdom. Mine are grown on loamy, sandy soil, the best ground for roses in general, and are in no way inferior to British grown. But if British nurserymen belonging to your association are misleading the public, and the public will get to know that they are tricked by their own countrymen under the mask of camouflage, patriotic advertisements and the results for these nurserymen will not be very profitable then.—I am faithfully, E. K."

If Mr. Kloosterhuis wants to know why foreign-grown roses are inferior to English-grown for English purposes, he should ask his fellow countryman, Dr. Tjebbes. And if he is wise he will not threaten the British trade. The British trade is quite powerful enough to take care of itself, as Mr. Kloosterhuis will find if he is so ill-advised as to continue in his present fashion. We think, however, that he will be more sensible and learn that it will pay him best to live in harmony with his British neighbors—who, after all, do not force him to live in this country with them, and we hope that in future he will make it unnecessary for us to allude to these matters again.

[We regret to add that practically the same conditions exist in the United States.—ED. AMERICAN FLORIST.]

National Publicity Campaign.

HAVE YOU SEEN THE WIND?

One time Ernest D. Hastings, the managing editor of the Dry Goods Economist, asked a man, "Ever have your hat blown off?" "Yes," said the merchant. "What blew it off?" "The wind." "Did you ever see the wind?" "No." Well, advertising is like the wind, an invisible force. You can't see it, but you can and will see the results, just as you see your hat go rolling down the street.

This incident in a nut-shell very aptly describes the power of advertising. Many people who never had much experience with the power of advertising, having at intervals now and then had occasion to spend a little money but who didn't keep it up long enough to feel its force may not be keen to continue in its support, but the knowing ones in the trade who have adopted its use cannot afford to drop it, and rather believe in using publicity to a greater extent than ever.

The publicity committee for 1922 has plans for a worth-while campaign and has accordingly sent out letters for subscriptions and the committee feels that those in our profession who have faith in the future of our business will unhesitatingly send in their quota so that our programme may make further progress.

National advertising is the dominant and outstanding feature of the "Say It With Flowers" slogan and helped to raise it to such prominence that many editors, writers and cartoonists use it as a text and which is worth many, many times over the amount we actually expended in the magazines to feature it.

To the thinking mind the use of national advertising need not be questioned but to those who have not delved into the problems connected with publicity there are many who feel that local co-operative advertising is all that is needed. But never was there more need for the national campaign to continue than at present, for there is no medium that can spread our slogan more uniformly over this broad land of ours than national magazines, so that everyone can get results unselfishly. While no one belittles the good of local advertising we must admit that it helps only in spots where the newspaper goes, but magazines are read the world over and the greatest good to the greatest number is served in this channel.

Hail Damage Widely Spread.

AT COUNCIL BLUFFS, IA.

The florists of Council Bluffs, Ia., again sustained great damage from a severe hail storm which passed over that city, April 6. The total loss is conservatively estimated to be over $50,000 and was the heaviest fall of hail to occur there in many years.

J. F. Wilcox was fortunate, with his extensive range of 750,000 square feet, to suffer a loss of only 500 square feet. Blaine Wilcox estimates that $1,000 will cover his damage. O. H. Herman practically lost all his glass. His range comprises 150,000 square feet and in addition all the stock was so hammered and beaten down by the hail, heavy rain and broken glass as to be practically worthless. He estimates his loss at $18,000. L. H. Reams lost 23,000 square feet of his 125,000 foot range.

Claud E. Hinman's damage in glass is 14,000 square feet at a loss of $6,000. Alfred Young's range was riddled to the extent of 17,000 square feet, his loss being $8,000. T. L. Lainson, was fortunate, losing but 500 square feet at a cost of $360, while Henry Myers estimates that $500 will replace the glass in his 23,000-foot range. The loss in stock was particularly heavy as all were well prepared for the Easter trade.

IN CHICAGO SUBURBS

A hail storm swept Elmhurst and Maywood at noon, March 10, doing some damage to the glass in that vicinity, but the total loss to the individual grower is not as large as first reported. A list of the damaged follows: Premier Rose Gardens, Wendland & Keimel Co., A. F. Amling Co., Wm. Spandikow & Sons, Herbert Amling, Hans Jepsen, Carl Hausermann, Proviso Floral Co., Meier & Dramm, Ernst Weiss, Wm. Wichtendahl, Kuhlmann & Wicht, Weiss & Meier, Henry Wehrmann, Hugo Luedke, Gust Swenson, C. Heston and the Oak Ridge Cemetery greenhouses. The growers consider themselves lucky in escaping with such small loss, considering the heavy storm, and while it is difficult to give the actual damage, it is safe to state all the above lost at least 500 lights of glass, and in some instances the figures will run into the thousands.

The W. G. Davis Co., at Aurora, lost 1,500 feet of glass by hail the same day.

AT BAKERSTOWN, PA.

The extensive greenhouse ranges of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., were badly damaged by a violent hail storm, on the evening of April 10. In addition to the great amount of broken glass the Easter stock of cut flowers was also badly damaged by the hail and falling glass.

Easter Displays in Chicago Parks.

The arranged displays of Easter plants in the Garfield, Lincoln and Washington park conservatories for the enjoyment of the public during April is quite up to the standard of former years.

In the Garfield conservatory the large, central oval was filled its entire length with Easter lilies, rising from a bank of single stocks, Begonia rubella, tall plants in full flower, white aculegias, pots of fragrant mignonettes, bordered with white hyacinths and Poeticus narcissi. The east side of the house was banked high with genistas beneath which were purple, large flowered cinerarias, daffodils, Soleil d'Or narcissi and Couronne tulips, all of which nicely arranged gave a wonderful color effect. The west side was banked with hydrangeas lilacs, Cineraria stellata, spiraeas, bordered with blue hyacinths in pans. At one end was a group of schizanthus and Easter lilies, while Tausendschon roses with baby rambler roses as a background and bordered with Murillo tulips in pans made a pretty showing at the entrance. The whole arrangement and color effect, with correct labels for each kind of plant, was a great credit to the park gardeners.

The large fern house with its magnificent cibotiums, some with a spread of over 20 feet, makes a beautiful tropical scene that is not duplicated anywhere else in this country.

The large show houses in Lincoln park were filled with hydrangeas, cinerarias, Primula obconica, Easter lilies and callas. A big, center bed of Lilium formosum with white schizanthus and another of roses in pots, with pans of Darwin tulips, interspersed for color effect, were conspicuous features.

Genistas, Perlagonium Easter Greeting, Amoena azaleas, Cineraria stellata, Primula obconica, yellow callas, large quantities of giganteum lilies, hyacinths and daffodils were the principal flowering plants in the Washington park conservatories. These were all artistically banked and arranged to get the best color effect, blocks of pink, white and light blue hyacinths being very striking.

The immense throngs who visit these Easter displays show that they are greatly appreciated.

National Flower Growers' Association.

CINCINNATI GROWERS.

While the weather which has greeted the growers of the Cincinnati branch of the Ohio District of the National Flower Growers' Association at each of their monthly meetings since the first of the year has been anything but pleasant, the weather, April 5, was ideal for a florists' meeting. Those who had preferred to pay $1 fine for missing the gathering changed their minds in about five minutes when a good hard down pour of rain descended upon them, and the meeting which was held at the plant of Frank A. Volz was minus only one member. Suffice to say we had a very interesting meeting from all angles. Several new members were admitted and blank applications were taken by some of the members which would naturally indicate that there are other applicants in view.

From reports of committees appointed to solicit subscriptions for the advertising fund it would seem that practically the entire city and suburbs had been canvassed. However, the out-of-town growers whose products are sold through the Cincinnati market do not seem to appreciate the value of advertising and are rather slow in joining. Surely they do not expect the Cincinnati florists to bear their burdens in this respect and we hope to hear from them before long. As will be noticed from the following list only two out-of-town florists have shown their willingness to help this cause along and we hope the wholesale man will take cognizance of this fact in pushing the sale of the stock he has to offer.

The following subscriptions were received since the last report: Jos. H. Hill & Co., Richmond, Ind., $50; C. E. Hawkins, Leesburg, Fla., $10. The balance are local subscriptions: Ray Lindsey, $3 per month; Geo. Mack, $5 per month; H. W. Shepperd, $50; Tromey's Flower Shop, $50; Louis E. Roth, $15; Wm. A. Berlier, $25; E. W. Rutenschroer, $25; Philip T. Popp, $25; J. C. Rutenschroer, $15; Wm. Rutenschroer, $15; Al. J. Horning, $15; Henry Koester, $15; Fries Floral Co., $15; C. J. Jones, $35; Ed. Schumann & Sons, $10; Ben Reidel, $10.00; Mrs. C. Witterstaetter, $15; Corbett Floral Co., $15; Herbert Greenschmidt, $10; Peter Herb, $10; Purtschly Bros., $10; Hardesty & Co., $60; Eck Bros., and Fred Gear, $50 each.

We were very fortunate in having with us in the evening Walter Stephens, president of the Ohio District, and his remarks were not only interesting but instructive. The Cincinnati growers took advantage of this occasion to inform Mr. Stephens that we would be a contender for the next state meeting, and if we are fortunate enough in securing it we expect to make a two day affair of the occasion, the first day to be devoted entirely to business, and the second day to be featured with a strictly florists' picnic at some private grounds.

Mr. Volz, at whose place the meeting was held, was given a vote of thanks for the 200 frogs legs which were part of his lunch menu.

Do not forget the next meeting which is to be at John Bruckner's establishment, 1135 California avenue, Bond Hill, Wednesday, March 3, at 2 p. m.

JOSEPH IMHOLTE, Sec'y.

New York Florists' Club.

The New York Florists' Club held its monthly meeting at the Engineering Societies building, April 10, President Roman J. Irwin in the chair. On account of the spring flower show there was no meeting in March, so Secretary Young read the minutes of the February meeting, which were approved. Arthur Herrington, manager of the recent New York spring show, stated that he had predicted, previous to its opening, March 13, that it would surpass any of its predecessors and his forecast had been amply justified. Secretary Young corroborated Mr. Herrington's statements and suggested that a flower show committee be appointed for 1923, the president announcing that he would appoint such a committee at a later date. Mr. Young brought out that the gross receipts for the exhibition were $77,145.73. As all expenses and premiums must be paid out of that amount, there will still be a snug sum left to divide between the Florists' Club and the Horticultural Society of New York.

Chas. H. Totty, speaking of the Fifth National Flower Show, at Indianapolis, said that it was the best the Society of American Florists had ever staged. Most of the credit for the successful transfer of the exhibition to Indianapolis after it was found that Cleveland was not available was due Geo. Asmus, of Chicago. Mr. Totty was impressed with the co-operation shown at Indianapolis, the liberality of the newspapers being exceedingly helpful. Secretary Young confirmed Mr. Totty's statement concerning the good work of Geo. Asmus. The secretary was impressed by the large attendance and the general interest displayed by the people of the city. He spoke in praise of the exhibition hall and referred to the loyal activity of the retail florists of Indianapolis. Arthur Herrington said that the success of the Indianapolis show seemed miraculous and he was greatly pleased with the exhibition building. He praised the loyalty of the Cleveland exhibitors who effectively assisted to stage some of the best exhibits. Mr. Herrington spoke highly of the rose and carnation displays.

A. M. Henshaw, who spoke for the Allied Florists' Trade Association, called attention to the mass meeting to be held in the Florists' Club's hall, Engineering Societies building, April 21, in the interest of co-operation and publicity.

In reporting for the annual club banquet, held in March, Paul Rigo stated that 257 paid tickets had been disposed of with a net profit of $36.15. The guests were taken care of by the club and A. L. Miller, of Jamaica, L. I., furnished the decorations. A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Miller and the banquet committee.

Wm. Savile, chairman of the exhibition committee, reported that a great effort would be made to have a good exhibit for the May meeting. A final certificate was awarded Carnation My Welcome, grown by Henry Hession, of Brooklyn.

Attention was called to the trip to the Society of American Florists' convention in Kansas City, Mo., next August, by Mr. Rigo, who urged members to make reservations with the special club party.

The secretary and treasurer read their annual reports which were accepted and a vote of thanks tendered the two officials. Percy B. Rigby, of the board of directors, also presented his report, which was approved. John Watson, Princeton, N. J., and others made interesting remarks.

The following were elected to membership in the club: F. Wittenberg, R. F. D. 2, Richfield, N. J.; C. F. Hagemann, 206 West 69th street; Harry Rapner, Milton and Flushing avenues, Maspeth, N. Y.; Fred Manker, Farming-dale, L. I.; A. Hotchkiss, Summit, N. J.; Vincent Hession Lenox Road, Brooklyn, and Henry Hession, Lenox Road, Brooklyn.

The proposed amendments to the by-laws were read by the secretary, to be voted on at the next meeting. Mr. Young notified the club of the death of Selah Van Riper, of East Paterson, N. J., and a committee was appointed to prepare suitable resolutions. The meeting then adjourned.

HEAVY SUPPLY OF EASTER LILIES

In spite of the quiet Lenten season business has kept up very well, flowers of all kinds being very plentiful. Carnations are exceptionally good. Violets are getting very poor. Plants and cut flowers are in splendid shape for Easter, the weather being quite a factor in holding stock back as it has been cold and cloudy the past week. It is said there will be an abundant supply of Easter lilies.

NOTES.

The formal opening of the Lamberton conservatory took place March 25, the park band furnishing music. John Dunbar has discovered the name of the mystery plant at the conservatory, which is acanthus or bear's breech.

W. L. Keller recently returned from Colorado having had a fine spring vacation.

Excellent red baby rambler, and Tausendschoen rose bushes are being grown at J. B. Keller & Sons' South avenue greenhouses. Peter Hess has given up his position and will do outside work on a private estate.

Geo. Cast is the manager of the new store recently opened by James Vick's Sons, 36 Exchange street. The force has been increased at the Stone street establishment to take care of the spring rush.

Several baskets of flowers were wired to Mayor Van Zandt upon the opening of the Fifth National Flower Show in Indianapolis, March 25, by Mayor Shank of that city.

The formal opening of the Union Trust Bank, March 27, called for a number of large, handsome baskets and quantities of American Beauty and other roses.

Horace J. Read, of Geo. B. Hart's, is spending considerable time on the road.

MARKET IN POOR CONDITION

The market last week was inclined to be rather slow except for carnations which held their own surprisingly well. Roses are poor sellers, the price received even on the fancy grades not being what it should be at this season. Bulbous stock is still plentiful and hard to move at any kind of a fair figure. Sweet peas are being held back for the Easter business but the supply has diminished considerably the past few days and consequently they are bringing better prices. The call is for the ordinary rather than the fancy stock as the cut flower trade is quiet. Funeral work is the only prop for the business at present.

Michael H. Walsh, the well known rosarian, of Woods Hole, died April 10. For further particulars see obituary elsewhere in this issue.

E. F. S.

SPARTA, WIS.—Lem Stevling, has purchased the greenhouses owned by Walter N. Ellis, East Montgomery street. The stock will be sold in this city by the Herbst Seed Store.

OBITUARY.

Michael H. Walsh.

Michael H. Walsh, Woods Hole, Mass., one of the world's most prominent rosarians, passed away April 10, in his seventy-fourth year. Born in 1848 at Wrexham, South Wales, of Irish parents, he, when only 12 years of age, was apprenticed for five years on a private estate. He then secured a position under Peter Middleton, gardener to Sir Watkin William Wynns, of Wynnstay, Raubon. Mr. Middleton was one of the best informed plantmen of his day.

Here Mr. Walsh became greatly interested in roses, which at that time were mostly of French origin. He also had access to the horticultural magazines of the day from which he acquired much valuable knowledge.

Emigrating to the United States in 1868, Mr. Walsh settled in Boston, Mass. His first position was as foreman on the Samuel R. Payson estate, Belmont, Mass. Five years later he became manager of the Strong greenhouses, at Brighton, Mass., which he later operated on his own account.

In 1877 Mr. Walsh became superintendent of the estate of Jos. S. Fay, Woods Hole, Mass., where, under favorable conditions he took up the culture of his favorite flower, endeavoring by cross fertilization to raise new and improved varieties, many of which were awarded prizes by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. With the introduction of the Wichuraiana species from Japan, Mr. Walsh began at once to cross on this the various hybrid teas and eventually worked up a new type of rambler roses that made him one of the foremost of the world's rosarians.

Mr. Walsh's leading varieties in this class are Lady Gay, Hiawatha and Excelsa, which have great commercial value as pot plants for the Easter market. Among other kinds of great merit are Delight, Debutante, Wedding Bells, Evangeline, Paradise, Minnehaha and a number that are not so well known. This class of roses became famous and are in great demand in England, where their blooming season extends over a period of from six weeks to two months.

As a grower of exhibition plants of rambler roses Mr. Walsh was unexcelled. His huge specimen plants in tubs, as seen at the national flower shows of Boston, New York and Philadelphia, Pa., were the features of these exhibitions, winning gold medals and highest awards. His roses also won highest honors at the National Rose Society's exhibitions, in England.

Mr. Walsh was a quiet, unassuming man who always welcomed visitors and gave them gladly of his experience.

Mr. Walsh was ill only a few days.

Robert Crawford.

Robert Crawford, well known florist of Philadelphia, Pa., passed away, April 9, following a stroke of apoplexy, age 73 years. He was the oldest retail florist, in point of service in that city, having established his business there in 1872, when he formed a partnership under the name of Groff & Crawford and opened a shop on Eleventh street, above Walnut street. Six years later he became sole proprietor and moved to 233 South Eleventh street, below Walnut street, where he purchased property and built a commodious greenhouse in the rear of his establishment.

Mr. Crawford was energetic, progressive and always on the job, taking great pride in his work and store. He was the first florist in Philadelphia to add an auto to his delivery, which was operated by storage batteries and was the only available car at that time. Some years ago he erected greenhouses at Secane, Delaware county, Pa., to supply stock for his shop. Although successful at first they eventually became burdensome and he leased the houses to a grower.

Mr. Crawford was of a genial disposition and popular with fellow members of the trade. His widow and two sons survive him. William, who was associated in the store will continue the business and Harry Crawford, with the Jos. G. Neidenger Co., of Philadelphia. The funeral services, April 9, were largely attended and the floral offerings were profuse and beautiful.

Charles Carlin.

Charles Carlin, for over 40 years a well known figure in the florist business, particularly the wholesale trade of New York, succumbed to an acute attack of bronchitis at his home, 12 West 102nd street, that city, April 9. Mr. Carlin was born in New York in 1847 and shortly after the outbreak of the Civil war, although but 14 years of age, succeeded in enlisting as a drummer boy in what was then the 77th New York regiment. He served throughout the war, his only wound being the loss of a finger.

Soon after his discharge from the army Mr. Carlin embarked in the florist business, operating for a time his own establishment. He was for several years with Alex. McConnell. About 1886 he entered the employ of Chas. Thorley, the well known Fifth avenue retailer, and it was as his buyer that Mr. Carlin became well known in the trade. He was so highly esteemed by Mr. Thorley that when he retired about four years ago Mr. Thorley granted him a pension. Throughout the wholesale district Mr. Carlin was noted for his straightforward honesty. He was a member of Wadsworth post, Grand Army of the Republic.

Thirty-four years ago Mr. Carlin married Miss Elizabeth Green, of Cornwall, N. Y., who, with a daughter, Elizabeth, survives him.

Selah Van Riper.

Selah Van Riper, proprietor of a range of carnation houses at East Paterson, N. J., (formerly Dundee Lake), died suddenly April 4 from a virulent swelling of the throat, aged 47 years. He had been ill but one day, and having been previously a robust man his sudden passing away was a great shock to his family and a large circle of friends.

Mr. Van Riper was born at Dundee Lake, and had always lived there, his father having been a prominent man in the community. The deceased owned valuable property and about 10 years ago took up the growing of flowers more as a pastime than a source of profit. He was quite successful and extended his activities into the commercial field, being in recent years particularly successful with carnations. He was a member of the New York Florists' Club and was highly respected by many who knew him. Surviving him are his wife and four children, the oldest being 14 years of age.

William F. Barkham.

Wm. F. Barkham, for nearly 30 years a grower and retailer of Ridgewood, N. J., died April 3, aged 72 years. He was a native of Thetford, Eng., and had been in this country about 50 years. Soon after arrival he was engaged as a gardener by the late Joseph Jefferson, the actor, and spent several years on his country estate. He also for a time was associated with John G. Esler, of Saddle River, N. J.

Mr. Barkham has been highly spoken of by those who knew him best. His wife died some time ago and left no children.

CEAR RAPIDS, IA.—The Kemble Floral Co., of Oskaloosa, has purchased the establishment of I. N. Kramer & Son, here.

CRESO, IA.—Harold Marshall and Stanley Marshall have leased the greenhouses of W. B. Perry and will continue the business.

CLINTONVILLE, WIS.—The Clintonville Floral Shop is the name of a new establishment recently opened here by the Behnke Greenhouses, of New London, Wis.

NORTH BERGEN, N. J.—The Union Florist Co., Inc., has been chartered. Jacob Mendelbaum and Moe Frankel, Jacob Mendelbaum and Moe Frankel, are the incorporators.

OTTAWA, ONT.—The Dominion Floral Co., opened an up-to-date flower shop on Sparks street recently. The firm's headquarters are in Montreal, Que., where it has two stores.

FOND DU LAC, WIS.—Andrew J. Brown, formerly of Ripon, installed a modern flower store in the Calumet hotel, April 1, with his sister, Miss Elsie Brown, in charge of the establishment.

ALLIANCE, O.—The Alliance Floral Parlors, Lexington Hotel building, held its formal opening recently. The store is operated by M. Whiteleather and wife with Walter Trott as manager.

GOSHEN, IND.—A new flower shop has been opened in this city by Van Aken Bros. Sons, Coldwater, Mich., with Hugh M. Van Aken as manager. This firm also operates a store at Elkhart, Ind.

MUNCIE, IND.—The Colonial Flower Shoppe, Mulberry and Jackson streets, had its initial opening, April 1, quantities of flowers being given as favors. Mrs. Roy L. Taughinbaugh and Mrs. Stewart Shideler are the proprietors.

ATLANTA, GA.—R. Irving Gresham recently purchased the entire holdings of the West View Florist, 115 Peachtree street, including the stock of the greenhouses and nursery. The style of the business hereafter will be, Gresham The Florist.

AUBURN, ALA.—W. C. Cook has resigned his position as manager of the College Greenhouses and instructor of floriculture and landscape gardening at the Alabama Polytechnic institute here, and assumed the management of the Rose Hill Greenhouses at Columbus, Ga.

THERE were 2,307 failures in March, 1922, against 1,500 in 1921.

WE are in receipt of the April bulletin of the American Dahlia Society, which contains much interesting information for dahlia growers and fanciers.

THE Blue Funnel and Japanese lines, operating between Vancouver, B. C., and the Orient, cut rates from $15 to $12 a thousand feet on lumber; on wheat from $6 to $5 a ton, and on general merchandise to an average of $2 a ton, indicating a rate war.

Personal.

J. J. Hess, of Hess & Swoboda, Omaha, Neb., and watch-dog of the Society of American Florists' treasury, celebrated another birthday anniversary this week.

New Tariff Bill Before Senate.

VALUATION.

The foreign value or the export value, whichever is higher.

If the foreign value or the export value can not be ascertained to the satisfaction of the appraising officers, or if the merchandise is not freely offered for sale in usual wholesale quantities in the open market of the country of exportation to all purchasers, then the United States value.

If neither the foreign value, the export value, nor the United States value can be ascertained to the satisfaction of the appraising officers, then the cost of production.

PROPOSED TARIFF ON BULBS.

Paragraph 751.—Tulip, lily, and narcissus bulbs, and lily of the valley pips, $2 per 1,000; hyacinth bulbs, $4 per 1,000; crocus bulbs, $1 per 1,000; all other bulbs and roots, root stocks, clumps, corms, tubers, and herbaceous perennials, imported for horticultural purposes, 30 per centum ad valorem; cut flowers, fresh or preserved, 40 per centum ad valorem.

NURSERY STOCK.

Paragraph 752.—Seedlings and cuttings of Manettia, multiflora, brier, rugosa and other rose stock, all the foregoing not more than three years old, $2 per 1,000; rose plants, budded, grafted, or grown on their own roots, four cents each; cuttings, seedlings, and grafted or budded plants or other deciduous or evergreen ornamental trees, shrubs, or vines, and all nursery or greenhouse stock, not specially provided for, 30 per centum ad valorem.

Paragraph 753.—Seedlings, layers, and cuttings of apple, cherry, pear, plum, quince, and other fruit stocks, $2 per 1,000; grafted or budded fruit trees, cuttings and seedlings of grapes, currants, gooseberries, or other fruit vines, plants or bushes, 30 per centum ad valorem.

GARDEN AND FLOWER SEEDS.

Paragraph 762.—Other garden and field seeds: Beet (except sugar beet), four cents per pound; cabbage, eight cents per pound; canary, one-cent per pound; carrot, four cents per pound; cauliflower, 25 cents per pound; celery, two cents per pound; kale, six cents per pound; Kohlrabi, eight cents per pound; mangelwurzel, four cents per pound; onion, 10 cents per pound; parsley, two cents per pound; parsnip, four cents per pound; pepper, 15 cents per pound; rutabaga, four cents per pound; all other garden and field seeds not specially provided for, 20 per centum ad valorem: Provided, That the provisions for seeds in this schedule shall include such seeds whether used for planting or for other purposes.

Paragraph 763.—Beans, not specially provided for, green or unripe, one-half of one per cent per pound; dried, two cents per pound; peas, one cent per pound.

GRASS SEEDS.

Paragraph 761.—Grass seeds: Alfalfa, four cents per pound; alsike clover, four cents per pound; crimson clover, one cent per pound; red clover, four cents per pound; white clover, three cents per pound; clover, not specially provided for, two cents per pound; millet, one cent per pound; timothy, two cents per pound; hairy vetch, two cents per pound; spring vetch, one cent per pound; all other grass seeds not specially provided for, two cents per pound: Provided, That no allowance shall be made for dirt or other impurities in seed provided for in this paragraph.

FIELD SEEDS.

Wheat, 30 cents per bushel; oats, corn and rye, 15 cents per bushel; mustard, one cent per pound; sunflower, two cents per pound.

Cottage Gardens Nurseries.

The bid of David S. Ward amounting to $15,000 for the personal property of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Eureka, Calif., bankrupt, was accepted by the creditors and confirmed by the judge of the Superior court, of Humboldt county, March 27. Two other bids were presented, one from H. Plath, San Francisco, of $300 per 1,000 for the rooted araucarias, and the West Coast Nursery, amounting to $3,000 for Group 5-7-11-12, consisting of ericas, conifers and broad leaved evergreens.

G. Vanden Abeele, receiver, is closing up the affairs of the defunct concern and reports that the only assets are open book accounts which he hopes to collect by July 1, at which time he will render his final account.

Hail.

Hail storms, an ever present menace to greenhouses, have been very severe and caused considerable damage over an extended area the past week. Florists in Council Bluffs, Ia., lost $50,000 in glass and stock. The growers of the Maywood district, adjoining Chicago, were also damaged to a considerable extent. Extending east to Bakerstown, Pa., the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. met with a severe loss in glass and damaged stock.

The visitation at this time, with the overstocked houses and the trade in the midst of its Easter rush, was particularly unfortunate and added greatly to the loss.

Wister Will Attend Iris Conference.

President John C. Wister, of the American Iris Society, announces he will sail for Europe next month, to attend the International Iris Conference in Paris. During his trip he will visit Switzerland, Italy, Holland and England, to secure material for a new lecture on "European Gardens," which will be illustrated with views of public and private gardens in these countries. Mr. Wister plans to make tours during the coming fall and winter, giving several different lectures.

School Gardens.

Geo. L. Stillman, dahlia specialist of Westerly, R. I., is heartily in favor of the plan to plant school gardens, and will give one dozen, choice dahlia bulbs, free of charge and prepaid, to every school maintaining a garden, if the order is received before planting time.

Cold Spring Predicted.

A cold April, with low temperatures continuing until July 1, accompanied by heavy rains and possibly snow, is the weather prediction made for spring by Eugene Dunning, weather prognosticator of Fort Dodge, Ia.

GOOD EASTER TRADE EXPECTED.

The week before Easter finds business slow, with a demand for only staple items suitable for funeral work, and with a supply large enough, but not too bulky to take care of it. Palm Sunday did not cause any extra call and finds the trade simply marking time before the largest flower day of the year. So far as the Easter trade is concerned, the business is there as the occasion is the one day in the year when everyone wants a few flowers, but the quality and quantity of the stock all depends on the weather. However, growers all report stock in good condition, but that remains to be seen, as quite often flowers that appeared good to the grower when shipped, were worthless when received by the commission man. Plantmen say a record demand has developed for their products and 10 days before Easter found this market sold out on almost everything. In cut flowers the advance orders seem to favor lilies and all kinds of corsage flowers. This market seems to be favored in the lily question, as it has been many a year since the quality was as good and the lily growers are to be congratulated. It seems as though carnations would be scarce as most growers were in crop about three weeks too early, but other items will be plentiful, and with prices right this should be the largest Easter on record, so far as volume is concerned.

RETAIL FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION.

The Retail Florists' Association meeting, April 6, was one of the largest on record. President Wessenauer presided and gave a few remarks on co-operation. Mr. Breitenstein, of Randolph & McClement's gave a very interesting talk on the blending of colors, and those who missed it certainly lost a treat. Mr. Breitenstein used flowers and ribbons, and gave practical demonstrations of color schemes that would be of benefit to anyone connected with the business. E. C. Tipton read an address on the "Retailers' Easter Rush," which appeared in last week's issue, page 583. President Wessenauer reported that the charter would be ready for the May meeting. Several members of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club attended the meeting and everyone voted it the best held for months.

FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB

The Florists' and Gardeners' Club had a most interesting meeting, on April 4, that brought out a large attendance and a display of plants and cut flowers. DeForest Ludwig told of the benefits gained by the retailer in attending the meetings, while Neal McCallum spoke from the gardener's standpoint. Mr. Weissman spoke at length on Darwin and Mendel's evolution. In the handling of his subject Mr. Weissman demonstrated that he knew what he was talking about. President Walley and E. J. McCallum made a few remarks on the Indianapolis show and Ex-President Barnett spoke on the New York show. It was announced that a capable speaker would be procured for the next meeting.

It is surprising the number of ladies who are in the business today. Those of the fair sex from out of town who were visitors last week and who are members of the Retail Florists' Asso-

STOCK SELLING ONLY FAIRLY.

Trade has been fairly active all week considering that we are still in the Lenten season. The great spring cut of stock seems to be on the wane with the exception of a few items. Fancy rose prices are being well maintained. Short stock however is too plentiful and goes out at low values. Mrs. Chas. Russell is the best seller followed with Premier, Columbia, fancy Hadley. Excellent Ophelia and its sports are in heavy supply and large offerings of Ward are reported. White roses are on the short side and Cecile Brunner is hard to obtain. If the warm weather continues Ulrich Brunner will probably be added to the list at an early date. Violets are a drug on the market, the first time in many years. Narcissi are plentiful but the end of the season is thought to be approaching. Price have advanced sharply for this stock. Carnations of all kinds are plentiful but only the fancy grades are bringing even reasonable figures. Red kinds including Rose Pink Enchantress move off with difficulty. Snapdragon is freely offered and cut giganteum lilies are scarce but pot stock is freely offered. Cattleyas are advancing in price due to the short supply and the same is true of gardenias. Sweet peas are quickly disposed of and the quality is excellent. A small number of anemones are seen which sell well. Pansies seem to be in good demand for corsage work. Tulip call has fallen off. Blue irises, in heavy supply, are being sold to the street merchants. Acacias and fruit blossoms are plentiful. Cut ericas are much used for funeral work. Rambler roses are scarce, the growers holding it back for Easter. This is good business, for the stores had stocked up on this popular plant so far in advance of the holiday that it would have been an effort to dispose of it if the supply had been continually heavy. In plants azaleas, ericas, primulas are expected to be in good supply for Easter. Cyclamens are about over. Aspidistras and nephrolepis move well as do aspleniums. Palms are not popular. Ferns and asparagus move well. Cut eucalyptus is being largely carried by the shops for decorative purposes. Wholesalers report advance orders for Easter as coming in freely. Indications point to a plentiful supply of all plants and flowers at reasonable prices for the holiday.

NOTES.

John McLaren, superintendent of Golden Gate park, will retire July 1, next. Under a new law all employees of the city are retired, with a pension, upon reaching 70 years. The services of Mr. McLaren will not be lost to the city, however, as the board of park commissioners has the authority to engage him in an advisory capacity as long as they see fit. His successor has not been appointed at this writing.

Made-up baskets of assorted cut flowers are moving well with the Art Floral Co. Mr. Matraia, of the firm, states that this is an easy way to dispose of quantities of flowers at good prices which would otherwise be thrown away. Lloyd Pritchard, of the store's force, is to be given credit for the idea.

The trial gardens of the Dahlia Society of California at the University of California, Berkeley, are being put in shape for the coming year's dahlia trials. The plantings will be doubled compared with a year ago and tubers are being received from all sections of the United States.

Karl K. Kitchen, noted eastern journalist, came here to interview Luther Burbank. Mr. Kitchen is to write a series of articles on Mr. Burbank's work in one of the leading eastern magazines and has left for Santa Rosa for first hand information.

Quantities of roses at the greenhouses of Ferrari Bros. are being cut for Easter. Giganteum lilies, lily of the valley, orchids and gardenias will be in heavy supply for the holiday.

Nels Peterson, San Mateo, carnation specialist, reports that his stock is in exceptionally good demand. He is said to be the largest grower of Ladiie in this section.

Luther Burbank will make the principal address at the opening of the show to be staged by the California Wild Flower Conservation League at the Palace hotel in May.

High grade Lilium giganteum and roses will be large factors in Domato Bros.' retail trade. This firm grows its own stock.

The shipping trade of J. A. Axell, wholesale commission florist, Bush street, is most satisfactory.

G. Rossi & Co. are supplying the bulk of the flowering fruit blossoms used here.

JAMES T. LYNCH.

STEADY DEMAND FOR STOCK.

There was a steady demand for cut flowers and blooming plants the past week especially for hospital trade and funeral work. Although prices are very moderate, there has been a good volume. An abundant supply of bulbous stock is on hand and the growers are pushing such items as jonquils, tulips and hyacinths. Roses in the shorter grades have been plentiful, but there is a limited supply of long-stemmed stock. Mrs. Chas. Russell, Premier and Columbia have been somewhat off color, owing to the dark weather which has continued, almost without intermission for the past two weeks. Carnations are selling better than for some time, and the stock that is arriving is of much better quality, with good stiff stems. Easter lilies have advanced to 40 cents per bloom, and they are quoted much higher for Easter week. Quality snapdragons and stocks are favorites. Callas are coming in heavily. Rainbow freesias are having a good call. Swainsona and fine sweet peas meet with very good demand. Darwin tulips appeared on the market the past week, and sell very well. The exceedingly warm weather the latter part of the week caused other kinds of tulips to open too quickly. Lily of the valley is in fair demand, but orchids move slowly. Spanish irises are arriving in small quantities. Pot plants are very popular, hydrangeas, Darwin tulips, jonquils and hyacinths leading. Asparagus, Sprengeri and A. plumosus are in heavy supply.

NOTES.

There was a delegation of 20 to the Fifth National Flower Show, at Indianapolis, from this city. Every florist, both grower and retailer, were represented, and pronounced it the best exhibition ever held. As one retailer said in describing the show: "It was wonderful and grand."

Cecil Max and wife have moved to this city from Decatur, Ind., and will make their future home here. Mr. Max is in charge of the carnation houses at the Vesey greenhouses. Mrs. Max was formerly Miss Sally Vesey, daughter of Judge W. J. Vesey.

Edgar Wenninghoff planned to attend the Fifth National Flower Show, but the Lenten demand kept him busy, and it was impossible for him to get away. He is showing a good variety of spring flowers, including French irises.

Saturday, April 8, was a busy day for the florists here, as confirmation services are held in all the Lutheran churches on Palm Sunday. Corsages were in very heavy demand and church decorations were most numerous.

A heavy demand for funeral work kept things humming at the Blossom Floral Co.'s shop last week. This firm in its three years' existence has built up an enviable trade equal to an old established firm. Preparations are under way for a large Easter trade.

The Flick Floral Co. has a large lot of Easter lilies which are timed just right for the holiday. Their bulbous stock is also in excellent shape. They are cutting some extra fine callas.

Everyone in the trade is anticipating a record Easter business, judging from the call the past two weeks, and the number of advance orders and inquiries by the public.

THE NEW JAPANESE KURUME AZALEAS

Unquestionably these new Azaleas are the most important flowering plants that have come forward since the introduction of the Lorraine Begonias and its types and the French Hydrangeas, and we believe they will in a short time due to the ease with which they are handled, their many varied colors and the satisfaction which they will give to the amateur become even more popular than these standard favorites.

The illustration here shown is a 5-inch pot plant, the photograph of which was taken just eighteen months after the cutting was inserted in the propagating bench. It is one of the plants that was shown in our exhibit at the International Flower Show at New York which attracted so much attention. This plant demonstrates the speed with which good salable plants with an abundance of flowers can be developed.

It will be noticed that with the exception of the variety Hinamayo introduced some 6 or 8 years since we are offering these new introductions under descriptive English names and not under the Japanese names under which they were imported. This may be open to criticism but in explanation of same we will state that the Japanese stock supplied to us was so badly mixed, 3 and 4 different colors having been supplied under one label so that identification was impossible. Furthermore, we believe the trade as well as the public in general will better appreciate the descriptive names under which we are now offering them.

YOUR ASSORTMENT OF EARLY SPRING AND EASTER FLOWERING PLANTS HAS BEEN GREATLY CURTAILED THROUGH THE EFFECTS OF QUARANTINE 37. YOUR CUSTOMERS COMPLAIN OF THIS LACK OF VARIETY AND SAMENESS. THE KURUME AZALEAS WILL HELP TO RELIEVE SOME OF THIS MONOTONY.

EARLY DEMAND FOR EASTER IS BRISK

The outlook is bright for a heavy Easter business for the early demand is brisk especially from out-of-town points and with favorable weather for the local retailers the market should clean up nicely notwithstanding the heavy supply of stock offered. Cut lilies are in large supply and in strong demand but the quality in many instances could be a whole lot better. Callas are quite a factor in the market this year and are finding ready buyers at the advertised quotations. Roses are in large supply and are selling nicely especially in the medium grades. Carnations are having a good call and fancy stock is bringing very satisfactory prices. Sweet peas are holding their own and the same holds true for orchids, lily of the valley, gardenias and violets. Tulips and jonquils find ready buyers and the heavy receipts of southern jonquils and narcissus are cleaning up right along. Mignonette is to be had in limited supply. Splendid lupines are included in the offerings together with colored friesias which are both good property this week. Snapdragons are in fine supply and daisies, calendulas, pansies and forget-me-nots help to break monotony where variety is desired. Pussy willows are in large enough supply to meet the demand. Greens are in good supply. The plant growers report a complete cleanup in stock this year at good prices and all that is needed to have the same report from the wholesale cut flower market is favorable weather for the home consumption. The local retail stores made a strong bid for business by their wonderful displays of both cut flowers and plants and everyone is confident that the total sales for this occasion will run considerably ahead of those of the same occasion for 1921.

HAIL DAMAGE

small loss, considering the heavy storm, and while it is difficult to give the actual damage, it is safe to state all the above lost at least 500 lights of glass, and in some instances the figures will run into the thousands.
The W. G. Davis Co., Aurora, lost 1,500 feet of glass by hail the same day.

NOTES.
Poehlmann Bros. Co. reports a very satisfactory demand for cut flowers for Easter with everything pointing to an increase in sales over those of the same period of 1921. The plant department at Morton Grove is well sold up and the supply department is busy filling rush orders this week.

YOU CAN ALWAYS RELY UPON US FOR YOUR SUPPLY OF CUT FLOWERS

Remember when ordering that our line is so complete that it includes every item offered in the Great Chicago Market.

Zech & Mann are having a strong call for cut lilies which they are handling in quantity not to mention all other stock in season. Fancy Darwin tulips, jonquils and string smilax are attracting the attention of the buyers at this busy establishment.

Wietor Bros. are cutting heavily in roses especially Premier and Columbia and are supplying some of the wholesale houses in addition to taking care of all their own customers. Carnations are also in good supply here and in strong demand.

Henry A. Zender, president of Peter Reinberg, Inc., was nominated as probate clerk on the regular democratic ticket April 11. Mr. Zender's many friends in the trade wish him victory at the next election.

Kennicott Bros. Co. received word from Alma this week that the jonquil crops were ruined by the heavy storm which also damaged the peonies to some extent. Lilac is arriving in quantity here.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are having their share of the Easter business and are supplying many new customers in addition to their old standbys. Bulbous stock is a big item at this house.

Leo Wietor, eldest son of N. J. Wietor, is back from a combined business and pleasure trip to Los Angeles, Calif., and reports having had a most enjoyable time all along the route.

Bassett & Washburn are moving a large quantity of roses this Easter and are pleased with the demand so far, especially from out-of-town points.

Fred W. Weber was here on business this week. Mr. Weber and Will Beyer have purchased the store of the Beyer Floral Co. at South Bend, Ind.

Fred Longren is home from another business trip and is spending his spare time on the wholesale market and his poultry farm at Des Plaines.

Vaughan's Seed Store reports both mail and counter trade very good the past week, the former showing some revival.

P. W. Peterson, of the Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, was here April 10 buying stock for his Easter trade.

The Joseph Foerster Co. is offering choice snapdragons in addition to its usual complete line of stock.

E. C. Pruner, representing Poehlmann Bros. Co., is back from a business trip through the southwest.

A. Henderson & Co. are running to capacity in their wholesale and retail bulb and seed departments.

The American Bulb Co. says demand continues active for all its spring specialties.

William Lubliner of Milwaukee, Wis., renewed old acquaintances here this week.

Frank Oechslein is operating seven trucks delivering Easter stock this week.

conspicuous feature and a wonderful success. There was an attendance of over 250,000 people. One of the publicity features was a motion picture of the naming of a rare tulip in honor of Mrs. Warren G. Harding. There was a mock clergyman and nurse to make the christening realistic, which made quite a hit when shown in the movies.

President Jos. Kohout told of his impressions of the Fifth National Flower Show, describing its artistic beauty and success financially. He also gave details of the meeting of the board of directors of the Society of American Florists and presentation of the society's distinguished service medal to George Ammus.

W. J. Keimel, president of the National Flower Growers' Association, reported that a meeting in Indianapolis of that body had selected Urbana, Ill., for its next annual meeting, on the second Tuesday in March, 1923, to be held in conjunction with the annual convention of the Illinois State Florists' Association. He referred to the gifts of 6,000 cut roses and 10,000 carnations contributed by local growers that were given away as souvenirs at Indianapolis, for which a rising vote of thanks was tendered the donors. Mr. Keimel stated that 160 of the trade in the Chicago district had attended the national show.

Robert Kift, of Philadelphia, Pa., spoke of florists' club matters and the recent Fifth National Flower Show, which he felt certain this city could more than duplicate in its artistic features, exceptional as they were, and easily pass in attendance.

Secretary Lautenschlager stated that a handsome Tiffany vase had been sent, with the congratulations of the Florists' Club, to E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., and wife on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary in March.

Allie Zech reported that a bowling team was now forming and members will commence practice after Easter.

The coming Pageant of Progress, to be held at the Municipal Pier next August, was discussed, the opinion being general with the members that, as the floral display had been such a feature last year, no charge should now be made for space. The matter was referred to the Allied Florists' Association.

The exhibition tables contained a display of very choice sweet peas staged by Hans Jepsen, who was given a standing vote of thanks by the club members. The following day the flowers were placed in the lobby of the Chicago theatre.

Tickets for ladies' night in May were sold in bunches of 10's with gattling gun rapidly by Mr. Waters, chairman of the good of the club committee, who saw to it that every member was supplied. After other routine business refreshments were served and the meeting adjourned.

Be sure that the name MEYER is on every spool of green Florists thread that you are buying, and you will get the original and best green Florists thread on the market. A great many of the salesmen on the road and the Florists' supply houses are substituting a cheap and inferior green Florists thread to take the place of the Meyer Green Silkaine and Florists' thread.

Therefore, if you cannot get the real article, send the goods back and order direct from the manufacturer and you will get the best. Guaranteed two ounces of actual thread to the spool, 16 ounces to the pound.

BRISK BUSINESS FOR MOST LINES.

The market has greatly improved the past week and an exceptional Easter business is anticipated by all the trade. Stock arriving is of very good quality. With the springlike weather and heavy rainfall of the past two weeks violets and wild flowers have come forward with great rapidity. Sweet peas are in heavy supply and the inferior grades hard to move. Roses, as usual, are in good demand, some excellent Mrs. Chas. Russell and Premier bringing $6 to $25 per 100. Other offerings include Crusader, Ophelia, Butterfly, Columbia, Sunburst, Mrs. Aaron Ward and White Killarney, the two latter kinds selling at $3 to $8 per 100. Carnations are moving slowly, excellent blooms going at $4 to $8 per 100. Laddie is out of this market. Orchids move slowly and cattleyas bring $1 to $1.25 per bloom. Cypripediums are on the short side and lily of the valley shows no change in price, the quality keeping up to its excellent standard. The last of the greenhouse violets were seen Saturday. Sweet pea demand is only fair but delphiniums are most popular at $3 per dozen. Double calendas move slowly. A very good call has developed for snapdragons, which are of excellent quality, long spikes, heavily laden with bloom bringing $2 to $3 per dozen. Cut jonquil stock is deteriorating but the pot plants are holding up well. White and yellow callas are selling rapidly. Stocks are in demand but Spanish irises scarcely move. Cut Easter lilies are going at $25 per 100 while the pot stock is selling at 25 cents per bloom, all good material. Asparagus Sprengerei, A. plumosus, adiantums, greens, leucothoe, galax, huckleberry, coontie leaves and other miscellaneous seasonable stock move without difficulty. The quality of the pot plants is improving, hydrangeas, tulips and roses being the leaders.

NOTES.

The Ayres Floral Co. is featuring a small oblong basket containing calendas, jonquils, Columbia roses and pink sweet peas. Excellent light blue delphiniums are one of the leaders.

The Mullanphy Floral Co. is showing an attractive window display consisting of light blue delphiniums, pink carnations, Columbia roses and callas.

EXCELLENT SUPPLY OF STOCK.

An excellent quality of stock is now arriving, spring flowers being in the greatest abundance. Lilacs are in full bloom, both white and purple. Tulips and all kinds of bulbous stock is not only on sale in pots but are blooming very freely outdoors. Roses are improving with no change in prices. Columbia, Premier, Richmond, Kaiserin, both white and pink, Ophelia, Ward are the leading kinds, values $4 to $8 per dozen. Carnations are still retailing at $3 per dozen. It is believed there will be an abundance of lilies for Easter as all the growers are well stocked. Pot plants are plentiful, consisting of cinerarias, cyclamens, hydrangeas, hyacinths, rambler and Dorothy Perkins roses, and numerous other items. All the stores seem to be busy. Street venders have appeared and are offering very pretty bunches of jonquils as low as 10 cents.

The Joy Floral Co., is opening a new downtown store in Atlanta, Ga., in addition to their other retail establishment in the suburbs of that city. The new shop will be amply supplied with stock from the firm's local range. Thomas Joy and Harold Joy attended the Indianapolis flower show last week.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held at the Chamber of Commerce building, April 10, President Fred Heintz in the chair. There was a very large attendance. The principal business of the meeting was the election of officers and the present incumbents, who have held office since the club's organization in 1911, expressed a desire to turn the affairs of the club over to the younger element and the following were elected for the ensuing year.

Edw. Cowan, president; C. G. Anderson, vice-president; Henry B. Henley, P. O. Box 202, Terre Haute, Ind., secretary, and Edgar Weber, treasurer.

A special committee was appointed, consisting of H. B. Henley and Fred Wunker, to find a suitable location for the large "Say It With Flowers" billboard, presented to the club by the State Florists' Association of Indiana. It will be placed on the National Old Trails highway, as near as possible to the Illinois-Indiana state line. The Richmond florists have agreed to place a similar sign near the Ohio boundary, so that people from three states will soon be welcomed by the "Say It With Flowers" greeting. The meeting then adjourned.

Edw. Cowan, who has been ill since Christmas, was able to be up for a week, but is confined to his bed again.

John Winter, of the Rosary Flower Shop, is recovering from a severe illness and is able to spend a short time at the store each day. B. S.

GOOD PRICES WITH SHORTENED SUPPLY.

There is a somewhat smaller supply of roses this week, due to the cold, stormy weather. Prices on short roses have taken another drop and are now selling at $6 to $8 per 100. Mediums and longs bring from $10 to $20. Growers are experiencing no difficulty in disposing of all their cut. Carnations are in demand at from $3 to $10 per 100. Sweet peas move well. Daffodils are selling at $6 and $8 per 100. Tulips and callas move readily. Some exceptionally good rambler roses are being offered for Easter, Tausendschoen and Ruby Queen being the leaders. They are being sold at $2 to $5 each. There is quite a large supply of Easter lilies, but indications are that they will not equal the call. Prices are 25 to 30 cents per bloom. Fine spiraeas bring $1.50 and $2 each. Four, six and 3-inch pans of hyacinths are selling well at 25 cents to $1.25. The quality is good, but the supply is short. Tulips are bringing 10 cents per bloom. A good offering of pelargoniums is obtainable. They are of fine quality, and sell at 75 cents each. There is only a limited amount of baby roses. Chatelaine begonias are also scarce.

NOTES.

Robert Miller, manager of the Miller Floral Co., returned home, April 2, from Indianapolis, where he had been acting as judge at the Fifth National Flower Show.

Sidney Lambourne recently purchased the floral department of Bailey & Sons Co. The business will continue under the same name. J. W. W.

DECIDE IMPROVEMENT IN TRADE

Local dealers report a decided improvement in trade during the past week or 10 days. Roses are the best seller and the supply is liberal with prices holding firm. Carnations bring good prices as do hyacinths. Funeral and party work is very brisk. Dealers say their supply of flowers probably will be sufficient to take care of the demand. Violets are practically out of the market now.

NOTES.

Growers say that they will not be seriously affected by the coal strike because most of the greenhouses have enough coal on hand to last them from two to three months. While the local mines report no supply on hand, the mines in western and northern Kentucky will continue operation.

Business seems to be active. Cut flowers and plants are plentiful and the retail trade is looking forward to a fine Easter.

NOTES.

This is an old and prosperous city and has many large industries. Some of the banks and other buildings on Broad street will compare favorably with those of any other municipality in the country. The centre market, while not a pretentious building, houses a great many dealers in necessary food-stuffs and growers of cut flowers and plants occupy outside space. We noted one seedsman who is located here.

James J. Plunkett, with previous experience in the business, opened a neat shop about two years ago in Branford place, Broad street, and has a pretty wife, whom he married last October, to assist him.

Phillips Bros., 938 Broad street, report good business. They have engaged their Easter plants and believe the holiday will prove profitable.

Fred Walpinger spent a delightful winter at Miami, Fla. During his absence Wm. Strachan was active at the store.

Geo. Penek, well known in the wholesale district of New York and this city, owns an attractive retail shop at 726

Broad street, opposite the centre market.

We found trade active at the Washington Florist, 577 Broad street. This store is always heavily stocked with cut flowers and plants. A. F. F.

Columbus, O.

EXCELLENT EASTER TRADE FORECASTED.

Trade during the first week in April was active in most respects. Orders are still numerous and in some cases they are larger, indicating a healthier tone. Roses, carnations, sweet peas, lilies of all kinds, snapdragons and summer flowers are selling briskly. Roses are of excellent quality, and the supply is adequate, prices ranging from $4 to $8 per dozen. Carnations are also good in quality. Snapdragons are especially fine and the same is true of sweet peas. Pot plants move readily, primroses, hyacinths and others being offered. Bulbous stock sells briskly and there is every prospect for a good Easter trade.

FLOWER GROWERS' AND DEALERS' ASS'N.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Flower Growers' and Dealers' Association was held at the Neil house Tuesday evening, April 4, with 14 out of a membership of 18 in attendance. Following a dinner there was a discussion of co-operative advertising for Easter and Mothers' Day and it was decided to advertise for both occasions. Subscriptions were received for the money to carry on the campaigns. Reports received showed that prospects for the Easter trade are unusually bright. The meeting then adjourned.

Walter Stephens, president of the Ohio District of the National Flower Growers' Association, attended meetings at Dayton and Cincinnati recently. The meeting of the Cincinnati growers was held April 3 and that at Dayton, April 5. Both were well attended and will co-operate actively with the state association.

S. F. Stephens & Son, florists at Greenlawn cemetery, has been busy selling bulbous stock. J. W. L.

TRADE HIGHLY SATISFACTORY.

Business the past week has been satisfactory, there being more demand than is usual just previous to the holiday. The supply in all lines has been above the average for the season, yet the call the last three days of the week cleaned up all sasonable stock, which, with the job lots of the street men swept the ice boxes bare. Prices are good for the season with orders coming in strong for all kinds of Easter cut flowers. The spring rose crop was never better, there being increasing shipments of very fine flowers. Carnation supply is ahead of last year and there is promised a full stock for the holiday. Snapdragon is excellent. Calendulas, stocks, white and yellow daisies and other small flowers are offered freely. Larkspur is exceptionally fine. Callas and Easter lilies are plentiful. Cattleyas are on the short side. Lily of the valley is expected to be able to take care of all holiday demands and white lilacs will be plentiful. Sweet peas will be a strong factor with a wonderful supply of high grade stock. All indications point to an immense Easter trade, the growers being practically sold out a week ago. Immense shipments, by large auto trucks, have been going out all week to Washington, D. C., Baltimore, Md., Wilmington, Del., and other cities as well as consignments by express. Monday and Tuesday were delivering days to the city stores and it is really remarkable what a tremendous lot of stock is moved in these two days. Extra help and the furniture vans that are now available are great factors in this rapid delivery. The department stores are all handling quantities of stock and making displays in their main aisles where special sales are generally featured. At one time flower shops greatly feared this competition as they largely advertised Easter lilies at the prices the trade had to pay for them, using them as a bait to draw people. Their stock, however, is generally sold out by Wednesday or else is passe and not salable and hence does not come into competition with the flower stores whose great demand is from Wednesday on.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING.

A regrettable feature of the April 4 meeting of the Florists' Club, brief account of which appeared in last week's notes, was the comparatively poor representation of retailers present. There were features presented that would have been of great interest to them. A splendid display of well grown Easter stock, accessories by dealers in supplies and the wonderfully energizing and inspiring address by Charles Henry Fox whose practical demonstrations in arranging cut flowers and up to date ideas in store management made his address the most beneficial to this branch of the craft that has ever been given before the club.

NOTES.

The sympathy of the trade goes out to Mrs. Robt. Crawford and family in the death of Mr. Crawford. In his earlier business career he was a great factor in the local retail trade. Always progressive and energetic he was the first in this city to add an auto car to his delivery service and was prominent in every movement for the advancement of the trade. Further particulars will be found in the obituary column.

"This will be our biggest Easter," said Robt. Craig, Jr., as he paused for a moment in the immense packing shed, which was stacked with selected orders from end to end, all in various stages of preparation. "We have never experienced such a demand and best of all of our stock is equal to it."

Edw. Reid reports they always have all they can do and he believes this season will be no exception as they have a larger variety of Easter stock than ever before. "We will be particularly strong on high grade roses and sweet peas," he said.

The Leo Niessen Co. prepared for and expected a large Easter business but the advance orders now make it look like a record breaker. High grade roses,

The April 1 meeting of the Florists' Club was given over to a flower show with seasonal exhibits by local and other growers who sell in this city. The exhibitors and their offerings included: Wm. Hannell, Watervliet, roses and hydrangeas; Holmes Brothers, begonias, tulips, and hyacinths; Ansel Carpenter, Cohoes, Easter lilies; George E. Nagengast, Easter plants; Fred Goldring, Slingerland, Spencer sweet peas; Henkes Brothers, Newtonville, carnations; Fred A. Danker, this city, roses, hydrangeas, tulips, and marguerites; H. E. Eberhardt, Schnectady, Colonial bouquet; James H. Snyder and Ethan Coon, Rhinebeck, violets. After the show the exhibits were sold to the retailers present and the proceeds, $145, added to the club treasury.

Many florists took advantage of the invitations of several of the growers in the city and vicinity to visit their

SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT IN TRADE.

There seemed to be a slight improvement in business last week compared to the previous one. The prices of tea roses and carnations were firmer, April 8, but the best specials of American Beauty roses went slowly at $60 to $75 per 100. As usually is the case it was the special teas that were slowest in movement compared to the shorter grades. An immense volume of sweet peas continues to arrive and while the better grades sell fairly well the inferior stock can hardly be sold. Lily of the valley is worse than slow, much of it standing still. In cattleyas, while there is some movement in the top grades the small and inferior blooms keep holding over and necessarily do not improve with age. Gardenias also clutter up the market and the call for them is light. Cut Easter lilies and callas are heavy arrivals. The cool weather keeps Darwin tulips in fair condition and good ones sell. In addition to huge stocks of asparagus yellow narcissi are coming in from the south. Violets, stocks, snapdragons, pansies and other miscellaneous seasonable offerings help to swell the supplies.

April 10.—There is considerable buying this morning. A number of retailers stated that Palm Sunday brought a great deal of business. At this writing it is uncertain what the condition of the market will be for the remainder of the week. The weather suddenly turned warm, April 8, and today there is almost summer heat. The supply, already heavy, particularly in tea roses and sweet peas, is likely to be greatly increased.

FLORISTS' MASS MEETING, APRIL 21.

The mass meeting of florists and allied trades, under the auspices of the Allied Florists' Association, full account of which appeared in last week's issue, page 586, will be held in the Engineering building, 33 West Thirty-ninth street, near Sixth avenue, April 21, at 3 p. m.

NOTES.

Phil. McManus, for over 50 years with the American Railway Express Co., celebrated his 79th birthday, April 4. For the past 35 years his duties with the company were delivering violets to the wholesale trade. All this is preliminary to saying that Mr. McManus gave a party on his birthday, at which J. R. C. Christie, head of the express company, and J. Hoffman, chief of the freight department, were guests. To properly impress on Mr. McManus the high esteem in which he is held by the wholesale florists, a subscription was started and the neat sum of $178 was given Mr. Christie, who exchanged it for an American Railway Express check and presented it to him at the party. From personal observation we can say that Mr. McManus is as active as most men of 25 or 30 and goes about delivering violets as one of the boys. Long life to popular Phil. McManus!

The general trend of business is up-town but there are yet good downtown floral establishments. Calling recently on J. Bergonzi & Co., 35 McDougal street, we found much activity and good features in design work. Mrs. Bergonzi seemed to be the leading spirit of the store.

ered from his recent illness and his shop is a busy place. He had a large amount of work for the funeral of S. K. Hodgdon, late head of the booking department of the B. F. Keith vaudeville exchange.

H. L. Bantleman, an old timer in the florist business, keeps busy at his Yonker's range and nursery. His flower shop at 1875 Amsterdam avenue is conducted by Mrs. Bantleman and members of the family.

Chas. A. Dard returned home, April 7, after an extended tour to India. During his absence the store did a good business under the able management of Mr. Perry, trade being brisk at the present writing.

A. T. Bunyard's retail shop, Madison avenue and 48th street, is very attractive and his business was good the past week, window boxes moving especially well.

One of the prosperous stores of the Madison square district is that of L. Gluck, Twenty-third street at Lexington avenue.

Exceptionally fine callas are being brought to the Cut Flower Exchange by Bruno Pladek, Elmhurst, L. I., grower.

N. Christatos' flower market, Sixth avenue at 58th street, is showing many good features for the Easter trade.

Geo. E. M. Stumpp is stocking up with many attractive plant features, roses being noteworthy.

A large stock of pot lilies for Easter was seen at the Myer store, 611 Madison avenue, April 8.

J. K. Allen, in the Eighteenth street market, is receiving quite a lot of southern gladioli.

L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J., has returned from his trip to Honolulu.

TRADE IS OPTIMISTIC.

Trade has been quite heavy during the past week, funeral work being especially good. April thus far has been a better month than March. Dealers now are looking forward to Easter trade and believe it will be as good if not better than it was last year.

NOTES.

Florists were especially busy during the past week furnishing flowers for the funeral of Mayor Benjamin Bosse, who died April 4. Designs at this funeral represented an aggregate cost of more than $5,000, it is said, and were the finest and largest in number ever seen at a funeral here. The dealers had plenty of flowers to fill all orders, although some of them early in the week ordered stock from other cities in order to be on the safe side. For several days and nights two policemen were stationed in the cemetery to protect the flowers from vandals who wanted to carry them away as souvenirs.

Florida Meeting.

The Florida State Florists' Association, and the state horticultural society will meet at Lakeland, May 3-5, with an interesting programme.

PASADENA, CALIF.—City Manager C. W.
Koener was the recipient of eight dozen pink roses from Mayor Samuel L.
Shank, of Indianapolis, upon the opening of the Fifth National Flower Show in that city, March 25. The order was executed by Siebrecht's House of Flowers, this city, through the F. T. D. service.

NEWARK, N. J.—Phillips Bros., who presented Mayor Breidenbach with a basket of choice roses with the greetings of Mayor Shank, of Indianapolis, Ind., on the occasion of the opening of the Fifth National Flower Show in that city, March 25, published the F. T. D. telegram in the local newspapers, occupying 5 x 7 inches, which was quite a publicity event.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.—The Stiles
Floral Co.'s bankruptcy assets were offered April 1, and knocked down at $25,000 to parties said to represent interests friendly to Stiles. A. S. Gray was the contesting bidder. By reason of this competition it is believed the creditors will receive twice as large a dividend as they would have received from the advance bid.

The next annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 19-20, 1932.

CINCINNATI, O.—J. Chas. McCullough returned from Palm Beach, Fla., last week.

WESTERN seedsmen report improved mail order business, and brisk counter trade.

THE family of W. Atlee Burpee, Jr., of Philadelphia, Pa., is now in Paris, France.

DELTA, UTAH.—The J. G. Peppard Seed Co., of Kansas City, Mo., is now operating here.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district are becoming scarce with yellows at $3, whites, $2.75 and reds $2.

FORTY thousand tons of sodium nitrate will be sold by the war department at auction in Washington, April 13.

THE thirty-eighth annual convention of the Western Canners' Association will be held at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, April 14-15.

BOARD OF TRADE.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade this week were as follows: Timothy, $5.25 per 100 pounds; Red Clover, $15 to $22.

HOWARD M. EARL, of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y., is in New Foundland and eastern Canada, looking over the seed trade of that territory.

VISITED NEW YORK: L. M. Kimberlin, of the Kimberlin Seed Co., San Jose, Calif.; Thos. W. Chisholm, representing the Braslan Seed Growers Co., San Jose, Calif.

THE quality of the seedmen's stocks usually is better early in the season than later, which is one reason why the farmer should make his seed purchases early.

A WEST Michigan seed house filled a 30-car order for peas to the Russian relief organization. Other large orders were filled in northern New York and from Newark, N. J.

IN the outlying northern localities of the forage-sorghum seed areas, more of the amber sorgo is used than of all the other kinds of sorgo combined. In fact, in Minnesota, Wisconsin, and South Dakota there is almost no demand for orange sorgo.

JOHN BODGER, of the John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, Calif., and Mrs. Bodger, arrived at New York from Europe on the S. S. Aquitania, April 7, and were welcomed home at the dock by Alexander Forbes, of Newark, N. J. Mr. and Mrs. Bodger expect to leave for California the latter part of the week.

THE republican members of the senate finance committee by a vote of seven to three adopted the foreign valuation plan rejecting the American valuation plan proposed by the house.

VISITED CHICAGO: A. J. Brown, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich.; L. D. Waller, of the L. D. Waller Seed Co., Guadalupe, Calif.; W. L. Hamilton, of the Madison Seed Co., Manitowoc, Wis.

IN the east business generally is good. The mail order trade, however, is not up to expectations. Counter trade is quite satisfactory, notwithstanding the unsettled weather. The jobbing trade is very good.

GUADALUPE, CALIF.—L. D. Waller, of the L. D. Waller Seed Co., who celebrated his birthday anniversary in Chicago last week on his way east, has been elected trustee of the magnificent new high school here.

NEWARK, N. J.—J. J. Wilson reports the early spring business as encouraging with a strong demand for vegetable and grass seeds. Alex. Forbes & Co. have received many good orders and counter trade is quite brisk.

W. F. THERKILDSON, formerly of Philadelphia, Pa., and more recently with Critchfield & Co., advertising agents of Chicago, is reported to have severed his connection with that concern to engage in a North Carolina land project.

NEW YORK lettuce seed is now selling at $4 to $4.50 per pound in the Los Angeles, Calif., market, and is expected to go higher. This lettuce has been short a great many years, and sold as high as $7.50 a pound in Los Angeles a few years ago.

ATLANTA, GA.—The Georgia state board of entomology has awarded a contract to the Sherwin-Williams Co. to furnish calcium arsenate to the state during 1932. This chemical compound has been recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture as the only sure method of control for the boll weevil. A bond of $25,000 was required. Orders from farmers will be turned over to the company for shipment. The maximum price to be paid by the farmer will be nine cents a pound.

Canners' Seed Peas.

Mixed or impure stock, under modern methods of harvesting and handling the pea crop for canning may result in the introduction of undesirable seed which may ruin the entire output of a canning factory, says the United States Department of Agriculture. The canner should buy direct from the seed-growing seedsmen rather than from a jobber. Particularly in the case of smooth Alaska peas, which furnish 55 per cent of the canned peas on the market, there is risk taken if a canner buys seed the history of which can not be traced. The canner is in a much safer position if he buys only from seed growers who control their own stocks.

To be a good canning pea a variety must, first of all, be productive; all plants must ripen uniformly; all pods on individual plants must be in usable condition at one time—that is, none must be too ripe or too immature; the peas must remain green after processing. The introduction of the viner, which eliminates hand picking of the pods, has had a decided influence on the varieties of peas used for canning.

The return on a planting of peas for seed is far less than that on either corn or tomatoes, two other important canning crops, and the utmost care is necessary throughout the growth of the seed crop to discover and weed out undesirable types of volunteer plants or those due to warehouse mixture, so as to keep the stock uniform.

The seedsmen sows about three bushels of peas per acre, getting a return of 15 bushels. Three of these must be kept for stock seed, leaving 12 bushels to sell. The eastern grower for the cannery plants four or five bushels to the acre, so that the average seedsmen's acre of peas supplies about three acres for the cannery.

An acre of corn yielding 40 bushels would provide seed for 100 acres of canning crops, and an acre of tomatoes yielding 100 pounds of seed would plant 1,600 acres in canning crops. With this small relative return per acre, the seedsmen must take every precaution to maintain the purity of his stock, or he may run the risk of very heavy losses if he loses his reputation for good seed. It is safest for the seed-growing seedsmen not to purchase seed, especially of the Alaska variety, in which impurities can not be detected in the samples, unless he controls the original stock.

Cabbage Black-Leg.

SEED TREATMENT IMPORTANT FACTOR.

Cabbage black-leg is a fungous disease of increasing menace among growers. Its spread through a field can often be traced to infected seed. Many experiments have been tried by investigators in the United States Department of Agriculture for the treatment of cabbage seeds, which have proved the impossibility of entirely eradicating the fungus from infected seeds by any of the ordinary fungicides without reducing the germination and causing injury to the seedlings.

Studies in controlling this disease are described in Department Bulletin No. 1029, on "Seed Treatment and Rainfall in Relation to the Control of Cabbage Black-leg," by J. C. Walker, pathologist. These studies have furnished proof that when the seed is exposed during wet periods to rain or is carelessly sprinkled, the infection spreads with great rapidity.

Under dry weather conditions the disease can be effectively controlled by soaking the seed for 30 minutes in a solution of mercuric chloride made by dissolving one ounce of mercuric chloride in four gallons of water. The seed should be treated in a wooden receptacle only and after treatment should be rinsed in clean water. In view of the fact that seed treatment reduces the number of primary centers of infection and that it is also a preventive against the black-rot disease, it should be practiced. The limitations to success in the control of black-leg by seed treatment should be recognized, however, and special attention given to securing disease-free seed.

Department Bulletin No. 1029 is available on application to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

BALL'S WHITE ASTER

The seed of this splendid Giant Aster of the Late Branching Type—the product of twelve years' selection to develop the ideal of a perfectly double flower, of flawless color—was offered in 1921 for the first time.

The flowering season comes between the Royal and Late Branching types, filling in between the early and late glut of flowers. It grows to a medium height with full, distinctly centered blossoms, ideally formed for long distance shipping. The seed of this Aster is about two-thirds the size of ordinary varieties. It is sold in 1/4-ounce packets, containing about 4000 seeds at 1/4 oz., 75c; 1/4 oz., $1.35; 1 oz., $5.00.

The forty-seventh annual convention will be held at Detroit, Mich., June 28-30, 1922.

MISSOURI planters are increasing the grape acreage.

J. HORACE MCFARLAND, of Harrisburg, Pa., addressed the City Club, Chicago, April 7, on important phases of city beautiful work.

PASADENA, CALIF.—The Avocado Nurseries has been incorporated with a capital of $100,000. Dr. H. B. Stonebrook, W. B. B. Taylor and C. H. Stonebrook are the directors.

"The Olive in Arizona" is the title of a bulletin just issued by the experiment station at Tucson, showing the growing of olives started there on a large scale, the climate having proved suitable.

MIDDLEVILLE, GA.—The Georgia Nursery Co., was recently incorporated with a capital of $8,000. The organizers of the firm are Terence Treanor, L. C. Hall, J. M. Morgan, Geo. Tunnell, Sam L. Patterson and J. L. Beeson.

SEDALIA, MO.—The officers of the Missouri State Horticultural Society recently made arrangements with the State Fair officials here, to set aside two acres of land at the fair grounds to be used as an experimental nursery. Every person who supplies stock will be permitted to place thereon his placard and name plate. The plan has great publicity features.

Arbor Day.

J. Sterling Morton inaugurated the first Arbor Day in "treeless Nebraska" in 1872. At first the date was April 10, but later the legislature changed it to April 22, Mr. Morton's birthday.

The Late F. H. Stannard.

F. H. Stannard, president of F. H. Stannard & Co., Ottawa, Kans., died March 30 after a brief illness. Mr. Stannard was well known in the trade, and a member of the American Association of Nurserymen and the Western Association of Nurserymen.

Brown Tail and Gipsy Moths.

The quarantine of the United States Department of Agriculture against the brown tail moth and the gipsy moth has been amended, effective January 1, 1922, by transferring the towns of Fitzwilliam, N. H.; Royalston, Athol, Phillipston, Templeton, Hubbardston, Rutland, Paxton, Leicester, Mass., and Narragansett, R. I., from the lightly infested area to the heavily infested area.

Clara Barton Memorial Tree.

A memorial tree will be planted for Clara Barton, founder of the Red Cross, Easter Sunday, April 16, at Glen Echo, Md., where she passed away. The programme will be in charge of the American Forestry Association, assisted by school children and patriotic organizations. Miss Barton was born on Christmas day, 1821, and the ceremony will also be in the nature of a centennial celebration.

White Pine Blister Rust in Washington.

The United States Department of Agriculture, federal horticultural board, announces that as the result of a recent hearing, held at Washington, D. C., the state of Washington will be quarantined against the white pine blister rust (Cronartium ribicola Fischer), effective on and after March 15, and no five-leaved pines, currant or gooseberry bushes, will be permitted to move interstate from Washington, under the regulations of Quarantine No. 54. The area will be restricted to the counties of Clallam, Clarke, Cowlitz, Grays Harbor, Island, Jefferson, King, Kitsap, Lewis, Mason, Pacific, Pierce, San Juan, Skagit, Skamania, Snohomish, Thurston, Wahkiakum and Whatcom, lying west of the crest of the Cascade mountains, provided the state establishes and enforces control measures in co-operation with the government, the secretary of agriculture reserving the right to extend or reduce the area above designated.

Advertising and Selling Nursery Stock.

Three per cent of replies from nursery catalogues and circulars is a good average. If the returns are less than three per cent something is wrong with the advertising. This is the experience of Nelson A. Coons of the Rhinebeck Floral Co., Rhinebeck, N. Y., as given to the class in nursery practice at Massachusetts Agricultural college, Amherst. Mr. Coons' address on "Advertising and Selling Nursery Stock" came at the conclusion of the nursery practice course, held January 2—March 10, and gave the students some valuable points on this important subject. He said that all advertising must do four things: (1) Attract attention; (2) arouse desire; (3) convince the mind; (4) stimulate action.

Advertising by catalogue is one of the well known methods in the nursery trade, but a large part of such publicity is wasted as the catalogues are not properly written, well printed or intelligently distributed. Small timely circulars, well worded, will often bring the largest amount of business. Every catalogue must be written from the buyers' point of view not so as to appeal to a nurseryman.

Advertising either by catalogue or other methods produces various kinds of results. For example, it establishes good will, creates acquaintances, identifies the products, prevents substitution, creates demand, produces sales, and eliminates time in the creation of a market. Of course not all advertising does all these things at once, and it is important for the advertiser to know which one of these objects he has in mind. The creation of acquaintances is especially important in the nursery business.

In sending out advertising it is important to consider first the appearance, which must be good. All catalogues and other printed matter should be handled by the best expert printers. Cheap work is money wasted. The time to send out advertising is very important. The best time is seldom during the planting season. The time to advertise roses is when roses are in bloom. Everybody is then interested.

PERSONAL CORRESPONDENCE EFFECTIVE.

Correspondence is also a very important means of selling nursery stock. Form letters may be used, but personal letters are much more effective and should be made distinctly personal. Trite, stale formulas should not be used. Every selling letter should contain the four advertising elements already enumerated viz, attract attention, arouse desire, convince the mind and stimulate action.

Personal salesmanship is also a very important means of disposing of nursery stock. The best place for a salesman to sell stock is on the grounds where it is to be used. A salesman must be keen and well informed and must know his nursery stock. When he arrives on the grounds with a prospect he must attend to the following points: (1) Determine conditions; (2) analyze the attitude of the customer; (3) get the customer's point of view; (4) attract attention to his goods; (5) meet and anticipate all objections; (6) state his price carefully; (7) close the sale quickly.

In conclusion, Mr. Coons stated that the poorest way to sell stock is to enter into a price cutting competition with other nurseries.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, April 11.—Cucumbers, per crate, $3.50 to $5; head lettuce, per crate, $2.50 to $3.50; carrots, $3.50 to $4 per barrel; cabbage, $1.75 to $2.25 per crate; cauliflower, per crate, $1.25 to $1.75.

New York, March 31.—Cucumbers, $1.75 to $4.25 per basket; radishes, per basket, $1.50 to $2.50; tomatoes, per crate, $1.25 to $3; lettuce, per crate, $4 to $5; beets, per hamper, $1.50 to $2.

Asparagus Prices.

During the first half of March about 75 to 80 crates of California, and about 15 or 20 crates of Georgia asparagus were received at New York in small lots. The demand has been unusually good and the stock realized very high prices. There were four grades of the California stock and it sold at $24, $30, $36 and $40, respectively, per crate of a dozen bunches. The quality was very good for first arrivals. The Georgia asparagus sold at $12 to $25 per dozen bunches, according to size.

Vegetable Movement.

WEEK OF APRIL 2-8

All markets are being liberally supplied with new vegetables. Heavy shipments continue in potatoes, sweet potatoes and apples. Other cold storage products are nearly exhausted. The generally ample supply has caused slight to moderate declines in potatoes, new onions and celery.

Eastern apples are bringing higher prices in consuming centers and cabbage values advanced in certain cities. Other staple supplies show little change in price compared with a week ago.

Marketing Specialists' Examinations.

The United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., announces an open, competitive examination for associate marketing specialist (warehousing), June 30. Vacancies in the bureau of markets and crop estimates, United States Department of Agriculture, for duty in Washington, or in the field at salaries ranging from $2,400 to $3,600 per year, and in positions requiring similar qualifications will be filled from this examination, unless it is found in the interest of the service to fill any vacancy by reinstatement, transfer or promotion. Both men and women are eligible. Applicants should apply immediately for Form 2118, stating the title of the examination, to the commission, at Washington, or secretaries of local civil service boards. Applications will be received by the commission, in that city, until the hour of closing, June 30.

The commission also announces a similar examination for assistant marketing specialist (warehousing), May 10, at salaries ranging from $1,620 to $3,600 per year. Applicants should apply at once for Form 1312, to the commission, at Washington, or secretaries of local civil service boards.

Paterson, N. J.

On a recent visit we found the retail florists quite active and looking forward to a good Easter business.

NOTES.

J. Smith has two good stores, one at 113 Market street and the other at 229 Market street. At one of them we found an old acquaintance as manager in the person of Harry S. Cocks, formerly with David Clarke's Sons, New York.

With two local shops and one in Passaic, as well as various other local interests, Edw. Seery is a busy man. A good season has been enjoyed at all his establishments.

Arthur G. Vescelius, son of the late Arthur I. Vescelius, is operating the extensive retail business left him by his father.

There is much regret over the death of Selah Van Ripper, April 4. Further details will be found in the obituary column.

Good stock was seen at both of the Thurston Floral Co.'s stores. It was said that trade was brisk.

The Silk City Florist Co. is conducted by former New York men and seems to be doing well.

THE EASTER TRADE.

Business Exceeds Expectations.

In view of the continued depression in many industrial lines and the warm, rainy weather which was prevalent throughout the country the two weeks preceding the holiday, the Easter business of the florists far exceeded the expectations of the trade, both wholesale as well as retail. Rambler and other rose plants, in many cases, proved more popular than the lilies, the latter, however, being in good demand. Pot stock and cut flowers were generally of fine quality and in most cases ample to supply the needs of the trade, the cut stock furnishing excellent substitutes where the plant offerings were insufficient. Madeup baskets of both classes of stock, reasonably priced, sold well. Bulbous stock was more than plentiful. Fairly good specimens of rhododendrons, azaleas and other plants formerly imported from abroad were popular. Corsage bouquets were in heavy demand, in spite of the poor condition of violets, sweet peas and other flowers used in their makeup. Telegraph orders were numerous, but less in money value than in some former years. The sudden change to bright weather, Saturday, which continued through Easter, brought the public to the stores en masse and many centers experienced record sales for the two days. Some of our early reports are presented here-with:

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—With the total cash receipts amounting to about 50 per cent more than a year ago and no decline in prices the trade is surprised and gratified at the great business accomplished. Lilies, hydrangeas and spiraeas were the most popular plants and made-up baskets sold exceptionally well. The offerings of some stock were a little short. Sweet peas seemed to be the most popular cut flower but no complaint was registered about the sales of other stock. The weather was excellent and the public seemed in better spirits, due no doubt to improved business conditions.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—A greater volume of business than in 1921 is reported by the wholesalers and retailers, with all prices being well maintained. Easter lilies were the best sellers, and with the exceptions of rhododendrons and heathers, which sold exceptionally well, other plants were scarce. There were not nearly enough cut flowers to go around, roses and sweet peas leading. Some high priced made-up baskets were sold but those at a lower value generally had the call. Telegraph delivery business was very heavy.

NEW YORK.—From a huge supply of stock that had been accumulating for several days the trade was amply supplied with all kinds of stock at prices slightly lower than a year ago. Cut flower offerings were more than sufficient, lily of the valley, sweet peas, lilies and roses, except white, meeting with a good demand. The call for snapdragons and common tulips was very poor. In plants, rambler and other rose plants were the best sellers, lilies not proving as popular as in former years.

BANGOR, ME.—Adam Sekenger reports an excellent demand for all stock with the gross receipts 50 per cent more than the previous year, while the values obtained for individual items was a great deal better. Cut flowers moved well, except tulips which seemed to drag. Sweet peas sold better than in many previous years. In plants, rambler roses and rose bushes were the leaders and a shortage was noted in lilies, which brought 50 cents per bud and bloom.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Gude Bros. Co. reports a record business with the cash value of all stock sold 10 per cent greater than a year ago, price levels being well maintained. In cut flowers the call was excellent except for carnations, and the supply of violets was exhausted early on Saturday. Lilies led in plants, but everything with a bloom on it sold well. There was an exceptionally heavy telegraph delivery business.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—With a greater volume than in 1921, Henry Smith advises that the prices obtained for individual items averaged 15 to 25 per cent less. Cut flower offerings were amply sufficient for all purposes, stock going well, except carnations. Pot lilies were on the short side, other plants selling up closely. The weather was excellent and the stores were crowded all day Saturday.

PITTSBURGH, PA.—Wholesalers and retailers report good sales on all stock, with the demand for cut flower offerings being slightly better than a year ago at 1921 prices. The poor quality of the sweet peas and violets were the only factor that kept sales from making a record in this class of stock. The best call was for corsage flowers. Many more plants could have been disposed of and all kinds were popular.

BOSTON, MASS.—The volume of business was 20 to 30 per cent less than in 1921, with individual prices on certain items showing a decline. The supply of cut flowers was far in excess of the demand, carnations, lilies and snapdragons proving to be a glut. Roses and corsage flowers were the most popular. In plants the medium priced stock went the best but the large specimens were a drag.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—With a complete clean up of all stock the Joy Floral Co. reports the volume was fully equal to that of 1921, while the actual cash receipts declined about 20 per cent. In pot plants the supply of lilies was not equal to the demand. Cut stock was very popular, roses and lilies leading in this class. The trade was superb and the florists are well satisfied with the results.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Abele Bros. report that the volume of business decreased about 10 per cent, compared with 1921. Prices for separate items were slightly lower. Plants did not sell nearly as well as a year ago and the very warm weather brought the outdoor flowers in competition with the greenhouse product. Lilies and carnations were the most popular of the cut flower offerings.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—J. B. Keller & Sons' cash returns were fully equal to 1921, with no reduction in prices. In plants rambler roses and lilies went well, the supply of stock, however, being sufficient for all purposes. Sweet peas, and Mrs. Aaron Ward roses for corsages were good sellers and other roses and spring flowers needed no urging to move them.

COLUMBUS, O.—While the total money value of the stock disposed of was 15 per cent less than in 1921, the volume showed no falling off. The demand for plants was good, hyacinths and jonquils leading. In cut flowers, roses took the lead followed by sweet peas, snapdragons and lilies in the order named.

OMAHA, NEB.—Cut spring flowers sold well with Hess & Swoboda, although carnations did not go as good as hoped. Any well grown plant proved popular and baskets up to $15 sold, those from $5 to $12 being quickly disposed of. The value of all sales was 12 per cent greater, prices for separate items remaining the same.

LAWRENCE, KANS.—A. Whitcomb & Son say that prices were better than last year, although the volume of business fell off 10 per cent. Plant offerings were sufficient for all requirements, lilies proving the most popular, while hyacinths dragged. Roses, daffodils and carnations were in great demand as cut flowers.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—The total sales in money value greatly exceeded those of 1921, with no change reported in prices. The supply of stock was about 25 per cent greater, roses being the only item that ran short in the cut flower offerings. Orchids followed in popularity, being used chiefly for corsage work. In plants everything sold.

Easter in the New York Stores.

Gone are the days when one could write a thrilling account about new and rare plants. Even our seasoned orchid beauties no more regale us at banquets with stories of their adventures, for the simple reason that they have nothing new to tell. It is true that the scientists who go into the jungles of South America do bring back some plants but they are not exhibited in show windows. Plant Quarantine No. 37 has, so to speak, nipped a lot of good stories in the bud and yet there is always a chance for excitement in hunting Easter plants in this city. If one can safely dodge the automobiles there may be an opportunity of seeing a gun battle between the police and bandits.

Dropping romance and coming to actual conditions it can be said that while little has been noticed that was rare or novel there was an exceptionally fine display of Easter plants. All the retail stores, so far as we could observe, had large stocks of all the best obtainable offerings in plants.

It is probable that the pink rambler roses attracted more attention and more buyers than any of the other features, one reason being that there were more of them. We have grown accustomed to ramblers trained as airships and in other more or less fantastic forms, and yet there is always a pleasure in seeing a beautifully flowered rose plant in any form, and many were observed in the stores that were stocked for the Easter trade. Tausendschon, Dorothy Perkins, baby rambler and other kinds were prominent and in fine condition.

Hydrangeas occupied large space in practically all the establishments and were of good quality the pink, blue and white blossoms, giving variety to the collections. Acacia plants were more numerous than in former years, all the leading stores having well flowered specimens, which attracted a great deal of attention. Genistas in a variety of sizes and finely flowered were noteworthy. Azalea indica has not loomed large in the trade since its importation was stopped, yet there were a number of fairly well flowered plants to be seen, but their beauty did not warrant the prices asked for them. Many of the smaller Japanese specimens were effectively used in basket and hamper combinations.

Easter usually brings forth a good showing of Marguerite daisies and this year was no exception. Large as well as small plants were noticed and some specimens of the former brought high prices, considering that the daisy is not a novelty. A considerable stock of heathers in medium sizes was on the market and was largely used in combinations. It may be said that as a decoration, what was once the lonely pussy willow, has come to be an institution. No retail shop is completely stocked without it. As a matter of course there were quantities of lilies and the general quality was better than in former years. With so many gay colors to attract the eye, we doubt if lilies are as popular as they formerly were, nevertheless they will always have admirers.

A noteworthy feature amongst the offerings was the large stock of hyacinths in pans. Taken as a whole, we cannot recall ever having seen such large and well flowered stock. Many Darwin tulips in pans were also attractive as were quantities of lily of the valley. A number of the stores had fine plants of Bougainvillea Sanderiana.

There were plants in some establishments that are seldom seen except at the holiday seasons. Of these, geraniums, fuchias grown as standards and well flowered calceolarias were prominent. While there were many attractive combinations in baskets and hampers of medium and small sizes, under present business conditions, few retailers would take the risk of making up a large number of expensive ones.

Geo. E. M. Stumpp, Fifth Avenue and 58th street, had a splendid display in rambler roses, genistas, acacias, lilies and other seasonable plants. Among the roses was a new and attractive dark pink, Jacquet, grown by Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J.

At N. Christatos' Flower Market, Sixth Avenue and 58th street, there was an exceptionally fine display of all seasonable plants.

Very fine combinations of plants in unique and handsome baskets were shown by Irene Hayes, Inc., Park avenue at 74th street.

Hession, Madison avenue and 76th street, had a wonderful collection of the popular plants and plant combinations. Pink spiraeas were a notable feature as were fancy baskets tastefully arranged.

The best in plants and a collection of orchids were prominent features at the Chas. A. Dards establishment, Madison avenue at 44th street.

David Clarke's Sons, 75th street at Broadway, had a fine stock. This establishment, having quite a family trade, reported a considerable call for plants as early as April 13.

Their usual holiday record for the best in plants and flowers was fully sustained this year by Malandre Bros., Broadway and 72nd street. Pink rambler roses of large size, acacias, genistas, hydrangeas, spiraeas, azaleas and other offerings were especially noteworthy.

Kottmiller, Madison avenue near 49th street, arranged what we would call a picture window. A large frame covered with gilt magnolia leaves was fitted into his show window, the frame being the same dimension as the glass, the rear being curtained off with light material. Baskets of small plants and vases of cut flowers were placed in the window space in a way to resemble as nearly as possible the arrangement in a picture.

Choice plants were artistically arranged by the expert hands of Peter Lambos, the owner of the Olympia Florist, 3799 Broadway and attracted a great deal of attention.

Easter in Chicago Stores.

Easter, probably the first in importance of the floral holidays of the year, the culmination of six months of hard work for the grower, and for which season the progressive retailer plans for months in advance, was this year quite the equal of any that have gone before and we trust as profitable. The principal stocks were the regular Easter specialties, Easter lilies, rambler and baby rambler roses, hydrangeas, genistas, deutzias, cinerarias, marguerites, Vernon type begonias, quantities of hyacinths, Darwin and other tulips and daffodils in pots and pans. Lily of the valley of high grade in pots and pans was also a feature.

All the stores made a great bid for business, stocking up to the limit of their capacity with plants to meet the requirements of their trade. The central city stores in their various displays offered some exceptionally fine specimens of rambler roses and plant baskets these latter being very well filled and elaborately decorated with ribbons.

The greater part of the week preceding Easter was very unsatisfactory to the retail trade, being chilly and wet. On Saturday, however, the weather was all that could be desired and this, continuing on Easter Sunday, gave the florist all the business that could be handled to advantage.

A. Lange's commodious Madison street store had every foot of available space on the first floor and basement packed with stock of high quality which in variety contained all the Easter specialties. Step stages added valuable space containing banks of lilies and rambler roses. The lily pots were all covered with crepe paper tied on with an inch wide silver tape which gave a fine finish. Made-up plant baskets in variety were a feature. Well flowered specimens of Paul's Scarlet Climber and white Dorothy Perkins attractively decorated were show plants. The large show windows were elaborately decorated one with cut flowers and the other with plants and plant baskets.

Schiller's two stores were never better supplied. At their elegant north side conservatory there was a very large assortment of Easter plants each of which without exception was in some way featured more or less elaborately as its importance demanded. Both the store and conservatory presented a beautiful sight in their artistic groupings of decorated plants. There are few establishments that enjoy the facilities for display to be found in this well lighted store and large adjoining conservatory. Their west side Madison St. store and greenhouse also contained a splendidly arranged stock each pot of which as is the rule here having its appropriate decoration. Easter lilies, each plant in an ornamental fibre pot, were a feature. Bulbous stock was noteworthy particularly Darwin and other tulips and hyacinths in pans and boxes decorated with mats and ribbons. At both stores an extensive use was made of the little cotton chicks which perched on twigs stuck in the pots, boxes and baskets were right in keeping with the season. Eight and 10-inch pans filled with dwarf flowering begonias and other miscellaneous foliage and flowering plants were labeled French gardens. These decorated with mats and a chiffon bow were just the thing for the moderate buyer.

The George Wittbold Co., in their elegant shop and adjoining conservatory, offered a high class stock. Handsome specimen Lady Gay rambler covered with well opened clusters were a feature. Other rambler roses, hydrangeas, well flowered Easter lilies, marguerites, neat wooden post corner boxes filled with Darwin tulips and large quantities of other bulbous stock together with a good assortment of plant baskets were the headlines of this elaborate display.

In its south Wabash avenue establishment the Alpha Floral Co. displayed a fine line of rambler roses, elaborate plant baskets and boxes and an extensive assortment of bulbous stock in tulips and hyacinths. Their plant baskets were beautifully decorated with ribbon in good color effects. Pots of lily of the valley were especially featured.

The Bohannon Floral Co., 75 East Monroe street had made use of every available foot of space by means of step stages which were filled with the choicest of market plants and elaborate made-up plant baskets, all of which were artistically decorated with ribbon and chiffon. The large window, in its arrangement of specimen plants, was very effective. Several good sized trees with twiggy branches covered with artificial tree blossoms gave a good decorative effect to the rear of the store.

Mangel's Palmer House shop contained on the entire length of a step stage an elaborate display of the best the market afforded. Exceptionally well flowered rambler roses and Indian azaleas that are now quite rare were prominent as was a fine assortment of hyacinths, tulips and pots of lily of the valley. The window had an artistic setting in which neatly printed cards admonished customers to order early.

The feature of the George Wienhoeber stores were their choice Lady Gay rambler which in umbrella forms and other shapes together with elaborate ribbon decorations were very striking. There was a large assortment of all other plant stocks as well as handsomely arranged baskets.

Lily of the valley was a strong feature of the fine display of Easter plant stock offered by H. N. Bruns at his West Madison street store. As seen in its pots, pans and boxes artistically decorated, it was a most acceptable Easter gift. There was in addition a well arranged assortment of all the standard flowering plants and bulbs.

At the commodious show house and greenhouses of the Ernst Wienhoeber Floral Co., 22 East Elm street, in the residential district, high class stock in rambler and baby rambler roses together with an assortment of well arranged plant baskets were features. Boxes of metal, painted in solid colors of green, white yellow and blue, that held 25 flowering bulbs were very striking. A few well flowered azaleas added to the assortment.

A very well selected and high-class stock was offered by the Central Floral Co., 132 North State street. Rambler roses in assortment, Easter lilies in quantity, flowering bulbous stock in boxes, lily of the valley and a line of well arranged plant baskets were the prominent items. All were nicely decorated with ribbon and well arranged for quick selling.

The immense show windows of Henry Wittbold & Son's store, 75 East Adams street, were most conspicuous with their wealth of Easter plants and cut flowers, arranged to also give a good view of the interior of their large shop, which was filled to the limit with well selected Easter plants. A feature was a large central pyramid of Easter lilies while at the sides, large banks of plants in assortment rose almost to the ceiling. Bulbous stock in boxes and plant baskets were seen in quantity.

At 520 South Michigan avenue, the Congress Flower Shop displayed made-up plant baskets, hydrangeas, rambler roses, bulbous stock in pans and boxes, lily of the valley, etc., all of which was arranged to the best advantage. The flower case was filled with a choice assortment of roses and other seasonable stock.

Walter Kreitling & Co., 77 East Van Buren street, had their shop filled with a varied line of which rambler roses, Easter lilies, hydrangeas and bulbous stock were the prominent features.

There are many other important establishments in the residential business centers, which, for lack of space, could not be covered in this article. In nearly all of these there was a full, well featured stock, which, in its beautiful display, emphasize the fact that flowers are indispensable for the proper celebration of Easter and there is no question but that those who made the proper bid in featuring the event in well selected stocks and their publicity found their business satisfactory.

Penn's Easter Advertising.

The quarter-page advertisement, Easter, of Penn The Florist, Boston, Mass., in the photogravure section of the Sunday edition of the Herald, of that city, was very striking in its close-up illustrations of Easter cut flowers and plant baskets. Low and high extremes of prices were given in connection with the illustrations, making the story complete. It was most effective advertising in every way.

LA PORTE, IND.—Ove Gnatt is on an eastern trip.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

The next six weeks are the money makers to the progressive florists who take advantage of the low priced quality stocks, with which the markets are now filled, to feature and extend their business. Selling flowers is a science some florists appear to have it born in them but as a matter of fact it is the result of carefully thought out plans which are tried this way and that, always with a vigor and determination to make them succeed. The flowers are bought to be sold, the stock turned over quickly and always to the satisfaction of the customer.

Everything is done to make the store attractive and inviting both outside and in and present the stock in the best possible manner. There is always a good assortment at prices to suit all purses and nothing is too much trouble to bring about a sale. There must be enthusiasm and best of all a bright smile, which, with a cheery good morning puts the customer at ease and makes the visitor feel at home.

This is the wedding season which will continue with more or less regularity through May and June. It will pay to feature these social affairs in the many ways possible. Keep in close touch with your trade, particularly in social events donation of flowers to hospitals or other institutions in which they are interested or charity bazars, etc., which is certain to create good will.

Prepare for the summer window box campaign. See that you set a good example with elaborately filled boxes over the show window and also underneath on the pavement. A line of bark covered, or painted, wooden boxes and terra cotta should be featured. To be successful the idea is to be pushed vigorously the slogan being, "The City Beautiful."

Keep things moving with special sales, featuring one kind of flower today with another tomorrow always something different, or old favorites presented in a new way. It is the first impressions that count, like the headlines in the newspapers which attracts and hold the eye until the story gets across.

One of the most important drawing features is the birthday idea; it should be kept to the front in one form or another all the time, as every day is such an anniversary for many. If well featured it will be productive of a constantly increasing demand. The columns of the newspapers frequently speak of the birthdays of prominent city officials or other public men and like to picture them in the midst of their floral gifts. By keeping a record of these events considerable trade can be worked up, if it is gone after in the right way, for the next anniversary.

EASTER DISPLAY OF ERNST WIENHOEBER'S FLORAL CO., CHICAGO.

A small table near the front of the establishment on which is displayed a featured plant or two and some nicely arranged small vase baskets, each different will be attractive to customers and result in sales that would not have been made if their beauty had not attracted and brought to mind a use for them.

This is a good season to clean up the accounts and collect the overdue bills. Do not be afraid to use a little pressure, but of course in an inoffensive way. Remember that every dollar lost is the net profit of a $10 order and that when a $5 account is marked off, it will take $50 worth of business to make it up. The best to collect is when the bill is due, as every day of overtime adds to the difficulty.

The small colonial bouquet made up of odds and ends of flowers and fitted with a three or 4-inch paper, is always attractive; it is more effective with a short shower of narrow ribbon tied to the handle. Such work as this and the filling of small vase baskets for display can be entrusted to the young, ambitious men or women of the shop, who are anxious to learn and can soon, with some instructions, become quick and quite proficient. Always remember that what seems so easy to you is the result of long experience and imparting a little information to the willing workers will enable them to take a long step forward.

A large well made magnolia wreath, with the addition of a spray of flowers and handsome bow of ribbon, will make a good temporary window piece that is certain to attract attention. It is well to have a 36 to 40-inch magnolia wreath made-up with a suitable easel on which it can be placed to show to advantage. When a committee in search of something large calls, this can be decorated with palm leaves and quickly arranged spray of long stemmed roses or other flowers, which, with the addition of a showy ribbon is almost certain to make a good impression. A large panel of the same leaves can be treated in a similar manner, making quite an effective design. Many an order has been secured when such quickly decorated designs were on hand and together with good salesmanship caused the committee to make the purchase.

Mothers' Day closely follows Easter this year and it is none too soon to begin preparations along lines of publicity. Everything possible should be done to exploit flowers in connection with the observance of the day. Wherever the trade has co-operated in newspaper advertising and featured the occasion decoratively with flowers, a demand has been created that has taxed the facilities of the business to the utmost.

Keeping a Step Ahead.

Two added to two makes four, but two and one only equals three and no amount of turning, without addition will change the result.

The business of the florist is like this simple arithmetical sum. If he presents a full and dependable stock it equals two and his publicity and service should amount to the same value. If he falls down in either of these two essentials no amount of figuring will make the account balance. Trying to square it with bad weather, hard times, high prices, poor location and many other excuses, only makes matters worse and the sum never works out until the dependable stock, publicity and service are brought up to standard.

CONCENTRATE ON BUSINESS.

It is said that a man can be all and have all that he desires if he will but concentrate and bring all his energies to work for his life's ambition. To be able to concentrate to keep one's mind wholly on the essentials of his business is much more difficult than is generally supposed. There is always something cropping up almost every day to claim the attention of the man whose eyes and ears are open to give a hearing to this or that plausible opportunity which takes his mind from his business and at times his hard earned money, which is seldom or ever returned.

Concentration in business keeps one a full step ahead of his competitors. No enterprise can succeed without skillful management, a guiding hand that directs every department. It is not the amount of business but the percentage of gain that counts, and the slogan, "Make a Profit," should be kept uppermost in the minds of all in the store. Economy is also to be instilled in the mind of every worker as to making the most of everything handled so as to avoid waste. Conservation of time is also a most necessary essential, taking advantage of all spare hours in preparatory work to relieve the strain of the busy times ahead.

The man who is prepared for the opportunity and ready to take advantage of such emergencies as they come along is a full step ahead of those who are taken unawares and so handicapped as to get but little out of the chance offered them. It is the man who by his enterprise makes opportunity that is always in the lead, he is not content to wait for the trade to come but goes after it and does everything in his power to increase and make new business.

The progressive florist takes advantage of every anniversary or other event in the public eye to attract attention to his store by a decorative window scheme that is in keeping with the day and sure to be admired as an example of his artistry and skill in the arrangement with flowers. He does not stop here however as in his initiative, he is constantly offering suggestions for the use of flowers, presenting them in various sized arrangements that appeal to all classes of people and in this way interesting and making new customers.

SPECIAL SALES IMPORTANT.

Special sales are always in order to put new life into the business when an overstocked market offers the occasion. In the early autumn the rose supply is nearly always ahead of the demand when quantity lots bought at low prices if well featured are handled at a good profit, interesting new buyers and bringing many of them into the store. Dahlias, chrysanthemums, violets, sweet peas and daffodils are other stocks that at times are available for these "quickenings the business" sales that help to keep the store in the public eye.

Plants are handled as effectively in this way as cut flowers. Opening the autumn season with a sale of ferns is sure to interest the customers, and if well displayed, the general public as well. Well bowered chrysanthemums, in pots, make a good special and a wonderful trade can be worked up for these when featured year after year. Primula malacoides is another flowering plant that in mid winter can be handled in large quantities. This type of primula is one of the best ever introduced to the trade.

Featuring all floral holidays well in advance insures wonderful returns. In addition to the timely display, short snappy circulars calling attention to the event will interest customers and the general public and bring them to the store and result in a largely increased business.

The progressive florist is always largely interested in all annual and anniversary occasions keeping track of all such events with dates, carefully recorded, and ready for action when the time rolls round again. Much profitable business is held and secured in this way, that those who do not anticipate and look out for, miss altogether.

The florists who are always in the lead in their various communities are those who are doing their best to interest people in flowers by window displays, by public exhibitions when the opportunity offers, by keeping them to the front in community events, and in every way associating them with the social life and activities of the people. If this aggressiveness could be instilled in the minds of all retail florists there is no question that in a very short time sales would increase 100 per cent and "Say It With Flowers" would always come first to the mind.

How Cleveland Does It.

One of the successful Easter displays was the flower show arranged by the Park Floral Co., 13,336 Euclid avenue, which opened April 9 and continued to April 16, inclusive. Mr. Barber has given several exhibitions of flowers, but this exceeded any of his previous efforts. The new rose, Mrs. Warren G. Harding, was one of the attractions, together with features of special arrangements by Mrs. Antonio Di Nardo, who has been giving a series of talks at the Cleveland School of Art in regard to art in floral arrangements. The exhibition took in not only the conservatory, but the greenhouses and store. Altogether there were over 10,000 visitors during the first four days of the exhibition. The publicity work in the Cleveland papers was very highly commented on, as they gave some very valuable notices.

Commuters Like Garden Gambles.

Flowers in prospect are better than those in sight, according to the dealers in bulbs, dormant roses and other shrubbery which line the sidewalks of Washington and Barclay streets, New York. The most unpromising, dried-up looking roots and shrubs command good prices because of their possibilities later on, while, as compared to these, the plants in flower are in little demand. Budded roses appear to have the preference, Crimson Rambler, Killarney and Ophelia being the most popular varieties. —New York Sun.

PLANT NOTES.

Gypsophila Paniculata.

There are few summer flowers that are of more use to the florist having a local trade than the gypsophila, for it lightens up work beautifully and greatly aids in softening the appearance of the summer flowers, many of which have a coarse look in floral work, and in bouquets, sprays and basket work the sprays are particularly useful. The grower not possessing a good bed of this should procure stock at once and plant them in a good, sunny position, and after once becoming established they require no further attention than to keep the bed free from weeds and occasionally cultivated. Seed can be now sown and as soon as large enough transplanted in rows outside, where they can remain until another spring, when they can be again transplanted to permanent quarters, but to have plants that will bloom this year it will be necessary to procure older stock. The double form of this plant is even more beautiful than the single for some purposes, and its lasting qualities make it more valuable for a cut flower than the older variety.

Celosia Plumosa.

The plants of Celosia plumosa or the ostrich plume celosia are of very easy culture and make very showy plants for either the garden or the greenhouse. They form pyramidal bushes and the yellow and red plumes which resemble ostrich feathers stand gracefully above the foliage. While they make showy plants for the garden, finer specimens are grown under glass, and they make very showy plants in the late summer and fall. Seed sown in April will make fine plants for culture during the summer, but like all the celosias the young seedlings damp off easily. As soon as large enough, they should be potted in good light soil in 2½-inch pots and later shifted to four-inch to grow large plants to six-inch pots. They should be grown in a good, strong light, for if shaded the plants will become drawn and the dwarf, compact plants are more desirable. C. plumosa aurea, the orange ostrich plume, and C. plumosa coccinea, the crimson ostrich plume, are the two best of the older varieties, and Pride of Castle Gould, a new introduction of the last few years, is the best of all the ostrich plume kinds and can be obtained in many colors.

Potting Young Stock.

At this season of the year the plant grower will have thousands of young seedlings to pot or place in flats and as many more to shift from a small pot to a larger size, and it does not seem than any instruction in potting should be necessary, but we chanced not long ago to see a boy potting and wondered if the plants would live and we then saw in the houses many of the plants which had been potted struggling for existence. It seems to be the general idea with the young gardener that the one that can pot the most plants in a given time is the smartest, regardless of how well it is done and how the plants afterward grow. The young man whom we saw would fill the pot full and then make a hole in the soil with his finger, place the seedling in the hole and then press the top soil over the stem. The chances were that the roots of many of these plants were still hanging in an enclosed hole in the center of the pot for the soil should have been firmed around the roots. That he could handle a large number of plants in a given time was no question, but a much better plant can be grown if the soil is made firm around the roots first and then the top firmed down. The same thing happens in transplanting where the loose soil is thrown around between the plant and the pot and the top then firmed down. A little soil should be first thrown in the bottom of the pot, and the plant placed in this, then a little soil around the plant, which should be firmed down, then a little more soil, which can be pressed down from the top. This will take longer but the plant will live and grow enough better to pay for the extra pains.

Camellias.

While it is a question if the camellia will ever become as popular as it was years ago, yet there seems to be a growing demand for the blooms of the EASTER SHOW OF THE PARK FLORAL CO., CLEVELAND, O.

"Japonica" as it was so familiarly known to the grandparents of the present generation, and the flowers are well adapted to certain classes of work or occasions. A few dwarf plants are now also seen in flower in some of the stores. They are easily grown, the prime requisite being a cool house, one with a night temperature of 45 to 50 degrees, and the constant care throughout the year that all hard-wooded plants require. The large specimens which are grown for cut blooms may be planted in the ground of the house, first spading in a quantity of leaf-mold and rotted cow manure. The small plants are generally grown in pots, firmly planted in the same kind of soil, with plenty of drainage. They do not require repotting often, and when done the shift should be only to one size larger, and this should be made just after the plant is through flowering, for it then starts to make its growth for another season. When the growth starts, the plants should be given plenty of water and frequently syringed; in fact, careful watering is the one thing necessary in their culture. They should never become dry, and during the hot days of summer, frequent syringings are required, which also greatly assists in keeping down mealy bugs and scale, the only two insects to which the plant is subject. The cause of the buds dropping, which will sometimes occur, can invariably be traced to the plant becoming dry sometime during its growth. During the summer, heavy shade over the plants will be required, and an abundance of air should be provided at this time.

Peonies.

As soon as the frost is out of the ground the peony beds should be forked over and the manure mulch that was placed on them last fall should be forked or spaded in, but let this be done by a careful man, or at least not by help that knows nothing about this work. The young growths start very early and are very tender, so it is best not to fork too close to the crowns, but loosen up all the soil around the plants. It is also well to leave the stems covered as deep as they have been all winter, for a sharp frost may injure a stem that has been protected through the severe winter and then subjected to sharp cold. But the loosening of the soil to good depth will conserve the moisture and allow the air to get into the soil. If the plants are not mulched with manure in the fall, it is well to spread some old manure, not fresh, on the beds before spading and fork it in. Although the fall is the best time to transplant peonies, yet if not done and it is desired or necessary to move them, they can be transplanted early in the spring, but this must be done before the growths are above the surface of the ground and as much soil left about the roots as possible. These plants make their young roots in the fall, and if any attempt is made to shake the soil off, the roots will be broken doing this. Divisions must therefore be carefully made so as to disturb the roots as little as possible. The dry roots that are purchased at this time are much better planted in pots or boxes until the roots are formed in the soil and later transplanted to the ground. It cannot be expected that plants of this kind will produce any flowers this year, for it will only be possible to get them established in their new location the first season.

THE S. A. F.

Fifth National Flower Show.

The work of closing up the affairs of the Fifth National Flower Show, held in Indianapolis, is engaging the close attention of the administration offices of the society, and is gradually approaching its completion. It would not be just or advisable to issue an authentic statement at this time, but it may be said that there is no occasion for misgivings as to a satisfactory financial issue. The matter of the return of the subscriptions to the guarantee fund is receiving early attention, and as the gross receipts from the show are pretty well determined, checks will be forwarded to the subscribers very shortly.

Rentals of trade space produced a little over $13,000, and the catalogue about $2,500. Gate and trade tickets yielded nearly $28,000, and the special premiums presented amounted to about $5,300. Receipts from other sources amount to a sum in the neighborhood of $12,900. With the exception of a few bills covering trade space, practically all monies to be credited to receipts have been turned into the treasury.

The sum to be paid out in premiums amounts to about $13,000. The awards are in process of checking and confirmation, and cheques covering money prizes, and medals and other material prizes will go forward to the winners very shortly.

The expense side of the account is, necessarily, requiring considerable time, operating expenses, rentals, and petty expenses not being as easily determined as receipts. As soon as everything can be tabulated a detailed report will be prepared and the National Flower Show committee is in hopes this may be accomplished within the next two weeks.

The secretary is pleased to report that over 1,000 railroad certificates were presented, very many more than necessary to secure to out-of-town visitors the concession of one-half return fares.

Chairman George Asmus, whose foresight and energy made the show possible under circumstances which at one time were most distressing, may be congratulated upon the successful issue of the exhibition, which to many is most remarkable.

The judges in the trade section were Charles E. Russell, George Wienhoeber and W. Atlee Burpee, Jr., who made the following awards:

Certificate of Merit.

W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa., sweet peas.

Department of Conservation of Indiana, display of fancy fish.

E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.

Buchbinder Co., Chicago, refrigerators.

Wertheimer Bros., New York, Vanity Fair corsage shield.

Honorable Mention.

E. C. Amling Co., Chicago, cut flowers.
Mrs. A. Hamburger, Brooklyn, N. Y., adjustable plant stand.

Vaughan's Seed Store, New York and Chicago, gladiolus bulbs.

Chicago Flower Growers' Ass'n, Chicago, display cut flowers.

Basket Shop, Bellfonte, Pa., baskets.

M. H. Levine, New York, ribbons.

The following also made displays which, in the opinion of the judges, were highly creditable:

Wm. T. Usinger, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Lindley Box & Paper Co., Marion, Ind.

DeWitt Sisters, Battle Creek, Mich., feather flowers.

Bergmann Koropp Co., Chicago.

S. Hanfling Co., New York.

National Publicity Campaign.

A meeting of the publicity committee was held in the Manufacturers' building, Indianapolis, March 27, Chairman Henry Penn presiding. The following were present: Chairman Henry Penn, Boston, Mass.; President S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa.; Secretary John Young, New York; Treasurer J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.; C. C. Pollworth, Milwaukee, Wis.; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.; George Asmus, Chicago and Major P. F. O'Keefe, Boston, Mass.

Major O'Keefe presented proofs of the series of advertisements which had been sent to the various magazines in accordance with the last appropriation made by the committee. Copies of the proofs have been mailed to all subscribers to the fund and many other florists. Consideration was given to a number of cases where the slogan, "Say It With Flowers," had been perverted, and after some discussion it was decided that such perversion made an extended use of the slogan proper, more necessary than ever.

Secretary Young presented a financial report, which, on motion, was accepted. The auditor's report was also submitted. In reply to questions as to the probability of the fund being sustained, the secretary pointed out that an optimistic view could be taken, as he had found that in districts where business had not been quite up to the mark the deficiency seemed to be attributed to a cessation in publicity.

Treasurer Hess submitted a report which showed a balance sufficient to allow of further advertising and, after some discussion, a motion by Mr. Ammann was carried appropriating a further sum of $10,000 for a series of advertisements which should run through the summer months.

The matter of income from the flower booth at the Fifth National Flower Show, Indianapolis, was brought up and discussed, and it was pointed out that this income was to be apportioned to the national publicity campaign fund. A vote of $200 toward the special advertising of the show was passed.

Mr. Asmus, in view of the thoughts brought out in the discussion, moved that it be recommended that the National Flower Show committee be asked to appeal to every organization having an opportunity to sell flowers where florists were willing to donate them, to do so and turn the receipts in to the publicity committee. On motion of Secretary Young it was directed that the secretary's office send out to subscribers and others 5,000 copies of the proofs of the proposed advertisements for the summer advertising.

The meeting then adjourned.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Bogus Horticulturists.

Shall our profession be handed down as one that is to be protected? Or, shall we permit those without any knowledge whatever of horticulture, municipal forestry, or landscape planting and development, to continue their operations to the detriment of their clients' plans, and to place our profession in the minds of the public, as one that requires no study, or ability for its proper performance?

The florists of this country can well remember the olden days, when a man to be a practical florist, served his apprenticeship for several years without remuneration or salary, and in some cases paid a certain sum for tuition to a recognized establishment for his learning of the work to be properly performed in floriculture. In those days the profession was recognized authoritatively, and the most interesting of the large estates in this country, and particularly in the foreign countries, were developed and planted in the proper manner, and many of them are outstanding today, as competent and beautiful, the result of the practical trained mind of the horticulturist and landscape gardener.

Now we find throughout the country, that many of these so-termed "florists" have adopted an additional trade, that of landscape gardeners and tree-surgeons. Just pause a moment and realize what this means to our profession, and to the public of these United States, who are desirous of developing their home sites and estates, with the proper landscape effects, by the development and selection and planting of trees, evergreens and deciduous shrubs. Why are we who are so well organized, reticent to call this method of business an imposition, and why do we not have the proper legislation enacted, that will stop these practices? You will often see in the many daily papers, advertisements reading something like this: "Name—; Landscape contractor and tree surgeon, lawns attended to, cement work, furnaces cared for by the season. Have your trees pruned now."

This last line of such advertisement, is in at all times during the year, irrespective of the proper occasion for pruning, according to the proper methods. The writer has had occasion several times during the past few years, to have certain "tree-doctors," taken in by the police, for taking work on private places, and in some cases trying to work on city trees under municipal authority, for butchering and ruining some of the best specimens of our beautiful trees. They go to private residences and really lie to secure the work, until such information is given out by their client, that the work is bad, and they then want someone in official capacity to call and stop the practice.

A few years ago, at a meeting of the New York State Forestry Association at New York, and of which I am a member, the matter of tree doctors was discussed. It was the opinion of those at that meeting that laws should be enacted controlling such fakirs, in this way, that all persons desiring to do tree-surgery in the state of New York, should pass a practical examination as to their ability to perform such work properly, and that a certificate should be issued to them, that should be shown to any person from whom they solicited tree work. For some reason or other this matter was left by the wayside, though it is the only practical way to protect the public, and keep down these imposters. Each state, should have such laws passed, and then see to it that they are lived up to. Our international flower shows, that are held yearly at New York, and their great attendance and appreciation from the flower loving public shows us conclusively, that our people want, and appreciate the best in horticulture. Then why don't we, with our many wonderful organizations, do something concrete, and protect this great number of people?

At this time of the year the legitimate landscape operators, have invested millions of dollars in their business, give to their client the proper planting plan and figure or estimate on certain work to be performed, showing each variety of plant to be used, and in its proper classification. After some of their clients receive such information, some wayfarer comes along, and the plan is shown him. Of course, he immediately states, that the figure is entirely too high, and that he can do the work in a much better fashion, for considerably less money. It is only a bait, though it is often grabbed, and the work is turned over to the fakir.

What happens? Well, all the florists should know very well. This is what occurs: He starts the work, scours the whole country, for some kind of plants and material, that he can purchase cheaply and proceeds to try and carry out the contract. He has trouble as he goes along, and his client complains, though in his cunning way, he advises, that this or that plant will soon revive, and in a few weeks it will show up in its proper functions. No, he is wrong. In the first place he does not know his stock, nor what kind of soil should be used for certain stock, he forces the roots into too small a hole, he does not firm his stock after planting, and knows nothing about the balance, that should be exercised in root and top-pruning, or how to care for his stock, while waiting for the planting.

On shrubs and roses, and in particular young fruit stock, he will cut away just the proper wood that should do the proper bearing the first season etc. The client is dissatisfied; sometimes it winds up in a lawsuit, and sooner than fight such cases, real people, just say, "Oh, let it go, they are all alike; you cannot get a good job from a landscape man."

Now, my dear readers, you all know, that what I have stated is really so, and I am only bringing these facts to your notice, to wake you up to some action. I am not in the commercial line of either horticulture or landscape work. I am city forester of the city of New Rochelle, N. Y., and doing my work for the municipality, and what I know has happened in the past, is also occurring right now, and on the suggestion of some of our growers, and landscape gardeners of this vicinity, I am offering this article for your kind consideration, trusting that it will have some effect, and that the proper co-operation will be given in the matter of keeping our wonderful work, that is, horticulture, landscape development, and municipal forestry out of the hands of these imposters, who sally forth under the guise of landscape contractors, and even sometimes advertise as landscape architects. Let us have some action, in our own rights, and I would be glad to hear from those interested in a forward movement for its prevention.

Roses Artistically Arranged.

The huge, long stemmed exhibition roses that have been seen in the competitive classes of the flower shows during the past two years have outgrown the facilities for their proper staging. The commodious, wicker covered metal jars or floor vases of the American Rose Society, while a great improvement over the bare, green tins or fibre jars used previously, have their limitations and are not suitable to hold and show to advantage roses such as are entered today in the classes calling for 100 blooms.

It must have jarred the artistic sense of every expert in floral arrangement to see the asparagus like bunching of the wonderful Hadley, Celestial and Double White Killarney roses exhibited at the recent Fifth National Flower Show. As they stood huddled together in the narrow mouthed vases provided for them, the heads of bloom all of a height, as if they had been sheared, two-thirds of their beauty was lost. There should be large, bowl like receptacles provided for such stock, which, after being judged should be arranged artistically by artists from the retail shops, with accessories in ribbons and green if necessary. These prearranged vases should then be placed at vantage points about the hall, lending their color to ferns and other groups, instead of being huddled together in straight jars in rows three to four ft. deep with only those in front seen.

The cost of providing these extra vases, the little material required and men to do the work, would not exceed the prizes offered for one of the rose classes, while the appearance of the show would be improved 100 per cent.

National Hospital Day.

The National Hospital Day committee has designated May 12 as National Hospital Day, in which the public is invited to visit these institutions throughout the country. This movement has the endorsement of President Harding, Surgeon-General Cummings of the United States Army and governors of many states.

Those who have friends in hospitals are expected to visit them on this day, carrying flowers or delicacies with which to help along their convalescence. The general public will make the occasion one of inspection in which all hospital officials will take pleasure in showing visitors through their various wards and departments.

The importance to the trade of this day is in the business it may bring them in the sale of plants and cut flowers to be taken or sent to these institutions for the occasion, which if properly advertised may become another national flower day.

OBITUARY.

The Late Frank H. Stannard.

The late Frank Haskins Stannard, brief account of whose death appeared in our issued of April 15, page 676, passed away at his home in Ottawa, Kans., March 30, from cerebral hemorrhage, having been stricken but a few hours before his demise. Mr. Stannard was born near La Moille, Ill., December 25, 1857, being the son of Chas. H., and Maria Kempster Stannard. His early boyhood was spent at Hamilton, Ont., Warren and Russellburg, Pa., and Jamestown, N. Y. When 21 years of age Mr. Stannard came west, stopping a short time in Illinois and afterward moved to Ottawa, Kans.

In 1879 Mr. Stannard established a small nursery at that city with W. E. Barnes, Vinland, Kans. He formed a partnership later in the year with Eugene Brewster and gradually developed one of the largest nurseries in the United States. At the time of his death the establishment comprised over 500 acres near Ottawa and smaller plants in Oklahoma, New York, Shawnee and Pottawatomie counties, Kans., from which shipments are made to every state in the union. Mr. Stannard also maintained 200 acres of irrigated orchard land near Manzanola and Olney, Colo. He was rated as having one of the 10 largest nursery enterprises in the country. He was president of the American Association of Nurserymen in 1910.

Mr. Stannard was deeply interested in Ottawa university, giving freely of his time and energy in the expansion of that institution. He had been a trustee since 1895 serving on the executive committee continuously until the time of his death. Mr. Stannard was one of the first members of the state entomological commission which was founded in 1909. Amid the duties and exactions of the management of his large business he found time to take part in public affairs. As the republican candidate he was elected to the state senate in 1906 and the assembly two years later, in which position he rendered faithful and efficient service to his constituents.

Mr. Stannard was united in marriage to Luceba F. Stannard in 1882, to whom four children were born: Geo. A. Stannard, Girard, Kans.; Mrs. Chester Roberts, of Franklin, Ind.; Miss Pearl Stannard, at home, and a daughter Grace, who died when three years old.

The funeral services were held from the late home, April 2, Dr. S. E. Price, of Ottawa university and Reverend V. E. Lawrence, pastor of the Baptist church of which Mr. Stannard was a member, officiating. The remains were laid at rest in Highland cemetery.

John B. Keller.

John B. Keller, the well known florist of Rochester, N. Y., died at his home, 541 South Clifton avenue, that city, April 10, age 83 years. Mr. Keller was born at Mayence, Germany, in 1838 and in early youth served as an apprentice in the well known but now extinct firm of Mardner Bros., who were noted azalea growers of that city. In 1860 he came to the United States and was employed at various establishments in New York, Brooklyn and Long Island. Ten years later he moved with his family, to Rochester and engaged with the Ellwanger & Barry nurseries, where he remained for five years before starting in business for himself.

In 1875 Mr. Keller purchased several acres of land within the city limits and developed a greenhouse establishment under the name of John B. Keller. Many years ago he retired and turned the growing business over to three of his sons, F. J., J. M., and Wm. Keller, who have continued the enterprise at the original location. After retirement Mr. Keller still took a lively interest in the great business which he established and found much pleasure in growing perennials at his home on S. Clinton avenue. For many years he was a regular contributor to THE AMERICAN FLORIST, writing most instructively on these and other plants.

Mr. Keller is survived by his widow, six sons, E. E., F. J., Geo. J., J. Michael, John M., and Wm. L. Keller; a step daughter; 14 grand children and five great grand children. The funeral services were held at the late home, April 12, interment being at Mt. Hope cemetery.

The Late John I. Raynor.

John I. Raynor.

John I. Raynor, a retired wholesale florist of New York, died in the Hotel Therese, that city, where he had made his home for some time, on the morning of April 15. He had not been in good health for several years, having suffered from a complication of diseases, but it was not generally known that he was dangerously ill until about six weeks ago.

Mr. Raynor was born at Queens, L. I., in October, 1860. As a young man he entered the employ of the late William Stuart Allen, then a wholesale florist of New York. He later formed a partnership with Alexander Burns, the firm name being Burns & Raynor. In a short time Mr. Burns retired and for about 20 years Mr. Raynor continued the wholesale business alone, retiring 12 years ago, having amassed considerable property. At the time of his retirement the establishment was located on West Twenty-eighth street and his successor was P. J. Smith who had been long in his employ.

Mr. Raynor was considered an upright business man of good abilities. Socially, he was genial and popular. He is survived by his wife and one brother.

The funeral services were held in the Campbell Funeral chapel, Broadway and 66th street, April 17. The casket was covered with a beautiful blanket of Ophelia and Butterfly roses. Fine floral tributes were sent by P. J. Smith and family; Herman Warendorff and Benj. Warendorff, Walter Bogart and Wm. Bogart, the Society of American Florists, and the New York Florists' Club.

of which organizations Mr. Raynor had been a life member. There were also tributes from relatives and other friends. The body was taken to Springfield cemetery, Jamaica, L. I., where the remains were cremated.

A. F. F.

Edward T. Alburger.

In the passing of Edward T. Alburger, one of the old school of Philadelphia, Pa., florists whose death, after a lingering illness, occurred, April 10 at the age of 70 years, another name is added to the long list of once prominent florists of that city. Alburger Bros., consisting of Philip H. Alburger and Edward T. Alburger carried on business at Ridge and Lehigh avenues for many years, their specialty being cemetery work, care of lots and decoration of graves at Easter and Christmas.

Edward T. Alburger withdrew from the firm in 1895 and with J. R. Caskaden built greenhouses near the entrance to West Laurel cemetery in which they did a prosperous business for many years. Later Mr. Alburger purchased his partner's interest and continued the business under his own name. Mr. Alburger was a prominent Mason in which order he took great interest. He is survived by his widow.

John G. Eisle.

John G. Eisle, at one time quite a factor in the florist trade of Philadelphia, Pa., died at his residence in that city April 4, age 82 years. Many years ago Mr. Eisle presented an oddity in a greenhouse over his store, then at Eleventh and Jefferson streets. It attracted attention as being the first of its kind in the city. He did a general florist business making a specialty of new varieties of plants. He was an uncle of J. G. Eisle, president of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., and brother of the late Christian Eisle.

THE business of florists continues better than most other lines and holds close to last year's average.

GERANIUMS were in strong demand last year at high prices, and on account of the hot, dry summer, made a poor showing. This year they are more plentiful and some dealers say the spring demand will run low unless prices are materially reduced.

THE dates of the annual meeting and exhibition of the American Gladiolus Society, at Kalamazoo, Mich., are August 16-17, the same week as the Kansas City convention of the Society of American Florists, preventing the participation of a large section of the trade.

CANNAS, zinnias and other hot-weather plants made a fine showing last summer and in consequence there is strong inquiry for them now. Some growers who followed our advice last fall, taking specially good care of their cannas, are now reaping the harvest.

St. Louis Co-operative Advertising.

The St. Louis Globe Democrat of April 12 contained a double page spread of splendidly prepared advertisements of Easter flowers. The center space, occupying about one-third of the sheet, contained an illustrated description of Easter cut flowers and flowering plants, with the legend, "Let every home have its floral tribute this glorious Easter time. It is indeed an occasion for these exquisite and fragrant tokens of love and esteem." This space was paid for by the growers association.

The balance of the double page was made up of individual advertisements of the various retail firms of the city, 25 co-operating with the growers and each paying for the space occupied. The pages were beautifully illustrated with the long, flowering stems of Easter lilies, while at the bottom of the large center space was a picture of a lady receiving a box of flowers from a florist's car. Taken altogether it was a most effective and showy advertisement, and an example of what is possible when retailers and growers work together in co-operation. The same advertisement appeared in two other daily papers during Easter week, and the six pages could not but help to give great publicity to the business.

Express Delays.

In recent years flower show exhibitors have experienced great difficulty in having their plants and cut flowers delivered on time. Train schedules show 24 hours or less to be abundant but express shipments are from six hours to the next day behind in delivery.

At the recent Fifth National Flower Show a large consignment of 1,100 roses of A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., were delivered 48 hours late with the buds falling apart when the boxes were opened. Two large exhibits of roses from Philadelphia, Pa., arrived eight hours late after the judges had made their awards. Five thousand sweet peas for exhibition shipped from St. Louis, Mo., were lost in transit.

No doubt shippers can recover for actual loss in flowers but the competitive chances to win honors and premiums are of much more importance and constitute legitimate claims.

In a case of delayed delivery to an important exhibition held in London, Eng., the exhibitor sued not only for the value of his flowers but included claim for the premium money he might have been awarded had the flowers been placed in competition. Both claims were allowed by the court.

The only sure plan is bringing the flowers along on through trains as excess baggage, the shipment arriving the same time as the owner, at a cost no greater than charged by express companies.

Federal Horticultural Board.

A practical nurseryman, a horticulturist of long and wide experience, and able thinker, makes the following very pointed comments:

"The board's functions (under the law) are administrative. The board has made them judicial and legislative. It was created to regulate pests. It assumes to regulate business. It says its purpose is to make us independent of foreign goods. But that is altogether a tariff matter. It is wholly beyond the intent of the law.

"The board has upset business, disarranged long established customs, interfered with normal methods and has sought to make the trade all over again.

"Rose growing in this country is in the hands of a group of some 10 or a dozen large producers, who used to sell at eight cents in competition with Holland, but the monopoly granted them by the board has caused the price to advance to 35 cents, because that small group expects its members to maintain certain minimum prices. There are many hundreds of nurserymen who buy roses. I do not object to American goods or fair prices. I point out that the achievement of the board is a heavy tax on the trade and something wholly outside the province of an entomological board to impose.

"Why is an 18-inch budded rose potentially dangerous to import and a 5-foot rugosa stem for budding harmless? Or is 'consistency the vice of small minds' after all? Either the board should exclude all plant material, or it should admit anything inspected and found clean abroad and here.

"In my opinion, the only way to handle the matter is for the department to spend the money to find and introduce the natural enemies of the pests. Everything else has failed."

American Rose Annual.

The seventh volume of the American Rose Society's annual, an authority on all matters pertaining to the rose, is quite up to the high standard of the previous issues of this publication.

The object of the book is to increase interest in roses in order that they will be more generally grown in all parts of the country. Practical growers have given of their time to prepare cultural articles with information so simple as to be readily understood by all amateurs.

Reports from the society test gardens show the best kinds for the various sections of the country. There is a chapter on soils, with several others relating to injurious insects and diseases in which explicit directions are given to combat them. Community rose shows, how they should be staged and conducted, with their educational possibilities is fully treated.

For the more experienced rosarians the complete list of roses of American origin will be found interesting while a full account of the best New England varieties by the secretary of the National Rose Society of England is important data.

The valuable work of the late Dr. Walter Van Fleet, America's greatest rosarian and hybridizer with a sketch of his life written as an appreciation gives an intimate account of his long career as a hybridizer of roses and other plants.

There are numerous illustrations and two color plates describing the best American and English roses. All the articles are of exceptional merit, of great credit to the rose society and to its editor and publisher, J. Horace McFarland.

Every florist should have membership in this progressive organization. The yearly dues are but $3 which includes a copy of the Annual. Write to John C. Wister, secretary, 606 Finance building, Philadelphia, Pa.

"Do it right, or not at all"

The following letter was written by "Father John" Davey to the men in the Davey organization. It is reproduced here to give you an idea of the spirit behind these master Tree Surgeons

DEAR "BOYS": "DO IT RIGHT, OR NOT AT ALL." It was my father's and has been my slogan for seventy-two years. Here is its history, as I know it: I was nearly four years old. My father was planting potatoes, in front of our neat little cottage, on a fine May evening.

I asked him if I could plant some. He opened up a trench at the end nearest the house. Then took a potato and said: "If I let you plant it will you do it RIGHT?" "I will do what you tell me." Then, looking at me tenderly, he said, with a firm voice: "YOU MUST DO IT RIGHT, or NOT AT ALL." He then went into the house and brought out a big iron spoon, and remarked: "Here is your shovel; keep it clean." He then cut the potato in two, and made a mark for each piece, telling me I must put the cut side down, and went on to his work. I carefully laid the two halves in place, then took my shovel and looked at (what appeared to me) a big ditch that I had to fill.

Well, by sundown I had this huge hole filled, and father showed me where I could improve on the level, or grade. After saying my little prayers I retired, but father's voice was heard: "Do it RIGHT, or not at all." In the morning I awoke, and still that voice was ringing, "Do it RIGHT, or not at all."

Then came those long days of waiting. "Will they NEVER come up?" A heavy rain packed the ground. Then I was presented with a new garden implement, a steel table fork; but it must be kept clean. With it I must keep the soil stirred. Finally a gentle rain came and, next morning, the ground was cracking and mother told me, "two little baby plants will be born." And the next day; what a miracle! It was not two plants, but two groups of triplets, six new-born plants! Then came the instructions, "never let the ground pack, keep it loose, and give the plants water—in hot weather." I was shown how to push the fork into the soil and keep the ground loose, and, in hot weather, I would hear mother calling: "Johmmie, your plants are thirsty; come and give them a drink." Then she would give me a little pail with water, and a little tin cup, and oh! how my plants would drink! And they grew and went away ahead of any of dad's; and when the crop was dug, he had nothing that could compare with mine! I did it RIGHT!

Dear "Boys": Here is something you never had known, nameiy: THE SEED of The Davey Institute of Tree Surgery was sown 72 years ago, in front of the little cottage where I was born. That seed was: "Do it right, or not at all." That kindly but manly voice went with me through boyhood's days, and particularly through young manhood. As a result, I have never known what it was to be OUT OF WORK, but have frequently been in dire need of procuring others to help me execute what has been forced upon

JOHN DAVEY

Father of Tree Surgery

John Davey, founder of the Davey Tree Expert Company, as he is today at nearly 77 years of age, at home before the fireplace he built with his own hands me. Notably was this true, 21 years ago, when I published the first issue of "The Tree Doctor." It bewildered my brain to find ways to procure efficient help to do the work I was called on to perform on "Sick Trees." Hundreds of young men wanted a "Job," but not one in ten knew HOW TO WORK; and worse yet they showed no inclination to LEARN.

Finally, after my son left college, and joined me, we decided to organize and form a training school; and we have been able to pick out the one-in-ten, or whatever proportion it has been, and under the management of this same son and his associates, to build up the wonderful organization to which you belong, and in which you, apparently, feel an honest pride, because you seem to have imbibed the spirit, "Do it RIGHT, or not at all."

I may here say that, in practicing this slogan from childhood, it has become an almost unconscious habit with me, in any and everything, to first learn the DO IT RIGHT, then add the speed. There are but few things more nauseating and disgusting than to see a young man shiftless and careless in his work. Personally, I would be unwilling to tolerate ANY one of such a character within our Organization. Such an one is a disgrace to himself and a positive damage to any concern that might keep him. But it gives me special pleasure to know that within our ranks there are very few, if any, of the class whose motto is, "GOOD ENOUGH!"

Your "Father John."

Moninger Difficulties.

A meeting of the Chicago creditors of the John C. Moninger Co., well known greenhouse builders of that city, at which approximately 72 per cent of the total claims against the company was represented, was held Tuesday, April 11.

The undersigned, representing approximately 51 per cent of the claims (exclusive of claims of officers), were appointed as a committee to look into the affairs of the company, with a view to a liquidation of its assets; or, if the condition of the company's affairs warranted, then that the business be continued in operation under some feasible plan, with the possibility of the payment in full of the obligations of the company.

From our investigation the undersigned find that, while the company has suffered, as have practically all other concerns, during the recent depression, it has done a good volume of business; that its difficulties have been largely brought about by lack of co-ordination in its management and dissension among its officers. We believe the company to be sound, and that if its business were efficiently and economically managed it could in a reasonable time pay every dollar of its indebtedness.

An audit of the books of the company has been made by a firm of certified public accountants. This audit shows assets of approximately $190,000, and liabilities, $160,000. Sixty-seven thousand dollars of said liabilities consists of deferred rentals of the plant of the company, due to its officers.

The undersigned committee, April 14, entered into a conference with the officers of the company, with a view to the working out of a solution of the company's affairs. A tentative proposition was arrived at to the effect that if 75 per cent or more of the claims against the company would enter into a credit-

At the meeting of creditors, April 18, over 75 per cent were present or represented by proxy. Cleaning Greenhouse Glass.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Please advise us of a preparation to clean greenhouse glass. The houses have been in use over 20 years and greasy soot has accumulated on the roofs.

F. B.

We can give no better information on this subject than that which appeared in a former issue, as follows:

J. W. Jones, who has lived in Pittsburgh, Pa., over 20 years, during which period he has been connected with Phipps conservatory, Schenley park, of which he is foreman, states that he doubts if there are any greenhouses in the United States that get more dirt and smoke than the conservatory, which is practically in the city and has to contend with iron ore and the smoke from the Baltimore & Ohio railroad which passes close by. Mr. Jones reports that the propagating houses here are cleaned twice a year with hydrofluoric acid, 48 per cent proof, diluted in the proportion of one part acid to six parts water. Where there is no iron ore, less acid would doubtless do the work. A safe plan is to try the one to six proportion, and if it cuts easy, keep on diluting as long as it does the work properly, as too much acid will injure the glass.

The solution can be mixed in an ordinary fibre bucket, the fibre not being affected by the acid. Apply to the glass with a soft floor brush, one man applying the cleaner, another following up with the hose, the safest plan being to run the water from the ridge, care being taken not to run the water under the glass. The acid has never been found injurious to paint; in fact, if there happens to be white lead on the glass it will not remove it. There is not much danger of burning plants, providing the houses are tight; if not, the plants can be covered with paper. Neither have the fumes been found injurious, excepting in the case of nicotiana and asparagus. Plumosus does not seem to suffer much, but if there are any Sprengerii in a house cleaned with hydrofluoric acid, it will drop all its leaves.

A carboy of the acid contains 90 pounds, the first container to be paid for, and which can be returned for credit or exchange. This method of cleaning glass, Mr. Jones adds, has proved most satisfactory, both at the conservatory, and by many others who have been told by him of its merits during the past 15 years.

The Whilldin Pottery Co., Philadelphia, Pa., on a show card which it distributed to florists exploiting its wares has the following: "A successful method of cleaning the roof glass of greenhouses is adopted by Jos. Harris & Bro., Shamokin, Pa., who describe their methods as follows: 'We use a square tank made acid-proof with wax, and thoroughly mix five gallons of water with one quart of hydrofluoric acid; this is then rubbed upon the glass with an old broom or whitewash brush, one section at a time, using plenty of water to rinse acid off, and great care has to be exercised. If the acid is too strong, a frosty appearance will be given to the glass when it dries. We suggest, therefore, making tests with the acid water at various strengths, and never to proceed with the washing of the whole roof until such tests have been made and the glass dried after the test. We also urge the necessity of using rubber gloves. The acid comes in lead jugs containing 10 pounds, and the cost of cleaning will average about $1.00 per 1,000 square feet.'

In a communication to us the above company states they have found this to be a tried and true cleaner, and has been used by many of its customers, all agreeing that it was good. It is not for sale by the Whilldin Pottery Co., but can be obtained in five or 10-pound lead jugs from any wholesale druggist.

NORTH BERGEN, N. J.—Easter flowers stolen from the greenhouses of Ernest Asmus, April 12, were by quick work of the police, after being notified of the loss by telephone, recovered and the thieves landed in jail.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IA.—The actual loss of J. F. Wilcox & Sons, in the recent hail storm is 2,800 lights of glass, very small considering the extent of their ranges and the great havoc at other establishments. The large Wilcox range at Manawa was uninjured.

COMPLETE CLEANUP AT EASTER.

Stock in all lines cleaned up completely at Easter owing to the heavy late city demand April 15 and orders from outside points. Easter Sunday was a good day and no trouble was experienced in moving what stock arrived that morning at good prices. The week of Easter opened up poorly and there was practically no business whatever to speak of on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Stock was in exceptionally large supply then and some of the wholesalers thought it best to unload in order to make room for the new shipments that kept coming in. Roses in some instances were sold in large lots at low prices and the same held true for carnations and other items. The market began to stiffen Thursday and was good on Friday but there was still plenty of stock to go around with the prospects none too bright in regard to the city demand owing to the unfavorable weather prevailing on that day. There was practically no business in the retail stores all week and everyone was loaded to the brim with plants; consequently it looked as if the wholesale market was out of luck as far as the city demand was concerned, but the weather took a change for the better, Saturday, and the mad scramble for stock began. The retailers began to realize early in the day that the demand would soon absorb their supply of plants and began to get busy in order to cover up with cut flowers. The wholesalers soon saw that the tide had turned and by noon it was almost a certainty that the market would clean-up completely. At night the impossible had happened and the dealers began to get busy on telephone in order to have stock on hand for Sunday. On Easter business was good with very little stock available. Roses were in large supply and so were carnations. Lilies sold well, especially in the fancier grades, but on the whole the stock this year could have been a great deal better. Callas sold like wild fire at $3 per dozen and up for the best and cleaned up early. Lily of valley was in short supply toward the end of the week and the same holds true for orchids and gardenias. Sweet peas were in strong demand and so were all other corsage flowers. Snapdragons, lupines, statice, stocks, pansies, mignonette, jonquils, tulips, narcissi, daisies, lilacs and all other miscellaneous seasonable cut flowers were disposed of before the rush was over. The plant growers sold all the stock they had to offer and the supply houses had their share of the trade. Taking everything into consideration the Easter business was good and in some instances better than last year and others considerably below 1921. One thing is certain and that is that the weather April 15 was a life-saver and it is doubtful if there ever was so much stock handled in one day in this city before in the history of the business.

NOTES

Poehlmann Bros. Co. had a big Easter business and stock at this establishment cleaned up completely notwithstanding the large supply offered. Roses and lilies were in brisk demand and there was a heavy call here for orchids, lily of the valley and other corsage flowers. The plant department at Morton Grove never had such a heavy call for stock and orders for pot lilies were refused as early as the first of the month.

Zech & Mann are more than pleased with their Easter business which was considerably ahead of that of last year. Lilies were in strong demand and stock

A. L. Vaughan & Co. enjoyed a good Easter business especially from out-of-town points. Everything cleaned up nicely and the only thing to mar the occasion was the absence of southern jonquils which failed to put in their appearance due probably to the heavy storms in that section the past week.

The Allied Florists' Association posted notices all over the market this week calling attention to the big meeting at the Hotel Randolph, Thursday evening, April 20, when the growers and wholesalers were to discuss the new assessment plan to take effect May 1. George Perdikas reports a brisk Easter business with a strong demand for both cut flowers and plants. Choice hyacinths in pots and boxes, lilies and rambler roses were the chief offerings at his establishment. A. Henderson & Co. had their record retail business day, the Saturday preceding Easter Sunday.

YOU CAN ALWAYS RELY UPON US FOR YOUR SUPPLY OF CUT FLOWERS

Remember when ordering that our line is so complete that it includes every item offered in the Great Chicago Market.

Wietor Bros. enjoyed a wonderful Easter business and cleaned up completely in all lines at an early hour. Roses were in full crop with them and they supplied many of the wholesalers with stock in addition to taking splendid care of all their regular customers.

The Joseph Foerster Co. had a heavy Easter business with a complete clean-up in all lines. Roses were in large supply at their house not to mention cut lilies and all other miscellaneous stocks including statice which made a big hit with the local buyers.

Peter Reinberg, Inc., had its share of the Easter business with the sales comparing most favorably with those of the same period of 1921. The shipping trade was exceptionally good and the late city demand exceeded all expectations.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association were busy as bees Easter week and have no complaint to make in regard to its Easter business. Their splendidly equipped shipping department certainly is a great asset to this concern.

The John C. Moniger Co.'s well known greenhouse building business, in financial difficulty, as detailed elsewhere in this issue, will be continued under the supervision of a committee of creditors.

The Van Buren Florist enjoyed an excellent business for the holiday, especially plants. The firm leased store space, fronting on both Wabash avenue and Van Buren street, for the week and they had a clean-up on many lines.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. will move its cut flower department May 1 to temporary quarters in the basement next door and a part of its supply department to River street.

Henry Arnold, who was confined to his home with throat trouble the greater part of last week, managed to be on the job at the Tonner store during the heaviest rush.

C. L. Washburn says Bassett & Washburn had a splendid Easter trade with the total sales showing a substantial increase over those of the same period of 1921.

August Poehlmann was elected president of the village board at Morton Grove, April 18. Joseph Brooks and Henry Phillips were elected trustees.

Vaughan's Seed Store continues very busy in all departments, and the Easter plant business at the retail store was all that could be desired.

Tonner's are awaiting the first shipments of peonies from Dr. Knapp's farm in Tennessee and expect to be well supplied for Mothers' Day.

The J. A. Budlong Co. is supplying its trade with gladioli in quantity including Mrs. Frances King, Pendleton and Augusta.

J. C. Nielson, representing Poehlmann Bros. Co., is able to be about again after being on the sick list for two weeks.

George Reinberg had a heavy cut of callas for Easter but they were all disposed of before the rush was over.

Easter Sunday sunshine caused the forsythia blooms to expand in the lake-side parks and gardens.

FINE EASTER TRADE REPORTED.

From reports gained thus far the holiday business, both wholesale and retail, was fully equal to last year and in many cases exceeded all expectations. Weather conditions up to the end of the week were not ideal, but Saturday, and especially Easter Sunday, it was as though made to order. This brought out the public en masse, and helped to increase the results hoped for. The greatest demand was for pot plants, with the smaller cut flowers for corsage work a close second. The supply of pot plants was large, but not great enough to satisfy all, as in many instances it was a case of sold out before Saturday evening. The variety of cut flowers was large and the supply likewise. The offerings consisted of roses, carnations, Easter and calla lilies, sweet peas, calendulas, violets, lily of the valley, snapdragons, daisies and the various bulbous flowers. The local craft did not place many orders for cut flowers in advance, in view of past experiences that Easter is more a plant than cut flower day. Only after this class gave out did the public resort to the cut stock. As stated above, the weather was ideal, which consequently made delivery a much lighter task than had it been cold.

NOTES.

Alfred Locker, president of the Florists' Club, reports the arrival of a baby boy, April 14, a true Easter greeting. Both mother and child doing nicely. They have the congratulations of the trade.

James Fox, who has been ill, expected to be at the shop for the rush last week, but upon advice of his physician remained at home.

The Semler-Leideger Co., which did a big business for Easter, reported being sold out of plants by 2 p. m., Saturday.

COALINGA, CALIF.—The Coalinga Floral Shop was recently opened here by Cal Marcom.

SIoux CITY, IA.—Rocklin & Lehman recently purchased the range of greenhouses formerly owned by the Glass-acres Garden Nursery Co., North Riverside, comprising 50,000 square feet of glass, and the retail flower shop of the Art Florists, 512 Fifth street, this city. EXCELLENT EASTER TRADE.

The Easter business exceeded all expectations, the volume being considerably ahead of last year, with no change in prices. All plants and flowers were in great demand, especially roses and spring stock. Toward the end of the week rose offerings fell short, with prices ranging from $12 to $40 per 100, a gain over the values for the previous week. Carnations went well at $8 to $10 per 100. Lily of the valley was popular for corsages, and cleaned up. Excellent blooms of gardenias appeared and were snapped up at 50 cents per flower. Jonquils and snapdragons moved without any urging. Cut Darwin tulips were easily sold at $1 to $1.50 per dozen. Delphiniums of superb quality went strong and Easter lilies were completely cleaned out, the pot stock leading in popularity. Cut blooms brought $25 to $30 per 100. Callas also went well. Sweet peas, calendulas and lilacs were other flowers that met a good demand. All stock in pots sold rapidly and many retailers reported that they had great difficulty in securing enough material. Adiantums, Asparagus Sprengeri and A. plumosa and ferns were the leaders in green goods.

The growers, wholesalers and retailers spent over $6,000 in advertisements in the local newspapers, the latter furnishing one-half of this amount. Many attribute a portion of the increased demand for the holiday to this publicity and the florists have added another slogan to "Say It With Flowers," namely, "It Pays to Advertise."

HOLIDAY TRADE EQUALS EXPECTATIONS.

The week previous to Easter was a good one in every respect. Despite rather inclement weather florist shops were well patronized and the number of orders were up to that of the previous year, but with stock lower in price there was a decline in cash receipts. Some advance was made in roses and carnations but other flowers, as a rule, were held at about the same levels which have prevailed for several weeks. There was plenty of Easter lilies of all kinds, despite the fact that the extra warm weather of a week or 10 days ago brought many into bloom and they were lost for the trade. Bulbous stock was also plentiful and sales were good as a rule. Business was about equally divided between cut flowers, plants and bulbous stock. Roses were fine and retailed from $4 to $12 per dozen. Sweet peas were sufficient for all needs. Lily of the valley, carnations and snapdragons sold well. Bulbous offerings included hyacinths, jonquils, tulips and freesias. Sweet peas sold from $1.50 to $2. Carnations were firm around $2 per dozen. Corsages were in good demand and loose flowers as a rule sold briskly. The funeral trade is holding up well.

NOTES.

S. F. Stephens & Son, is getting out quite attractive advertising matter in the form of a folded art circular, in which attention is called to the spring flowers such as hyacinths, daffodils, tulips, narcissi, irises, rambler roses and blooming shrubs. This firm specializes in home decorations, such as window boxes, hanging baskets and porch boxes. "We are as near to you as your phone," is the slogan of the company.

T. J. Ludwig, 82 North High street, is sending out a circular calling attention to seedling plants for spring, and many are being sold by this company. Included in the list are campanulæ, coreopsis, delphinium, lobelia, lychnis, platycodon, Sweet William, stokesia and others. The company also is fea-

HOLIDAY A HUGE SUCCESS.

The greatest and most trying day for the florist is past and Easter of 1922 while disappointing in some things, was on a whole a huge success with everyone satisfied. To start with, the weather for two weeks preceding the holiday, was extremely warm and rainy, winding up on Good Friday with one of the worst rain storms for many years. This kind of weather was especially hard on bulbous stock, sweet peas, and violets, items that under the best of conditions are never at their best so late in the season. The plantmen seemed to suffer the most as it was impossible to keep stock from advancing too fast, and there was much stock seen for sale on Saturday that looked as if it should have been marketed about a week or 10 days earlier. Saturday was a beautiful sunny day that brought the people out while Sunday was an ideal Easter, which was responsible for the retailers cleaning up on practically everything. Cut flowers on a whole were of good quality and the wholesale houses quit booking orders on most items two to three days before Easter. American Beauty roses were as fine as any seen this season, running all the way from $10 per 100 for shorts up to $1 each for specials. Of the tea roses, the short ones suitable for corsages had the call and many more could have been disposed of, but on Saturday night, not a rose of any description could be found for sale at any of the wholesale houses, and while on the subject, let us say that the quality was of the best and there was no pickled stock in sight. The day of pickled roses for a holiday is over. Carnations also ran short of the demand, and while some poor stock was in evidence, the majority was up to all expectations. It could not be Easter without lilies and this city was certainly blessed with the best ever handled here for the holiday, both cut and pot stock, and prices held firm at $20 and $25 per 100 for cut and $30 for pot material. Of course, there was

Oriental Goldfish & Supply Co.

3757 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

some inferior stock that brought less, but they were in the minority. The call for callas was phenomenal and the supply run away short of the demand. Bulbous stock such as hyacinths, tulips and jonquils were not so plentiful as in former years, due to the lateness of Easter and the most of it was poor and soft and unfit to send out. The one big disappointment was sweet peas. While there was plenty the quality was such that the most of them were a total loss, in fact, nothing could be done with the shipments received. Violets were also poor, but this was to be expected and the wholesale houses had advised their customers not to handle them so that there was no disappointments in that respect. Lily of the valley came into its own once more and the supply was exhausted, Friday morning. Orchids were also scarce and many more could have been sold. Yellow daisies were as popular as ever and cleaned up early. Snapdragon was good property and the quality left nothing to be desired. The supply of greens was sufficient for all needs, and taking all in all from what few reports there are at hand, the day was a success, in fact, better than most had expected.

NOTES.

Monday evening, April 10, this section was visited by one of the worst hail storms in years, which caused much loss to vegetation and fruit trees in blossom. There was not much damage to greenhouses. The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co.'s range, Bakerstown, was the heaviest loser and as they were directly in the path of the storm it is reported that the loss there will run into big money. They were fortunate in the fact that it did not hurt their Easter crop to any extent.

Reports from other markets are that the lilies were short in stem, but the stock handled here was never better, both flower and stem were just right and there was no trouble in disposing of everything in sight.

The Easter flower show at Phipps conservatories, Schenley and West parks, is one of the best ever staged here. The display of lilies and hydrangeas in particular, is excellent.

Ed. K. Tipton, of the McCallum Co., is leaving next week when he will join his brother at Wellsville, O., where they will open a retail store under the name of Tipton Brothers.

Be sure that the name MEYER is on every spool of green Florists thread that you are buying, and you will get the original and best green Florists thread on the market. EASTER TRADE POOR.

The market the past week was probably the unsteadyest ever experienced. The opening was not at all like the beginning of a holiday week, though prices gained strength gradually to Thursday, when values broke on certain items and never recovered. Roses, especially red, had a fair run for the week, but even they did not clean up, and Saturday the salesmen in both markets were offering all sorts of inducements to the wholesalers to buy. Orchids, sweet peas, lily of the valley and small corsage roses cleaned up well, but the supply was limited on that class of stock. Carnations, bulbous flowers and cut lilies were the real glut, the former bringing six to eight cents at the opening of the week, then quickly going to 10 cents and holding there for a day or two, then falling back to six cents, and were not moved at that price. Cut lilies were very limited in supply, but the call was not there and they remained in the market, although offered for sale at very attractive prices. The less said about jonquils the better, as they actually had no market value. Taken right through it was not an Easter to brag about, though possibly the storm of Saturday had some effect on the trade, but from reports received from other lines of enterprise the business of Saturday

EXCELLENT EASTER TRADE REPORTED.

Florists report a splendid Easter trade. The big feature was Easter lilies and the supply was ample. Funeral and party work is still active. There has been a very good call for cut flowers and blooming plants. In some respects business has been better than it was during the corresponding period of last year. Carnations have been in demand and the quality is very good.

NOTES.

A proposition of a city ordinance, here, adopting the daylight saving time has not met with favor among the local plantmen. The Twelve Six Club, of the Chamber of Commerce, passed resolutions a few days ago opposing the plan.

Florists of Vincennes, Washington and Boonville, Ind., Mt. Carmel, Ill., Henderson, Hopkinsville and Owensboro, Ky., report that they enjoyed a splendid Easter trade and that funeral and party work is quite brisk.

Several small flower shows are being arranged in some of the towns and cities of southern Indiana, southern Illinois and northern Kentucky for the early summer months.

The greenhouses of Julius Niednagel, Fulton avenue, will be moved across the street from their present location, this spring and summer.

BUSINESS FAIRLY GOOD

The market showed a better tone last week and with the near approach of Easter, there is much activity in the trade. At this writing every one expects that prices will be advanced slightly in spite of the heavy supply of stock. Roses are plentiful with a fair call, Mrs. Charles Russell leading. Columbia, Premier, Ophelia, Butterfly and Mrs. Aaron Ward are other popular offerings. Cecile Brunner is daily becoming more plentiful and a few outdoor Ulrich Brunner, of poor quality, have arrived on the market. Carnations are very profuse and it takes the highest grade of stock to bring good prices. Reds are only used in decorative work and the street vendors are handling all poor grades. The greatly increased supply of sweet peas has been one of the surprises of the market, the stock being extra fine. Sales are excellent. The warm weather has about finished the violet crop after one of the most unsatisfactory seasons on record. The few remaining scarcely move. Narcissi are approaching an end and only small lots obtainable. The market is well supplied with tulips of fine quality, values remaining unchanged. Hyacinths and orchids are becoming scarce and prices are continually advancing. Gardenias and lily of the valley are sufficient for all requirements. Giganteums lead in the Easter offerings of lilies. The fancy figures of former years did not obtain this year. The stores seemed to be well supplied with pot grown lilies in all grades. Rambler rose offerings were plentiful for the holiday, the stock being shorter stemmed but well flowered. Small and medium sized plants of azaleas, finely flowered, sold well for Easter. Rhododendrons were timed just right for the holiday. Outdoor grown perennials and annuals are plentiful and in strong demand for the occasion as are baskets and made-up boxes.

RETAIL FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION

The Retail Florists' Association held its regular meeting, April 5, with a large attendance. The action of one of the prominent shops in breaking away from Sunday closing which has been in force since the founding of the association was the subject of much discussion and strongly disapproved by the members. The annual banquet will be held May 6 and President Albert O. Stein appointed the following committee to have charge of the affair: A. O. Stein, chairman; Richard Dinucci, C. W. Brown, P. V. Matraia, Mrs. I. Williams. It was decided to hold a picnic for members and their families and John Kilroy was appointed chairman of the picnic to report at the next meeting. Mr. Matraia talked very interestingly about the co-operative market. After adjournment an enjoyable repast was served under Mr. Matraia's direction. The next meeting will be held May 6.

NOTES.

Donald McLaren, of the McRorie-McLaren Co., has been appointed by the Shriners' convention committee to select flower seeds which will be distributed free to the citizens of the city to beautify their homes for the Shriners' convention next June. California poppies and nasturtiums have been chosen as the most suitable and the Shriners' emblem, red, yellow and green will be shown in gigantic size in front of the conservatory of Golden Gate park.

The Francis Floral & Decorating Co. is moving from 465 Powell street to much larger and finer quarters on the same thoroughfare, adjoining the Chancellor hotel. F. T. Schlottzauer, president of the concern, recently purchased a beautiful residence on Clay street, in the heart of the residential district.

The eighth annual wild flower exhibition opened in the St. Francis hotel April 20, and will continue three days. Bertha M. Rice, authoress of "California Wild Flowers," is president of the California Wild Flower Conservation League.

The window boxes of B. M. Joseph, 223 Grant avenue, present a beautiful appearance, filled with rambler roses and other Easter stock.

G. Rossi & Co. are supplying the trade with high grade white and purple lilacs. Their local and shipping trade was brisk just before the holiday.

A. O. Stein and wife will leave with the Shriners' convention in June for Honolulu where they will remain several weeks.

Fine azaleas are being sold at the Art Floral Co.'s establishment.

HOLIDAY BUSINESS EQUALS PREVIOUS YEAR.

This Easter may safely go on record as most satisfactory, with the volume fully maintaining the record of a year ago. Lilies, as usual, led in demand, with good sales of almost any average blooming plant. Pots and pans of hyacinths and tulips went well. Hydrangeas, roses, cinerarias, perlagoniums, daisies and even geraniums found a place in the demand. Madeup plant baskets were popular under $10. Although the heaviest call was for plants, the trade in cut flowers, including roses, lilies, lily of the valley, violets, and bulbous stock, was not disappointing, no advance being made on the prices previous to Easter week. Weather conditions were favorable.

NOTES.

The Barclay Flower Shop is a new establishment recently opened by Barclay & Freegard, in the College Hill district. Both of these gentlemen were formerly with Chas. P. Mueller, and we wish them success in their new enterprise.

A hailstorm, April 16, caused a slight breakage of glass at the ranges of Chas. P. Mueller and Frank Cluff. The vegetable growers suffered slightly, it is said.

W. H. Culp and Chas. P. Mueller were National Flower Show visitors, at Indianapolis. W. H. C.

Des Moines Floral Arts Club.

The regular meeting of the Floral Arts Club was held April 11, at Harris-Emery's Flower Shop. The speaker of the evening was L. S. Goode, of Successful Farming, whose subject of "How to Make the Most of Planting on a Small Scale" really resolved itself into "the apartment house dwellers' lament." His thought was to get property owners interested in making the most of their individual plots. Even window boxes or porch boxes will add to the beauty of a home if nothing else is available.

As it was nurserymen's night the discussion centered around this thought: To get every property owner to plant shrubbery, not a few scattered shrubs, but well chosen groups about his home. Not only does it add to the owner's pleasure, but in event of wishing to sell his property, it adds greatly to its attractiveness and value.

Those of the club who attended the Fifth National Flower Show, at Indianapolis, gave short account of it, but words failed when trying to tell of its beauties.

It being Better Homes Week in this city, at 8:30 p. m. the club adjourned to the auditorium to hear F. A. Cushing Smith, Chicago, speak on "Planning and Developing the 50-foot Lot." Mr. Smith first showed slides of many and varied kinds of gardens, always with the thought in mind that the garden, whether of flowers or vegetables is a part of a picture. Later, by means of a model, he developed a 50-foot lot showing the best arrangement for house gardens and lawn space and at the close each unit was a part of a picture. P. B. F.

WARM WEATHER AFFECTS EASTER BUSINESS.

Easter has come and gone and while there was a large volume of trade it was not handled as profitably as anticipated on account of the unusual warm weather on Palm Sunday and the Monday and Tuesday following, when the thermometer registered officially 85 degrees which in the greenhouses meant much more. This extreme heat had a bad effect on both plants and flowers softening the blossoms so that in the case of sweet peas and violets very few were fit for shipping. Great quantities of stock were thrown on the market early in the week but there being little demand most of it went to waste. Later shipments were better but on account of the great heat not up to the average expected at this time. There was a big demand, however, for cut flowers, both for shipping and local consumption and all good stock cleaned up fairly well. The best items were lily of the valley and cactleyas. There was a good supply of roses which although showing some burnt petals were in the main acceptable and could be used for out-of-town orders. The greatest disappointment was in sweet peas which are such a factor at this time. The early receipts of the week were so soft as to have no shipping value and later cuttings were not much better being of poor substance. However anything of fair value was taken by the city trade where they were in great demand for corsages. The store men had trouble with flowering plants which lost their flowers, particularly the early shipments. Easter lilies were soft and did not hold up well. Pot roses also suffered as did other stock which stood several days in the stores. Plant baskets sold well and were one of the best of the Easter stocks. Hydrangeas, plentiful and of fine quality, were popuwinter crop. Most of the smaller men gave up carnations years ago, but there are still a number of quite important growers who do carnations well. Most of the others took up mushrooms, fitting their houses to accommodate the new crop. Many frame sheds were also erected while of late years extensive concrete buildings of special design greatly increasing the floor space by being fitted with three and four tier shelves are being constructed. At least 100,000 square feet of such buildings have gone up the past year. Immense quantities are shipped every day to all the large markets of the country, nearly all packed three pounds to a small handle basket, a number of which are fastened together. Prices for a time in the fall were $1 a basket, but latest quotations were $1.50, which price is satisfactory although at times they bring considerably more.

NOTES.

Bernard Eschner, president of the M. Rice Co., has taken a trip abroad for his health, and sailed on the America, April 15. He is accompanied by Mrs. Eschner. The company has found such a sale for the creations of their own factory, that foreign made goods have no interest, their only importations being not procurable here.

Mothers' Day this year falls on May 14. In most of the western cities the business almost equals Easter while some claim it even exceeds this important event. This city might enjoy the same demand if the trade would unite in featuring the day by co-operative advertising and other forms of publicity.

In the death of John G. Eisle and Edward T. Alburger, the older men in the trade lose valued associates, who at the time of their greatest activity were always prominent in advancing the interests of the business. Notices

Additional houses are to be added in the near future to the Stafford plant of Alfred M. Campbell. There are few more orderly places than this range on the mainline where every foot of greenhouse space is pulling for the proprietor all the time.

Chas. E. Meehan is still adding to his new wholesale house. The latest is a commodious artificial ice cooled room for the temporary storage of cut flowers. With this installation he now has one of the most modern plants of its kind in the city.

Emil H. Geshick who has just experienced a very successful Easter trade is to visit his old home in Germany where his mother is still engaged in the florist business. He will sail, June 24, with Mrs. Geshick.

Harry I. Faust reached home from Porto Rico in time to superintend his Easter trade. He found the stock in splendid condition and most of it set aside for early orders.

Sydney H. Bayersdorfer and wife arrived home from their European trip reaching New York on the Olympic April 18.

HOLIDAY BUSINESS SATISFACTORY.

Considering the lateness of Easter and previous weather conditions the wholesale cut flower trade was as good and even better than might have been expected. Fortunately for both cut flowers and plants, the warm days of the first of last week were followed by a cool wave. But it must be considered that for weeks there had been heavy arrivals and a flood of stock was to be expected for the holiday. A large amount of stock was sold but at prices ranging from 50 per cent and upward, below the Easter prices of 1921. What worried a number of wholesalers was the absence of a cleanup. Although the change to cool weather was a great benefit it did not prevent considerable stock from arriving in poor condition. There were many poor violets with no stability in prices. While a few brought $1.50 per 100, it is doubtful if the cut averaged 75 cents per 100. Carnations, which had been moving fairly well for two weeks were checked by the surplus thrown on the market for Easter. They had been bringing from $6 to $8 per 100, some special stock at $8 to $10, but there was a slump towards the last with sales at $4 and a surplus. Cut lilies were slow toward Easter at $12 and $15 per 100, in fact neither cut or pot stock moved as well as might have been expected. They were outclassed by the great amount of other and more showy material. Snapdragons, colored stocks and the commoner tulips were poor property. The Darwin tulips sold better, but did not clean up. As with other offerings the great quantity of tea roses thrown on the market April 15, created a surplus. Columbia may be said to have ranged from $4 and $5 per 100 for No. 2, to $25 for the best. A few of the finest Premiers went as high as $40 per 100, and special Scott Keys at $60 to $75. There was an abundance of white roses. Special American Beauty went at the rate of $100 to $125 per 100; cattleyas, according to variety from $9 to $24 per dozen; gardenias, $2 to $6 per dozen. Considering the great stock of them on the market, nothing sold better than sweet peas, good long stemmed flowers reaching $4 per 100. It is unnecessary to enlarge on the cut flower situation, the duldest mind can grasp it. Whether there is a shortage or surplus, prices are always raised for a holiday trade. The retail stores having large stocks of plants are bound to push them and buy as few cut flowers as possible while the plants last. On the whole, considering as we have said, all the conditions, the wholesalers have no reason to complain. Turning to the retail stores, we found that those on the main thoroughfares, as Fifth avenue, Broadway, and Madison avenue had good plant trade with prices about the same, but in some instances a little lower than last year. In the sections of the city where there is a large percentage of non-professional working people, we believe that the trade was to some extent, disappointing. "Mushroom" shops for the sale of plants sprang up all over the city, vacant stores being temporarily leased. At Union square the annual outdoor Easter market was doing a lively business all day Saturday and a great quantity of stock was sold, much of it, of course, of inferior quality, but it went nevertheless. Sunday was an ideal day as to weather, bright sunshine and bracing air. In the forenoon the retail establishments were generally crowded with customers. Many of the purchases were small, but they helped to swell the receipts. The wholesalers kept open all of the night of April 15 and until noon of the holiday. There was a fair trade on Saturday night, but little doing on Easter.

April 17.—Arrivals this morning were rather light and fresh stock is holding up fairly well. There is a considerable surplus left over from last Saturday, which is going cheaply. A surprise feature of the Easter trade was the fall down of white roses, there being thousands unsold. Lily of the valley, which had scarcely moved for some time, went well at the holiday, the best bringing $15 per 100. Latest reports from all parts of the city, Newark, N. J., and other neighboring towns indicate that business was generally good.

CENTRAL PARK AS AN EXHIBITION PLACE.

Quite a genteel row is going on in our city over the proposal of the National Society of Sculpture to hold an exhibition of its wares on the meadow in Central park. It is said that Park Commissioner Gallatin favors the scheme. It is proposed to exhibit 50 to 100 pieces of park statuary on the meadow and the plan includes cutting paths to enable the people to "keep off the grass." It is certain that it will be impossible to place any statues in the park that are uglier than some that are already there. But that is not the point in dispute. Wm. R. Wilcox, a former park commissioner, has voiced the sentiments of the opponents of the scheme, in saying: "If Central park is to be a general exhibition ground for everything that is good in this city there will be no end to it. If this exhibition is allowed it will be the first time in the history of Central park that such a thing has been done. The moment you step over the line Central park is doomed."

NOTES.

There is a general sentiment of regret in the wholesale district over the passing away of John I. Raynor. Though not in business of late he was always a welcome visitor. Further particulars will be found in the obituary column.

Just before Easter, Doyle & Booth moved to 116 West Twenty-eighth street, where they occupy much larger space than at the old stand. They seemed to have good business in orchids and gardenias.

Geo. Hildenbrand, in the Eighteenth street market, recently formed a partnership with Emil Bartels, the style of the business being Hildenbrand & Bartels. We wish them abundant success.

Calling at the store of Malandre Bros., we found them well sold out of plants and it was stated that their cut flower business had been good.

At the shop of George D. Nicholas, Seventh avenue and 123d street, there was every evidence of a fine business.

A favorable report on the holiday trade was received from Peter Theopine of the Boulevard Floral Co., Broadway and 86th street.

Frank H. Traendly expressed no dissatisfaction with the Easter business. He stated that they were pretty well cleaned out.

Chris E. Zervakos, whose two stores, 536 Columbus avenue and 1294 Madison avenue, were finely stocked, reported a good trade.

Manager Scott of Wadley & Smythe, Fifth avenue at 42nd street, stated on Easter eve that their business had been excellent.

It was reported from the C. A. Dard's store that they sold out in plants and had a good cut flower business.

A fine holiday trade was enjoyed by the Colonial Florist, Broadway at 157th street.

Stephen Masur, a prominent Brooklyn retailer, reported a fine business.

Miss Flora Lins, 368 Lexington avenue, reported a clean up for Easter.

The Olympia Florist had a fine business in plants and cut flowers.

FAIRBAULT, MINN.—Hadley P. Bell has purchased the entire interests of the Bell Seed & Produce Co.

C. C. MASSIE, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn., has returned from California, having left his family there.

BOARD OF TRADE.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade this week were as follows: Timothy, $5.25 per 100 pounds; Red Clover, $15 to $22.

PRICES of bags at Chicago, April 19: Anchor, 16 oz., $30.00 per bale, in bale lots or over; Royal River, 16 oz., $30; National, 16 oz., $30; Crown, 12 oz., $25.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—The Cream City Seed Co. has been incorporated with a capital of $5,000. Alfred L. Rosenberg, Palagia Rosenberg and Jos. P. Zielinski, are the incorporators.

A WASHINGTON special to the New York World says the new tariff, known as the Fordney-McCumber bill, is conceded to be the most unsatisfactory tariff bill ever written.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district advanced sharply last week, and whites and yellows are selling this week at $4.00, reds, $3.00. It is freely predicted whites and yellows will go to $5.00 before the close of the season.

EDWIN D. BUELL, receiver in the bankruptcy case of the Everett R. Peacock Co., Chicago, says he is still unable to give any information as to assets and liabilities. For the information of inquirers, Mr. Buell's address is 105 West Monroe street. Telephone, Central 0629.

L. L. OLDS, of the L. L. Olds Seed Co., Madison, Wis., writes April 7: "Our business at the present time is just double that of a year ago in dollars and cents, which you can readily understand is highly satisfactory to us. The tonnage in field seeds compares favorably with our biggest years of 1919 and 1920. We certainly have no kick on this year's business and expect to pay our share of the income tax to the government again this year."

THE A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., writing April 14, states: "Our observation is that both mail and counter trade throughout the country seems to be in a satisfactory condition. Stocks are cleaning up and business generally is in much better shape than a year ago. We are receiving orders daily for express shipments of peas and beans from all sections of the United States, which, we believe, shows that the trade is running its stocks down to the last bag before making new purchases. We are looking forward to a better business than experienced for many years past."

LONDON, ENG.—Cooper, Taber & Co., Ltd., announce that James Lamb, who represented them in America last year, died in hospital March 18 from tuberculosis of the throat. Their representative this year will be Harry Simpson, who has been for many years in the seed trade and the greater part of the time with this firm.

COLUMBUS, O.—"Mail orders are less in number than in 1921 at this time, but average more in money value," reports the Livingston Seed Co., April 14. "The volume, however, continued satisfactory. Account business is much larger than a year ago and counter trade is excellent in all departments. The canners have purchased a great quantity of tomato seed the past four weeks and we look forward to a good crop of tomatoes. Back yard gardens are proving most popular this year and are a factor in the trade. New recruits fill up the ranks made vacant by the quitters and enthusiasm is running high."

Burpee's Business.

David Burpee, of the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia Pa., writes, April 12, as follows: "Our total volume of business throughout the season has been considerably ahead of the same period a year ago, especially since April 1. Trade this month has greatly eclipsed the business of the two preceding years for April and, if it continues proportionately, 1922 will probably be one of the best years we have ever experienced in our history."

"We have noted especially an increased demand for flower seeds. Retail and market garden call for vegetable seeds has gained, but the wholesale demand is more or less irregular."

Peacock Indictment Sought.

That a $468,000 shortage in the Milwaukee-Irving State bank, Chicago, recently was discovered and made good by bank officials was learned April 18, when it became known that the state's attorney will seek indictments against three former officers of the institution Thursday.

Those against whom the action is aimed are Everett R. Peacock, the founder and first president; Albert Sporereder, also a former president, and

H. W. Anderson, a former cashier. Although others may be involved, these three are said to have caused the loss by lending the Everette R. Peacock Co., seed dealers, at 4013 Milwaukee avenue, Chicago, large sums on doubtful collateral.

State prosecutors and bank officials both state that the bank now is solvent. Those who stand to lose money are the director and officials who underwrote the loss when it was first discovered. The loss, however, is large in comparison with the bank's size. The last report showed that the institution, which is on the northwest side at 4017 Milwaukee avenue, had resources of $681,642.72.

A complaint of Fred Rathje of the law firm of Rathje, Lawlor & O'Connor, Chicago, representing the bank directors and stockholders, resulted in the story of the shortage becoming public.

"When the shortage was discovered by State Bank Examiner Savage October 6, last year, he called together the directors of the bank," Mr. Rathje told reporters. "They were told that unless it was made good the doors of the bank would not be allowed to open the next morning."

"They produced over $100,000 in cash and the balance in mortgages and bonds with the exception of $25,000 on surety bonds, to collect which a suit now is pending. Today the bank has not a dollar in outside obligations, except to its depositors."

"Since that time I have been trying every which way to get the missing money. I even threatened criminal action in hope of getting it. But the men we asked about it merely declared they did not know a thing about it. From the Peacock company and Mr. Peacock I got a number of securities, all of questionable value. We haven't realized anything on them yet, although we may salvage as much as $50,000, and deeds to three pieces of real estate. We may get $25,000 or $30,000 more on various lots of personal property."

"But the loss, made good that night of October 6 before the bank's doors opened October 7, may be about $400,000."

"Of the loss, $293,000 is in checks overdrawn by the Peacock company on its account. Then $60,000 to $70,000 more is in notes of officers of the company given to cover overdrafts by the Western Cannery Association.

The thirty-eighth annual meeting of the Western Cannery Association was held at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, April 14-15, with a good attendance and an elaborate programme. Outside of the local seed dealers, however, there were comparatively few representatives of the seed trade in attendance on this occasion, which would indicate a healthier condition in the cannery seed business than has obtained for some time past.

Roy Clark, Beaver Dam, Wis., was elected president, and John H. Lee, Chicago, secretary-treasurer.

New York Seed Bill Vetoed.

Marshall H. Duryea, of the Nungesser-Dickinson Seed Co., New York, writes as follows April 17: "As a result of a hearing given the New York seedmen before Governor Miller, April 4, Senator Ferris' Seed Bill, No. 751, was vetoed by the governor, Friday, April 14."

Grass and Clover Seed Prices.

The following were the wholesale prices in dollars per 100 pounds on timothy, Kentucky blue grass, red top and red clover at principal points of distribution, April 1, 1922, as given by the government market reporter of April 8, 1922:

American Association of Nurserymen.

M. R. Cashman, Owatonna, Minn., President; Paul C. Lindley, Pomona, N. C., Vice-President; Charles Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo., Secretary; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Iowa, Treasurer.

The forty-seventh annual convention will be held at Detroit, Mich., June 28-30, 1932.

DANSVILLE, N. Y.—Wm. Bacon has entered business with his father, Edw. Bacon. The firm has planted nearly 500,000 trees this year.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.—The Poughkeepsie Nursery Co. recently purchased a farm near its new location on South road, 10 miles from this city. Planting will probably be commenced this season.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Fourteen miles of streets have been planted to trees this year by the city forestry division of the park board, consisting of 2,000 elm and 500 maple, two inches in diameter.

BRENTWOOD, CALIF.—The Kirkman Nurseries recently purchased 250 acres of irrigated land near this city, costing $68,750, and will establish a nursery in the near future. They have also purchased 166 acres, formerly owned by R. E. LeMain, near here.

HARRISBURG, PA.—The state department of forestry is planning to operate a nursery on the Bellefonte-Lewiston road, in the near future with a capacity of 12,000 to 15,000 young trees for free distribution to municipalities and public institutions of Pennsylvania.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—The Co-operative Nursery & Landscape Association has been organized in this city, with Lloyd A. Pottenger, president, formerly of the Kankakee Nursery Co., Kankakee, Ill. The association will act in an advisory capacity and furnish landscaping service and nursery stocks to its members at cost. E. B.

A CONFERENCE advocating reforestation in the middle west was held under the auspices of the Union League Club, Chicago, April 19-20, during Forest Protection Week, which is in accordance with a proclamation issued by President Harding. United States representatives from Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio were in attendance.

Trees Planted by Chicago's Schools.

Two hundred and twenty school grounds of Chicago and Cook county, Ill., were planted with that number of trees, April 7, by pupils with appropriate exercises, under the "Plan to Plant Another Tree," movement recently inaugurated by the Illinois Nurserymen's Association. An average of 150 people attended the exercises at each institution and it is estimated that there were 33,000 interested spectators at the ceremonies throughout the county on that day.

During May a tree census will be taken by the pupils in Cook county.

Tree Tract Sets Record.

Olney, Richland Co., Ill.—The part of the world above the tropic of cancer, which includes the north temperate zone contains no other known plot of ground to equal the record of 18 acres of Richland county, near here, according to Dr. Robert Ridgeway, its owner. "Bird Haven," he says, "boasts a greater variety of trees than any other 18 acres in that vast expanse.

"Nearest that record," Dr. Ridgeway said, "is that of a much larger area in Japan, near Sapporo, central Yezo, where 62 kinds of trees are growing. Bird Haven, Dr. Ridgeway's records show, has 70 native species and varieties growing naturally.

Street Trees.

Oaks are considered by the United States Department of Agriculture to be the best trees for street planting. It is probable that oaks have not been more widely planted because of the prevalent belief that they are slow growers, and because in the north they are rather difficult to transplant. A white oak, however, which is one of the slow-growing kinds, will reach the same height as a sugar maple in the same period of time, and maples have been used much more widely than oaks for street ornamentation, despite many unsatisfactory characteristics.

A new farmers' bulletin, No. 1208, "Trees for Town and City Streets," by F. L. Mulford, horticulturist, issued by the department at Washington, D. C., describes in detail the various oaks for street use in different regions, as well as about 100 other trees or varieties. Elms are given second place in desirability for city streets, and sycamores third. Maples are considered less desirable than has been generally supposed. Except the Lombardy poplar most varieties of poplar are not recommended.

The bulletin, which is available upon application to the department, contains a regional map of the United States and indicates which trees flourish best under the climatic conditions of each region.

Tree Seedlings for Europe.

As one method of sowing international good will, the supply of tree seedlings and seeds by America to Great Britain and the war-devastated countries of Belgium and France has not obtained a quarter of the notice in the press which it deserves. Yet American spruces and firs in particular are springing up by the thousands in England, and along the Caledonian canal in Scotland, where American submarine-chasers were wont to mobilize during the war period. They are also to be seen in the Ardennes on the fringe of the Belgian industrial area; while they will form a prominent feature of the 2,000,000 acres which France must re-afforest.

One of the first areas to be seeded in France was the Chemin des Dames district, where only charred stumps of the thick forests remained. But now American seedlings carpet the slopes. They are furthermore at Coucy-le-Chateau, at Valenciennes, Lille and Hirson. The Irish Free State also has a wonderful showing. But when all has been said and done, and the nature of this splendid monument to the partnership of America with the allies is considered, it would be well if Americans gave more attention to their own needs of reafforestation.

Arbor Day.

This year is the fiftieth anniversary of Arbor Day. Since its inauguration we have passed safely through many crises, of which the last threatened to jeopardize the cause of liberty throughout the world. Let us all therefore make every effort to celebrate the occasion with proper spirit and a sincere thankfulness to the providence of God. Too many demoralizing influences are at work these days among our young people, and young minds are far more plastic than in later years. Nothing is more wholesome than a love of nature, and a child who has an interest in trees and flowers can never go far wrong. We can each year contribute to good citizenship and a clean moral tone throughout the country by a serious, thoughtful, and appropriate observance of Arbor Day.—Brooklyn Botanic Garden Leaflet.

NEW YORK.—Carloads of radishes, lettuce, spinach and other vegetables sent here for the trade the week before Easter, arrived in such poor condition that the jobbers refused to accept them. Railroads were forced to sell the shipments for less than freight charges in an effort to reduce their losses, according to a statement by the state board of farms and markets. The warm weather early in the week was blamed.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, April 18. — Cucumbers, per crate, $3.50 to $5; lettuce, per box, 35 cents; carrots, $1.65 to $1.75 per bushel; cabbage, $1.75 to $2 per crate; cauliflower, per pony crate, $2.25 to $2.40.

New York, April 14.—Cucumbers, $1 to $4.25 per basket; radishes, per 100 bunches, $1.50 to $2.50; tomatoes, per crate, $2 to $3; lettuce, per crate, $1.50 to $3.50; beets, per hamper, $1.50 to $2.25; cauliflower, $1.50 to $2.50 per dozen.

Vegetable Movement.

The advancing season brings steady increasing supplies from the early truck crop regions. These now make up more than one-half the car lot movement of fruits and vegetables. Apples and old potatoes are less in volume each week and comprised a little over two-fifths of the shipments of nearly 10,000 during the week ending April 15. As compared with a year ago, most lines are coming in heavier volume, and the total of 11 leading fruit and vegetables is nearly one-fourth greater. The general tendency of the markets was toward lower prices, with quite severe declines in cities where arrivals were heavy.

Fruit and Vegetable Crates.

Standardization of fruit and vegetable crates and boxes is contemplated in a nation-wide survey of the box-making industry now being made by the United States Department of Agriculture. The importance of the manufacturer's position in the standardization of a particular container or type of container is fully recognized by the department, and the first step in the survey is directed toward securing the views of manufacturers. They are being requested by the department to furnish it with the material specifications for all fruit and vegetable crates and boxes made in their factories. The request applies only to containers for fresh fruits and vegetables and not to those for canned goods. This information will include the inside dimensions of crate or box, complete material specifications including gross dimensions for each piece and the footage, the kinds of lumber used in making crates and boxes, the number and sizes of nails used, and the weight of empty crates or boxes.

Selling price f. o. b., wholesale and retail for the current season, the number of pounds or number of units of the commodity that the crate or box is designed to hold, the annual output of the factory for each type of container, and the section or sections of the country in which specified types of containers are used, as well as the names of large shippers using such containers are also requested. The information covered by the last two points is desired so that the department may have a more comprehensive idea of the containers used in the different sections, the source of supply for each section, and in order that any points for discussion may be taken up with the shippers direct. All information received by the department will be regarded as confidential.

In outlining the department's plans, H. W. Samson in charge of the standardization work said: "We feel that the work of standardization should proceed cautiously and along sound lines. To do so it must be based upon full information and hearty co-operation from those concerned. A full and frank discussion of the standardization of containers will be welcomed by the department."

Mr. Samson also voiced the department's gratification at the co-operation received from package manufacturers in the past and said that, in the five years during which the standard containers act has been in effect there has been only one known instance of flagrant violation.
